Lincoln-Eliot gets addition

The $1.22 million bond issue to enlarge the Lincoln-Eliot School was passed unanimously by the Board of Aldermen Monday night.

A vote of 23-0, with Sidney Small absent for the roll call, passed the Lincoln-Eliot bond issue subject to approval of 65 per cent reimbursement from the state School Building Assistance Bureau (SBAB).

The Board action Monday night came close to the April 10 expiration of bids on the construction of the long-sought school building addition.

If the bids had expired before the Board approved bonding, new bids would have had to be obtained, meaning another increase in cost and another delay.

Public Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson will not be able to confirm SBAB approval of the 65 per cent reimbursement until at least April 23, but said he is confident that the present low bidders will sign contracts before SBAB approval has been granted.

The go-ahead on the construction, which will add nearly half again the total space to the Lincoln-Eliot School, came after more than three years of agitation by the Lincoln-Eliot community, and had its turning-point during Public Buildings Committee meetings over the past month.

Community and school leaders, including members of the School Committee and School Department, expressed their support for the project, often on the grounds of below-average scholastic ability of many pupils attending Lincoln-Eliot and below-average income for the neighborhood.

The school serves as a focal point for community activities, proponents said, and because of the lower scholastic achievement of many of the students has extra educational needs, in spite of a declining enrollment.

The sole publicly stated disagreement with the 23-0 vote came from Ald. Sidney Small, chairman of the Finanace Committee.

Small had announced at a Finance Committee meeting last week at which the bond issue was voted 7-0 with Small abstaining, that he might "charter" the measure at the Board meeting. Such a postponement by charter objection would have either required a special meeting to be called for the full Board to vote, or if Small were joined by three other aldermen, would have put a vote over until the next regular meeting, beyond the bid expiration date.

Monday night Small said, "Maybe serving on the Finance Committee makes one fiscally conservative, but I'm worried about what is taking place. We're now talking about bonding one and one-quarter million dollars at the same time the School Department and the School Committee are examining one, two or three schools where there might be closings."

"We are sure to have a decline in enrollment in the years ahead — if it were not for the parochial school students coming into the system, the decline would have been dramatic," Small said.

Commenting on some aldermen's description of the projected new Lincoln-Eliot gymnasium as "a bargain for $170,000," the estimated amount too be saved if the building addition were redesigned without a new gym, Small said, "This is no bargain."

"This is like so many things our School Department has done and is doing now. We never did anything to stop it We should have made corrections before," Small said

Ald. Louis Egelson said he was "disturbed by the sophistry that we're getting a bargain."

Egelson called the building "over-designed," and noted that it is 2,000 square feet over the specifications called for by educational requirements established by the School Committee.

"We should at least warn people in the neighborhood that if conditions are not met (SBAB approval of reimbursement) or if the bids increase, the item might come back to us and not fare so well next time."

Aldermen cut budget slightly

The Board of Aldermen has cut the $62.9 million budget by a total of $784,977 so far and has put $124,340 in budget reserve for the 1974-75 fiscal year.

At last Saturday's review, more than half the two-volume budget was gone through, giving hope that the Board can get through the rest of it at a special meeting tonight (Thursday).

Following is a summary of the mayor's recommended budgets for each department reviewed up to now, with the amount cut.

Most changes in the budget were recommended by the Finance Committee and approved by the full Board.

Executive Department (total requested budget $148,975)—$23,039 cut, with $20,000 put into budget reserve for the new position of chief financial officer, which will begin on or after July 1.

The $13,000 salary for Thomas Keefe, who has been the mayor's liaison with the Purchasing Department, was deleted. Keefe is reportedly to become deputy sealer.

Retirement Board ($2.2 million)—Cut $8,200.

Licensing Board ($21,996)—Cut $5,813.

Jackson Homestead ($21,537)—Cut $1,000.

Boards, commissions, committees ($13,875)—Traffic Commission cut by $6,000 from consulting fees.

Redevelopment Authority ($15,870, city's 30 per cent share of state-aided project)—Cut $2,502.

Personnel Department ($72,264)—Cut $22,360. New position of personnel assistant and filling of vacant position of junior clerk not allowed.

Citizens' Assistance ($11,140)—Cut $360.

Human Resources Department ($72,575)—Cut $2,238. There was considerable debate on the city's funding what had been the federally funded position of assistant director. This department comprises the Youth Commission, the Council on Aging, and the Community Relations Commission.

Accounting Department ($104,630)—Cut $8,846. One position was abolished.

Assessing Department ($145,340)—Cut $2,150.

Purchasing Department ($79,952)—No change.

Treasury ($183,712)—Cut $6,530.

Data Processing ($125,225)—Cut $3,495.

Law Department ($218,585)—Cut $15,850. The proposed increased salary for the city solicitor was cut from $23,500 to $22,000, for two assistant city solicitors from $16,800 to $15,000 each, and for another from $14,500 to $14,000; $11,000 was cut from money for judgements and settlements.

City Clerk ($91,000)—Cut $100.

Board of Aldermen ($91,506)—No change.

Public Buildings Department ($898,783)—Cut $71,765, with $13,840 put in budget reserve. The comparatively small cut here probably reflects the confidence the Board of Aldermen have in the new Public Buildings Director and renewed emphasis on keeping up schools and other public buildings.

Election Commission and conduct of elections ($158,441)—Cut $11,999.

Planning Department ($132,106)—Cut $100.

Conservation Commission ($48,810)—Cut $250, with $20,000 put in budget reserve. For the first time the Conservation Commission has its own budget, mostly for maintenance of ponds and conservation land.

Fire Department ($4,158,193)—Cut $186,507. A new assistant chief and five new firefighters were not allowed. Cuts were also made in new equipment.

Police Department ($4,071,717)—Cut $320,638. Four new patrolmen, two new lieutenants and one new sergeant were not allowed. Overtime pay was slashed.

Animal Control ($81,452)—Cut $14,850.

Life Care halted again

The revelation by Planning Director Charles Thomas that the Life Care Center site plan is deficient stopped action on the proposal by the Board of Aldermen Monday night until a subsequent meeting.

After approval by the full Board of the petition to amend the city's zoning ordinance to include the definition of a residential care facility and modified permissive-use requirements for the facility, the news of the problem came like a bombshell.

Thomas explained the defects in the site plan, which must be approved as part of the granting of permissive use, as excessive building height, absence of underground parking layout and too-small and improperly located outdoor parking spaces.

Uncertain as to whether they could proceed with a vote on a second petition, to change the Stanton Avenue parrcel from Residence A to Residence E zoning in the face of the deficient site plan, the Board voted 16 yes and 8 no. An affirmative vote of 18 was necessary to pass the zone change

Bfore the vote Board President Eliot Cohen warned the Board, "We are treading on very dangerous ground."

Thomas, asked why the Board found out about the site-plandefects on April 1, when the plan was dated Feb. 12, replied that the Planning Department "had consistently found the building higher then the Life Care proponents say it is."

Thomas says the building is 60.9 feet in height, exceeding the allowed height by less than one foot. The architect for the building claims that the height is 54 feet.

All the defects can be easily remedied, Thomas said.

Ald. Robert Tennant called the hesitancy in voting on the incorrect site plans, even though they would be corrected before a building permit could be issued, "a last-minute move by the opposition to defeat the proposal."

After the change of zone was defeated, there was no purpose in voting on the third petition, for permissive use, and it was held in the Land Use Committee.

Two aldermen filed Tuesday for reconsideration of two of Monday night's votes

Ald. Joseph McDonnell, who has steadfastly opposed the density of the Life Care Center and would like to see the building cut by one floor, has moved reconsideration of the vote on the zoning amendment.

Ald. Mark White, who changed his vote on the change from Residence A to E from yes to no, moved for a reconsideration of that vote,

Tree now has a price on its head

The tree in front of Arthur Obermayer's house at 239 Chestnut St., West Newton, is worth $100,000.

At least that's the amount of the bond required by a judge to keep it untouchable, according to City Solicitor Howard Levine.

Obermayer, who has been fighting the city's plans to take down the sugar maple in front of his house, obtained a temporary restraining order on March 24, forbidding the city to remove any tree on Chestnut St.

Tuesday Judge Robert J. Hallisey of Middlesex Superior Court lifted the restraining order against any tree-cutting on Chestnut Street with the exception of the Obermayer tree, on the condition that Obermayer post a $100,00 bond for any liability the city might face because of the tree.

The tree was ordered cut down last month by Mayor Theodore Mann on the grounds that it presents a hazard to public safety. According to city and other tree experts, the tree has large areas of rot and fungus and many dead limbs.

Obermayer presented another tree expert's opinion which stated that the tree may have as much as 10 more years of life.

According to Levine, who represented the city at court, Judge Hallisey denied Obermayer's lawyers's contention that a prior injunction issued last summer, when eight trees were threatened with removal in connection with a street-reconstruction project on Chestnut, was still in effect.

That injunction forbade the removal of the eight trees.

Hallisey ruled Tuesday, Levine said, that when the street work had been completed, the injunction had been dismissed.

Obermayer's bill of complaint also maintained that a public hearing is necessary before the tree can be cut down, and that the cutting down of any tree on Chestnut Street violates the Scenic-Roads Act. Chestnut Street was designated a "scenic road" by an action of the Newton Planning Board shortly after the summer's legal action regarding the trees.

Levine said Tuesday that Hallisey agreed with Levine's interpretation that the law clearly allows the mayor to School shortage not yet resolved

The April 1 date requested by the School Committee for information from Comptroller Arthur Marr on how much surplus is available for the School Department has not yielded any firm figure.

The School Committee is faced with a $649,000 shortage of funds with which to pay teachers' salaries in June and according to Marr, the city surplus account does not have that much free money.

School Committee Chairwoman Eleanor Rosenblum last month announced that no action would be necessary by the School Committee until April 1, but "if the necessary funds have not been made available at that time it will be necessary to cut off funds for adult education, all community uses of school buildings, athletic programs and all instructional materials."

On Wednesday morning, School Department Budget Director Harry Vienneau said that he had not heard "officially" from Marr on how much surplus would be available to the School Department.

Marr on Tuesday estimated that the city had $450,000 in surplus at the end of March, not all of which can be spent, since the city will need some reserve. No more money collected or received after March 31 can be used during this fiscal year, Marr said.

A winning brand of fencing

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

Steel blades have broken against his body. He is asked how many people he has killed.

No, not Errol Flynn; not even Basil Rathbone. Its a 16-year-old fencing champion from Newton South High School

Alan Brand, a junior at Newton South, won first place in the advanced saber category of the New England Interscholastic Fencing Championships last month.

Alan started fencing when he was 12 yearsold, becoming interested in the sport after an older brother began fencing.

In describing fencing, Alan said "it could tie in with judo and karate. It is also a mind game like chess. It can get very complicated."

He explained that the mechanics of fencing can be learned in two years, "but that is not sufficient for competition."

Alan said that it is important to observe both a prospective opponent and the judge before a match.

To prepare for a match, "you observe your opponent, try to find a weakness, and make plans."

He noted that there are "tactics you can use to find out about an opponent duricg a match, but you can lose a competition by experimenting."

There are three types of fencing competition; saber, epee and foil. Alan competes vcly in saber.

In a saber match, the first fencer to score five points wins. Decisions about points are made by a director aftjr a judge raises a hand to signal a touch. Saber fencers can aim for any part of an opponent's body above the waist. They may touch with either the point or the side of the weapon.

To be awarded a point, a fencer must show "continuous threatening." A director must make decisions about which fencer has "right of way," and a touch does not automatically result in a point.

"There is a common factor of human error," Alan remarked. "A judge may not see a touch at all."

He noted that a fencer needs to consider the judges. He may "have to play what they see." A judge's interpretation of what an attack is may differ from that of the fencer.

Alan added that it is important to stay

Students to get awards

By PAULA BARRY

The Riley House service committee will present its award in mid-May to house members who have rendered outstanding service in the community and school.

The committee was instituted in the fall of 1971 because of the dissolution of the National Honor Society. Teachers were finding that faculty recognition did not mean much to kids.

"Kids only wanted national honors for college," explained Rudolph Satlak, former faculty advisor.

A group of teachers met and decided that the average student who participated in activities in and outside of school should be rewarded because he rarely expects it.

"It's nice to know that someone appreciates you," commented Mike Silton, a former recipient.

The teachers concluded that the award would be more meaningful if the recipients were chosen by a group of peers. The committee, as it now stands, is comprised of a member of the Riley House Council, representatives of the three classes, and a few teachers. There are no criteria for the award except to keep it non-academic because there are so many awards for academics already. Each person is judged individually within the context of the group's interpretation of outstanding service.

The committee will send information sheets telling about the award and how to submit nominations for it to the house offices, to teachers, to homerooms, and to places in the community where high school students work.

In the committee's infant stage, teachers and administrative personnel did a lot of the nominating, but in keeping with the theory behind the awards, nominations are readily accepted from peers.

"Because my award came from other kids, I felt a sense of accomplishment in my own right. It was a warming feeling," said a former recipient.

At the end of April, when the recipients have been chosen, the committee will invite them to an award presentation and reception. The award will take the form of a framed certificate and will be presented by students.

Last year, some of the people who received the award were candystripers, people who had worked with the blind and mentally retarded, people who were on the "Newtonite," people who worked in the school library, and people in church groups.

Organizations wishing to submit nominations should write to the Riley House service award committee, Newton North High School, Lowell Avenue, Newtonville, Mass., 02160 by April 24.

League hosts meeting on giant corporations

"Multinational Corporations" is the subject of a meeting sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Newton Wednesday, April 10 at 7:45 p.m. at 19 Manemet Road, Newton Center.

Ann Alker, chairman of the Trade Study Committee of the Newton League noted that "Following a recent League study of international trade, there was considerable interest in further study and discussion of multinational corporations."

The meeting will focus on the economic and political impact of multinational compnaies and the central question of control of these organizations.

The energy crisis and the role of the giant oil companies in that crisis have increased public concern about multinational companies. The creation of huge multinational corporations has radically changed the nature of international trade. Instead of an exchange of nationally produced goods, which can be regulated by national tax and tariff systems, multinational companies operating throughout the world produce and market goods in numerous countries. General concern about the role and regulation of these companies is now emerging.

The power of the multinational companies is enormous. In 1966, the output of foreign subsidiaries of U.S. companies alone exceeded the gross national product of England, Germany or France. It has been estimated that, if present trends continue, multinational companies will account for more than half of the world's industrial output by the year 2000 A.D. The problems center on the conflict between the interests and goals of thses powerful companies and those of the host or parent nations. Former President Allende of Chile stated that "We are witnessing a pitched battle between the great transnational cooporations and sovereign states for the latter's fundamental political and military decisions are being interfered with by world wide organizations which are not dependent on any single state and which are not accountable to or regulated by any parliment or institution representing the collective interest."

International regulation of multinational corporations may be desireable but the United States alone can be very influential since the majority of the companies are American. The Trade Bill now before the Congress contains no provisions for the control of multinational corporations (except in a few very special cases) because it is an Administration bill which reflects the president's view that multinational companies should be left free and unrestricted.

There is, however, considerable pressure on the Congress to legislate stringent national controls over these companies. Some labor unions feel that U.S. investment abroad is depriving American workers of jobs and the A.F.L.-C.I.O. sponsored Burke-Hartke Trade Bill (which was not acted upon by the Congress) would have restricted such investment.

There is mounting public opposition to tax laws which favor multinational companies - such as those which allow the companies to consider taxes paid to foreign governments as tax credits rather than deductions on their U.S. taxes.

The meeting is open to the public and all interested citizens are welcome. For further information, directions, or assistance with transportation, please call Judy Lavine (969-2953.

Compost available

Come and get it!

The compost that's been developing at the Beacon street composting area is ready for the taking, starting Saturday, April 13.

Residents may come, with their own containers, between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. to the compost area off Beacon street near Kippy drive, Waban.

Committee to aid Cancer Society

Newton Special Gifts Committee of the Prospect Valley Branch of the American Cancer Society has announced the formation of the "Committee of One Thousand."

The "Committee of One Thousand," if full membership is reached, will represent approximately one per cent of the population of the City of Newton who have made a contribution to the 1974 American Cancer Society Drive for funds, and in addition have successfully persuaded at least one other person to contribute to the 1974 campaign. The dual act of personal contribution and personal effort is necessary to attain membership on the committee.

Applications for membership are available at all offices of the Newton Cooperative Bank, and at any Newton office of the Newton-Waltham Bank & Trust Company and Newton Savings Bank.

Going South

Staff will be reduced

By ANDY FIELDING

As a result of a February decision by the Newton School Committee, 32 positions in the city's school system have been eliminated for the 1974-1975. Seven of those positions eliminated will be coming from the Newton South faculty and staff.

The staff eliminations which, according to Supt. Aaron Fink, will save the city close to $450,000, were apparently made, in large part, due to a decline in the overall student enrollment in the Newton school system. In 1967, for example (the year of peak enrollment), 1679 students were enrolled at Newton South and 1462 were enrolled in 1973, a drop of some 13 percent.

"I don't like the cuts," said South principal Ernest Van B. Seasholes. "I knew that the positions were going to be deleted. I just hoped they wouldn't be as severe."

It was the School Committee that made the decision that the 32 positions would be eliminated. Fink decided that seven of those cuts would be at Newton South, and it was up to Principal Seasholes to decide just who of the faculty and staff would have to go.

"People aren't quite sure who they should be upset with," Seasholes said.

In a statement to the faculty and staff, Seasholes said, "I have given a great deal of time and thought as to how best to make the cuts. I have tried to listen carefully to the needs and concerns of each department head-teacher-in-charge, to analyze data such as numbers in class and teaching loads, and to consider the personal, human dimension for each individual affected."

At South, the reductions of the positions liik like this:

Art .3 of a position cut	Home Ec. .5
Business 1.0	Math .5
English 2.0	Phys. Ed. 1.0
Guidance 1.0	Science .7

The elimination of one position doesn't necessarily mean eliminating one teacher.

A number of those leaving are part time teachers, for example. And with the South cuts, there are still some questions remaining: some of those who are leaving are actually retiring, other staff eliminations are open to question or open to juggling.

Ms. Martha Eldridge-Martin, a South English teacher for two years, was one of those affected by the cuts.

Did she feel any resentment?

"Not really," she said. "I guess there's sort of a sadness over a job that's uncompleted. . . not being able to finish the program that I'm in (a three-year internship program). Another reason is that I really have invested a lot of myself in this chool, there was a lot of personal involvement.

"I've grown close to a lot of students at South, and that closeness is going to be lost. Teaching, I feel, is a lot more than what goes on in class, it's more than just knowledge being transferred from one person to another. The personal interaction is the real business, people trying to touch one another."

Ms. Eldridge-Martin is one of two South English teachers let go. Both she and Frederick Olson are non-tenured teachers, and therefore, according to the laws of tenure, had to be considered for removal before a tenured teacher could be.

As a result of the teacher cuts, Ms. Eldridge-Martin has taken a serious look at that whole question of tenure, "and", she said "questioned whether tenure itself is valid."

She says, "It's true that with tenure one has job security, but at the same time, with tenure, one is not forced to reevaluate the kind of teacher he is, to reevaluate his relationship with the students and with the whole school.

"One can become routine and blase about the job if he is not continually being reevaluated."

Teachers, said Ms. Eldridge-Martin, must change with the times, and keep up with the new approaches to education. With tenure, she says, "the whole system can become bogged down."

She would like to see all teachers evaluated on a regular basis (as it stands now, a teacher is evaluated every year for the first three years of his teaching. After the third year, he is either recommended or not recommended for tenure standing. If he is given tenure, that is normally the last time he will ever be evaluated).

Teachers, she said, should be evaluated by other teachers (not necessarily of the same subject), by administrators, by department heads.

Students should also evaluate the teachers, she says, "in human terms," not necessarily on an academic basis. And in the reports sent to the principal, she said, the teacher himself should have a certain amount of input, providing a self-evaluation.

A continual evaluation procedure, she said, "forces you to grow, to examine, to change, to justify, to understand. It's true that it's frightening. Many teachers don't want to feel vulnerable, they might not be strong enough to handle the whole procedure. . . But someone who can't handle the evaluation maybe doesn't belong in teaching."

She also said, "If people are really committed to teaching, they have to be able to admit that they have to give up job security for the more positive effects of education."

But though she is obviously sad at leaving South, the decision, she said, has opened up other doors. Come September, Ms. Eldridge-Martin will be moving to Northeastern Pennsylvania along with her husband (a teacher at the Lincoln-Sudbury High School) to work in a free school.

Frederick Olson, another English teacher, was also one of those tentatively not rehired. As with Ms. Eldridge-Martin, Olson is not a tenured teacher, having taught at Newton South now for two and a half years.

Trash rules held

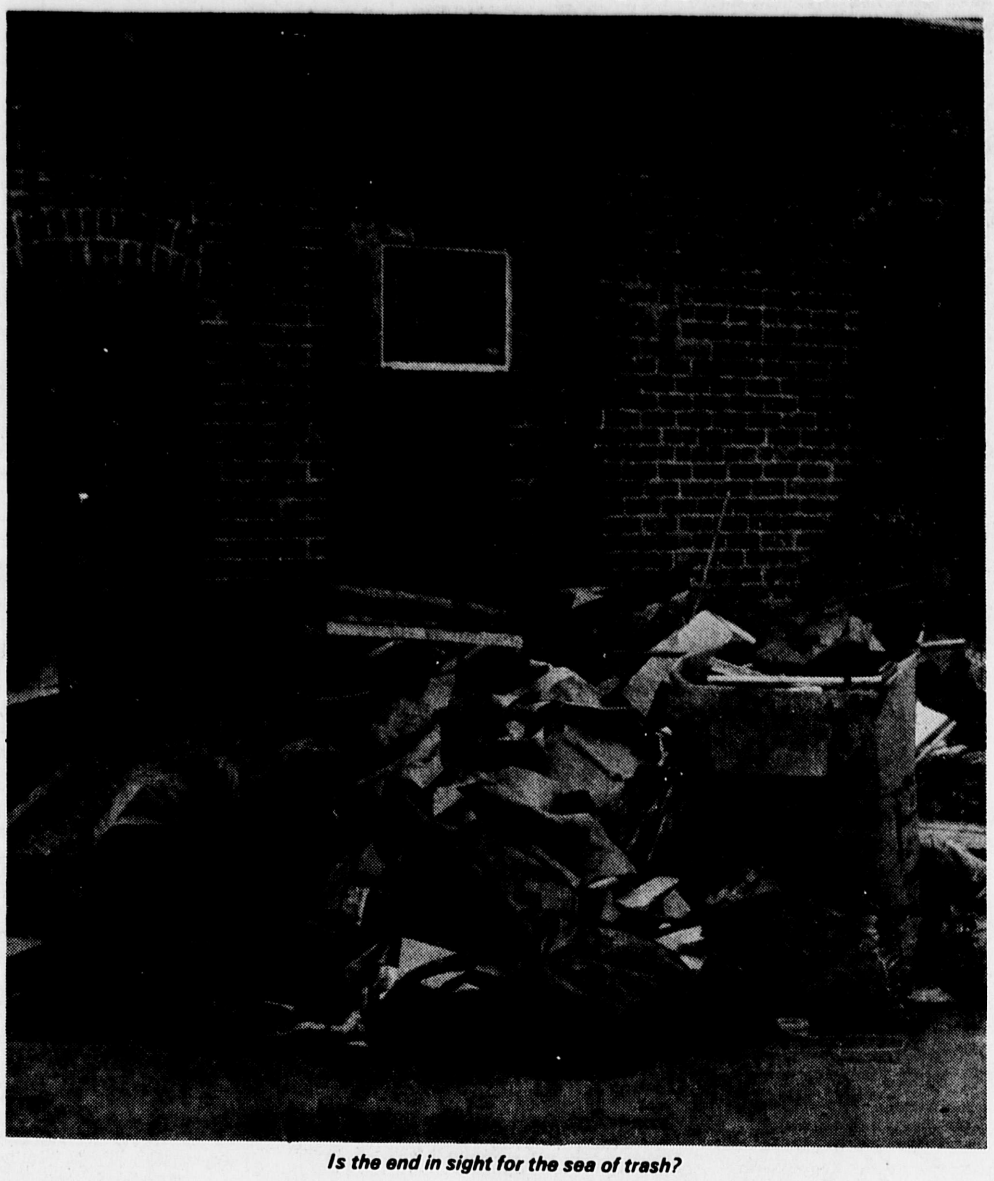

Proposed regulations for containerizing commercial rubbish, limiting the amount of rubbish picked up, and charging for collection of more than eight or fewer than eight barrels are being held in the aldermanic Public Works Committee.

Similar recommendations were first proposed in July, 1973.

The proposal would impose a $300 per year collection charge for more than eight barrels or for one seven-cubic-yard container from nonresidential establishments.

Commercial and other nonresidential collections would be limited to 20 barrels or one seven-yard container, and residential collections to eight barrels weekly.

The decision as to whether to pick up outsize loads of rubbish now has no firm criteria and depends on the judgment of individual truck drivers.

Is the end in sight for the sea of trash?

Turnabout still without funds

By ELEANOR SIEGEL

The mayor's Health Advisory Committee came under fire this week from Tunabout Director John Lynch who asserts the committee "did not give us an objective review" at a Feb. 13 meeting too determine whether or not Tunabout should be funded.

Lynch's statements came as hopes dimmed for a renewal of the $32,000 funding for the crisis drug intervention program, despite a last-minute appearance by Lynch before the Boarrd of Aldermen, sitting as a "committee of the whole" last week to hear pleadings from the city mental health services, including Tunabout.

Mayor Theodore Mann had struck Tunabout funds from the budget and indicated that he would not restore the money.

Portions of Tunabout's program are funded through the State Division of Drug Rehabilitation, and cessation of local funds would terminate the program in Newton. The group is hoping the mayor will respond favorably to Ald. David Cohen's resolution, introduced last Saturday at an aldermanic budget hearing requesting the mayor to return the money intoo the budget.

To date, the mayor has backed his advisory committee which, under the chairmanship of Dr. Alan Sostek, sent him a letter advising him to stop funds for Turnabout. Sostek stated the committee felt there is "a duplication of services." He wrote that Tunabout was superseding some counseling services in the city and was also superseding the School Department of Prgramming "which is adequately funded" to handle these problems.

Sostek further stated that the use of "breathing exercises and yoga are highly questionable." Tunabout had introduced these elements as part of an expanded drug prevention program.

Lynch labeled the items listed in the letter "highly debatabble if not false." He asserted the meeting with the Health Advisory Committee was simply "just for the record." Two weeks after that meeting, Lynch alleges he sae a printed copy of the budget in the mayor's office which indicated Tunabout fund deletion was already made.

"We have worked closely with the schools, who sanctioned what we did," says Lynch. Commenting on the breathing exercises and yoga, Lynch pointed out that these are offered as an alternate to Newton South High School's physical education program. He said this came about as a result of Tunabout's work in this field.

A suggestion had been made at the aldermanic meeting by Rev. Charles Coyle that Tunabout be partially funded for 30 days while the Youth Commission tried to oversee the agency and resolve some of the questions that have been raised.

A VOTE ON FUNDING Tunabout in the amount of $15,000, which would be disbursed by the Youth Commission, failed in budget hearings.

North parking discussed

A "group" of city officials discussed proposals for creating parking spaces in the Newton North High School area this week behind closed doors at City Hall.

Charles Thomas of the Planning Department reportedly came in with a plan which would accommodate 260 cars at Newton North. This is 40 spaces less than the 300 spaces called for in the original specifications for Newton North.

"It's important to get at least 300 cars on site," School Committee member Mrs. Dorothy Reichard said when asked about the closed meeting Tuesday. "It would be great to get 400."

One of the plans Thomas presented would bring 260 cars almost adjacent to the mall at Newton North, according to Mrs. Reichard. She was concerned over the fact that the plan allowed for only one exit onto Elm Road.

Mrs. Reichard said that landtaking is a possibility for acquiring space. She noted that Mayor Theodore D. Mann last January wanted this possibilitconsidered.

Several residents on Elm Road have indicated willingness to sell their property.

One alderman in the "group" at City Hall talked about possibly building an underground garage for parking. Another alderman reportedly mentioned the possibility of building an elevated garage with open space underneath.

Mrs. Reichard stated that there are now about 500 spaces at Newton North, including the temporary parking lot and the original faculty parking lot.

The School Committee asked last January that the athletic facilities at Newton North be not infringed upon by parking areas if possible.

Alderman Terry Morris suggested at Monday's meeting that Cabot Park might be used for baseball.

Mayoral aide Don Levitan reportedly said that the most the city could expect as reimbursement for building parking facilities is $100,000. Even this would be dependent on forbidding on-street parking in the area at the same time.

Mayor Mann launches Red Cross campaign

Mayor Theodore D. Mann met recently with the steering committee for the 1974 membership and funds drive of the Newton Chapter, American Red Cross.

Mann launched the campaign by becoming the first member and stated he was proud to be affiliated with the Newton Red Cross.

Dr. John Athans, city physician and head of the city's Health Department echoed Mayor Mann's remarks and added his special thanks to Robert Keyho, executive director of the Newton Chapter for his constant cooperation.

Athans stated, "Too few people appreciate the hard and dedicated work of these quietly competent people. Whenever there is a fire or local disaster, the Red Cross is there to help. They have always been most cooperative when, as city physician, I have requested their assistance.

Keyho commented on activities of the Chapter such as sponsoring youth programs in schools and safety programs which teach first aid and swimming to children and adults. It has also assisted local industry by conducting certified courses which help the companies comply with the recent Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Keyho stated that another important function of the Chapter is its participation in recruitment and processing of blood donors. Bloodmobiles meet industrial, civic and religious groups throughout the City.

Participating as a donor assures a person blood coverage for his immediate family for one year in any hospital in the United States. "Immediate family" includes husband and wife, children under 17 and parents and grandparents of both husband and wife.

Anthony Medaglia, membership chairman, stressed the great need for volunteers in the various programs sponsored by the Chapter. Volunteers are especially needed for the disaster team which provides a multitude of services in the event of a local tragedy.

Medaglia stated that volunteers may be called upon to assist during national emergencies, such as the recent floods that swept Pennsylvania and New York, in which members of the Newton Chapter participated.

High school students, housewives, senior citizens, etc. may call the volunteer office at the Chapter House (527-6000).

Medaglia stated that many Newton citizens will soon receive membership application forms through the mail and that volunteers will also be set up at local shopping centers in an effort to get greater community participation in the Red Cross programs.

Mrs. Patricia Bishoff, who is on the executive board of the Newton Chapter and active in Red Cross affairs statewide and nationally, commented that the Newton Red Cross is made up of concerned citizens who make possible the community effort needed to provide volunteer blood for hospital patients, immediate assistance for disaster victims, youth activities, first aid, water safety, health programs, and assistance to the members of the armed forces, veterans and their families.

She concluded by saying that joining the Red Cross is a way neighbors in the community can make a commitment to improve the quality of life in Newton through people helping people.

Art Association to meet April 4

The Newton Art Association will present Philip Hickens of Watertown, Mass. as its guest artist on April 4 at the Workshop-Woman's Club, 72 Columbus st., Newton Highlands, Mass. at 7:30 p.m.

Hickens, a painter and printmaker, will demonstrate in the medium of acrylics.

Hickens, a graduate of Massachusetts College of Art, is a member of the Boston Print Maker Association, Boston Watercolor Society, Nantucket Art Association, Cambridge Art Association, Fellow of the Royal Society of England, Who's Who in American Art and other associations.

Hickens is represented in the Metropolitan Museum in New York, National Bezalel Museum in Jerusalem, Princeton University, Ohio State, Dartmouth College and he has also taught at Harvard. He also maintains a gallery on Nantucket Island.

Members and guests are invited. Refreshments will be served by the committee which includes Mrs. Leona P. Monte, Mrs. Elvira F. Suitor, Albert Nicolazzo and Ms. Janet Holly.

Webster Area cleanup April 6

The Newton Conservation Commission will conduct a second clean-up at the Houghton Garden section of the Webster Conservation Area on April 6, at 9:30 a.m., at the end of Suffolk road, Chestnut Hill.

The work will concentrate on the area east of Hammond Brook, and prunings will be stacked at the gate on Suffolk Road opposite Woodman Road to be trucked away by the Street Department.

In case of rain on April 6, the alternate clean-up date will be Saturday, April 20, same starting time. For information call Helen Heyn at 527-9121.

Posting of health violations in restaurants sought by Pines

Legislation to require the Commissioner of Public Health of Massachusetts to notify the public of violations of health regulations by restaurants, to adopt a uniform health inspection form and to set standards for certification of inspectors, was heard last by the Social Welfare Committee.

House Bill 5147, sponsored by Rep. Lois Pines (D-Newton), is directed at assuring that the consumer be provided with wholesome food.

Rep. Pines testified: "According to the United States Public Health Service, there were 14,000 reported food poisoning cases in the United States. These statistics may be deceptive, since it appears that as many as five to ten times this number actually occurred."

"It is time that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts take action to end the haphazard approach to control and inspection of food service establishments across the state. The consumer has the right to know whether or not a restaurant meets sanitary conditions established by the Department of Public Health. We know that many restaurants do not meet thise standards," Pines said.

This legislation would require affirmative action to secure stringent standards for food service establishments across the state.

"Public notification of health hazards is critical to the efficient operation of any health inspection system. The health of millions of visitors to the Commonwealth and the health of our own citizens dictates that this legislation be passed," stated Rep. Pines.

Senseless Killing

The gun control debate is one issue that should only have a single conclusion. A thunderous call for far stricter controls.

But we know that is not the conclusion that the Massachusetts legislature reaches. It's appalling how weak their actions on guns, especially handguns, has been to date.

All the political dodges and whining on why this state does not have strict controls of handguns goes flat and silent in the aftermath of incidents like the Dedham murder Monday night.

There was a man doing an errand for his kids shot to death in a store near the West Roxbury-East Dedham line. And last week it was another shopper a woman in a Medford store gunned down while buying a carton of milk.

Every day adds to the litany of murder and mayhem fired at the public from a muzzle of a handgun.

And still those who want no further gun control find listeners on the Hill

Let them carry their arguments into the Bussey Street neighborhood and see what the reaction is. Or let them spew their eloquence at the four Wilson children who will never, ever fully understand why their father did not complete his errand on their behalf.

If a legislator tells you he is against the easy access to guns ask him how many of his fellow lawmakers he has swung around to his way of thinking and talking.

Is he half as effective as the gun lobbyists who have swung the vote their way for too long?

Life Care

By CYNTHIA BLACK

At this point, it seems to me it would be easier to staff an elephant through a keyhole than it would be to approve the development known as the Life Care Center.

This proposal, also known as an "elderly hotel" or "luxury hotel" sometimes, has graced the docket of the Land Use Committee for what seems like an interminable length of time.

And for good reason.

This plan, more than any other considered by the Board of Aldermen in recent history, raises severe policy questions for the city, and its discussions and possible approval of this plan discussed for more than a year will merely set the stage for lawsuits that could impede development for more years.

I see two major objections to this proposal.

The first is the possible unfairness of rezoning land now in the most restrictive zoning, Residents A, to the least restrictive, Residence E.

It's a long way from A to E. And abutters on Stanton Avenue have a legitimate gripe when they say this is unfair.

If zoning changes like this become a policy, the motto of all prospective homeowners in Newton would have to be "don't buy a house near any vacant land, no matter what it's zoned."

As the developers keep pointing out, there are legitimate, operational Life Care Centers scattered all over the country that appear to be giving neighbors no unusual nightmares.

It's at this point the second objection, most frequently raised by Alderman Joseph McDonnell, enters the picture.

With one exception, all of the other Life Care Centers are run by churches or other non-profit organizations not in the housing business to make money.

And, as one observer pointed out, the developers of the private Life Care Center in Newton must be going to make a profit, this must be a good business venture, or what could possibly prompt them to fight for more than a year for permission to build?

The developers have consistently avoided answering the question of what their profit margin will be and have avoided with silence inquiries on whether or not they'd like to become a non-profit organization.

The reluctance on the part of aldermen to approve this development should be evident to all by now. If anything ever looked like a lost cause, it's the Life Care Center.

Political Highlights

James G. Colbert

A stiff five-way battle for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General is now shaping up between former Lieutenant Governor Francis X. Bellotti, former State Representative George Sacco, Somerville Mayor S. Lester Ralph; .former Federal Crime Buster Edward F. Harrington of Needham who was endorsed by the Mass. Caucus '74; and Norfolk County Register of Probate Barry T. Hannon.

State Representative Paul Guzzi was picked by the Caucus to stand against Secretary of State John F.X. Davoren in the Democratic primary, but it is not yet clear whether there will be any other contenders in that fight.

Some of the actions before and during the Caucus sponsored by the ADA and other liberal organizations at the Framingham Town Hall were difficult to understand.

Both Bellotti and Davoren were invited to seek the endorsement of the Caucus and declined. Either could have packed the hall with enough of his supporters to have gained the endorsement, but neither made the effort.

Bellotti said, in effect, that he did not believe in conventions and that the Caucus was a form of convention. Davoren, a former Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives and a competent Secretary of State, did not explain his dicision not to participate in the Caucus.

The original purpose of the Caucus was to select one candidate to back against Davoren. To this observer it seemed that it would have been quite a political coup if Davoren had stepped in and gained the endorsement of the liberal Caucus. Davoren apparently didn't think so.

Ex-Representative George L. Sacco, Jr., of Medford submitted himself to the Caucus but made no effort to obtain its endorsement. In fact, Sacco told those attending the Caucus that he had intentionally not encouraged his supporters to attend and that he did "not especially seek the Caucus endorsement." That probably cost him the support of some on-the-fence delegates who might otherwise have voted for him.

Sacco declared that the reason he himself appeared to address the Caucus was that he wanted them to know him better and that he had made a personal commitment to present his views to all the people at every opportunity.

"I come to this Caucus for that purpose–and not especially to seek its endorsement," asserted Sacco, who pointed out that his public career began in 1959 when he was elected to the Medford School Committee as a reform candidate.

Harrington's campaign for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General unquestionably got a big boost when he was endorsed by the Caucus. He had an excellent background and record. Whether he has the political firepower to contest with candidates of the strength of Bellotti and Sacco is a question only time will answer.

Sacco, incidentally, was first elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1962 and rather quickly made his mark in that body, rising to the position of vice chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee. House Speaker David M. Bartley and a number of other legislators are supporting the popular Sacco.

Newton's Representative Paul Guzzi, who was probably the biggest winner at the Caucus since his two opponents there are supporting him, faces an uphill fight against Secretary of State Davoren who must be considered a favorite to win renomination and reelection.

Boston City Councillor Lawrence S. DiCara was battling Guzzi almost neck-and-neck when he suddenly withdrew after the second ballot on which he trailed Guzzi by only a small margin. DiCara said he was pulling out of the fight because he was "more interested in a reform-oriented candidate than I am in my own future."

While Secretary of State Davoren declined to attend the Caucus, Republican State Senator John M. Quinaln of Norwood would have contested for its endorsement if he had been allowed to do so.

Quinlan is seeking the Republican nomination for Secretary of State, and this was strictly a Democratic Caucus. The only qualification required of the delegates was that they be Democrats and .possess the intention of voting in next September's Democratic primary.

Nevertheless, the colorful Quinlan was eager to match strength with Guzzi, DiCara and Representative John A. Businger of Brookline. But the sponsors of the Caucus wanted no part of Quinlan who was obliged to do his campaigning outside the Town Hall where he glad-handed visitors as they arrived.

Representative Guzzi's father, the late Al Guzzi, was Newton's first Democratic Alderman at a time when the Garden City was solidly Republican. He was a city worker and the representative of the union of municipal employees. He was a dedicated, hard-working man.

His son is serving his second term as a State Representative from a Newton district. Paul Guzzi graduated from Harvard where he was a member of the football team. He was the star of the last game of his college career–the traditional contest with Yale.

Democratic members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives will be split over the primary fight shaping up between Secretary of State Davoren and Representative Guzzi.

The older members, who knew, liked and respected Davoren as their Speaker, for the most part will support him for renomination. Some of the younger members, who were elected to the House after Davoren had moved over to suceed Kevin H. White as Secretary of State, will back Guzzi.

It should prove a highly interesting contest.

Sarge wrong in stand on death penalty bill

Governor Francis W. Sargent helped himself by accomplishing the election of a friendly chairman to head the Republican State Committee and hurt himself by vetoing a controversial death penalty bill.

Neither actually was a clearcut victory or a decisive defeat, and it's not easy to decide whether Mr. Sargent achieved a net gain or sufferend an overall loss.

This onlooker is disposed to believe that he lost more than he gained.

In fairness, the matter of deciding whether to place the death penalty law back on the statute books–whether to dust off the electric chair and return it to use–is a difficult decision to make.

This writer, long an opponent of capital punishment and the life-for-a-life principle under which a murderer's life is snuffed out in retaliation for the crime he committed, has found himself wavering under the impact of kidnappings, hijackings, cold-blooded killings and other blood-chilling crimes of violence.

But to this observer Governor Sargent is wrong on one big point. As we see it, we should have either an all-encompassing death penalty law or no death penalty law at all.

Mr. Sargent declared that he would consider signing a bill providing that the murderers of law-enforcement officers and prison guards be put to death — if the Supreme Court rules that such a law would be constitutional.

That's where we part company with the Governor. It's a terrible thing to kill a police officer or a prison guard, and if the threat of death in the electric chair as the punishment for such crimes would prove a deterrent to the prospective murderers, we're all for it.

But killing a prison guard is no worse than gunning down the proprietor of a small store who is killed in cold blood by a hopped-up bandit while he is working long hours to support his family.

Who is to say that it is a more heinous crime to murder one human being than another? Not this reporter certainly!

Many police officers with whom we have talked are embarrassed that Governor Sargent is willing to execute the murderer of one of them but not the killer of an ordinary citizen. They favor a much broader law than does the Governor.

Of course, there are many thousands of people in Massachusetts who believe there should be no death penalty for any kind of crime. They are disappointed that Mr. Sargent is willing to sign any form of capital punishment bill. The irony of it all is that the Supreme Court probably will rule any death penalty law unconstitutional.

Meanwhile, the question presumably will not be resolved before next November's election, and it almost certainly will be an issue in the election.

Governor Sargent succeeded in accomplishing the election of a Republican State Committee chairman of his own choice. That should help him in his maneuverings at the unofficial GOP State Convention in June–if one is finally held.

This observer has never seen a more abrasive collection of individuals than the members of the Republican State Committee. Sarge would have to be a diplomat of the ages to get along with them. You might think the members of the Republican State Committee would be jumping through hoops for a Governor of their own party. No way! Sarge should get Henry Kissinger to come on to try to make peace with them.

Back through the years, it has been an accepted fact of political life that a Republican Governor picked the chairman of the Republican State Committee. Who else? Sarge did achieve the election of William Barnstead of Arlington by a 45-13 vote. But from the comments of some State Committee members, including several women, you would have thought it was an outrageous thing, Barnstead, incidentally, succeeded Otto Wahlrab who was hostile to the Governor.

Governor Sargent sent a letter to Barnstead in which he held out the olive branch. He promised more patronage for Republicans. He pledged his support of fund-raising activities. He said, in effect, he would help the State Committee in a number of ways.

"I'm looking forward to working with you, Sarge told Barnstead at the close of the letter. From the reaction of some of the committee members you might have thought Sarge had just delivered an ultimatum of all-out war.

"This sounds like a sub-rosa deal between Wahlrab and the person who wants in," declared Marian Hunt of Lexington.

"How did Sargent know Barnstead would be elected tonight?" asked Cynthia Barone of Winchester.

"I resign," announced Bertha Farnsworth of Franklin-Hampshire County.

"This is the most bagged election I've ever seen," asserted GOP Committeeman Theodore Vaitses of Melrose, a former State Representative.

A surprising note of conciliation was voiced by Committeeman Edward King of West Roxbury who in the past has been a sharp and outspoken critic of the Governor.

King said that "delicate negotiations" between Wahlrab and Sargent had made possible a cobesive relation between the State Committee and the Governor. He backed Barnstead.

It sounded like Henry Kissinger trying to negotiate a truce between the Syrians and Israelis instead of one Massachusetts Republican talking to another. But that apparently is the way it is in the Bay State GOP these days.

Witch fired from job but quickly reinstated

Robert G. Williams, 45, prison psychologist at the Kansas State Industrial Reformatory, disclosed in an interview published in a Wichita, Kansas, newspaper that he believed in and practised witchcraft. He was fired from his prison job within a matter of days.

Williams appealed his dismissal to the Kansas State Civil Service Commission on the ground that he had been fired solely because of his religious belief in witchcraft.

A prison official testified that he had been dropped from his job because he had lost his effectiveness, was distrusted and had become the but of jokes at the reformatory after his disclosure that he practised witchcraft.

Several inmates told the Commission they had lost rapport with Williams.

However, the Commission, by a 3-2 vote, ordered Williams reinstated in his job after deciding that Williams had been fired for his religious belief in witchcraft and that prison officials had failed to show he was dismissed for any other reason.

Witches have rights, the Commission maintained.

Medicare reform legislation

To the editor:

On March 27, I introduced the Medicare Reform Act of 1974 (H.R. 13769) which I feel will provide needed services for the aged and disabled to insure them full and adequate health care and which will greatly reduce hospital costs.

Statistics show that older Americans face the highest incidence of illness and disability. The out-of-pocket payment for health care costs in 1972 by the elderly was three times the amount paid by nonsenior citizens.

It is a recognized fact that limitations in various health programs have caused many elderly and disabled Americans to go without adequate health care because they fear that they will incur personal costs that they cannot afford. This in turn has caused many to wait until they are seriously ill before they seek help. I feel that such occurrences would be greatly reduced through a more comprehensive Medicare program.

My legislation builds upon the existing Medicare program with the aim of improving and extending it to a national health plan for the aged and disabled. Parts A and B of Medicare would be combined into a single integrated program. The premium payment and the deductible would be removed and nominal co-insurance payments would be determined by income and the type of service.

A unique feature of the bill would be the pre-determination and pre-negotiation of all fees to be charged to Medicare patients by physicians and other practitioners. Concurrently, participants would be required to agree to accept the Medicare payment plus any co-insurance payments as full charge for their service. These factors, I feel, would keep medical costs down.

The bill provides for unlimited inpatient and outpatient hospital coverage, unlimited skilled nursing facilities services, intermediate care facilities services and home health care services. Taking into consideration that dental problems, eye trouble and the need for prescription drugs all increase in old age, my bill would include coverage of most dental care, as well as prescription drugs, medically necessary devices such as eyeglasses, hearing aids, prosthetic devices and walking aids and also the services of optometrists, podiatrists and chiropractors. There is also a provision for the coverage of ambulances and other emergency transportation.

For the first time public employees, teachers, policemen and firemen would be automatically eligible for Medicare upon reaching age 65. All persons aged 65 or older would be included.

Recognizing that some provision must be made for insurance in instances of catastrophic illness, the measure contains an innovative program for catastrophic illness insurance based upon an income ceiling.

The legislation incorporates all present Medicare cost control and utilization review provisions. The additional costs, upon enactment, would be approximately 3 billion. This would be met in general revenues and there would be no increase in the Social Security tax.

I feel that enactment of this measure would provide a security to which the aged are entitled. No period of life requires such a spectrum of health services as that of old age. The current federal and state efforts are unable to provide many vital health components. The Comprehensive Medicare Reform Act of 1974 is designed to meet these pressing needs.

Cookie power

To the Editor:

Our thanks to you and everyone in this area who supported our Girl Scout Cookie sale so generously.

Because our junior, cadette and senior scouts worked especially hard, the Council can provide better programs for girls, improved campsites and expanded training opportunities and resource help for leaders. In addition, troop treasuries have increased, so girls can finance the things they want to do most.

Cookie profits make it possible for them to see more, do more, learn more, serve more through Scouting in our community. We appreciate your help.

DSA well deserved

To the editor:

In reply to last week's editorial on the awarding of our Distinguished Service Award to six politicians in six years:

Names are placed in nomination by members of the general public, and judges, drawn from the business community outside the Jaycees, select the D.S.A. recipient. This is by no means a "cop-out," but rather a testimony to the impartiality of the judging. Incidentally, only one of the nine judges in three years has been associated with a political office.

In my three years as a Jaycee, I have been closely associated with the D.S.A. program and, quite frankly, the "politician" has always had two strikes against him (or her). Our first concern was the unpleasant thought of our award being used for personal gain rather than personal enjoyment and the second, as your editorial mentioned, is the thought that the reward of being voted into office is sufficient payment for expended efforts.

Both of these concerns were expressed to the judges before the selections. In 1974, we added what we thought might be the third strike — a stipulation that only service outside one's normal occupation could be taken into consideration for the award, thus changing our direction from the "outstanding young American" to a "volunteer community" servant award.

It has always been our desire to give the "unsung hero" deserving notority. If a politician were to win, his or her political activities would not be taken into account.

In tribute to this year's winner, I list Mike Lipof's community contributions outside his Aldermanic duties:

Conservation Commission — had a major role in Webster Park Purchase.

Gubernatorial Appointee to Mass. Area Planning Council (MAPC) — Chairman of the Housing Committee.

National Bi-Centennial Committee.

Director Newton Community Council.

Co-chaired (with Mrs. Lipof) 1970-71 United Fund Drive for Newton.

Newton-Weston-Wellesley Mental Health Area Board.

Newton Mental Health Association.

Advisory Board of Directors at Language and Cognative Development Center for autistic children.

Former chairman of Alcoholism and Drugs in Newton

Former trustee of the Newton Centre Neighborhood Association. (As an alderman, he has been or is now involved in the Mayor's Drug Committee, Chairman of Franchise & Licensing, member of Land Use and Public Works Committees.)

There are several other community activities that, by themselves, would qualify Mike for D.S.A. consideration but I don't believe their publication is necessary.

In conclusion, the politician has a rather serious handicap in D.S.A. competition but, the contributions of Paul Guzzi, David Mofenson, Lois Pines, and Mike Lipof were great enough to overcome them. And, no doubt, so were Tom Concannon's and the late Jim Shea's.

The citizens of Newton can point to these young people with pride. At least five politicians in this city are serving their community far above and beyond the call of duty. Whether or not one agrees with their politics, everyone must agree that these people are outstanding young community servants.

A. Jefferson Cornell

Disclaimer

Dear Editor:

In the Newton Graphic of March 28 there appeared an advertisement with regard to the testimonial birthday party for State Senator Irving Fishman. My name was one of the signatories to the ad.

Because my signature to this ad has been interpreted as an endorsement of Senator Irving Fishman in his political contest with Senator Jack Backman, I would like to make my position clear.

I have not endorsed Senator Fishman. I have not endorsed Senator Backman. I believe that they are both fine public servants who have made great contributions to progressive causes for a significant period of time. I find it impossible to choose between them. Therefore, I am remaining neutral in this contest.

Personal speed limits

Dear Editor

Last Saturday afternoon, just as I had escorted my children across Washington street in Newton Corner, a car and an MBTA bus sped along Washington street apparently engaged in a race to be the first onto the inbound access ramp to the turnpike.

As we watched in disbelief, the race ended in a tie, with both vehicles crashing through the guard rail. As if this weren't enough, the drivers then engaged in a kicking, punching, and "rassling" match, each shouting "You tried to kill me."

Neither one realized that there were six defenseless pedestrians who could more easily have been killed.

But who cares if we had all been run over? Who cares that drivers bring their murderous and suicidal tendencies into our neighborhoods, our sidewalks, and even our lawns? Certainly not the City of Newton.

Neithborhood indignation to pedestrian fatalities is cynically bought off by a week or two of police traffic surveillance. Certainly the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which has sole power to post speed limits in our neighborhoods, doesn't care. In fact it officially encourages such reckless driving by posting speed limits relative to a median speed. The more speeding we have on a street, the higher will be the posted speed limits.

What is wrong with this city and this state that speeders can set their own speed limit even on residential streets, but a hundred children walking to school on the same street cannot influence it at all? Why is it that people can see loss of life and property on their street due to reckless driving, and can see obvious ways to end it, yet are told by the city and the state that nothing will be done to change the situation?

Why does the power of traffic regulation rest with people who care more for speeding than for human life? Why doesn't the power of traffic regulation belong to elected officials in our city who must be responsible to the voters?

Job Bank seeks jobs for youths

The Newton Job Bank, established at the Newton Community Service Centers, 429 Cherry St. during the summer of 1972 through funding from the City of Newton and support of the Youth Commission, continues to function Monday - Friday on a full time basis from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Job Bank continues to fill a wide variety of jobs in settings ranging from private homes to businesses. Youths ranging in ages 13-22 years of age are available on a one time, part-time, full time, or seasonal basis.

Based upon the experience of the past two years, the Job Bank staff anticipates a substantial increase in the number of requests by youth for employment during the summer months.

Private, individual or business representatives are encouraged to call 969-5908 and speak with one of the Job Bank counselors.

ENGLAND BY BICYCLE AND CANAL BARGE
A unique six week experience is being offered to a small group of 20 young people (aged between 15 yrs. and 17 yrs.) this summer in England. Centered on the ancient town of Chester, participants will cycle and travel by canal barge through the English and Welsh countryside for three weeks. This will be followed by a homestay period with a young English person and their family, with many excursions to places of interest. The program will end with a week in London.
The program will be accompanied throughout by an experienced married couple from Newton whose own teenage son will be a participant and they will be assisted by three leaders in England.
A few vacancies remain in this exclusive program.
The dates are: 4th July to 18th August 1974 and the total cost is $1185.00 For further details write or phone:

calm during a match. "You can dig your grave if you losr control of your emotions."

When a fencer talks about "digging graves," some clarification is needed. According to Alan, there is "virtually no chance of injury" in fencing unless a fencer falls down. In a match Alan wears a vest or jacket, an underarm protector, a mask, a bib for his neck, a leather strip over his neck, knickers, long socks and sneakers. Only the hand which he does not fence with is exposed.

"You can get thrown out of competition for improper equipment," he stated.

A saber has a square edge and a blunt point. Alan has two hand-made sabers. He said that a saber costs about $13.

Alan commented that a fencer's legs are "very inportant." "You can get cramps if you are not used to the crouch."

Its just beginning to get around that Alan is a fencer. People ask him "how many guys did you kill?" or "how many arms have you chopped off?"

"It's interesting to see how people react when they hear you're a fencer," Alan said.

Alan practices at Sal Richard's Club in Watertown. His coach is Ed Richards, currently a grand master champion in foil.

"I try to practice at least three times a week, but sometimes its impossible because of school," Alan stated.

He also helps to teach fencing at Newton South, and would like to try to organize a team next year.

Alan has qualified for the under-19 sectionals for New England and New York fencers, and will compete April 27-28 in New Haven.

He said that he might like to be a professional someday as a sideline.

Although he sometimes tells Newton South classmates that he has killed "about a hundred" people, there are apparently no thrown gauntlets or duels over a woman in Alan's immediate future.

He'll settle for a couple of trophys.

Marr said that he did not believe that the School Department needed the full $649,000, since on the basis of a salary estimate he had done for one month that proved to be accurate to within a few hundred dollars, he feels the actual money needed is more like $500,000.

Larry Marino, Marr's assistant, met with Vienneau Tuesday afternoon to try to reconcile the discrepancy in estimates of money needed.

Asked afterward how the meeting had gone, Marino said, "Nothing was accomplished. Vienneau wouldn't listen."

Vienneau said on Wednesday that he expects and "hopes" that the shortage of money and its consequences will be the subject of next Monday's School Committee meeting.

Meanwhile, the aldermanic Finance Committee was scheduled for a special meeting Wednesday night on the subject.

The shortage was a topic of a high-echelon meeting behind closed doors in the mayor's office Monday afternoon.

apparently hoping to reaffirm the failure to change the zone.

The entire debate was punctuated by amendments offered as further safeguards to the future residents of the Life Care Center, the neighborhood, and the zoning laws of the city.

Requiring residents' association, minimum staffing requirements, requiring the deeveloper to pave a portion of Stanton Avenue were among those passed.

A move to reduce the number of units from 179 to 160 failed.

Added to the 16 conditions already imposed on the project is a termination agreement which spells out in detail a schedule of refunds to be given a tenant upon his or her departure from the Life Care Center, up to five years after occupancy of the apartment.

The Life Care Center developers, Dr. Edwin Guiney and Arthur Ullian, will provide a one-room apartment for an initial fee of $10,000, plus $3,900 a year for food and rent.

One abutter to the proposed building has threatened to bring court action if the Life Care Center is approved.

Consumer credit law to be strengthened by Fishman

Senator Irving Fishman (D-Newton) is working to strengthen the consumer credit law by requiring creditors to divulge the contents of adverse reports to the consumers.

"The Fair Credit Reporting, land mark consumer legislation which I successfully fought for in 1971, does not go far enough in protecting the rights of individuals," Fishman said.

Under the current law individuals are not informed when their credit ratings are downgraded or adverse reports are entered into their files. Furthermore, individuals are denied the opportunity to see exactly what information is contained in their consumer credit files.

Fishman is sponsoring legislation designed to correct these problems. One bill would require credit reporting agencies to notify consumers whenever their credit ratings are downgraded or adverse reports are placed in their credit files.

The companion bill, co-sponsored with Rep. David Mofenson of Newton, specifies that "whenever credit or insurance for personal, family, or household purposes or employment involving a consumer is denied or terminated, or a consumer's credit rating has been changed, or the charge for such credit or insurance is increased either wholly or partly because of information contained in a consumer report from a consumer reporting agency, the user of the consumer report shall so advise the consumer against whom such adverse action has been taken and supply the name and address of the consumer reporting agency making a report, and shall divulge to the consumer the contents of such consumer report or furnish the consumer with a copy thereof."

Under Fishman legislation, consumers would be automatically alerted whenever any potentially damaging materials were placed in their files. This notice would permit them to learn the exact source of damaging remarks and give them the opportunity to act to correct inaccurate or misleading statements.

The bills are currently being studied by the Committee on Banks and Banking.

Plan chess tournament

The fourth Greater Newton Chess Festival will be Saturday, April 6, at the Newton YMCA, 276 Church St., beginning at 9:30 a.m.

A novice tournament will be held for students in elementary and junior high. Trophies will be awarded to winners. The entry fee is $3.

A booster tournament, rated by the U.S. Chess Federation will be open to anyone who has never played in a tournament or has a rating below 1500.

Players rated 1500-1700 may participate in a special rated section. First prize will be a chess clock.

Cost to enter the booster tournament is $6 and the 1500-1700 event $7. Players must also be members of the U.S. Chess Federation, $8 for adults, $4 under age 21.

Church to show movie April 7

Palm Sunday on April 7 at the Newton Highlands Congregational Church will begin with a worship service at 10:30 a.m. in which three choirs will sing under the direction of Carrol Hassman, director of music and organist.

The Rev. Dudne M. Breeze will preach. Following the service a coffee hour in the parlor will present an opportunity for the congregation to meet new members.

At 7:30 p.m., a Lenten movie, "Diary of a Country Priest," will be shown in Founders Hall of the church.

order a tree cut down if the tree is judged to be a danger of an obstruction.

The ban against cutting down trees on a designated scenic road is pertinent only when street maintenance or construction is being done, Levine said, and was upheld by Hallisey.

Obermayer's lawyers, Joseph T. Fahy and Francis J. Lawlor, indicated that they would try to obtain the $100,000 bond to keep in effect the restraining order preventing the tree from being removed. Obermayer was not present in court Tuesday.

Levine said there will still be a trial on "the merits of the city's actions," which he expects to take place in the next week.

Obermayer and Samuel Robbins, of 300 Prince St., were scheduled to appear at the trial at Newton District Court today (Thursday).

Obermayer was charged by Newton police with assault with a dangerous weapon, and Robbins was charged by a Forestry Department employee with threat to do bodily harm in connection with an incident March 14, when the two men tried to prevent the cutting down of the tree.

Forestry Department personnel arrived to remove the tree ahead of time, according to Public Works Director Richard Dudman, who had expected to talk to Obermayer about the tree that day.

Obermayer, seeing the men working on the tree, called the police and argued with the men, and when these measures failed, allegedly jumped into the skyworker truck and rocked it back and forth by shifting gears.

The Forestry Department employee who was up in the bucket allegedly suffered injury to his back as a result. The same employee is bringing the complaint against Robbins.

Obermayer is seeking a hearing on the condition of the tree.

Awards for WCVB-TV

WCVB-TV (Channel 5) was accorded double honors in the 18th annual United Press International Broadcast Awards competition.

The station received a first place award for its documentary on the declining New England fishing industry, "No Fish Tomorrow," and another for general editorial excellence. It also was given special citations for the documentary on Boston Cardinal Humberto Medeiros, "The Man, The Cardinal," and for the public service special, "Juvenile Justice."

Channel 5's editorial writer is Philip S. Balboni of Newton.

Neustadt honored

Attorney Sidney R. Neustadt of Newton, a former assistant attorney general, has been honored with the first annual Distinguished Administrator Award of the Massachusetts Chapter, American College of Nursing Home Administrators.

The presentation was made at the annual all-day program held in the Chateau deVille, Framingham.

Neustadt has been in the nursing home field since 1942. He was formerly president of the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes in 1963-64 and is chairman of the legislative committee of the Chapter.

A graduate of Boston College Law School, he was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar and the U.S. Bar. He was made a fellow of the American College of Nursing Home Administrators in 1969. He has served as president of the Massachusetts Council of Better Health Care.

Six junior college students honored

Six Newton Junior College students have been nominated and approved for inclusion in "Who's Who Aong Students in American Junior Colleges."

This is the ninth year Newton Junior College students have been selected for this honor on the basis of high academic records and their contributions to the college.

The students are Michael Dathe, Charlotte Ferguson, Paula French, Gregorio Montillo, Connie Torrisis, and Bruno Viscomi.

Dathe has distinguished himself as president of the Newton Junior College activities and has represented the college at public functions.

Miss Torrisi has tutored foreign students and has edited the college newspaper. She has volunteered her services for college functions.

Miss Ferguson has assisted foreign students in many ways and has worked on college hospitality. She has exerted herself in behalf of the College in many of its activities.

Miss French has given of her time and energies in many college functions and has been an active participant in the college speech club and the drama club.

Mr. Montillo and Mr. Viscomi have combined scholarship with active participation in student council and programs for foreign students. They have exhibited fine leadership qualities in all their activities.

Certificate of membership in "Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges" will be distributed to these students at the College Awards Day Convocation to be held in the spring.

Kindergarten registration

Kindergarten registration is now taking place during school days at the Davis School, Waltham Street, West Newton.

Any child in the Davis School district who will be five years old by Dec. 31, 1974, is eligible. People may contact the school office at 244-2057 or drop by the school.

Chess Chatter

By ANDREW SCHMIDT

Article one of the laws of chess state 'chess is played between two opponents. . . ," and yet there is nothing to prevent individuals to join and call themselves a team and play against other teams.

The usual number of players is five, and such a match is naturally called a team match. The best player is called 'Board One', down to the lowest board five player. Worldwide, the official chess federation FIDE holds a tournament of teams from different nations every two years called the chess olympics for the world team title. Here in Boston recently, the Prudential Insurance Company sponsored the annual five-man High School team titles for Eastern Massachusetts.

Newton South fielded a team which consisted of Daniel Shiman on top board with a USCF rating of (1668), Captain Jason Arbeiter (1564), Ittai Kan (1377), Michael Kan (1300) and John Hooker (1256). South's team rating, the average, was 1435 which seeded them 4th behind Boston Latin (1626), Waltham (1541), and Marblehead (1496).

South started strong in the five-round tournament held over the March 16-17 weekend. They beat Milton 5-0, knocked off Watertown 4½-4½, downed higher Marblehead 3½-1½, and drew top seeded Latin in round four. In the critical fifth, with first place still in grasp, they lost to BC High narrowly, 2-3. South therefore finished tied for 4th, while Waltham came in first 5-0, BC High second 4-1, and South scored 3½-1½.

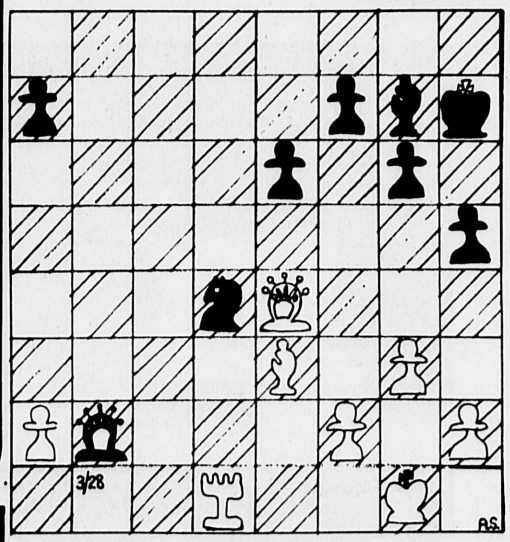

Ittai Kan, playing South's 3rd board, distinguished himself by scoring a perfect 5-0, thus winning the all-around 3rd board prize. Daniel Shiman also remained undefeated with four draws and a win, while Arbeiter finished 4-1, Michael Kan 2-3 and John Hooker 2-3. South played well, except in the last round where some good chances were missed as shown in this week's game.

From round five, Michael Kan as White takes on Paul Sbardelli of BC High. Sbardelli, ironically enough, lives in Newton and has won the city tournament two years in a row. Of course Black's 19. . .Q-K1 is a blunder, but White also erred with 25 P-KN3, allowing the Black Knight to penetrate. As shown in the diagram, Black picks up his material with the check N-K7 on his 28th. His fine 33. . .Q-Q4ch swaps off the last remaining White hopes, and easily will win the 5-3 pawn ending. BC High certainly lucked out here!

CHESS SHORTS: The annual Newton Speed Tournament is on April 10. Details in two weeks. Arthur Lewis and John Meingailus are both 4-0 in the city championship and have a twice-adjourned game to finish. It is decisive to the winner.

Officers

Goldwasser honored

Willie J. Goldwasser of Newton Centre has been named a member of the President's Honor Club of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., an association of leading sales representatives from the firm's nation-wide general agency field force.

A member of the Herbert F. Gold general agency in Brookline, he was among 232 members attending the company's annual President's Honor Club meeting recently at the Southampton Princess Hotel in Bermuda.

A graduate of the Georgia Institute of Technology and Northeastern University, Goldwasser joined John Hancock in 1972 and became the agency's "Rookie of the Year." In 1973, he was named the "Most Outstanding Associate Appointed in 1972."

He is a member of the Boston Association of Life Underwriters and is currently working toward completion of the American College of Life Underwriters program leading to the designation of chartered life underwriters.

Camera Club meets April 8

On Monday April 8, at 7:30 p.m. the Newton Free Library Camera Club is having a meeting featuring a member's slides sent to the New England Camera Club Council.

Everett S. Wilson of Hamden, Conn., has supplied a professional commentary on these slides on a tape. The slides are a composite of slides which have been used for competitions and exhibitions. The meeting will be in the Nonantum branch of the Newton Free Library.

The second meeting of the month is, as usual, a competition. The subject is "Patterns." April 25, 7:30 p.m.

The Newton Free Library Camera Club holds its meetings on the second and fourth Mondays of the month at 7:30 p.m. at the Nonantum Branch of the Newton Free Library on the corner of Bridge and Watertown Streets. The first meeting of the month is entertainment an education and the second meeting is competition.

'Y' registering for three camps

The Newton YMCA announces that registration is now open for its three camps which serve boys and girls 5 through 14 years.

Camp Frank A. Day, now in its 58th season, is the residence camp for boys 8-14 located on 50 acres in E. Brookfield. The program includes instructional and recreational swimming, all water and land sports, tennis, archery, riflery, nature and arts and crafts. The director is R. John Haston, the "Y" 's youth director.

Located at the "Y" building in Newton Corner is Camp Massasoit, a day camp for boys and girls 5-12. The program features instructional and recreational swimming, gym games and gymnastics, floor hockey, arts and crafts, music, drama, tennis, archery and game room activities. Directing Massasoit is Warrne Ross, a graduate of Arizona State University and the "Y" 's associate physical director.

The third camp is Chickami, a day camp for boys and girls 7 (and now in second grade) to 12. Located in Wayland on 25 acres, Chickami's facilities include an outdoor Olympic-size swimming pool, tennis courts, recreation hall, and crafts shop. The program consists of instructional and recreational swimming, all field sports, tennis, archery, riflery, arts and crafts, campcrafts and nature, drama, quiet games, special events, and overnites.

Camp Chickami's director is Steven Kendall, a graduate of Vanderbilt University and the YMCA associate youth director. Mr. Kendall has been associated with the camp for seven years.

Call 244-6050 for information.

Patricia E. Geary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Geary, Newton, has been named to the Dean's List at Fairfield University, Fairfield, Conn.

Lawn Doctor®
If you like what we're doing for someone else's lawn... you'll love what we do for yours!
No two lawns are exactly the same. That's why Lawn Doctor gives you customized service!
Year round, your Lawn Doctor specialist gives you customized service, tailored to your own lawn's unique needs. What's right for your neighbor's lawn or the fellow's down the street isn't necessarily right for yours.
Your neighbor may have a chickweed problem. The guy across the road may be fighting off armyworms.
But your lawn's worst enemy may be fungus, grubs or billbugs. That's why Lawn Doctor chemically analyzes your lawn before prescribing the best treatment to keep it healthy and beautiful.
Seeding, fertilization, weed, fungus and insect control—these are just some of the services we customize for your lawn's year-round care. And we always follow through with periodic checkups to ensure that your lawn receives the best possible care!
Special $24.95 introductory offer.
Take advantage of the special one-application introductory offer available now from your local Lawn Doctor lawn service. It begins with a thorough examination of your lawn. This includes soil tests to determine the exact composition of your lawn. Once the results are analyzed, you get seed, two kinds of top-quality fertilizer, power aeration, power rolling and all labor. You get all this—for an area up to 4,000 square feet—for just $24.95. That's practically what you'd pay for the seed and materials alone!

Zenith President's Award to Northeastern Distributors

It was recently announced by the Zenith National Committee for the 1973 President's Award Program that Northeastern Distributors, Inc. of Cambridge, was adjudged one of the top winners in their national classification. This marks the second consecutive year that Edward J. Lynch, Jr., president of Northeastern Distributors, Inc. accepted this prestigious award from Zenith Radio Corporation of Chicago, Ill.

The presentation was made at the Zenith national convention in Phoenix, Arizona, by John J. Nevin, president, Zenith Radio Corporation

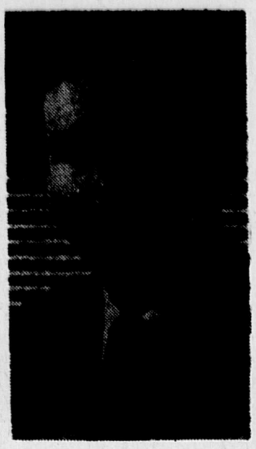

Northeastern Distributors was cited for having made a major contribution to the Zenith program in 1973 and for developing a dynamic Components and Service program to serve Zenith dealers and consumers.

Included in the criteria for evaluation were distributor operational activities, customer relations, warranty claims operations and implementation of factory training programs.

In accepting the handsome trophy from Zenith, Lynch said that, "I am pleased to accept this trophy and recognition on behalf of Northeastern Distributor's Executive Management, Component Sales Managers and Service Managers. It has always been our goal to participate fully in all Zenith factory-organized and our own Component and Service programs. This includes the continuous training of our own and dealer home electronic technicians in the latest techniques in the service and maintenance of Zenith products At Northeastern Distributors, we are constantly striving to improve our customer relations program and we feel that winning this award from Zenith indicates that our efforts are meeting with success."

Northeastern Distributors, Inc. is the oldest Zenith distributor in the world under the same ownership and will soon be celebrating their 50th anniversary as a wholesale distributor.

Also taking part in the national award ceremony were Roger Eaton, director of service at Northeastern Distributors; and James Magee, general manager, Parts Department.

Applications for Passports at Post Offices

The U.S. Postal Service said today it has expanded its acceptance of passport applications to include 850 post offices, stations and branches in the continental United States, Alaska, and Hawaii.

Tow years ago, when the Postal Service began cooperating with the State Department to accept passport applications, there were about 190 post offices in 10 states taking applications.

During the last fiscal year, the Postal Service accepted about 810,000 applications in 49 states.

Expansion of the program has proved to be a valuable service and convenience to people planning to travel abroad, both in major metropolitan areas and in less populated sections of the country.

The availability of passport applications through the Postal Service has cut the distance many people had to travel to obtain applications.

Although post offices, stations and branches have been authorized to accept passport applications, adjudication and issuance of passports remains the responsibility of the Department of State's Passport Office in Washington, D.C., and field agencies in major cities of the United States

Goodwill badly needs materials

"Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries is starving for donated materials" announced Henry E. Helms, executive director of the non-profit rehabilitation workshop.

Helms said "Goodwill needs material badly for it is the contributions that sustain the jobs and work rehabilitation programs for the 450 handicapped people we serve daily."

"Perhaps it is the chilly weather, garage sales, inflation or energy situation," he commented, "but we're hoping once people start spring cleaning the situation will improve."

Goodwill can use clothing, shoes, small and large appliances in repairable condition, bric-a-brac, toys, bicycles, radios, televisions, hi-fi and stereo equipment.

He stated Goodwill will send a collection truck to a home or business upon request to pick up large items or small items may be left in a Goodwill Collection Box.

Painting exhibit at Jordan Marsh

Once again, it's that time of year when Jordan Marsh presents its annual Exhibition of paintings by Contemporary New England artists. This year's Exhibit will take place May 6th through May 18th. Jordan seventh floor fashion center, Boston store, will be transformed into a beautiful showcase of fine paintings created by artists of New England.

All artists who are residents of New England for at least two months of the year are eligible to enter their paintings. This year's deadline for entries is Saturday, April 20th. Each painting must be accompanied by an entry blank which is available by sending name and address to: Mrs. Joan Hoty, Art Exhibition Director, Seventh Floor, Jordan Marsh Company, 450 Washington Street, Boston, Massachusetts, 02119 or call: 617-426-9000 Extension 2312.

This year's awards will include Popular Vote first prize of $500, second prize $300, and third prize $200. Three $200 Juror Awards will also be awarded.

This spring, Homelite is picking up the tab for picking up the grass.

If you buy a Homelite riding mower any time between now and May 25, we'll give you a $74.95 five-bushel capacity grass catcher, free.

What's the catch? There isn't any.

You can choose from the Homelite 5, 7 and 8-horsepower models which are attractive enough in themselves.

They all have anti-scalp mower decks that conform to the surface of your lawn for more uniform cutting.

The RE-8 lets you shift from forward to reverse without a clutch pedal. So the back wheels don't spin out and neither does the grass under them.

Electric starting is available. And all three come with various comfort features like adjustable seating, effortless steering and pneumatic tires.

Check the listing below for the Homelite dealer nearest you.

You have from now until May 25 to take advantage of the free grass catcher offer. And rake in a savings of $74.95.

Mann asks tax relief from school expenses

Mayor Theodore Mann spoke last week at a meeting of the Joint Committee on Education at the State House on bills dealing with changing formulas for reimbursement and on Secretary of Education Joseph Cronin's bill on fiscal and business management of school systems.

Referring to programs passed by the legislature, which he called "well-meaning" but presenting an enormous burden to property taxpayers, Mann said, "The property tax is an ineffective way to deal with the payment for educational programs."

"In the greater Boston area alone, population charts indicate that approximately 12 percent of the people living in the area are over 65 years of age, many with fixed income. Inflation hits this particular group of people in such a way that their very subsistence is threatened. I realize how difficult it is for the state legislature to deal with the various tax packages before it, but there must be found a remedy for the soaring property taxes," Mann said.

"In fiscal year 1975 I predict enormous increases in tax rates for virtually all communities throughout Massachusetts. Certainly we cannot assess blame entirely upon the legislative problems. The economic factors of inflation reflect the additional burdens that municipalities have in trying to meet their financial obligations," the mayor continued.

"Various bills before your committee on education today afford us the opportunity to improve business management practices. There are many areas in which the municipal departments and school administration can work together to effect efficiency in fiscal management. There has to be created a super structure of coordination of fiscal management between the legislature, the municipalities and school administration," Mann concluded.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening. a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

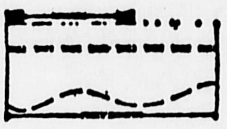

1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

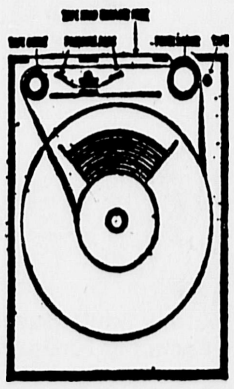

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.

How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience

Golden russet battle and safari jackets

Across the Kitchen Counter

The Passover celebration, which this year begins at sundown on Saturday, April 6, is a warm blend of tradition and ritual. Considered a home holiday, the first two nights are spent with the family in an elaborate feast, called the Seder.

The story of Exodus is read from the Haggadah, a guide book which utilizes ritual, song and representative foods to recall the exodus of the Israelites from their bondage in Egypt. Foods eaten during Passover differ from those of the rest of the year because of the prohibition against leaven. Foods containing baking powder, baking soda and yeast are forbidden, as well as such legumes as dried peas, dried beans and grains.

The usual flours are replaced with matzo meal and matzo meal cake flour (finely ground matzo meal) and potato flour. For eight days of the festival, the Jewish table replaces the leavened bread with matzo, a flat, crispy cracker symbolizing bread that was baked in haste when the Israelites fled Egypt.

At many Seders the entree will be either chicken or brisket of beef served in a Tzimmes, a delicious combination of meat, vegetables, fruits cooked slowly and gently over low heat. Sponge cakes, light and airy, delicately flavored with lemon or orange, reign supreme.

For some, the holiday would not be complete without their favorite breakfast Matzo Brei, a matzo omelet. You can serve it "as is" or with a mixture of sugar and cinnamon, sour cream, spicy stewed fruit or jelly. Actually, there is no one "right" way to prepare this dish — like scrambled eggs, Matzo Brei can be creamier or crisper depending upon the cook's inclination

CRISPY MATZO BREI

4 sheets matzos
Hot water
2 eggs, beaten
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Butter or margarine

Break matzos into approximately 3-inch pieces; place in colander and hold under very hot running water ONLY until matzos are slightly softened (about 15 seconds). Drain completely. Beat eggs with salt and pepper. Pour over matzos and allow to stand for 3 minutes. Melt butter or margarine in a large skillet until hot; add matzo-egg mixture and spread evenly. Cook until set and lightly browned on bottom. Break into 4 or 5 pieces and turn; cook until browned and crisp. Serves 2 to 3.

HONEY GLAZED ROAST CHICKEN

1 chicken, 3½ to 4 pounds
½ lemon
2 tablespoons peanut oil
1 tablespoon honey

Rub chicken with cut side of lemon. Sprinkle body and neck cavities with salt, then stuff with Matzos-Raisin Stuffing (below). Truss chicken and place in roasting pan. Roast at 325 degrees about 45 minutes per pound or until done. Fifteen minutes before chicken is done, brush with combined peanut oil and honey.

MATZOS-RAISIN STUFFING

In a mixing bowl combine 1½ cups chicken broth, 1 tablespoon sugar, 3 tablespoons peanut oil, 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel, ¼ teaspoon salt and a generous dash of cinnamon. Mix well. Stir in 5 crushed matzos and ¼ cup raisins. Let stand for 15 minutes before piling into chicken cavity.

BEEF BRISKET WITH TZIMMES

1 beef brisket about 4 pounds
2 medium onions, thinly sliced
1¼ cups water
1½ tablespoons brown sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ cups EACH: dried prunes, dried apricots
8 small carrots, pared, cut into chunks
4 med. potatoes, pared, sliced or sweet potatoes

Place meat, fat side down, in Dutch oven or roaster. Add onions; brown over medium heat, turning frequently. Add water, brown sugar, and spices; cover tightly. Simmer over low heat or place in 300 degree oven, allowing 40 to 50 minutes per pound. About 1 hour before done, add prunes, apricots, carrots and potatoes in alternate layers; cook until meat is done and vegetables are tender. Serves 8-10.

LIGHT AND AIRY MATZO BALLS (KNAIDLACH) FOR SOUP

½ cup minced onion
One-third cup peanut oil
2 eggs, separated
One-third cup cold water
1 teaspoon coarse salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Two-thirds cup matzo meal
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Chicken soup or salted water

Saute onion in oil until tender. Beat egg yolks with cold water, salt, and pepper. Gradually beat in onion. Stir in matzo meal and parsley. Beat egg whites untill stiff peaks form; gradually fold in matzo mixture. Cover and chill for at least 1 hour. Using 2 teaspoons, measure rounded teaspoons of mixture. Shape into balls. Drop into boiling chicken soup or salted water. Cover and cook for 25 minutes. Serve hot with soup.

PEARL LEVINE'S PASSOVER SPONGE CAKE

8 extra large eggs
¾ cup sugar
¾ cup sugar
Juice of 1 lemon
Juice of ½ orange
¾ cup potato flour
¼ cup cake meal

Beat egg whites with ¾ cup sugar until stiff. Beat egg yolks with ¾ cup sugar, juice of lemon and orange and then fold into whites. Add ¾ cup potato flour and cake meal to mixture, folding well. Put waxed paper in angel cake pan and then pour in mixture. Bake for 50 minutes in 350 degree oven. Invert until cold.

APPLESAUCE NUT CAKE

9 eggs, separated
1½ cups sugar
1 jar (15 oz.) applesauce
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¾ cup matzo cake meal
¼ cup potato starch
1½ cups ground almonds
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt

Beat egg yolks until light; gradually beat in sugar, until very thick. Add applesauce and cinnamon, beating well. Gradually fold in cake meal, potato starch and ground almonds. Beat egg whites with lemon juice and salt until stiff. Stir about ¼ of egg whites into batter, fold in rest lightly. Turn into ungreased, unlined 10 x 4-inch tube pan. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven for 1 hour and 20 minutes, or until cake tester comes out clean. To cool cake, invert pan and place the tube over the neck of a bottle so it is raised above table. When cooled completely, loosen cake with a spatula and remove from pan.

Champagne fashions at beer prices

food and fashion
by Ruth Lenson

Spring fashions for men means something for everyone whatever the lifestyle.

"Relatable fashion that is available to any man, no matter what his income or clothing budget," is how Chip Tolbert, Fashion Director of the Men's Fashion Association, describes the new season's men's wear. "I can truly say that it is all champagne fashion, but a man can choose whether he wants to pay champagne or beer prices. We have an incredible range of fashion out there, and no matter what a man wants to spend, he's going to be satisfied, whether it's a suit for the office, a sport outfit for vacation or the latest tennis outfit."

With warmer weather approaching, today's man will have more time to spend on leisure living. Male apparel will have a more casual and less restrictive look. Comfort and performance will outweigh fads.

In tailored clothing, look for a preponderance of soft-constructed (not unconstructed) suits and sport coats, even in business wear, with an emphasis on two-button stylings. Soft plaids, chambrays and linen-looks are favored in cottons and Polyester blends.

Greatest emphasis is placed on individuality. As in women's fashions, no laws dictate hemline or fabric—everything goes. It's up to the wearer to choose the style that suits the spirit at the moment. And so it is with men

In one room you're apt to see a man wearing a suit, vest, shirt and tie; another man will sport a blazer, shirt and no tie; another will go with the layered look of a sleeveless sweater, shirt and over-sized bow tie. The point is, everyone will be looking super and feeling comfortable in the clothes that he enjoys wearing rather than suffering the discomfort of wearing the "correct" style.

In the suit category, versatility is the key. The "for business only" suit is passee—look for styles that can be worn weekday or weekend, a.m. or p.m. For the man on the go, Fortrel polyester double knits remain a mainstay. They move as he moves, yet spring back into shape without sags, bags or wrinkles. Perfect for vacation travel or everyday commuting.

Suits will offer a staggering variety of patterns: window panes, puckered stripes, diagonals, waffle weaves and checks. Also available will be updated cotton cords, plaids, seersuckers and worsted-look plaids in ployester and natural blends, plus patterned knits. Don't overlook the stretch-your-budget coordinates—suits that come with an extra pair of odd slacks, giving the wearer another business or sport outfit.

SPORTSWEAR: The answer to what to wear when attending spectator sports or picnics on the patio—an enormous selection of bush, safari and battle jackets, boldly belted, buckled, epauleted and pocketed and most often teamed with matching slacks. Light blue, khaki and jade green are among the most popular shades.

The new spring-summer sweaters are a perfect match for casual jacket and slacks outfits. They also stand very well on their own when worn with coordinating trousers. Styling includes everything from sleeveless U-neck pullovers to long-sleeve crew necks. Patterns go from argyles and stripes to novelties in every design imaginable.

Slacks are varied—many plaids, especially madras looks, that will be styled with straight legs. Knits both in patterns and solids will come in a variety of fabrics.

What goes with those bold new patterned jackets and suits this spring? The Arrow solution is the short sleeve dress shirts in bright primary tones as well as classic blue. They're designed to look as well-groomed without a tie as they do with a traditional tie or a crisp bow tie.

The white jacket and slacks become a practical twosome when they're 100 percent polyester knit. With it, a pastel plaid shirt with bow tie and sleeveless sweater to match.

When it comes to evening wear, you might choose the "tropical" white linen-look dinner jacket, or colorful printed paisleys, both with classic shawl collar. For those who enjoy being trend-setters, there's the longer jacket with velvet cloverleaf lapels, available in a spectrum of colors and fabrics. The formal trimmings feature jumbo bow ties in tear drop and butterfly shapes, soft formal shirts in both white and pastels, with ruffled, pleated, ruched or embroidered fronts.

Spring shoes for men will feature classic lace-ups and slip-ons in solids and two-tones, in a somewhat lower heel. They will be worn over patterned and solid over-the-calf socks that blend with the rest of the new patterns and colors in spring-summer men's wear.

Without a doubt, there are many fashion alternatives for men these days, but the important factor is to know yourself and what looks and feels best on you.

Question: A woman mentioned a delicious Cinnamon Roll recipe you had printed in the past. Do you suppose you could reprint this or maybe mail a copy to me? Thank you. — Mrs. B. DiLorenzo, Medfield

Answer: We've printed several variations of the Cinnamon Roll and so, rather than choose the wrong recipe, here's a brand new one for you to enjoy:

CINNAMON ROLLS

4½ to 5½ cups sifted flour
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
½ cup milk
½ cup water
¼ cup (½ stick) margarine
2 eggs (at room temperature)
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

In large bowl thoroughly mix one and two-thirds cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are warm. (Margarine does not need to melt.) Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs, vanilla and ½ cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from drafts, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough in half. Roll each half into an 18 x 9-inch oblong. Brush with melted margarine. Combine 1½ cups sugar, two-thirds cup seedless raisins and 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon. Sprinkle ½ over each piece of dough. Roll each up as for jelly roll to make 18-inch rolls. Seal edges firmly. Cut each roll into 12 pieces, about 1½ inches wide. Place, cut side up, in 2 greased 9-inch round cake pans or 2 greased 8-inch square pans. Cover; let rise in warm place free from drafts, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Bake in 350 degree oven about 25 minutes, or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Serve plain or frost with confectioners' sugar frosting and sprinkle with sliced nuts.

"Liver can be a favorite dish," writes Mrs. C. C., Walpole, as she shares with us a Sweet and Sour Liver dish to be served on a bed of homemade noodles, Spaetzel.

SWEET-SOUR LIVER WITH NOODLES (SPAETZEL)

2 large onions, sliced
3 tablespoons fat
1 pound diced extra soft beef liver
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups boiling water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons sugar

Lightly brown the onions in the fat. Add the liver and cook over medium heat for 5 minutes. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and paprika and flour. Add the water, lemon juice and sugar, stirring constantly until mixture reaches the boiling point. Cook over low heat for 5 minutes. Taste for seasoning and serve with Spaetzel. (Serves 4.)

SPAETZEL

2 cups sifted flour
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cold water

Sift the flour into a bowl and make a well in the center. Drop the eggs, salt and water into it. Work into the flour with the hand and knead until the dough leaves the sides of the bowl. Knead on a board until smooth and elastic. Divide the dough into 4 pieces and roll until pencil thin. Cut into 1-inch pieces and drop into boiling salted water. Cook until they rise to the surface. Drain. Serve with above recipe or with meat and gravy.

Question: My husband has been asking me to at least attempt to make a dish he loves, stuffed cabbage. Would you please print this recipe so that he'll stop pestering me. It seems that his grandmother used to prepare this dish quite often — so often that his mother never bothered. They are both gone and there was never a recipe handed down. Thank you very much. — Mrs. H. D., Newton

Answer: Your husband is sure to enjoy this old world dish. It's best to buy as large a head of cabbage as possible for easy rolling around the meat mixture; and the seasoning of the sauce is a matter of personal preference.

STUFFED CABBAGE

1 large head cabbage, 2-3 pounds
2 pounds ground beef
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons molasses
1 cup water
1 can tomato soup
1 small can tomato sauce
Juice of 2 lemons
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
¼ cup raisins

Trim core of cabbage. Place cabbage in large pot one-third full of water. Cover and allow cabbage to simmer for 15 minutes. Cabbage leaves will then separate easily. Trim thick membrane of cabbage leaf. In bowl, combine meat, eggs, salt and pepper. Place a heaping tablespoon of meat mixture on cabbage leaf and roll, tucking in sides. Place rolled cabbage in pressure cooker or large pot; cover with molasses, tomato soup, sauce, lemon juice, raisins, sugars, salt and water. If using pressure cooker, cook for 15 minutes. If using pot, bring to boil; lower heat and cook for ¾ hour. Remove rolled cabbage to a roasting pan; cover with sauce and allow to brown in a 350 degree oven for 1 hour.

Out thanks to Mrs. G. N., West Roxbury for her recipe for:

CHINESE CHICKEN AND ALMONDS

2 whole chicken breasts, boned, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 egg white
4 stalks celery, cut up
2 tablespoons corn oil
12 water chestnuts, cut in fourths
1 teaspoon sherry
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
½ cup toasted almonds, slivered
¼ cup water mixed with 1 tbs. cornstarch

Mix salt, egg white, sherry, cornstarch together and put chicken pieces in and stir. Set aside. Heat 2 teaspoons oil until very hot. Add celery and water chestnuts and stir occasionally; add ½ teaspoon salt and M.S.G. Cook, stirring for 3 minutes. Remove from pan. Heat remaining oil and drop in chicken pieces, cooking until they turn a very light color. Add vegetable mixture and fry quickly, stirring constantly, for 1 minute; add water mixture and bring to a boil. Serve immediately with toasted almonds sprinkled over all. Serves 4.

AUCTION OF PERSIAN RUGS
and other Oriental Rugs
Note About This Auction: Iran, the largest producer of handwoven carpets and rugs, has been a backward, slow-moving country for centuries. Suddenly with the advent of industry, oil and free education, it zoomed to the 20th Century. As a result children, 75% of rug weavers, are lured away from the ancient art of weaving. And in our opinion, in the next five years this great art will be so scarce and will be hard to find. European collectors and dealers are rushing to America and collect these carpets. We urge the residents of Lexington to attend this fabulous auction.
Included are: LUXURY KERMAN, KASHAN, PALACE QUMES, BOKHARAS, HUNTING CARPETS, VASE & GARDEN OF FLOWERS CARPETS, PRAYER RUGS, BELOUCHESTAN, SAROUKS, SILK RUGS, and many others.
Luxury Kerman (the soft wool of the chest part of the young Persian Lamb is used); Qume Silk (silk obtained by cultivating the silk worm on the leaves of the Mulberry tree); Tabriz (it was here that the beautiful hunting carpets were woven); Ardebil (Medallion & Geometric designs — a famous example is the Ardebil carpet in the Victoria and Albert Museum in London); Prayer Rug (they are recognized from Mihrabi).

Weddings

Bienstock-Finkel nuptial solemnized at Belmont temple

On March 30, at Temple Beth El, Belmont, the marriage of Sande Eileen Bienstock and Leonard Alan Finkel was solemnized.

Rabbi Earl Grollman officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Bienstock of Waltham, wore a white double organza gown with an attached Swiss guipure train. A three tier silk illusion veil was attached to a white satin cap covered with tiny Venice lace, seed pearls and scattered crystals.

Her sister, Judi Michelle Bienstock, was her maid of honor. Another sister, Lori Sue, was the bridesmaid.

Mr. Finkel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jason Finkel of Newton Centre, had as his best man, David Kaplan from Ohio. Paul Braverman, of Framingham, ushered.

The new Mrs. Finkel plans to pursue a career in fashion merchandising.

The groom is a graduate of Newton South High School and Boston University School of Business. He is currently employed by Browne-Vintners of San Francisco.

After a wedding trip to Dorado Beach, Puerto Rico, the couple plan to reside in Syracuse, N.Y.

June 26 new date for kidney benefit

Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts, Women's Committee, announces a change of date for "A Night at the Races," to June 26, Wednesday evening, at the Latin Quarter Penthouse at Foxboro Raceway. The evening's proceeds will help to fight kidney disease in Massachusetts.

Chairman for the event are Mrs. Benjamin Sack, Mrs. Morton Bloom and Mrs. Stephen Myers. For reservations, call Reservation Cahirman Mrs. Lawrence Gershman, 969-9364; Mrs. Norman Goldberg, 899-2307.

'The Great Gatsby' benefit showing

The Women's Division of the Greater Boston Heart Association is sponsoring a premiere showing of "The Great Gatsby" at the Circle Theatre, Brookline, on Tuesday, April 9

Complimentary champagne will be served at 7 p.m., followed by the film at 8 p.m. Just prior to curtain time, raffle tickets will be drawn for several holiday weekends for two to six people, along with gift certificates from leading Boston stores, and dinners for two at top restaurants.

Mrs. Robert H. Quinn, honorary president, and Mrs. Paul Pearson, president of The Women's Division, have announced that tickets are $5.50 and must be purchased in advance.

Newton committee members working to make this gala evening a success are: Ms. Donna Griffin, chairman; Mrs. Fred Wilcon; and Mrs. Nathan Sobel. They may be contacted for the purchase of tickets

Money raised from this major event will be used by the Heart Association to further the fight against "the big one." The Women's Division has recently sponsored cardio-pulmonary resucitation classes for firemen, policemen, etc., a pilot risk factor screening of all seventh grade pupils in Newton to determine blood pressure and cholesterol levels, and is currently funding a researcher at Harvard doing heart related studies.

Republican Club participates in Library project

The Newton Women's Republican Club is participating in the Mamie Eisenhower Library Project; sponsored nationally by the National Federation of Republican Women, it was announced by Mrs. G. M. Swift, president of the Newton group.

Under this program, directed by National Chairman Mrs. Ralph Totman of E. Alstead, N.H., books are being donated to libraries, schools, Senior Citizen Centers, and similar organizations.

The local Newton group inaugurated its participation with its recent Autograph Party and its presentation of Jessie Sargent's newly published book, "The Governor's Wife" to the Newton Public Library. Mrs. Dino DiCarlo was hostess at that event which was attended by Mrs. Sargent who took part in the presentation.

'The Sun is My Enemy' author speaks

Presentations on a relatively unknown disease, systematic lupus erythematosus, will be delivered by women who have the disease on Saturday afternoon April 6, at Newton-Wellesley Hospital's School of Nursing.

The occasion is the school's annual alumnae institute. Between 60 and 100 alumnae from the greater Boston area are expected to attend. Morning sessions will be given over to a review of the School of Nursing's two-year curriculum in terms of classroom and clinical experience. Alumnae wishing to attend may make reservations by calling the School of Nursing, Ext. 344.

Speakers on the afternoon lupus panel include Henrietta Aladjem, author of "The Sun Is My Enemy" and a major figure in public education about the disease; Susan Rosenblum, president, Manhattan chapter, Lupus Erythematosus Foundation, Inc.; Judi Correnti, member, Mass. Lupus Erythematosus board; and Marilyn Souza, former president, Conn. Lupus Erythematosus Foundation, Inc.

Mrs. Aladjem, a Wellesley resident, is known colloquially as "Mother Lupus" because of her intelligent and impassioned work to increase awareness of the need for more medical research on lupus. Her experience with the disease is chronicled in an article "Ordeal Into Triumph" in the current issue of the Newton-Wellesley Quarterly, published by Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Lupus is described in the Quarterly article as "one of the more lurid faces of arthritis." Technically, it is a chronic inflammatory disease which affects the blood vessels and connective tissues. It can start, the article continues, with skin rashes and joint pain inflamed by exposure to the sun. The disease becomes most dangerous when it spreads to such vital organs as the heart, liver, kidneys or brain.

Lupus, for reasons unknown, is most common in young women in their child-bearing years. Five thousand die of it each year and 50,000 new cases come to medical attention in a similar span.

Mrs. Aladjem's lupus has been in remission for 15 years. Her crusading work to promote awareness of the strange disease has continued unabated. Lupus is a curious disease because it mimics characteristics of other diseases.

"The lupus patient characteristically may feel at war with herself, her body a battleground spawning one extraordinry symptom after another--one moment at ease, the next in torment. Not only is the patient at a loss to understand it, but her family and her doctors may be even less comprehending and tolerant.

Mrs. Aladjem's book about her experience with lupus, "The Sun Is My Enemy," is, according to Dr. Frederick J. Stare of Harvard's School of Public Health, "a brilliantly lucid account of...the patient's own agonizing problem in coming to grips with a strange and frightening illness.

CHRISTINA V. OLESON of 498 Chestnut St., Waban, will appear with the "Ice Chips" in performances April 5, 6, and 7, at the Walter Brown Rink of Boston University. The program will feature international and national competitors and many local people.

General Mills coupons to benefit B'nai B'rith home

Mrs. Stanley Gaffin, of Newton Centre, community service chairman for Mayflower Chapter, B'nai B'rith, announces that they are participating in a project sponsored by Greater Boston Council of B'nai B'rith Women to help furnish the recreation room of the B.B.W. Children's Home in Israel.

General Mills has agreed to provide the equipment through the redemption of coupons found on the box tops of Betty Crocker and other General Mills products. The goal is 500,000 coupon points.

Coupons may be deposited in an appropriately marked box at the Stop and Shop located on Route 9 or mailed to Mrs. B. Goldberg, 147 Cypress St., Newton Centre, Mass. 02159.

Dr. Carolmarie Smith speaks at Amherst

A women's conference will be held at Converse Hall, Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., on Saturday, April 20, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. A major speaker at the conference will be Dr. Carolmarie Smith of Auburndale. Dr. Smith is professor of biology at Framingham State College.

"Women and Academe" is sponsored by Committee W (On the Status of Women) of the Massachusetts State Conference, American Association of University Professors. Committee W is chaired by Dr. Theodora J. Kalikov of Newtonville. Dr. Kalikov teaches at Southeastern Mass. University.

The conference will consist mainly of workshops on topics of interest to women faculty and students in higher education. Several local women are coordinating these workshops.

Workshop include: Women's Studies, Detecting Economic Discrimination, Discrimination against Women Students, Professional Self-improvement for Women, Legal Remedies Against Discrimination, etc.

Bat Ami group plans 'Hadassah Hothouse'

Preliminary plans are underway by the Chestnut Hill-Bat Ami Group of Hadassah for a spectacular display of plants to be featured at their "Hadassah Hothouse" on May 15 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Garber, 108 Woodchester Drive, Chestnut Hill.

To be held outdoors from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. (rain date May 16), the public is invited to attend this unique indoor and outdoor plant sale with well-known experts on plant care and growth who will speak intermittently throughout the day on the various types that will be on exhibit.

Included in the price of admission will be a luncheon continuously served throughout the day for those in attendance. A tremendous selection of unusual and varied plants as well as gardening books and accessories will be available for purchase.

Proceeds of the day will benefit Hadassah's healing, teaching and research projects and programs in Israel.

For advance ticket information or presale orders, contact Mrs. Jules Seletz, Newton.

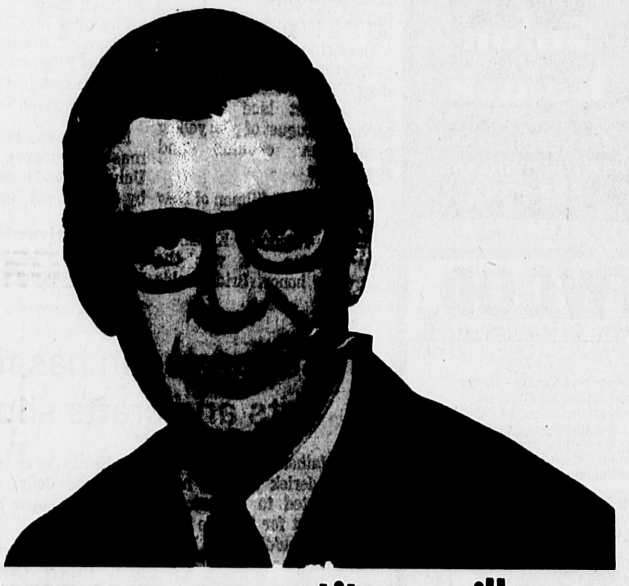

New DAR state historian is Mrs. William A. Hurley

At the Spring Conference of the Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution, held recently at the Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston, Mrs. William A. Hurley, Newton Highlands, was elected to the office of State Historian of the organization. A former Regent of Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter, Mrs. Hurley has been State Chairman of American History Month, supervising an annual statewide essay contest conducted among grade-school children.

She is one of 13 State Officers, elected for a term of three years, and will be installed in May. Retiring Assistant State Registrar Mrs. Leslie W. Irwin, Newton Highlands, and Retiring State Historian Mrs. David Hamblen III, Newton, are also members of Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter.

The one-day Conference featured reports of State Officers and chairman, and the presentation of awards to various Chapters for increase in membership, excellence of yearbooks, and superiority of programs. Outside speakers included Dr. James B. Bell, Director and Librarian, New England Historic Genealogical Society; Mr. Edward A. McColgan, Executive Director, Massachusetts Bi-centennial Commission; Mr. Gilbert Bliss, Massachusetts Department of Natural Resources; and the Rev. Robert W. Golledge, Vicar of Old North Church, Boston.

Special guests at the Conference luncheon were Mr. Charles L. Stonemetz, editor, Newton Villager, and Mr. Robert C. Hagopian, town manager of Saugus, both of whom received certificates of appreciation for their patriotism. Other guests were the six district winners of the Good Citizens program. These high school senior girls are selected by her faculty and classmates as best typifying the qualities of courtesy, cooperation, leadership, dependability, and patriotism. Of the six, one is chosen to be Massachusetts Good Citizen, and will receive a $100 Bond. Runner-up receives a $50 Bond, and each of the remaining four receives a $25 Bond.

Engagements

Deborah B. Snyder

Snyder-Silverstein

Dr. and Mrs. Julian G. Snyder of Newton, Mass. announce the engagement of their daughter, Deborah B. Snyder to Mr. Lawrence I. Silverstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Silverstein, of Nashua, N.H.

Miss Snyder received her B.A. degree from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. She is presently an Assistant Registrar at Northeastern University.

Mr. Silverstein is a graduate of Dartmouth, summa cum laude, and Harvard Law School, magna cum laude. He is presently serving as a law clerk for the Mass. Supreme Judicial Court. He will be practicing law with the firm of Bingham, Dana, and Gould next year.

An August 25th Wedding is planned.

Kaitz-Devor

Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Kaitz of Newton Centre, announce the engagement of their daughter, Marsha to Marshall Devor, son of Mrs. John Devor of Jerusalem, Israel, and the late Mr. John Devor.

The birde-to-be is a graduate of the University of Vermont. She is studying for her doctorate degree in psychology at Northeastern University.

Mr. Devor graduated from Princeton University and is now attending M.I.T. where he is also studying for his doctorate degree in psyshology.

A June wedding in Newton Centre is planned.

Practice

Governor's wife visits Carroll Center for Blind

Jessie Sargent recently toured the Carroll Rehabilitation Center for the Visually Impaired.

Mrs. Sargent toured the center to see firsthand developments in rehabilitation. The Carroll Center was recently designated regional training center for Optacon, a new electronic device permitting blind people to "read" ordinary inkprint through translation of a visual image to a tactile image.

St. Paul's Rehabilitation Center was the first facility in the country to offer rehabilitation to blinded civilians. St. Raphael's Geriatric Adjustment Center is the first rehabilitation program in the nation specifically for elderly blind people.

Trainees come to the Carroll Center primarily from Massachusetts and other New England states, but have also come from nearly every other state as well as Norway, Kenya, Sweden, Rhodeisa and other foreign countries.

Mrs. Sargent visited with staff and trainees in each of the Carroll Center programs and saw a program of slides depicting Carroll Center work. She expressed particular interest in the latest developments in rehabilitation here — los vision training and prevocational evaluation.

Low-vision training is essential to the legally blind person with useful residual sight. Following evaluation and prescription of aids at a low-vision clinic, instructor and trainee must work closely to insure success in using aids. Use of closed circuit television may be taught as a reading technique. New vision habits may have to be learned in order to make optimal use of special monocular telescopes for reading signs.

Prevocational evaluation is now part of our basic program in insure the return of the blinded adult to employment whenever possible. Diagnostic testing of skills and interests provides an important first step back to the job, whether in the same field or to a new career.

Mrs. Sargent said after her visit, "It was very impressive to be able to see the wonderful rehabilitation being done with both the newly blind and with those who have had years of impairment."

The extras are on the houses.

Emil Hanslin, internationally renowned planner, is the founder and pacesetter of Hanslin Builders. And right now, Hanslin has six select houses available for purchase. In Marstons Mills, a sprawling 3-bedroom contemporary. In Bright Coves, New Seabury, a 3-bedroom, 2-deck contemporary. In Cotuit, one spacious 4-bedroom Cape, one quaint 3-bedroom saltbox, and just started is a 2-bedroom traditional overlooking the pond. In Sippewissett, a 3-bedroom light-filled contemporary, set off by itself overlooking the greenbelt. The extras: they were each built from the ground up by a skilled construction crew that works exclusively for Hanslin Builders. They each have a very comprehensive warranty. And they are each as highly individualistic as Emil Hanslin himself. A rare opportunity to appreciate the fine work of a master planner.

EASTER GLADNESS
Let us sing of Easter gladness that rejoices every day.
Sing of hope and faith uplifted;
Love has rolled the stone away.
Lo, the promise and fulfillment,
Lo, the man whom God hath made.
Seen in glory of an Easter Crowned with light that cannot fade.

Brides forsake traditional music

More than 2 million couples will be married this year. While most will have a traditional service, a growing number of young people are revising ceremonies to suit their own tastes and lifestyles.

One of the things most often changed, says the American Music Conference, is the couple's selection of musical instruments to set the mood.

At a recent ceremony in Chicago, the bride walked down the aisle to "Song for Diane," which was especially composed for her by the prospective groom.

In other cases, where a more traditional selection of music has been made, the couple has chosen to complement the organ with violins, recorders, flutes, guitars or even a jazz combo composed of bass, piano and drums.

Often, the bridal pair will forego use of professional musicians and call on friends to perform. One couple, who were married in a rustic mountainside ceremony, had friends perform on guitar and two recorders

While the selection of some of these instruments still strikes us as exotic, many of them have traditionally been used in non-Western wedding ceremonies.

Drums, for example, are integral parts of wedding rites in many African and Arabic cultures.

During marriage ceremonies in Nigeria, women accompany themselves on large inverted calabash bowls—some beaten with the hands and some with sticks—while they sing a song advising men to investigate the character of their prospective mates.

In Egypt and other Islamic countries, a drum made of a wooden hoop and two skins is played exclusively by women as part of the ritual. The use of the drums is in keeping with Mohammed's instructions in the Koran—"Publish the marriage and beat the drum."

In the Dalarna region of Sweden, a tradition evolved of having fiddlers play for weddings. Even today, these ceremonies are conducted with the assistance of several fiddlers. While one plays the melodic line, the others improvise so that the music is ever changing.

While the wedding service may change, one thing is certain—old or new, traditional or modern—all rituals include music as a uniquely expressive part of the ceremony.

Taped music cuts budget

Watching the budget? Looking for something a little different in the way of music? Instead of hiring an organist to play at the wedding ceremony, you might want to play prerecorded music from a cassette. If the ceremony is in the home, there is no problem, but if a church wedding is on the schedule, better check with the minister for permission to play your favorite sound.

Specially taped music can be played all through the reception, too, thus saving the cost of an orchestra. Just be sure you have enough tapes to last through the entire reception without monotonous repetition. It would also be a good idea to have someone who is not in the bridal party in charge of changing tapes.

Love Chests Span The Ages

The Love Chest, as it's referred to today by Lane, the nation's largest producer, is steeped in the romance of centuries past. Thousands of brides-to-be each year get them from their boyfriends as a gift of love.

The tradition may well be one of the most ancient customs of bridal lore. The "Love Chest" of the European Renaissance was such an important part of the wedding preparation, the task of building it often attracted such great artists as Leonardo DaVinci.

In any case, however elaborate, the chest played an important role in the dreams and plans of the future bride, as she entrusted her personal belongings to its safekeeping.

And just as the tradition gets more beautiful with each generation, so do the chests themselves. Lane makes over 100 styles, each adapting classic furniture designs of the past to elegant chests of today.

Is there any sweeter way he can say "I love you?"

Horse is king in Scottsdale

Scottsdale is a horse lovers paradise. There are 20,000 horses in Scottsdale year round.

In Scottsdale, Arizona there is an unwritten law, the only one in the U.S., that a horse has right of way.

Residents and land developers cater to horses. Sign at the entrance of Desert Estates proclaims, "Please drive carefully. Watch for children and horses."

It is not unusual to see riders casually astride their mounts at the "Horse teller's" window of the local banks as they transact their business — or better yet, trot up to the horse-window of the local liquor emporium to make their purchases of the bubbly.

Early in February each year, Scottsdale sets the scene for the famous Parada Del Sol. Three days of RCA-sanctioned rodeos, the "World's Longest Horsedrawn Parade," staged "bank robberies" are all part of the festivities.

Take sun tea and see

Arizona style Sun Tea is mighty simple. Take a gallon jug and fill it with cold, clear water. Be sure it has a tight lid. Place one — repeat — only one tea bag in the jar and close up tightly.

Next, set the jar in the yard or whever the sun will hit it full on.

Let set — just wait — for the day. When the sun goes down — you'll be delighted to discover you have a delicious gallon of Arizona Sun tea.

The tea has no bitter taste, no scum. It is delicious. It's economical and the Arizonians love it. Visitors love it, too. The only folk not touting its tastiness would be the manufacturers of tea bags.

Recognized

Newton Kiwanian Philip Cacciatore was accorded distinctive recognition with the Legion of Honor for his 25 years of service to the organization at a recent meeting. He is a past president of the Newton Club.

Local dean honored

Sister Frances de La Chapelle, R.S.C.J., dean of students at Newton College in Newton, has been selected to be included in the 1975-76 edition of "Who's Who of American Women."

The volume sketches the careers and achievements of women in the arts, the sciences, finance, medicine, education, business and industry.

Sister de La Chapelle, born in Englewood, New Jersey, received her B.A. degree from Maryville College in St. Louis and her M.A. from Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

She served as a teacher and school administrator at Stone Ridge Country Day School of the Sacred Heart in Washington, D.C. from 1965-67 and at Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart in Princeton, New Jersey from 1967-69.

She has been a member of the administrative staff and dean of students at Newton College since 1969.

Sister de La Chapelle has also served as a director and supervisor of the campus ministry program at Newton College, which is a field placement for the Boston Theological Institute, and as a member of the Washington Province of the Society of the Sacred Heart Planning Commission.

She was named Extraordinary minister in the Boston Archdiocese in 1973, and has been a member of the Provincial Government of the Society of the Sacred Heart since 1971.

Obituaries

Edward B. Benedict

A memorial service will be held Wednesday, April 10, at 2 p.m., in Memorial Church, Harvard Yard, for Dr. Edward B. Benedict.

Dr. Benedict, 77, of 24 Essex Rd., Chestnut Hill, died Thursday (March 28) in his home after a long illness.

A surgeon at Massachusetts General Hospital and Harvard Medical School for many years, Dr. Benedict was educated at Browning School, New York City; Milton Academy and Harvard College. He graduated from Massachusetts Medical School in 1923.

Dr. Benedict began his career in 1924 at Massachusetts General Hospital and was on its staff until 1969. He was assistant clinical professor of surgery at Harvard Medical School from 1951 to 1962.

He was a member of several medical associations and served two years as a consultant to the United States Public Health Service.

He was also a fellow in the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. Benedict was also a member of the Longwood Cricket and Country Clubs, past president of the Longwood Covered Courts and past director of Boys and Girls' Camps, Inc.

From 1965 to 1968, he served as president of the New England Citizens Crime Commission. In 1972, Dr. Benedict received the Citizen Achievement Award for the Massachusetts Council on Crime and Corrections.

Dr. Benedict is survived by his wife, Mrs. Patricia H. Benedict; a son, Edward Jr., of Pocasset; three daughters, Mrs. Anna Miller of Dedham, Mrs. Chandler Cord and Miss Susan Benedict of Chestnut Hill.

Louise V. Brooks

The funeral of Mrs. Louise V. (Dillon) Brooks was to be held at 10 a.m., Thursday (April 4) in St. Mary's of Assumption Church, Brookline.

Widow of Charles J. Brooks, Mrs. Brooks died Monday (April 1) after a short illness.

A resident of Newton for 30 years, she was a member of the Women's Rotary Club of Boston and the Newton Centre Woman's Club.

Mrs. Brooks is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Carol Corcoran of West Newton; two sisters, Mrs. Emily Blake and Gertrude Dillon, both of Medford; and a brother, William Dillon of California.

Burial is in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

Marguerite Surette

Mrs. Marguerite E. (Belliveau) Surette, 63, of 619 Washington St., Newton, died Monday (March 25) in Hahnemann Hospital, Brighton, after a short illness.

A funeral mass was said for her Friday (March 29) in Our Lady's Church. Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Mrs. Surette is survived by her husband, Chester J. Surette; a son, Louis of Brockton; a daughter, Mrs. Arline M. Curtis of Milford; her brother, Raymond B. Belliveau of Manchester, Conn.; five sisters, all of Waltham, Mrs. Laura Gaudette, Miss Doris Belliveau, Mrs. Helen Healey, Mrs. Marie Oasserly, and Mrs. Theresa Cosgrove.

Shirley Robinson

Funeral services for Mrs. Shirley (Risman) Robinson were held Thursday (March 28) in Brookline.

Mrs. Robinson, 70, of 21 Dorothy Rd., Newton Centre, died Tuesday (March 26) in Massachusetts General Hospital. She had lived in Newton for many years and was a past president of the Ladies Auxiliary of United Commercial Travelers No. 584, a life member of Congregation Kehileth Jacob, and a past treasurer of the Ladies Auxiliary of Damon Lodge.

Mrs. Robinson is survived by her husband, Murray Robinson; a son, Allan D. Robinson of Newton; four sisters, Mrs. Betty Carr, Mrs. Irene Derman, and Mrs. Ruth Berzon, all of Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Evelyn Tullman of Brookline; two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial is in Sharon Memorial Park.

Philip R. Kneeland

Philip R. Kneeland, 69, of 2061 Washington St., Newton Lower Falls, died Friday (March 29) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

A native of the city, Mr. Kneeland was a construction engineer with the General Services Administration. He was a member of the Newton Council of the Knights of Columbus and the Society of American Military Engineers.

Mr. Kneeland is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eileen E. Kneeland; a daughter, Maureen of Newton; five sisters, Mrs. Lillian Gardyne of Burbank, Calif., Mrs. Grace Edwards of Auburndale, Mrs. Mildred King of Cambridge, Mrs. Kathryn Gerrier of Wayland, Mrs. Annabelle Hughes of Newton Highlands; and a brother, Edmund of Waban.

Funeral services were held Monday (April 1) with a mass in St. John's Church, Wellesley Hills. Burial is in Holyhood Cemetery in Brookline.

Leo Mayer

Services for Leo Mayer, 81, of 30 The Ledges Rd., Newton Centre, were held Thursday (March 28) in Temple Israel, Roxbury.

Mr. Mayer, founder and owner of the Cole Hersee Co., died Tuesday (March 26) at his home. He had lived in Newton for 50 years.

Mr. Mayer was a member of Germania Masonic Lodge, the Society of Automotive Engineers, the Jewish Community Center, the Jewish Recuperative Center and Temple Israel.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Mayer; a son, Robert; two daughters, Mrs. Frances Jacobson and Mrs. Bertha Romanow, all of Newton, and 10 grandchildren.

Burial is in Temple Israel Cemetery, Wakefield.

Solar energy being used to heat homes

Can people harness solar energy to heat homes soon? Many scientists don't think so. But some have already done it, according to the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

Two scientists at the University of Arizona — Aden Meinel and Dean McKenney — have built sun-absorbing devices to heat their homes. They say people living in sunny areas can build their own solar home heaters in half a day for $100.

The setup works like a forced hot air heating system. Air is forced out of the house with a fan into a huge bag on the ground or roof outside — then back inside. Rays of the sun permeate the walls of the bag, and the air inside can zoom up to 90 degrees hotter than the outside temperature. As long as the sun shines.

Other ways to capture the sun's heat are being explored. Solar farms in the Southwest desert — thousands of acres covered with sun-absorbing surfaces — are now being suggested as possible heating sources to help make steam for power plants. Also under consideration are solar stations that would orbit the earth, converting the sun's rays to electrical energy and sending it back to earth by microwaves.

Architects are taking the sun more into account. How much energy buildings require for heating, cooling and lighting can depend to a large extent on what sun-absorbing metals and materials are used in construction. And angles at which buildings are erected can help prevent — or aid — penetration from the sun.

Association to discuss foster care

The Adoption Association of Massachusetts, Inc., which includes members from Newton, will present its April program entitled "Foster Care, temporary and permanent," on April 9 at 8 p.m.

The meeting will be held at the First Parish Unitarian-Universalist Church Hall, 50 Church St., Waltham.

Speakers will be Cornelius M. Hegarty from New England Home for Little Wanderers, and Agnes Turvey from Nazareth Child Care Center.

The public is invited. Refreshments will be served. For further information, people may contact Marsha Katz at 332-1889.

Republicans plan meeting

Plans for the annual meeting and election of officers of the Newton Republican Club were set at last week's executive session, John L. DiSabato, president of the club, reported recently.

Program details for the mid-May event are expected soon. DiSabato also announced appointments to the Nominating Committee which is to bring in its slate of officers at that time. Those named were: Mrs. Maudyea Campbell, William B. Carolan, Julius L. Masow, Samuel Rachlin, Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury, and David A. Lurensky, who was designated chairman pro tem to convene the group.

Mrs. G. M. Swift was named chairman of the Committee on Arrangements for the forthcoming May event.

Taxpayers ask IRS

Editor's Note-The following questions and answers on the general income tax are prepared by the Internal Revenue Service.

After I move out of my home in Boston to move into what is currently my summer home, I intend to rent the Boston home. I know I should depreciate it, but what basis should I depreciate from?

A. Your basis for depreciation is the lower of the fair market value of the commencement to rent or the adjusted basis of the home as your residence.

Q. I'm in the Army Reserves. Can I deduct my travel expenses?

A. If your meetings are held the same day as your regular work, you may deduct the amount of mileage of getting directly from one place to the other. If you normally work from Monday through Friday and your Reserve unit meets one weekend a month you may only deduct travel to and from a meeting place outside the area of your tax home, not travel in the general area of your home.

Q. Are bank service charges deductible as interest?

A. No, this is not interest and it is not deductible.

Q. If I purchase a bond for my child naming my child as beneficiary, to whom is the income taxable?

A. This income is taxable to your child.

Q. My child is blind. How can I take the special exemption for blindness for him?

A. The exemption for blindness applies only to the taxpayer(s). Dependents never qualify for additional exemptions for blindness.

Q. How much of my Social Security is deductible as a medical expense?

A. Part B of Medicare payments is deductible as insurance. People who paid for this during all of 1973 paid $71.90. If you only had it part of the year, check with Social Security to see how much you paid. Remember, only half (up to $150) of your medical insurance goes on line 1 of Schedule A.

Q. Are jury duty fees taxable?

A. Yes, they are taxable compensation for service.

Q. Someone told me that each time I have a casualty loss I have to deduct $100 from it before entering it on my return. Isn't thiswrong? Isn't that $100 limitation only once a year?

A. No, the limitation is $100 per casualty.

Q. My mother died in 1973. How can my father get a refund check with just his name on it?

A. If your father includes a completed Form 1310 with his return he will receive a check addressed to him alone.

Q. I drove 18,000 miles for my employer in 1973. What can I deduct for expenses?

A. You may either deduct your actual expenses or $2,070 plus your actual expenses for parking and tolls. The $2,070 is the result of deducting $0.12 a mile for the first 15,000 miles and $0.09 a mile thereafter.

Q. Am I entitled to special benefits because I'm a student?

A. No. Special exemption rules apply to other people who claim their children who are full-time students, but the students themselves receive no special benefits pertaining to ordinary income.

Q. I do a lot of driving for the Boys Club. Can I deduct any of this milage?

A. You may deduct $0.06 a mile and your expenses for tolls and parking.

Q. Since I was single most of the year and earned all my income before I was married, can I file as single rather than married?

A. No, your filing status depends on your martial status on December 31 or whatever date is the end of your tax year.

Q. My aunt takes care of my two children while I'm at work. How much of what I pay her can I deduct?

A. None. Payments to relatives for child care are not deductible.

Q. I found out some stock I own has been worthless since 1972. When should I deduct this loss?

A. A loss from worthless stock is deductible only in the year in which it is determined to be worthless.

Q. I have income of over $25,000. Can I use the short form?

A. You may use Form 1040A for any amount of income from wages, salaries, tips, interest or dividends. If you use it you must take the Standard Deduction instead of itemizing deductions.

This is the first year I'm paying tax on my pension income. Because of it I have to pay $450 with my return. Do I have any special responsibilities because I didn't have anything withheld from it?

A. Yes, since you are not having withholding taken out (which could be done if you filed with the distributor of the pension), you must file a Form 1040 ES and make quarterly estimated tax payments.

Q. I know I'm limited to applying $1,000 of my capital losses to my ordinary income for the year. Are my rental losses limited like this too?

A. No, rental losses are to be taken to the full amount lost during the year. If your loss is greater than your total income, call IRS for assistance.

Q. Moths damaged my fur coat. Is this a casualty loss?

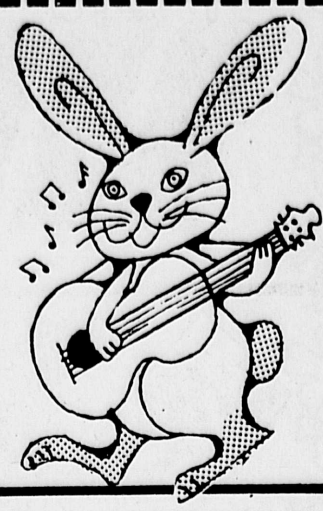

A. No, this is not a sudden unexpected kind of loss, therefore it is not a casualty.

Q. How long should I keep my tax records?

A. Your return is open for examination for three years from the date on which it was filed. However, if more than 25 per cent of income was omitted from the return then the statute is open for 6 years. Further, there is no statute of limitation on fraudulently filed tax returns. Records concerning capital investments should be kept as long as the assets are held.

Rabbi and Mrs. Kazis to be honored at dinner

Rabbi and Mrs. Israel J. Kazis will be honored by friends and members of Temple Mishkan Tefila at a State of Israel Tribute Dinner, to be held at the Newton temple in behalf of Israel Bonds Sunday, April 28.

Louis L. Kaitz, chairman of the tribute dinner, remarked, "Our congregational tribute to Rabbi and Mrs. Kazis will be one of the most significant and auspicious events in the history of Temple Mishkan Tefila. We can pay them no higher honor than through our support of Israel in behalf of the Israel Bond program."

"The appointment of Rabbi Kazis as our spiritual leader virtually coincided with the establishment of Israel as an independent nation more than two and one half decades ago," Kaitz continued. "Throughout his tenure, by word and deed, he has helped to imbue us with a profound awareness of our ties with Israel and a deep consciousness of our responsibillity for maintaining the Jewish State as a viable entity in the council of nations."

"Both our Rabbi and his lovely wife have rallied us to action in time of crisis and have led our congregational leaders on fact-finding trips to Isael that have given us first hand insight into the developmental needs of Israel. They will be leading another Temple Mishkan Tefila delegation to Israel the first week in May."

Rabbi Kazis

Mrs. Kazis

Historically, the association of Rabbi Kazis with the Israel Bond campaign began in 1951 when he served as grand marshal for the first community-wide B.I.G. Day house-to-house bond sale.

Kazis received his A.B., A.M. and Ph.D degrees from Harvard University and is also a graduate of the Hebrew Teachers College of Boston. He was ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. In addition, he is the recipient of the honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities from Suffolk University and the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

Kazis served as president of the New England Region of the Rabbinical Assembly of America, member of the Committee on Jewish Law and Standards of the Rabbinical Assembly, member of the executive council of the Rabbinical Assembly, president of the Massachusetts Board of Rabbis, member of the Committee for the Study of Juvenile Delinquency in Massachusetts, and is a member of the Task Force of the United Fund Campaign of Greater Boston.

Rabbi Kazis served on the faculty of the Religious and Social Institute of the Jewish Theological Seminary. He is the author of a book published by the Mediaeval Academy of America and has written for numerous periodicals.

Kazis is a member of the Rabbinic Cabinet, the Board of Rabbinic Visitors, and the Board of Overseers of the Jewish Theological Seminary. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa chapter of Harvard University; member of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Board of Rabbis, a trustee and a member of the executive committee of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston; member of the board of directors of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Boston; a trustee of Hebrew Teachers College of Boston; delegate to the Jewish Community Council of Greater Boston; and a member of the Board of the Society of Friends of Touro Synagogue.

In addition, Rabbi Kazis is a member of the board of trustees of the Opera Company of Boston; a trustee of the Newton Chapter, American Red Cross; member of the board of honorary directors of the Boston Women's Symphony; and a member of the Massachusetts Committee for Project Hope.

Mrs. Kazis, in addition to her activities with Temple Mishkan Tefila and her efforts in behalf of the State of Israel, has long been active in humanitarian, philanthropic and community causes.

A graduate of Goucher College, majoring in psychology, Mrs. Kazis earned her M.A. in education from Simmons College. Throughout the years she has worked with the handicapped and the elderly. She is a certified braillist and established many braille classes as the New England Chairman of the Women's League of Conservative Judaism and served on its national board.

Mrs. Kazis taught in the Boston School System and worked with dislexic children in the Brookline School System. With the help of the sisterhood women of Temple Mishkan Tefila, she organized a senior citizens group in the Elm Hill Project of Roxbury. She has taught adult education classes at the Temple and is the curator of the Rabbi Herman H. and Mignon L. Rubenovitz Museum and Archives.

As far back as 1951, Mrs. Kazis actively participated in the first Israel Bond drives in South Brookline and West Roxbury and has continued her involvement since that time. She was the Combined Jewish Philanthropies Women's Division chairman in 1971 and again in 1973. She is a member of the executive committee and the board of trustees of CJP and serves on the boards of the Solomon Schechter Day School, the Jewish Family and Child Service and the Jewish Community Council.

Mrs. Kazis is the recipient of awards from the Jewish Braille Institute of the Blind, State of Israel Bonds and Combined Jewish Philanthropies.

Touring

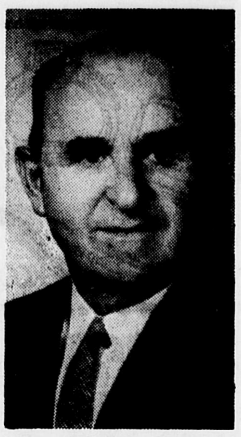

The Concordia Singers will perform at Lutheran Church of the Newtons in Newton Centre Tuesday, April 9, at 8 p.m. The 26-member choral group is composed of students at Concordia Teachers College, Seward, Neb.

Rev. Hekler to be honored

Temple Reyim will hold a State of Israel Tribute Breakfast on April 21 in honor of Reverend Abraham Hekler, sexton and teacher of the Auburndale congregation. Hekler will receive an award from the Israel Bond Organization for outstanding service to the Jewish state.

The testimonial will be held in behalf of Israel Bonds to raise investment dollars for Israel's domestic growth.

Jeremiah Sundell, general chairman of the Greater Boston Israel Bond campaign, has pointed out that Israel Bonds provide funds for all facets of

Rev. Abraham Hekler

Israel's development. "Our increased support through Israel Bonds now can help to restore the pace of production in factories and on farms and create employment opportunities for the new immigrants who are coming to Israel in increasing numbers."

Dr. Leon Neuringer, chairman of the Tribute Breakfast, has stressed the need for Israel Bond dollars. He stated, "There is no better way for us to honor Reverend Hekler than through our support of the State of Israel. I am certain that the members of Temple Reyim which have demonstrated their support so admirably in the past, will respond to Israel's urgent call for maximum support through the Bond program with an even greater measure of commitment."

Hekler, a graduate of Vilna University in Poland, was an underground worker for Haganah in Italy following World War II. Since coming to the United States, he has been active in a variety of civic and communal endeavors.

Hekler is a recipient of the golden key (honorary citizen of Newton), a regional vice president of Jewish National Fund, a representative of the Association for New Americans to Jewish Community Council, and an active telephone squad worker for Combined Jewish Philantropies.

His activities with the Zionist Organization of America are, including honorary national vice president; chairman of membership for New England region, national cabinet membership member; and past president of the Everett Zionist Organization of America.n—

Church schedules Holy Week services

Holy Week in The Newton Highlands Congregational Church will be ushered in on Palm Sunday, April 7, with worship at 10:30 a.m.

The Rev. Dudne M. Breeze, minister, will preach on "Cry For the City" and three choirs under the direction of Carrol Hassman, organist, will sing Willan's "Hosanna to the Son of David."

Following the service, a reception for new members will be held in the parlor. At 7:30 p.m. the film "Diary of a Country Priest" will be shown in Founders Hall to members and friends in the community.

On Maundy Thursday, April 11, at 8 p.m., Holy Communion will be celebrated, followed by the Tenebrae Service of the Extinguishing of Lights. The senior choir will sing from the balcony.

Children's before school prayers will be led by Miss Dianne Balcom at 8:20 a.m. on Wednesday, April 10, in Robertson Chapel. These ecumenical services with the children from St. Paul's Episcopal Church and The Newton Highlands Congregational Church follow the custom of many years. Rev. John M. Balcom, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, will lead the children in the service April 11, and on Good Friday, April 12, they will meet at 9 a.m. for Communion, led by Rev. Breeze.

Easter in The Newton Highlands Congregational Church will begin with Communion at 8 a.m. in Robertson Chapel on April 14. The annual Easter breakfast follows the Communion Service before the three choirs gather for rehearsal.

At the service at 10:30 a.m. Rev. Breeze will preach on "The Cry Dawns." Jean Chapple West, violinist, will be accompanied on the organ by Carrol Hassman, organist, in the prelude from Handel's Violin Sonata VI.

Lecture and courses to be offered at temple

The fourth meeting of the spring adult education program of the Newton area Conservative temples will combine in one session two topics: women in Jadaism and reconstruction as a religious movement.

On Tuesday evening, April 9, Miss Ilene Schneider, rabbinical candidate at the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College in Philadelphia, will talk on "The Future of Reconstructionism."

Miss Schneider is a 1970 graduate of Simmons College and has spent a year at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. She is currently a third year student at the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College, a candidate for a master's degree in communications at Temple University and editor of "Hayom," a publication of the Philadelphia Union of Jewish Students.

In addition to Miss Schneider's general lecture, individuals attending the program may participate in one of the many courses also being offered. The continuing workshop on Soviet Jewry will be discussing "Conditions of Jews in the Soviet Union Today."

The adult education program meets at the Temple Mishkan Tefila at 300 Hammond Pond Parkway in Chestnut Hill. Courses begin at 8 p.m., and the general lecture is scheduled for 9:15 p.m.

Church announces Holy Week services

Central Congregational Church (United Church of Christ, located at 218 Walnut street, Newtonville is conducting a series of services throughout Holy Week. Members of the community are invited to attend.

On Palm Sunday, April 7, the choir will sing Chorus three of Brahm's German Requiem and the minister will continue his series of sermons concerned with Great Contemporary Questions. On Palm Sunday the sermon will be "The Question of Truth".

Monday through Thursday there will be 20-minute services at noon held in the chancel of the sanctuary. Following the service, coffee and cake will be served. The minister, Rev. Ernest Heeren, will preach a series of five minute meditations on "Saints of the Early Church".

On Maundy Thursday, April 11, there will be a service at 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary which commemorates Holy Thursday and Good Friday.

There are three elements to the service. An open communion service will be held.

The second part of the service is the reenactment of a fourth century Christian vigil where eight deacons of the church participate with the minister in the service of the extinguishing of the lights. The deacons read passages from the Bible which tell the story of Maundy Thursday and as they read, the candles are extinguished, leaving the church in darkness.

The final part of the service will be a presentation of the Good Friday message in a dramatic excerpt from the classical play "The Terrible Meek." It involves a confrontation between the mother of Jesus and a Roman captain as they stand at the foot of the cross following the crucifixion.

A Knight In Our Lounges Is Some Enchanted Evening

ASTROLOGY

By Oscar Weber

Magnetic Personality

Q. What do you think of my Signs? I was born on November 14, 1910 at 3 a.m. in Lynn, Mass. That was a Saturday as my mother was afraid that I would be born on Friday the 13th which she considered a bad day. I have been told that I am sarcastic and unforgiving. Do my Signs show this? L.M.R.

A. Robert Burns, the famed Scottish poet wrote, "If we could but see ourselves as others see us". When others tell us the impression we make upon them, if they are sincere with their criticism, they may be rendering a valuable service to us.

The first step to the solution of any problem is to recognize it exists Your horoscope indicates you have a sharp penetrating intellect which can be accurate. With the Sun, Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter all in the Sign of the Zodiac Scorpio and the Moon in Aries, at the moment of your birth, you are apt to be primarily concerned with your own feelings, desires and impressions.

When you are relaxed which is not often enough, your better self shines through but when you are tense, which is too frequent, you are apt to be sharp, to the point and sarcastic when expressing yourself. It is not that you want to hurt others but it is your way of releasing your irritated emotions, a sort of permitting the inner pressure to be released.

Revenge is not sweet contrary to the opinions of some. It may give some inner temporary satisfaction but it injures both. It has been wisely said "To forgive is divine."

You are resourceful, are able to deal promptly and effectively with situations and can be successful in anything you make up your mind that you want to do.

You have a magnetic personality and the ability to exert considerable influence upon others. Direct your energies and impulses away from your personal desires. With more consideration for others, you will draw them to yourself with love.

High buildings are energy eaters

The energy crisis may change the shape of our skylines.

Architects and construction engineers are revising their blueprints these days. The electricity required just to operate buildings consumes 50 percent of all the electricity produced in the United States, says the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

Take the giant energy guzzler, the World Trade Center in New York. This 110-story building alone consumes as much electricity per year as a city with a population of 100,000. None of the windows open. There are no individual switches to turn off lights.

Fifty percent of all electrical energy in new buildings goes to provide artificial light which in turns throws off excessive heat which must be cooled with more energy. Some lighting systems in new buildings can never be turned off. Sealed windows waste energy, since windows could be opened at night or in moderate temperatures when neither artificial heating nor cooling would be needed.

Glass buildings with sealed windows and centrally controlled air and lighting systems have sprung up everywhere. One of the reasons they eat up enormous amounts of energy is that glass is such a poor insulator. New builders are emphasizing that heat loss could be cut in half if double panes of glass are sued with open air space between them. And heat gain can be reduced by a new reflective metallic glass, which blocks heat and light from the sun. Building at slanted angles from the sun can also help prevent heat penetration from the sun.

A Rand Corporation study says that better insulation in new housing would [illegible] and cooling requirements by 40 to [illegible] percent. Extra construction costs, says the report, could be recaptured through reduced fuel and utility bills.

To find out more about how the energy crisis is changing the shape of our lives, contact the Lung Association. The amount of energy we use – and the pollutants it creates -- is a matter of life and breath.

"Town Meeting on Impeachment"

Asserting that impeachment must be "taken out of the briefcases of the lawyers and put into the hands of the people," a coalition of Boston area activists will hold a "Town Meeting on Impeachment" on April 8, at 7:30 p.m. at [illegible]'s Kresge Auditorium.

"Unless the issues underlying our present political crisis are openly discussed and acted upon, the country will be ripe for new Watergates, new Vietnam Wars, new energy crises - and new tyrannical Presidents," says the New England Committee for Impeachment Action (NECIA).

According to its organizers, the Town Meeting will be addressed by several speakers on issues of presidential power, foreign policy, the causes of the economic crisis, and the domestic victims of the Nixon Administration. In addition, citizens will be invited to testify from the floor about the effects of Nixon policies on their lives.

Jayne Shister, NECIA member, said [illegible] the proceedings [illegible] Town Meeting, including all comments from the floor, will be tape recorded and sent to the House Judiciary Committee as "citizens' evidence" against Richard Nixon. "And there won't be any gaps or hums on our tape," she added.

Speakers for the Town Meeting will include Richard J. Barnet, co-director of the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington, D.C., and Hubert Jones, associate professor of Urban Planning at MIT and chairman of the Massachusetts Advocacy Center.

The New England Committee for Impeachment Action represents a number of political organizations, including the MIT Peace Coalition, Citizens for Participation in Political Action, Indochina Peace Campaign, and the Union for Radical Political Economics.

Coast Guard has openings for women

The United States Coast Guard has announced that it has 150 openings for women which it hopes to fill by June 30th. Sixty women of those selected will not necessarily be required to meet the qualifications for guaranteed schools. For the first time, the Coast Guard has opened the Striker (on-the-job-training) Program to women who desire to enter the Service.

Guaranteed School quotas are also available for women who are interested in and qualify for the radioman, electronics technician and yeoman fields. Ten of those women who successfully complete the electronics technician school will be offered advanced training as a telephone technican. The boatswain mate, storekeeper and yeoman ratings will be available to those women enlisting without a guaranteed school.

Young women interested in any of these programs should contact: First Coast Guard District, 150 Causeway street, Boston, Ma. 02114.

VA offers advice on selling homes

The Veterans Administration, mindful of the spring home-buying season, cautions veterans with thoughts of selling homes purchased with G.I. home loans, to get "releases of liability" from VA if their loan is to be assumed by the buyer.

The VA said at Boston this week that unless a veteran asks for and receives a "release from liability" from the VA office which guaranteed his home loan, he will be liable for payment in the event of default by the purchaser.

Getting a "release from further liability" is simple, officials noted, provided certain conditions are met:

the veteran's loan must be current.

the purchaser must agree to assume the vereran's liabilities.

the prospective purchaser must be a good credit risk.

income must be sufficient to cover payments on G.I. loan.

It was pointed out, however, that a "release of liability" does not automatically restore G.I. loan entitlement the veteran used to purchase the home he sold.

VA may restore entitlement only under certain conditions — mostly those which the agency considers "compelling reasons" for disposing of the property.

At any rate, officials urged veterans who plan to sell G.I. homes (subject to the veterans' mortgage) to apply for a "release" from the VA office which guaranteed their loans before finalizing sales.

Unique Lenten program at First Unitarian

Jo Brewer and Joan Minkoff

Naturalist Jo Brewer and composer-folksinger Joan Minkoff will present a unique Lenten program on April 10 at the First Unitarian Church, West Newton, at 11:30 a.m.

The program, called "Repentance and Renewal," will be an interweaving of Mrs. Brewer's slides of butterflies with readings from the Scriptures and other great literature, beginning with the Creation, with musical accompaniment by Mrs. Minkoff.

Mrs. Brewer is well-known as a lepidopterist, conservationist, author, lecturer and photographer. Mrs. Minkoff is a member of a folk group, "Clearing," and plays the dulcimer, guitar, harpsichord, and autoharp.

Some of the Clearing's original music will be played at the Lenten performance.

The public is invited. Lunch is available for $1, and reservations for lunch should be made with Mrs. Irving Salzer, 527-8098.

Rev. Leland Maxfield to be honored April 19

Rev. Leland Maxfield, executive director of the Baptist Home of Massachusetts, Commonwealth Avenue, Newton for the past fifteen years, will be honored at a testimonial dinner Friday, April 19, at the Tremont Temple Baptist Church building, Tremont St., Boston, at 6:30 p.m.

Maxfield has held pastorates in New Hampshire, and was more recently at the First Baptist Church of Westwood.

The program will begin at 10:30 a.m. with a social hour followed by the business meeting and program at 11 a.m. and a luncheon at 12:30 p.m.

He is a former member of the board of directors of the New Hampshire Baptist Convention, and chaplain of Orient Lodge of Masons, Norwood. He is a member of the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes and a fellow of the American College of Nursing Home Administrators.

Maxfield is married to the former Elizabeth Bronson of New York. The couple has one son, Mark.

Ms. Viehmann attends seminar

Nancy E. Viehmann, director of career counseling at New College recently attended a seminar on the life insurance industry at the John Hancock Conference Cener, Boston.

Car Wash Saturday

On Saturday, April 6, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., the Newton Jaycees will hold their Second Annual Scholarship Car Wash at Sam Cooper's Service Center on the corner of Lexington Street and Commonwealth Avenue in Auburndale. All proceeds will be used to raise a scholarhips bond for an outstanding Newton High School senior.

B'nai B'rith convention in Newport

The Quinsigamond-Shawmut Region of the B'nai B'rith Youth Organization will be holding its first spring convention at the Newport Motor Inn, Newport, Rhode Island, from April 26-28.

The youth coordinators are Arnie Harris of Framingham, and Laurie Dicker of Worcester, and the adult convention director is Miss Arlene Lubow of Stoughton.

The convention body will consist of over 150 AZA and BBG participants from Worcester, Framingham, Natick, Newton, Brookline, Needham, Lexington, Waltham, and West Roxbury.

The program is basically to elect new Regional officers and to train new chapter leaders. There will be Friday and Saturday services; Israeli Dancing; and a special Fiftieth anniversary program to commemorate the golden anniversary of AZA, which will be celebrated this year.

Organ recital on April 10

The last of a Lenten series of seven half-hour organ recitals at the Auburndale Congregational Church will be given Wednesday, April 10, at 12:15 p.m.

Nancy Roblin, guest organist, will play works by Bach, Pachelbel, Brahms, Cherambault, and Pepping.

Mrs. Roblin is presently the organist for the First Parish Universalist Church in Malden, Mass.

The Auburndale Congregational Church is located at Hancock Street and Woodland Road in Auburndale. The program is free and open to the public.

Mofenson bill calls for preservation of testimony

"Enactment of legislation for the preservation of testimony in the District Court would be a major step forward in the improvement of the administration of justice in the communities in the Commonwealth," said Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton).

"The absence of a record of testimony presented in courtroom proceedings in the District Courts has been long recognized as a serious deficiency. Until now, the necessity of relying on skilled stenographers, so few in number, has prevented the District Courts from becoming functional courts of record. Today the availability of audio recording equipment with power capacity to do the job makes this reform achievable promptly and in a practical way," Mofenson said.

The bill, heard recently by the Legislature's Joint Judiciary Committee, authorizes the use of electronic equipment to preserve the record of testimony in the District Courts. The decision as to which sessions are to be recorded (if not all) is left to the Chief Justices of the District Courts and the Municipal Court of the City of Boston, in their respective jurisdictions, to be made on the basis of the practical needs of the courts and the numbers of recorders available.

The bill provides for the purchase of suitable equipment by the Chief Justices, the cost to be vorne by a Commonwealth rather than a county appropriation, in order that uniformity may be preserved throughout the Commonwealth and the best equipment prices obtained. The bill also provides for use in subsequent proceedings, where necessary, of the original tape or a certified, electronically reproduced copy of the tape, or a certified typewritten transcript.

While cases in the District Courts generally are of lesser dollar consequence or, in the case of criminal matters, carry lesser penalties, other courts of the Commonwealth, the availability of a routine record of courtroom proceedings would insure the dignity that all judicial proceedings should reflect.

"Not only must justice actually be done in our courtrooms; it must also appear to be done. Preserving a record in the District Courts will have a substantial impact on the conduct of proceedings and a like impact on the public's confidence in the judiciary," Mofenson said.

North gains 5-4 victory in opener

By TOM GRAVES

Newton North baseball teams have seldom needed a lot of hits to win ball games. And this year's team is no different.

The Tigers capitalized on an error and a wild pitch in the last of the ninth inning to win its 1974 opener, 5 to 4, against Revere Monday at Lincoln Park.

Newton managed only five hits, but tallied on bunts and opponents' miscues.

After Revere tied the game at 4-4 in the top of the ninth, junior Bob Cunningham singled with one out for the Tigers in the bottom of the inning.

An errant pick-off attempt advanced Cunningham to second base, and a ground ball to the infield moved him to third. With Bob Kinsella at the plate, the Revere pitcher threw high and Cunningham scored the winning run.

Junior John Carey was Newton's starting pitcher. He pitched out of a bases loaded, one out situation in the top of the first, but Revere struck for two runs in the third inning.

A single and an error put Revere runners at first and second. After a sacrifice bunt, a pop single to left field scored the first Revere run. Steve DiBenedetto then replaced Carey and Joe Festa singled to left for a second run. DiBenedetto retired the next two batters on a strike-out and a ground out.

Newton scored four runs in the fourth inning with only two hits. Senior John Connolly led off with a walk. Keith Glasser bunted to the pitcher and a low throw to second put runners on first and second.

DiBenedetto also bunted, and when the pitcher had trouble handling the ball, the bases were loaded.

Joe Rodina grounded to the third baseman, but the throw to the plate to stop Newton's lead runner came too late. The bases remained loaded and the Tigers trailed 2-1.

Junior Dana Foley bounced out to shortstop, but Glasser scored the tieing run. Sophomore Ed Aucoin followed with a squeeze bunt and DiBenedetto scored from third base. This left runners at first and third with one out.

Left fielder Jack Ryan provided the inning's final run with a double to center field. Ryan, who also singled in the first inning, was the only Newton player with two hits in the game.

A throwing error gave Revere one run in the seventh inning. The visitors entered the final frame trailing 4-3.

DiBenedetto, who relieved twice in the game, was on the mound in the ninth inning. After two were out, Tony Belmonte singled to center field. Festa followed with a fly ball that fell between two fielders in center field, and Belmonte scored Revere's fourth run.

Belmonte had four hits in the game and Festa produced three.

South net coach optimistic

By MARK SHUSTER

"The Newton South tennis team is an extremely well knit team with a very psitive outlook for this upcoming tennis season.

There is no reason to think that this team cannot make a serious run for the state championship."

Cyr's optimism appears justified. He has six of seven players returning from last year's successful team. In 1973, South's tennis team finished 12-3 and qualified for the state tournament.

South has had a very strong tennis team in recent years. In 1971, its tennis team won the state championship.

Cyr has eight proven players competing for seven positions. They include last year's top two singles players, Bill Karol and Humberto Fagundes. Other prospects include seniors Roger Gordon and Jeff Levin, juniors Mike Slar and Doug Fisher, and highly touted sophomores Tom Karol (brother of Bill) and Dan Braverman.

Tom Karol was number one at Meadowbrook last year, and Braverman played number one at Weeks.

Cyr has been impressed with the improvement of Sklar and Fisher and the play of Braverman and Tom Karol.

Potentially strong opponents on South's schedule include Dual County League foes Weston and Lincoln-Sudbury. South's first match will be on Tuesday, April 9, against Needham.

"C'mon baby, let's go kid!"

By TOM GRAVES

A part of baseball encouraged by nearly every coach is chatter by his players on the bench and in the field.

It is questionable whether people actually listen to what they say. Mostly, they hear a lot of noise.

The language of baseball is almost a series of rituals. Nearly every action which a batter can make at the plate has a stock reply which batters shout.

A newcomer to the game first learns that everyone on the field is named either "baby" or "kid." As soon as anyone enters the batter's box one bench begins to shout "c'mon baby, let's go."

As soon as the batter swings at a pitch he is told that he took a "nice cut." If he happened to hit a foul ball we learn that he deserves praise for having gotten "a piece of the ball."

If a batter declines to swing at a pitch and the umpire calls it a ball, his teammates commend the batter's vision. "Nice eye, baby, nice eye," the shouts ring out.

When he hits another foul ball, the batter is implored to "straighten it out," the assumption apparently being that he has now demonstrated his power and now needs only to direct it.

If the batter finally hits the ball in fair territory but grounds out to an infielder, he is often praised for the "hustle" that carried him down the first base line. If he flies out to an outfielder, he will be commended for "tagging the ball."

Even if the batter strikes out, he may have again taken "a nice cut."

If a player is talking to an opponent, he is not as apt to be comforting. The most frequently insulted players are pitchers.

A major role of a batting team's bench is to attempt to distract the pitcher. If no specific insult can be thought of, a player on the bench may simply scream "hey chuck!" until the end of a half inning.

In the course of a game, a pitcher is likely to be compared to a little leaguer, a girl and a pitching machine. He may be called "a clown," "a fool," or "a nothin'." If he wears glasses, his ability to see may be questioned.

If the pitcher begins to doubt his stature or ability, he can turn to the other side of the field for support. From there he is likely to hear the cry which seems to never cease, no matter what the situation is.

"C'mon baby!"

Local junior high school girls win gymnastics titles

Cindy Arafe, 14, from Meadowbrook Junior High, and Lee Pistone, 12,and Marcie Ravech, 14, both from Bigelow Junior High, won titles recently at the Massachusetts Girls Gymnastic Association State Junior High Championships sponsored by the United States Gymnastic Federation.

The girls performed optional exercises at Blackstone-Millville Regional High School. They had previously qualified for the final competition by scoring well in compulsory exercises at Boston State College.

Marcie Revech became the 1974 state junior high all-around champion. She finished first in seven of eight events during the two weekends of competition, as well as winning the all-around title.

Lee Pistone, who moved from the beginner to the intermediate category in one season, placed second to Ms. Ravech.

Cindy Arafe,completing her first year of competition, won the all-around title in her division. She also finished first in seven of eight events.

The girls are now preparing for the New England A.A.U. Championships which will be held in May.

"They are hard workers and their efforts have been paying off," commented Joseph Massimo, who has been training the girls.

Massimo is chief psychologist of the Newton Public Schools.

Board asks restoration of youth hockey funds

The Board of Aldermen has passed unanimously a resolution offered by Ald. Richard Bullwinkle requesting Mayor Theodore Mann to restore the $11,000 asked by the Recreation Department for its contribution to the Newton Youth Hockey Association 1974-75 budget.

The mayor allowed $6,500 from the Recreation Department toward the NYHA budget, which this year is expected to be more than $70,000.

The Newton Youth Hockey association is a private organization that is supported by fees from the over 500 participants, plus various fund raising events.

The resolution points out that "the Newton Youth Hockey program has been and is doing an outstanding job in providing recreation for well over 550 of Newton's children on a purely volunteer basis, and the city of Newton does not furnish athletic facilities of any kind in this area."

The intent of the resolution is the expansion of the program and the provision of scholarship assistance to about 150 additional children who cannot participate because of the $75 fee, which will increase next year.

North tennis team hopes to repeat past triumphs

By BOB LOW

Coming off two of its best seasons ever, the Newton North tennis team has hopes of approaching or matching previous achievements.

Led by Joey Mitchell, Richie Birmingham, and Carl Kravitz, the Tigers amassed a 53-2-1 record during the past two years and won New England, Massachusetts, Eastern Mass., and league championships both seasons.

With this trio gone, Coach George Jessup must try too fill their spots from the 65 returning varsity and junior varsity lettermen and newcomers who are vying for positions on the team.

There are five varsity letter winners back. They are seniors Stu Brightman, Robert Low, Frank Bodengraven and Dave Bikofsky and junior Neal Kravitz. Returning from the junior varsity are seniors Chip Lang and Cal Moffie, and juniors Don Birmingham, Lincoln Frank, John Kosa, Mike White, and Joel Chernov. Seniors Scott Eston and Jacob Asher and sophomores Baird Haney and Dave Medalie are promising newcomers.

The netmen play a heavy schedule including five matches against private schools. They will play several non-league matches in addition to league and possibly playoff matches.

This season will begin next week with two league matches, at home against Weymouth North on TUESDAY AND AT Arlington on Thursday.

A tennis tournament for the un-ranked amateur

1ST ANNUAL RODMAN HACKERS' INVITATIONAL MIXED DOUBLES TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Forget the well-travelled touring pro, put the haughty ranked amateur out of your mind, thumb your nose at the club tennis instructor. This is a tournament for you.

It's the First Annual Hackers' Invitational—the tournament that can be won with your years of slick gamesmanship, your favorite weekend drop shot, and your partner's unerring lob attack. Play will begin in May and continue throughout the month, with the finals in early June.

With great prizes to all semi-finalists and a grand prize to the winning team, this is truly a tournament you won't want to pass up. Grab a partner and get a slice of the action. You'll never have a better chance then now to put your game to the test in the Rodman Hackers' Invitational.

All semi-finalists receive a trophy and the new Wilson T-3000 steel racquet. The unique string suspension system makes the T-3000 the most advanced tennis racquet available today.

FIRST PRIZE

Each winning team member will receive an all expense paid tennis week at the Emerson-Laver Tennis Camp in Bretton Woods, N.H. A $900 value, the tennis week includes 30 HOURS OF INSTRUCTIONS, complete hotel accommodations, all meals, and unlimited use of all tennis and golfing facilities.

To enter, register at Rodman Ford, Route 1, in Foxboro before April 30, 1974.

GENERAL RULES

1. Mixed doubles will be defined as a male-female team.
2. Age limit will be 18 years and older as of April 1, 1974.
3. No ranked players, either nationally or in New England will be allowed.
4. No teaching or playing professionals allowed.
5. One hour matches, consisting of 10 minute warm-up and 50 minutes tennis or a ten game pro set.

Libraries plan numerous April programs, exhibits

In April at the Newton Free Library (NFL) and its branches there will be varied programs. Five different exhibits are scheduled, including a celebration of National Library Week, April 21-27.

A reception for Caryl Rivers, Boston University instructor and author of "Aphrodite at Midcentury: Growing up Catholic and Female in Postwar aamerica" (Doubleday) on Tuesday evening April 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Main Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, will highlight National Library Week.

A one-man show of paintings and sculpture by Edward D. Movitz, Professor at Massachusetts College of Art, is on view through the end of the month at the Main Libary.

Movitz works in many formal areas including realism, organic and geometric abstractions and varied ways of sculpting. After 10 years of working in three dimensions, Movitz has returned to pianting.

On April 4 at 7 p.m. the NFL's free film series features "To Be Or Not To Be," a comedy starring Carole Lombard and Jack Benny, at the Main Library. Free films are screened every Wednesday at noon and every Thursday at 7 p.m.

The Chess Club will meet at the Main Library, April 10 and 24 at 6:30 p.m.

A fifth event at the Main Library is a large display of antique sheet music from the extensive collection of Robert McCarron, which will be on view in glsss cases through April.

Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian reminds patrons of amnesty week, April 21-27, when borrowers may return without charge all overdue Library materials, no questions asked.

The great books discussion group will meet at Newtonville Tuesday, April 16 and 30 at 8 p.m.; the young adult drama workshop meets at Newtonville every Thursday at 7 p.m. and Sundays at 3 p.m. The Bridge Club meets there on Mondays at 7:30 p.m. People are advised call the branch to verify dates.

Watercolors by Mr. Landis Nazzaro of Newton, retired art director of the "Record American" where he worked for 43 years, will be on view at Newtonville.

Also at Newtonville, enamels by students in Mrs. Felice Kahn's adult education class will be on display in the cases.

At Nonantum, the camera club will meet April 8 and 22 at 7:30 p.m.

More library activities will occur at Auburndale where Gloria Potter, a former West Newton resident, will exhibit landscapes and portraits. She works in several media including oils, watercolors and charcoal.

"Egypt As I Saw It" will be the subject of a slide talk by Miss Elizabeth B. Cushman, Thursday, April 18 at Waban Ban Branch at 10:30 a.m.

Other Newton Free Library activities include extensive and varied programs for children including story hours, films and creativity programs held at the Boys' & Girls' Library, 126 Vernon street, and at Branch Libraries throughout the city.

All library programs are free and open to all. The Main Library is open 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. - 5:30 p.m. Saturdays, and 1-4 p.m. Sundays. People may call 527-7700 or a branch library for more information.

Libraries schedule story hours

The Newton Free Library invites the boys and girls of Newton to 17 story-hour programs scheduled at the Boys' & Girls' Library, 126 Vernon Street, Newton Corner and at the branches throughout the city during week of April 8.

The schedule of times and places is as follows:

Monday, April 8 - at 10:50 a.m., the Boys' & Girls' Library; at 10:30 a.m., Highlands; at 2 p.m., Newtonville; at 2:45 p.m., Oak Hill Park; and at 2 p.m., Waban.

Wednesday, April 10 - at 10 a.m., Auburndale; at 10 a.m., Nonantum; at 10:30 a.m., Highlands; at 3:30 p.m., Waban; and at 3:30 p.m., Lower Falls.

Thursday, April 11 - at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., West Newton; at 2 p.m., Upper Falls; at 2 p.m., Waban; and at 2 p.m., Nonantum.

Friday, April 12 - at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., Centre.

Concert Violinist Marjory Weiss, pianist Signa MacPhail, both of West Newton, and cellist Susan Randazzo of Boston will give a trio concert April 11 at 8 p.m., in the Waltham Public Library. They will play Beethoven's Archduke Trio and the Brahms C Major Trio.

Bus tours of historic sites in Newton planned

The Historic Bus Tours of the City of Newton are being resumed under the direction of the Jackson Homestead. Tours are scheduled for April 10 at 10 a.m.; April 17 at 1 p.m.; and April 24 again at 10 a.m.

These trips have proven very popular during the past several years and have been taken by hundreds of Newton citizens. The tour takes about an hour and a half and 47 places of historical interest are pointed out and commented on by an experienced tour guide.

The tour originates at The Jackson Homestead, 527 Washington street, Newton Corner. Other areas visited are Newton Centre, Chestnut Hill, Newton Highlands, Newton Upper Falls, Waban, Newton Lower Falls, West Newton, Auburndale and another section of Newton Corner. The tour returns to the Homestead.

There is no charge for these tours and reservations should be made in advance. This may be done by calling 332-3920 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Drama club to present play

The drama club of Newton College will present the P.G. Wodehouse adaptation of Molnar's "The Play's the Thing" on Thursday and Friday, April 4 and 5 at 8 p.m.

The play will be performed in the Quonset Theatre on the Newton College campus, 885 Centre st., Newton. The public is invited.

"The Play's the Thing" is a comedy set in the 1920's on the Riviera.

The admission fee is $1.25 for the general public and $.75 with a student ID.

King film to be shown April 4

"King: A Filmed Record . . . Montgomery to Memphis" will be shown without charge at the West Newton Theatre on Thursday, April 4, at 7 p.m.

At the intermission of the three hour film, the Rev. Harold A. Pulley, pastor of Myrtle Baptist Church, will give a brief interpretation of the meaning of Martin Luther King's life to America and the world.

Girl scout festival April 4-6

Girl Scouts of Bay Path Colonial Council will present an international festival April 4-6 at the Natick Mall. More than 1,000 Girl Scouts from 110 troops in 25 towns will demonstrate the international aspects of Girl Scouting through songs, games, dances, handcrafts and folk arts, foods and costumes.

The program will depict a full range of activities currently underway in the troops. The entertainment and exhibits will include: Haitian folk dances and a Moori rhythm game, displays and recipes for the International Chef's badge, marionette show about Germany, decoupage from France, Mexican pinata, Japanese paper crafts and tea ceremony, crafts from Kenya, a fashion show of Girl Guide uniforms from other countries.

During the three-day event first aid volunteers will be on hand from Red Cross chapters in Natick, Framingham and Newton.

Communities represented by Girl Scout troops at the Mall will be: Acton, Belmont, Brookline, Concord, Framingham, Holliston, Hopkinton, Hudson, Lexington, Lincoln, Marlborough, Maynard, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Natick, Newton, Stow, Sudbury, Walpole, Waltham, Watertown, Wayland, West Roxbury, Weston.

Sister Marguerite Donovan is the international festival chairman, assisted by Mrs. Stanley Strom of Medfield, Mrs. Walter Mueller of Newton, Mrs. Richard Chagnot of Walpole, Mrs. Floyd Ritchie of Framingham, Senior Scout Ruth Ellen Kostic of Stow and Cadette Scout Jennifer Hill of Lexington.

VICTOR YAMPOLSKY, violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be featured in a performance of Beethoven's Septet in E flat major, opus 20; and Shubert's Quintet in A major for piano and strings Friday, April 5, at 8 p.m., at the All Newton Music School. The concert is the second in the scholarship fund series.

VOL. 104 NO. 15 | NEWTON, MASSACHUSETTS, THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1974 | PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS

Aldermen pass $61.3 million budget

City owes state money

Bad news came from the state this week. Newton owes $646,578 for 1974-75.

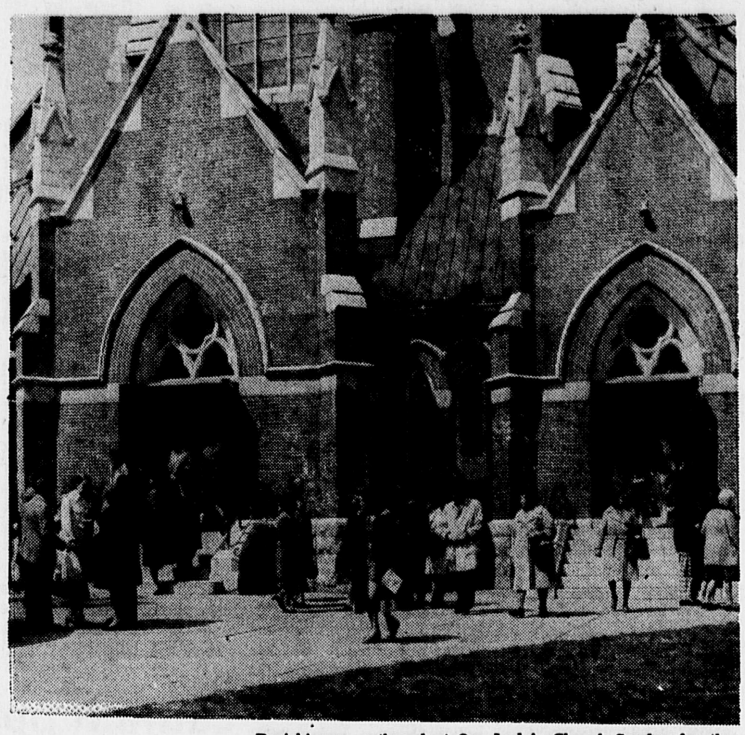

The "cheryy sheet," sent by the state, shows the amount of estimated receipts the cities and towns may expect from the state, and the assessments by the state on the cities and towns.

Last year Newton came out ahead for the first time in years—to the tune of about $60,000.

Increased MBTA costs, county tax, and county hospital assessments share the major blame for the "reverse" in the cherry sheet.

According to the cherry sheet, the city will receive $590,750 for pupil transportation. School Department Budget Director Harry Vienneau could not immediately account for the figure, which he had calculated at $509,000, reflecting $223;000 for 1972-73 transportation plus $287-000 from an amended request for the years 1968-72. The $590,000 may be in error.

Superintendent Aaron Fink commented this week that reimbursements from the state toward school accounts now total slightly over $1 million more than the city had expected.

Easter

Parishioners gathered at Our Lady's Church Sunday for the traditional Palm Sunday services that begin Holy Week. Services are normally held in churches on Maundy Thursday and Good Friday and the somber Lenten season ends Sunday with Easter services. (Lupo photo).

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

At a special meeting last week the Board of Aldermen zipped through almost $850,000 in budget cuts and passed a total city budget for 1974-75 of $61,289,525.31.

Real estate taxes may be expected to increase at least $10 per thousand dollars valuation over the current rate of $134.60.

Taxes were cut last year by $5, from the all-time high of $139.60.

The budget increase over the last 12 months of the past 18-month budget is about 11 per cent.

The city will have to raise in taxes only about $60 million because $1.2 million in federal revenue sharing will be used to reduce taxes.

The Board of Aldermen cut the budget a total of about $1.6 million and put some $612,000 into budget reserve, a contingency fund which cannot be spent without an appropriation approved by the Board.

The most significant cuts in the budget were made in the Street Department, which was cut by more than $700,000 overall, due in large measure to the efforts of Ald. David Cohen.

In the following summary the figures in parentheses show the original amount in the mayor's requested budget.

Recreation Department ($639,452) — Cut $41,926.

Public Works Department ($49,248) — Cut $1,125, and the salaries for Public Works director, industrial engineer and secretary (totaling $45,460) were put into budget reserve. The fate of the department is unknown after the expected departure next week of Director Richard Dudman. The Public Works Department has been subjected to a reorganization, not yet fully discussed or approved by the Board of Aldermen, which would see Gene Larson, present Public Buildings Commissioner, head of a combined building-public works department.

Engineering Department ($398,973) — Cut $1,487.

Street Department ($8,622,065) — Cut $467,000, with $249,000 put into budget reserve. The labor budget alone was cut $350,000 by eliminating the practice of carrying the same labor personnel both in regular street accounts and in the snow-and-ice-removal account.

When $14,150 was cut from "maintenance of sidewalks and curbs," Ald. David Jackson moved to restore the amount. He described Newton sidewalks as "the most atrocious anywhere," and said, "We should be doing double sidewalk maintenance. We pay the money several times over in claims against the city." His motion lost.

The aldermen left intact $2,500 for a cedar fence to be erected around the leaf composting area, while cutting other dump costs.

Although the city has said the incinerator will be closed down next year, $80,000 was put into budget reserve for upkeep and repairs. Jackson questioned the deletion of another $38,000 for this purpose. Another $49,000 was allowed for incinerator supplies and materials.

Water Department ($965,502) — Cut $41,063.

Budget reserve — Mayor Mann had asked for $250,000 to be put into budget reserve; the aldermen added $362,428 to the mayor's request. The Board budget reserve items are mostly earmarked for specific salaries or projects.

Ald. Louis Egelson asked whether there had been provision for cost-of-living increases being negotiated now for the city's labor forces. The answer being apparently no, Egelson suggested asking the mayor how he proposed to take care of salary increases, as well as the increase in the cost of solid waste disposal after the incinerator is shut down.

At the end of the meeting came two pieces of bad news — first that the "cherry sheet," the state's accounting of funds coming to the city and due the state from the city, was less favorable than last year, and second that the city's surplus account was drained nearly dry by a shortage of money for teachers' salaries due in June.

Mayor Mann recently said, in testimony at the State House, "In fiscal year 1975 I predict enormous increases in tax rates for virtually all communities throughout Massachusetts."

Schools get money for salaries

The threatened cutback in school activities will not be necessary, School Committee Chairman Eleanor Rosenblum said this week, after the aldermanic Finance Committee agreed to recommend appropriation of $528,000 for teachers' salaries.

Because the School Committee did not include negotiated salary increases in the last (18-month) budget, the School Department found itself some $649,000 short of money for teachers' June salaries, and no one in the city could see where it might come from.

Despite denials of crisis, plans were being made for cutbacks in all community school programs, athletics, and other noneducational activities after April 1 in order to save enough to pay teachers.

All city department heads were alerted to inform the administration as to how much money the various city departments expected to turn back to the surplus fund by the end of the fiscal year (June 30), and Larry Marino, assistant to Comptroller Arthur Marr, studied School Department salary accounts for possible unexpended funds.

Marino was able to reduce the amount needed by $120,000 by locating that amount in salary accounts that would not be used, and Chief Administrative Officer James Salter located $528,000 that would probably be available for transfers by June.

Grand Jury will get Obermayer assault case

By CYNTHIA BLACK
Of the Graphic Staff

The assault and battery charges against Arthur S. Obermayer of West Newton will go to the Middlesex County Grand Jury.

Special Justice Monte G. Basbas, at a probable cause hearing last week, ruled there was sufficient evidence on the charge to send the matter to the higher court.

The 42-year-old Obermayer, a research chemist and president of his own firm, was charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (a truck) after he tried to stop a city forestry crew from cutting down a diseased sugar maple tree in front of his home at 239 Chestnut St. on March 14, and allegedly caused injury to the forestry worker who was working up in the tree at the time.

It could now take as long as six months before the Grand Jury hears the case.

The two-hour probable cause hearing, which, Judge Basbas stressed, is used to determine how much evidence there is supporting the charge, not the guilt or innocence of the defendant, included testimony from Obermayer and three members of the city forestry crew.

The related case of Samuel H. Robbins of 300 Prince St., West Newton, was postponed until April 22. Robbins is charged with "threats to do bodily harm" and allegedly also threatened these forestry crew members.

Members of the city forestry crew testified that they were sent to cut down the tree in question by Forestry Superintendent Frank Larrabee March 14 and were confronted by Obermayer while removing limbs from the tree.

Wilfred Gingrass, foreman of the forestry crew involved, said Obermayer came out of his house and "told me to stop cutting down the tree."

Gingrass said Obermayer then went back into his house.

Gingrass said crew member Gene Machain was up in the cherry picker, "the bucket," cutting limbs off the tree at the time.

Gingrass recounted that he saw Obermayer come back out of the house.

"He walked in front of me . . and then I saw two men pulling him out of the truck."

"The truck banged into reverse," Gingrass testified. "I heard the saw bang against the bucket and I looked up and saw Mr. Machain hanging over a limb."

"It never entered my mind he would get in the truck," Gingrass said of Obermayer.

Obermayer, when he testified, explained: "I said it was illegal to cut down the tree. I went to the passenger side of the truck, opened the door and leaned in to see what controls were inside. I saw a brake and a gearshift. I jiggled the gearshift and the truck vibrated."

Forestry crew members testified the truck "lurched," moved a couple of inches; and the defendant maintained the truck only "vibrated."

It was established that when someone is working up in a cherry picker in a tree, the truck is held firm by outriggers and bricks are placed under the rear tires. The only controls for raising and lowering the bucket are in the bucket itself.

There was also a difference of opinion over how high the bucket was off the ground. Machain maintained it was about 30 feet up while Obermayer said it was about 12 feet off the ground.

Machain testified that the came "pretty close" to falling out of the three foot deep bucket when the motion occurred.

"I pulled my back and bumped my head on the limb," he testified.

Machain said he was treated at Waltham Hospital and has not been allowed yet to return to work.

School Committee

Approve 'early childhood' program

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic staff

The Newton School Committee endorsed this week a proposed early childhood program mandated by Chapter 766.

Plans presently call for Newton and Brookline to run a joint program for children 3 to 5 years old who have a "substantial disability."

According to a memo from Newton Supervisor of Special Education Gerald F. Peterson, "such children will fall into one of the low incidence categories of handicapped conditions such as: moderately retarded, moderately disturbed, seriously learning disabled, blind, deaf, orthopedic handicapped, and multiply handicapped."

Peterson and representatives from Brookline spoke before the School Committee. Peterson reported that funds have been obtained from the Massachusetts Department of Education for planning the program.

Peterson said that letters have been sent out to the parents of every 3 and f-year-old child in the city. Pediatricians, clinics and hospitals are also being contacted in an effort to identify children who are eligible for the program.

A flyer will be sent home with children in kindergarten through second grade and an advertisement will be placed in local papers.

Peterson stated that it was predicted that 15 youngsters would be identified, but "35 youngsters have come forward."

Helen Punch, principal of Spaulding School, has been contacted about using space at her school for the program. According to Peterson, two classrooms will be available. One reason Spaulding was chosen is because it is close to the Newton-Brookline line.

Phyllis Renton, community coordinator, said that five task forces have been operating.

The first, called outreach, has been involved in contacting nursery schools and locating the pre-school population.

Another group has been doing screening and evaluating. A third task force is generating a directory of existing services for pre-school youngsters. Parents constitute a fourth group, and a fifth task force, dependent on the other four, is involved with program development.

There will probably be four kinds of programs. One will involve specialized treatment. A second will have kids integrated in existing schools. A third will make use of home and hospital programs, and a fourth will combine specialized and integrated activities.

Newton and Brookline have each committed two physicians to the program. Two interns from Northeastern University are also involved.

Nathaniel J. Resnick, supervisor of special education for Brookline, said "We are excited about collaborating with Newton." He noted that it makes "good fiscal sense" to combine efforts with a nearby community.

Resnick added that a collaboration makes the chances for state and federal funding better than they would be if each community acted alone.

Peterson said later that pre-school programs are 100 per cent reimbursable. Resnick said this was true for at least the first year.

When questioned by School Committeeman Alvin Mandell, Resnick said that the final guidelines for reimbursement have not yet come out.

After a question from School Committee member Mrs. Joan Needleman, Peterson said that there is a question about the constitutionality of providing public education for certain youngsters and not providing it for others. Peterson remarked that there may be a challenge from parents on this issue.

According to Peterson, a proposal has been submitted under Title 6 to the Department of Education for more funds. They would allow the purchase of two

Housing Authority project loses again

Bids on three low income housing projects in Newton were on their way this week to being turned down for the second time.

In a statement issued Tuesday, Newton Housing Authority Chairman James A. Miller said he was "dismayed" at what appears to be rejection on the part of the Department of Community Affairs (DCA).

The Newton Housing Authority has plans for low income family housing at Victory Field in Nonantum and Beaconwood Road in Newton Highlands, and elderly housing on Thurston Road.

According to Miller, the Housing Authority sought state financing at "the strong urging of the DCA officials."

The DCA turned thumbs down on Newton's original cost estimates late last year for these three projects, and Miller said $210,000 was cut from total costs before they were resubmitted early this year.

The Housing Authority was to have met Wednesday night.

Miller said the Authority was concentrating its efforts on approval of the Beaconwood Road family housing project.

"In an attempt to reduce the cost of the Beaconwood development, the Authority's architects, working under the express instruction of the DCA, undertook major design modifications to the proposed structure," Miller said.

"As a result the first bids were reduced by $210,000 and were brought down to a figure which the Authority felt was within the range of acceptability by the DCA," he continued. "Yet, DCA now appears unwilling to approve the new bid figures."

Miller said the state's "705" program, the one the Authority was applying to, calls for "scattered site, low density development."

"The program prerequisites were totally compatible with the Authority's philosophy and the City of Newton's adopted policies," Miller noted.

Other officials in Newton point out that while the DCA seems to encourage applications for funding under "705," it has approved virtually no developments, and has not revised its guidelines for several years.

Oxfam-America sponsors fast

The Newton Chapter of Oxfam-American will participate in the "Fast to Save a People Drive," scheduled May 1.

The focus of the drive will be encouraging people to go without food for the day or to skip a meal and donate the money that would have been spent to help support relief and development projects in the West African drought zone, an area that has been without sufficient rainfall for the past six consecutive years.

Newton organizers are Daphne Raeder, Ann Hawkins, Ellen Ahmed, Gretchen Duling, Regina Sagan, Jo Bell, Ann Stone, Jane McCrory and Mr. and Mrs. Will Van Pelt.

Fast to Save a People is a nationwide effort to call attention to the drought. People in Newton who wish to participate can contact Helene Martin, 332-1290.

Oxfam-America also has an office at 474 Centre St.

Meeting on North street set tonight

The North Street Improvement Association invites all interested property owners in the Newtonville area to attend a meeting Thursday April 11, at City Hall to discuss truck traffic on North Street and other related problems.

At a meeting March 18, the Newton Traffic Commission agreed to consider all affirmitives to resolve this problem. Owners of trucks using North Street as a route for their business will be notified by the city officials to be present.

Bicycle engraving April 13

On Saturday, April 13, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Oak Hill Shopping Center the Newton Jaycees will hold their 1974 bicycle safety and crime prevention program.

The engraving of the owner's name on a bicycle has been shown to be an effective deterrent to theft and all owners of bicycles are urged to participate in this program. There is no charge for the engraving.

Bills to protect buyers, reallocate county costs among Pines' legislation

Bills to end deceptive practices in housing sales and to update the formulas for allocating county costs among cities and towns, sponsored by rep. Lois Pines (D-Newton), were heard recently at the State House.

The housing bill (H. 2738) would protect home buyers against excessive closing costs and would protect buyers of new homes against faulty construction and unsuitable land.

Pines told the Legislative Committee on Public Safety that polls show housing as having the lowest marks among all consumer items and that "one-fourth of new homes and 30 per cent of used houses were found defective in a recent General Accounting Office study."

Of further concern is the "enormous and usually surprising cost of important and expensive charges which surface at 'closing'," Pines said.

Among other features of H. 2738 is a provision requiring written disclosure by the seller of known substantial defects and other information that would reasonably affect the buyer's decision to buy a used house, including defects in structural components, sewerage, plumbing, heating and electrical systems.

Penalties and remedies are provided in the bill.

Rep. Pines has also sponsored H. 1128, legislation to update the formula used to allocate county costs among cities and towns in Massachusetts.

"For the past 11 years," Pines said in testimony before the Legislative Committee on Taxation, "county taxes have been apportioned on the basis of 75 per cent of the 1945 property values and 25 per cent of the 1961 property values."

"Thus, cities like Newton, Cambridge, Springfield, Holyoke and Lynn have for years been bearing the tax burden for those cities and towns within the counties which have increased property values and increased in population," Pines said. "These older cities have not grown, but in many cases have decreased in population and property values. Unfortunately, because of the inequitable formula that has been used for 11 years, the older cities and towns have continued to pay a disproportionate amount of the costs of operating the counties."

For the past two years, similar legislation sponsored by Pines has been passed by the House but killed in the Senate.

Pines said, "I very much hope that this year the Senate will act responsibly and enact this critically needed legislation. There is no doubt that the present formula violates the proportionality and uniformity provisions of our Massachusetts Constitution. The overburdened, overtaxed cities desperately need this inequity eliminated. The passage of this bill would mean a savings to Newton taxpayers of approximately $1 million!"

Extension granted to Project SSI Alert

Project SSI Alert in Newton has been granted an extension until April 26 to continue the outreach program which has uncovered over 200 elederly, blind, and disabled people eligible for supplemental security income benefits paid through the Social Security Administration.

Many of the people that were found in the outreach program were living in conditions of desperate poverty with incomes as little as $100 per month. SSI has been bringing new hope to people in Newton living below the poverty level. Many potentially eligible people still do not know of this possible source of added income.

The Newton SSI Consortium includes the Newton Community Service Center as lead agency, Newton Red Cross, Family Counseling West, Newton Visiting Nurse Association, Eliot Church, Myrtle Baptist Church, Carroll Rehabilitation Center, Vista, and the Newton Police Department.

Basic eligibility requirements for Supplemental Security Income include, applicant must have limited income and limited resources, applicant must have a financial need. Further details about eligibility may be had from any member of the Newton SSI Alert Consortium.

Mt. Ida to offer new program

Mount Ida Junior College is moving ahead in the allied health field with a new medical assistant program. This program combines clinical, business, managerial, and secretarial skills.

Mount Ida's new program will provide clinical training so students will be able to assist with medical examinations and treatments and perform diagnostic tests and lab procedures. Business managerial training will teach students to schedule and receive patients, take care of health insurance matters, bookkeeping and billing. Secretarial training will teach students to handle correspondence, take patients data, and keep medical records.

Insurance sought for newborns

Sen. Jack H. Backman (D-Brookline) appeared before the Committee on Insurance to support his legislation to establish a model newborn children's insurance program.

Sen. Backman stated: "The Model New Born Children's Insurance Act (S. 985) would provide for immediate insurance coverage to newborn children in all family insurance programs offered in the Commonwelath. At the present time many major medical insurance policies do not provide coverage for immediate care of newborn children. There are often exclusions from 10 to 30 days after birth, and many policies exclude congenital defects from coverage forever."

The bill is co-sponsored by the American Academy of Pediatrics. The concept of the legislation has also been endorsed by the American Medical Association.

"This legislation is a necessity because the cost of medical care for newborn children with congenital medical problems has often resulted in bankruptcy for young families," Backman said. "Many young parents are often unaware that their medical policy holds an exclusion in coverage for the early days of a child's life. On the other hand, incidence of these cases is actually low enough in comparison with the general cost of health insurance that it would not greatly affect the cost of commercial insurance polcies. The average cost of the expanded coverage has been only $5.00 per year in the seven states which have already adopted the legislation."

Backman said that in Massachusetts, of 80,000 births, 700 newborn infants were transferred to special-care nurseries for urgent medical care. During the period 1972-1973 at the Boston Hospital for Women, 1 to 3 per cent of newborns required care for major congenital abnormalities. Many of these infants were without any insurance coverage under present policies.

"Blue Cross, which provides for about 60 per cent of the health care insurance for the state, has now adopted this provision," Backman said. "In general the need remains among the other 40 per cent of insurance providers. When this provision was added to existing coverage in California by Blue Cross in October, 1973, the cost to date has turned out so small that no additional premium at all was required for the program."

"Mandatory legislation would clearly not place a difficult financial burden upon insurance carriers in terms of marketing such apolicy nor upon the consumer in purchasing such a policy," concluded Sen. Backman.

Launch petition drive for campaign reform

The League of Women Voters of Newton has launched a petition drive in support of comprehensive campaign reform in 1974. The goal of the drive is 4,000 signatures.

The petition calls for a campaign financing law which includes provisions for: full disclosure and enforcement; limitations on both contributions and expenditures and combined public and private financing of all federal elections. A bill now before the Congress (S 3044) contains these provisions and has support in both parties.

"People want reform. But they may not get it unless there is an outpouring of public sentiment to counter the stalling tactics now underway in Congress" stated Katy Schneider, chairman of the Campaign Financing Committee of the Newton League. "The petition drive gives citizens a way to speak out now. If we are to restore public faith in government, we must break the link between money and influence in politics."

The Newton League is participating with more than 1300 local and state leagues throughout the country and petitions have been distributed to all League members. Signatures will be gathered between April 8 and 22. The petitions will be sent to the senior senator from each state and letters tallying the number of signatures will go to junior Senators and House members.

Exam to qualify for recreation jobs May 11

The Newton Recreation Commission has announced that the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission will hold exams on Saturday, May 11 to establish a list of individuals eligible for employment by the Newton Recreation Department in its seasonal programs.

The time and place for these examinations will be announced shortly. The exams will be for recreation leader (seasonal), leader of recreation athletics (seasonal), leader recreation handcrafts (seasonal), and assistant recreation leaders (seasonal).

The list will provide the names of eligible persons for the 1975-1976 season. The last Civil Service exams for these positions were held in December of 1970 and the last list was established in June of 1971.

The Newton Recreation Department normally requires 70 to 75 seasonal employees during the summer for its playground programs, and during the winter for specialized programs. Salaries range from $50 to $90 a week, depending on experience and education. To be qualified to take the exam for recreation leader, the applicant must be a high school graduate or have at least six months experience. Applicants must be at least high school seniors to take the assistant recreation leader exam.

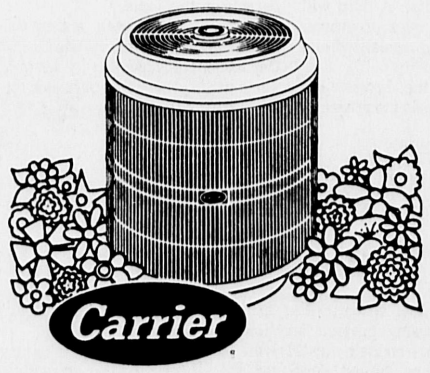

Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney, encourages individuals with more than the minimum qualifications, such as college students, to take the exam because state law requires the hiring of persons who have successfully completed the exam.

Applications are available at the Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent Street, Auburndale; the Personnel Department, Room 220, Newton City Hall, or the Veteran's Service Department, also located at City Hall, Newton Centre.

Further information on qualifications and duties may be obtained at any of the above locations, or from the State Civil Service Commission.

Applications should be sent to the State Division of Civil Service, 294 Washington Street, Boston not later than April 26.

Disposal consultant hired

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Mayor Theodore Mann has submitted a revised compliance schedule for control of incinerator emissions to the state Department of Public Health, stating again that the city's intent is too terminate operation of the incinerator by Dec. 31, 1974.

THE Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal District is proceeding on behalf of both cities to obtain bids for refuse disposal after that time.

The revised compliance schedule calls for the district to sign a contract with Camp Dresser McKee, consultants for the district, for an engineering study preliminary to CDM's preparation of a "request for proposal" from disposal firms.

The contract, which is to be signed April 25, according to the mayor, is for $15,000 and was approved by the disposal district Tuesday night.

A DRAFT OF CDM's request for proposal will be submitted to the state Department of Public Health for review on May 15. If the request for proposal is approved by the state and proposals are received, the compliance schedule calls for awarding a contract for disposal methods on July 23.

The Department of Public Health would receive plans, specifications and operating procedure for its approval before Aug. 22.

The scope of the CDM contract has been reduced considerably from CDM's original proposal, which would have included detailed bid specifications at a much higher cost. CDM now will prepare the request for proposal and general bid criteria, evaluate proposals and provide advisory services.

Donald Levitan, representing Mayor Mann at the meeting, said, "I'm not leaving here until I get a recycling program" put into the request." He got it.

Land Use holds hearings, approves McMullen petition

Members of the aldermanic Land Use Committee spent two hours Monday night ironing out plans for improvements at Joseph McMullen's service station on Route 9.

When the committee was finished, it had agreed to recommend the Board of Aldermen give McMullen permission to continue operating his rental truck business, his service station and his towing service.

McMullen in turn agreed to plant a six foot hedge along the front of his property, reduce the number of rental vehicles stored in the front, and provide other elements of landscaping and maintenance.

At McMullen's request, the matter of his permissive use will not be reported to the Board of Aldermen until its May 6 meeting. He said he will be away when the board meets next Tuesday.

Agreement among committee members to allow the service station owner to continue his rental and storage activities came over the objections of City Planner Charles Thomas and Ward 5 Alderwoman Susan Schur.

Thomas has maintained throughout discussions on this matter that he would prefer to see any vehicles parked on this property parked in back of the station.

McMullen maintains that due to the fact he stores wrecked and abandoned autos in the back, he has no room to store the trucks and trailers he rents except in the front of the station.

McMullen is now seeking permissive use from the board to be able to continue the truck and trailier rental, a business he said he has been in for 15 years, but has never gotten approval to conduct.

Ald. Schur argued that the board would be setting a "dangerous precedent" by sanctioning unauthorized businesses.

Committee members agreed to attach a condition to McMullen's permit indicating that permission to rent trailers and trucks expires when he ceases to operate the Route 9 station.

McMullen, 62, told the committee he expects to continue in the business no longer than five more years when his children will all be finished going to college.

Land Use Chairman Joseph McDonnell led the move to reduce the number of rental vehicles that will be allowed to be parked in front of the station.

McMullen's plans would accommodate 18 rental trucks and 17 trailers. McDonnell moved to reduce the numbers to 10 and 10.

Alderman Alan Barkin indicated that he would try and get thiese figures increased to 15 when this matter reaches the board.

The Land Use Committee also held public hearings and made recommendations on the following matters:

—Moved to deny 7-0 a request from the Telephone Company to put a service facility and parking lot at 25 Sweet St. About 60 vehicles would have been parked on the site, but the committee learned the Telephone Company was planning on using this facility in addition to the one it already has on Christina Street instead of as a substitution and decided to deny the request.

—Approval 7-0 a petition to increase from 12 to 14 the number of beds in the nursing home at 38 Lake Ave.

—Denied 7-0 a request from Sports Management Inc., operators of the Charles River Tennis Club for permission to add two indoor courts, four outdoor courts and a swimming pool to its present facility.

Developers would have had to violate the "no build line" established for projects in Newton at 128 Industrial Park and aldermen agreed they did not want to establish a precedent for changing the line.

City may consider landtaking

By ELEANOR SIEGEL

A member of the Conservation Commission reported last week that a developer of low and moderate income housing in Auburndale has asked his engineer to change the contour lines on the plans.

The land in question, on Staniford Street, is in a flood retention area and a change in the contour could benefit the developers, the McIsaac Brothers.

In a related development, inquiries have begun on the city taking this parcel of land by eminent domain.

Planning Director Charles Thomas said this week that letters have been sent to a group of appraisers asking them to submit proposals for appraisals.

The McIsaacs are making their fifth bid at developing this site, this time invoking the anti-snob zoning laws for subsicized housing. They have sought financing through the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency and are planning to set aside 35 of the proposed 140 units for low-income housing to be leased through the Newton Housing Authority.

While the developers are preparing their case which will be heard before the Zoning Board April 24, Conservation Commissioners Helen Heyn and Deborah Howard are preparing a report for the city solicitor's office backing up the commission's request that the site be taken by eminent domain.

The commission would like to see housing built only on the "high part" of the site and the rest preserved for recreation, park and flood plain resources.

While dealing with the Staniford street tract, the commission at its meeting also discussed Webster Vale.

The vale, or two-thirds of it, was taken by the city by eminent domain in 1973 with a number of restrictions on the land to prevent pollution.

However, the commission cannot enforce these restrictions unless they conduct a "base line data study" to analyze the soil chemistry and vegetation as it exists now.

This study could then be used in the future to prove, if it were so, that the vale was polluted, either from construction on the remaining lot or from drainage from the proposed NCDF units to be built on Hamlet street.

The Commission is hoping that the Board of Aldermen will vote it $5,000 for the study; however, SIDNEY Small, chairman of he aldermanic finance committee stated that "two or three members and myself feel it appropriate that the money raised for the 'Save the Vale' project be used before we go into city funds."

According to Sharon Francis, vice president of the Newton Conservators, the money was raised "to buy a threatened piece of land, not for management functions."

Mrs. Francis explained that the remaining $2,500 has been earmarked for additional land acquisition by a vote of the donors and the Newton Conservator's board of directors.

After the campaign, Mrs. Francis said she, on behalf of the Conservators "offered the money to the city and she has a collection of unanswered letters written to the mayor."

Union leader goes to court on April 18

The president of Local 800 of Municipal Employees in Newton is scheduled to appear in court Thursday, April 18, to face charges of receiving stolen property that stem from an incident in January.

Louis Rufo, Local 800's leader, is charged in connection with the disappearance Jan. 23 of a used bus stop shelter from the Crafts Street yard.

The bus stop shelter was allegedly found, at one point, at Rufo's residence in Framingham.

The union leader has said he "did not know how it (the bus shelter) got there."

According to Street COMISSIONER Edmund C. Bolduc, the bus shelter was returned to the city shortly after the incident occurred.

The case, other city officials said, has been "under investigation" until the charge two weeks ago.

Rufo, represented by Atty. Peter Harrington, appeared in court last Thursday and pleaded "not guilty" and his case was continued until April 18 by Special Justice Mone G. Basbas.

The union Rufo leads is currently conducting negotiations with the city over the next municipal employee contract. Rufo also, in the last mayoral race, was an outspoken supporter of Mayor Theodore D. Mann's challenger, William Carmen.

Carmen represented Local 800 in contract negotiations two years ago.

Easter folder

Lewis J. Foster of Newton Highlands, president of the Massachusetts Bible Society, said recently that the Society is completing distribution of 175,000 copies of the Easter story in a color folder. It is taken from the Gospel of Matthew in Today's English Version.

Foster said the Easter folder has been shipped to military bases, prisons, hospitals, nursing homes, churches and other groups.

Youth Commission discusses leisure

Are Newton kids different? Or are their parents?

These were two of the questions being mulled over at the Youth COMMISSION MEETING THIS WEEK.

A discussion of what leisure-time activities are available and why they are not better attended led to a brief assessment of Newton parents and their teenagers.

After a recitation by various spokesmen of what afternoon and evening programs are underway here and there in Newton, Youth Commission member Alfred Smith asked, "What kind of outreach do we have, since we have all these programs crawling over each other?"

Smith said, "We have a growing group of minority kids feeling left out. In time they will have to be woven into the fabric of what's going on."

A member of the advisory group expressed the opinion that "kids need a lot more than sports to stimulate them here. Parents aren't interested — they don't have time."

How other towns achieve communityinvolvement was a question that was unanswered.

The role of parents seemed to be strong in such communities.

Director of Human Resources Jan Pitt commented, "We ought to spend more time with parents. Education has taken over the role of parents, and the agencies have taken the children out of the parents' hands. We may be able to hand some responsibility back to parents."

Joe DeNucci, a member, replied, "Parents have to be asked — they think they're butting in."

Turning back to the general unawareness about youth recreation activities in Newton, many members present remarked on the lack of communication about programs, and one observer suggested the extensive use of newspaper advertising, as is done in neighboring towns.

In a discussion of attracting young people to join the Youth Commission advisory board, which is short several members 10-year-old Jennifer English suggested having members from the fourth grade up, and her friend, Sarah Avery, pointed out that if the Youth Commission is interested in, for example, Little League, the best way to get opinion is to ask a Little Leaguer.

Until this point the commission has been looking for recruits from only junior and senior high schools, and now may be reconsidering.

Jennifer and Sarah presented further plans for their Children's Day, which they and other children are organizing as a day of fun to take place on City Hall grounds next month.

Possibilities of funding the streetworker program this summer and perhaps year-round seemed fairly good, according to member Faye Snider. There is some money for the program in the new budget, and the Department of Mental Health may allocate funds.

'Wright On,' Mary!

NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) — Mary Wright, 17, a Newton High School senior, says she's no "libber" but credits the feminist movement in her successful election as the first girl president of the 500,000-member Explorer's division of the Boy Scouts of America.

Mary Wright

Miss Wright said she likes to be treated like a woman though she said she believes in equal pay and equal rights for women. She said she's a "Stevenson Democrat."

Miss Wright, the only child of business consultant Robert Wright, was elected last week in Washington, receiving 757 votes, 102 more than runnerup Gary Griffiths of Salt Lake City, Utah. She campaigned on the slogan "Wright On."

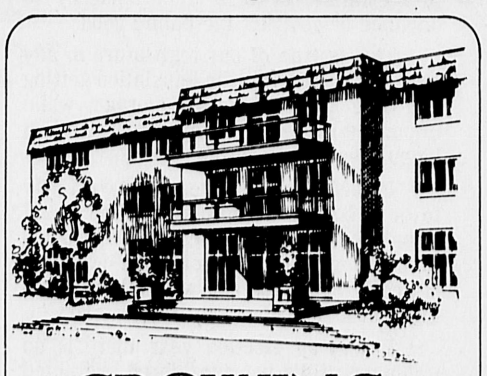

The tiny brunette says she may delay her entry into Clark University at Worcester, Mass., for one year so she can devote fulltime to her new duties. She is interested in politics and plans to major in urban planning.

At the time of her election, Mary was chairman of the New England states and regional chairman of the Northeast chapter of Explorer's division. Nationally, the Explorer's group numbers 150,000 young women between ages 14 and 20. It has been co-educational since 1969.

Endangered species

The state Republican party is falling apart.

The number of seats held by Republicans on Beacon Hill is miniscule compared to the Democratics. Of 240 seats in the House of Representatives, only 53 are held by Republicans. Of 40 seats in the state Senate, Democrats hold 32.

The Republicans control the executive branch and Governor Sargent managed to grasp the reins of his own council. But the party is weak and disjointed. The Nixon administration meanderings haven't helped.

In an effort to stem the tide, the Republicans are planning a walk for unity. In addition, a core of GOP regulars are working on a county and district breakdown of registered voters to determine what's in store next election.

This effort is a ploy. The real object is to develop total support for Sargent's re-election, heading off competition from Boston auto dealer Peter Fuller. As a result, the unity effort could go either way.

The intense campaign to rally Republicans behind Sargent may draw them together, or, disenchanted with what the administration has thus far accomplished politically, divide the party into pro and anti-Sargent factions.

In addition, many Republicans may want to nurse a low profile since Watergate has tipped the recent election scales in favor of the Democrats.

The two party system in Massachusetts has become an endangered species. The juxtapositioning of a Republican governor and a Democratic legislature has worsened matters in the creation of a Mexican standoff. Laws are passed, vetoed and the veto is overridden. The executive branch create, are rebuffed and threaten.

The attrition of the two-party system, however, cannot be stopped with unity walks. If the Republican party wants to grow strong, it will have to respond to the people to win requitement. And in the only state in the union to reject the nation's supreme Republican at the polls, this will be difficult if not impossible.

James Madison, writing in the Federalist said, "It is a misfortune inseparable from human affairs, that public measures are rarely investigated with that spirit of moderation which is essential to a just estimate of their real tendency to advance or obstruct the public good."

This is true of our legislature in any year —the most volatile legislation getting the time and the press coverage, while important but less controversial legislation languishes in committee.

In this, an election year, there is likely to be even less accomplished. The racial imbalance law and the death penalty question will receive an inordinate share of Beacon Hill's attention, with other important questions put off until "tomorrow".

But in an election year there is no tomorrow. Bills not considered and acted on in committee by the end of April receive an automatic negative report and are sent to the floor to be voted down in groups like so many indistinct cattle going to the slaughter house. Some will be salvaged there by floor action, but not many.

'OPEN UP!'

Pointing a finger at myself

By TOM GRAVES

Nine days ago I considered my left ring finger useless. It didn't even house the high school ring I bought six years ago.

I had bought that ring to give to some ideal girl at a future date, but the most use it has gotten has been on the hand of my little brother.

Eight days ago I broke this seemingly insignificant finger playing basketball. It hurt, but I expected few consequences from the injury.

After three x-rays at Newton-Wellesley Hospital, I found myself with a cast on my left arm halfway to my elbow. To protect my finger I was to have an immobilized left hand for four weeks.

Still, who needs a left hand if you're right-handed?

The answer of course is that I need it.

Try opening a twist-off bottle with one hand. You normally use one hand to grasp the bottle and the other to turn the top.

A jar of peanut butter presents the same problem. To get at the staple of my diet, I now require the presence of a roommate so a new container can be opened.

Perhaps more important are my vocational problems. I have been reduced from a four-finger typist to a journalist with one very tired finger. I have to stop during the day after every long story to rest my overworked right index finger.

A further difficulty is balancing a notebook on a cast while interviewing a person standing up. The notebook sort of sways on the uneven surface, and the words I write jump up and down the page with it.

I have a friend who broke his neck a couple of years ago diving into the Charles River. When asked about the resultant brace on his neck, he could sometimes tell people that he had "slipped on the ice of existentialism" or had "fallen off an oil derrick in Texas." Such lofty explanations are not available to someone who has broken a crummy finger.

When people see a big cast on my arm, I feel guilty about telling them what my injury is. Such an expanse of white plaster should at least mean a broken hand.

The last time I had a cast, it was for a broken ankle. I walked out in the rain one night and the cast began to melt. I later cut off much of the plaster with my Swiss army knife. Fortunately, I was told later that my ankle had healed okay despite my recklessness.

This time, I am trying to obey doctor's orders. If you see a guy walking around in the rain with a covered hand, it is probably me.

I am not trying to punch my way out of a paper bag. I only want to keep my gast dry so my dumb finger will get better.

Jog-A-Thon set to aid cerebral palsy

NEWTON—Men and women from throughout the Boston area will be converting their running and jogging activities into financial support for United Cerebral Palsy Association of Metropolitan Boston by joining Chairman Johnny Kelley (of Marathon fame) in a unique "Run for Fun", Sunday, April 28th, 1974, starting at 11 a.m.

The Jog-A-Thon will take place along Commonwealth avenue, beginning and ending at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Newton, co-sponsors of this innovative fund raising event.

Jog-A-Thon entries may run any distance up to 5 miles at their own speed. Course will be "out and back" 1, 2, or 2½ miles out —and—back.

The event which will begin 15 minutes after the start of a 10 miles A.A.U. sanctioned road race is open to anyone over 16 years of age. It will not be a competitive race, but rather a "fun" get-together for runners or joggers to assist United Cerebral Palsy.

Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Death penalty favored but not electrocution

Governor Francis W. Sargent won an impressive victory when his veto of a bill calling for the death penalty for nine forms of murder was upheld by a margin of a single vote in the State Senate.

It stamped him as a strong Republican Governor who can block the passage of an important and controversial new law by an overwhelmingly Democratic Legislature.

Ten Democrats and four Republicans stood with the Governor in the final showdown in the Senate. This was not a partisan political question in which party lines were drawn. It was more an emotional issue in which each Senator had to decide for himself whether it is morally right or wrong to take a human life as punishment for certain types of murder.

When that particular round of the capital punishment fight had ended, this onlooker had the feeling that Governor Sargent would have been better off politically if he had lost his battle in the Senate instead of winning it. Some Senators also could have injured their own political prospects by voting contrary to the sentiment in their districts.

Polls which have been made under the direction of this writer show that a big majority of the voters favor the death penalty. Paradoxically, they do not want anyone actually executed. But they believe the death penalty is a deterrent to murder, and they want to see it on the books.

That seems contradictory. But surveys of public sentiment often produce conflicting results.

If the controversy over the death penalty had ended when the Governor's veto was sustained in the Senate, this writer would express the opinion that Governor Sargent's reelection chances had been lessened and that such Solons as Republican Senator John M. Quinlan of Norwood and Democratic Senator Joseph Timilty of Mattapan had damaged their own public careers.

But the battle over the death penalty issue did not end when Governor Sargent's veto was sustained by a 14-25 vote in the Senate. (25 Senators voted to override the Governor's veto and 14 to sustain it, but a two-thirds vote was needed to overrule Sarge's objection. If the vote had been 26-13, the death penalty bill would have been enacted into law.)

Other capital punishment bills are still pending before the Legislature. One of them eventually will be enacted into law, probably over Governor Sargent's veto. A shift of one Senator would do it.

Polls disclose that the voters favor a law which would invoke the death penalty for more than the murders of police officers, firefighters, and prison guards. So do the embarrassed policemen, firemen and prison guards.

When a death penalty law is finally passed, as it undoubtedly will be later this year, it will cause the people to forget the recent fight which Governor Sargent won in the State Senate. It will be another example of why political pundits believe Francis Sargent leads a charmed political life.

In an unusual speech during the debate on overturning Governor Sargent's veto of the death penalty measure, Republican Senator Quinlan voiced misgivings as to the effect his vote against the death penalty would have on his bid for election as Secretary of State. Enactment of some form of death penalty law will take Quinlan off the hook on which he placed himself.

Conceding that his vote against the death penalty might damage him politically, Quinlan said he could always go back to teaching school or, if worst comes to the worst, get a job playing the piano in a barroom.

Governor Sargent has said he would sign a bill calling for the death penalty for murderers of police officers, firefighters and prison guards. The bill he vetoed called also for the death penalty for murders committed during an armed robbery, breaking and entering, a kidnapping or hijacking, during the commission of rape, or a murder by a paid killer, by someone already convicted of first-degree murder or for a murder involving extreme cruelty. Judging from our mail, a lot of people don't see anything wrong with the bill Governor Sargent vetoed.

GOP delegates must pay admission charge

Delegates to the unofficial Republican State Convention may be both shocked and chargrined to learn that it will cost them $10 each to get into their own conclave.

That is the ingenious method the thrifty members of the Republican State Committee have decided upon for raising the money to meet expenses of holding the convention—charge the delegates to get in.

In the past the Republican convention managers have realized some profit from selling box lunches to the hungry delegates.

When Frederic C. (Buck) Dumaine was chairman of the Republican State Committee, he caused a lifting of eyebrows by decreeing that beer be sold to thirsty delegates.

The enterprising Mr. Dumaine was interested both in turning a few dollars for his committee and also enlivening the proceedings.

But this is the first time at least in modern history that delegates have been charged an admission fee to get into their own convention. It might cause some of the penurious GOP delegates—if there are any such—to stay home.

This suggests all sorts of possibilities. A well-heeled candidate might buy blocs of tickets and distribute them to his supporters among the delegates to assure that they would all show up.

One prominent GOP leader declares that this will prove that the Republicans are the party of the poor. The delegates to an unofficial State Convention will be required to buy $10 admission tickets in order to pay for renting the hall and to meet any other expenses.

It's enough to cause a man to wonder if it's such an honor to be a delegate after all.

Bay State penalizes home insurance firms

A bill to eliminate the inequities from the state tax levied upon the Massachusetts-based insurance companies is pending before the State Legislature.

At a time when a threatened recession may reduce employment opportunities in Massachusetts, it should be enacted to protect more than 21,000 jobs and an annual payroll of over $175 million which aids the economy of the state.

Only three states in the nation tax their home-based insurance companies more heavily than those based out of state. One is Massachusetts. The other two are Connecticut and New York. And the Massachusetts state tax, strangely, is the most heavily discriminatory against its own companies.

A serious danger exists that some of these domestic insurance companies, which provide over 21,000 needed jobs, will pull up stakes and move out of Massachusetts if the present weird tax situation remains uncorrected. Here's why:

Massachusetts now levies the highest tax of any state in the nation upon its domestic insurance companies. If the 17 Massachusetts domestic insurance companies did the same amount of business and were based in New York State, they would pay $5.2 million in taxes. In Connecticut they would pay $5.4 million.

Here in Massachusetts, on the same volume of business, they pay $17.1 million, three times more than in the other states. A question exists as to how long some of them will continue to do that. If they do leave, of course, the people they employ would be thrown out of work. Most little people are unable to cut their ties and move with their company when it shifts to another state and city.

Twenty-four of the 50 states treat their home-based insurance companies the same as foreign ones. Twenty-three impose a smaller tax upon the domestic firms.

The other three states, Massachusetts among them, penalize their home insurance companies.

The leading opponent to the bill which would allow the home-based insurance companies to compete on even terms with the out-of-state firms, concedes that the domestic companies are unfairly taxed.

"It is true the life insurance companies are unfairly taxed—in comparison with the other 49 states," he declared in a debate on the bill. "But they are not fairly taxed by the federal government."

Then he continued his fight to defeat the bill.

The danger is that the Legislature will continue doing nothing to correct this situation until some insurance company closes its Massachusetts office and moves to another state, throwing a lot of people out of work.

See Nixon Impeachment, but Senate acquittal

It looks like a long, hot summer for President Nixon and the American people.

Several well-informed Massachusetts Congressmen have predicted privately to this writer that President Nixon will be impeached by the national House, possibly some time in June.

They expect that Nixon will stand trial in the Senate during the summer. They believe the Senators will schedule their proceedings as soon as possible after the impeachment.

But—and this may come as the big surprise of their appraisal of the sentiment in the two branches of Congress—they express doubt that Nixon will be convicted in the Senate where a two-thirds vote would be needed to remove him from office. They point out that if the Senate vote stood 66-34 for conviction, Nixon would be exonerated.

That opinion is shared by political realist Mike Mansfield, Senate Majority Leader, who recently publicly advised Senator Edward M. Kennedy not to run for President in 1976 even though the polls show Ted to be the most popular Democrat. Mansfield says that if a vote were taken today in the Senate, Nixon would be acquitted. The votes just are not there at the present time to convict him, according to Mansfield.

It is widely assumed on Capitol Hill that Nixon will stand and fight and not resign if he is impeached. That poses several questions.

Who will run the nation while Nixon is fighting for his political life in the Senate? Vice President Gerald Ford presumably. But he would not have the same power as Nixon to meet a split-second emergency.

Would Nixon be a "crippled" President who would limp through the last two years of his Presidency if he were impeached in the House but not convicted in the Senate? He certainly would, but many observers believe he already is "crippled" in his ability to cope with great problems and deal with the rest of the world.

Would Nixon be likely to resign rather than stand trial in the Senate if he is impeached in the House?

President Nixon says he would not resign, and this department is disposed to believe him, particularly if he thinks he has the votes to win his fight in the upper congressional chamber.

However, Nixon by no means has a safe margin in the Senate. A shift of a couple of Senators would push him over the line so close is the vote expected to be.

If he actually stands trial in the Senate he risks the possibility of not only being removed from office in disgrace, but also of being prosecuted in court and sent to prison. Damaging evidence against him might be brought out at a Senate trial.

So if an agreement is made to grant him immunity from prosecution, Nixon might just decide to call it a day and resign from office.

That is what a great many Senators and Congressmen hope will happen in order to spare the United States and its people from the ordeal of a very difficult and dangerous period.

Nixon's bitter enemies, however, are against allowing him to resign. They want to see him thrown out of office, prosecuted and convicted in court. If Devil's Island were still in operation, they presumably would urge that he be sent there.

In answer to a number of readers, it appears unlikely that President Nixon will go to Moscow this spring even though he would benefit from the publicity. It would be a bit on the embarrassing side if the leader of the greatest nation in the world were impeached while visiting in the Soviet capital.

Public financing

To the Editor

The League of Women Voters believes that changes are needed in the system of financing election campaigns.

Reform legislation is needed on both the federal and state levels to restore public confidence in government. The most controversial reform is public financing of election campaigns. The League supports a system of combined public financing and limited private contributions. Only in this way will elected officials be accountable and responsive to all citizens and no longer tied to a system of political favoritism for large contributors. Only with public financing will election races open up to mcitizens who are not independently wealthy or do not have the backing of "big money."

Senator Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) stated, "To insure open access to politics, I can think of no better application of public funds than, as necessary, to use them for the financing of elections so that public office will remain open to all." In support of reforming the system of relying on private contributions, Henry Ford, Chairman, Ford Motor Co., states ". . . as long as the present system continues, the principal of one man one vote will be corrupted by the power of money."

In 1971, the Federal Election Campaign Act took the first important steps to limit the influence of private donations in election campaigns, but as we saw in the last election, the campaign disclosure laws and the flimits on the use of a candidates personal wealth didn't go far enough. The disclosure laws must be reinforced by the establishment of an independent bipartisan election commission with the power of enforcement and prosecution. The law should be extended from limiting only media expenditures to covering total campaign spending.

Reasonable ceilings on campaign spending will stop the competitive escalation of costs without inpairing the citizen's right to know. To block the loopholes in the disclosure laws, candidates should be required to have a central campaign committee responsible for campaign financing reports and donations in cash form should be strictly limited.

In order to get a comprehensive election reform bill this year it is necessary to demonstrate broad public support. The League urges all concerned citizens to call or write their U.S. senators and representatives in Washington, D.C. and to sign a petition to let Congress know the time for reform of campaign financing is now. Petitions are available from all League members and will be circulated in front of Newton Star Markets on April 19 and 20

Urban blight in Newton

(Editor's note: Following, is a copy of a letter sent to William J. White, executive director of the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHEA)

Dear Mr. White:

The purpose of this letter is to inform you of the sentiments of the people of Newton Centre in regard to the urban blight which, regardless of all our prayers and protests, is systematically being sown amongst us by real estate developers whose latest crime is the destruction of the most extensive and beautiful wooded area in what was our "Garden City."

I am referring to the so-called "Chestnut Hill Towers" to be erected on Goat Hill in Thompsonville and the NCDF "town house project" adjoining it.

As things stand, the construction of the project, which will really be a collection of tenements, depends upon the Towers development. Without the Towers, there will be no tenements.

We do not need urban apartment buildings, in the City of Newton anywhere, but in this particular place, they signify utter devastation. The beautiful Thompsonville Brook will be covered up at its source and polluted in its entirety. Our winding roads, now lined with trees, will have to be straightened and widened, barely and bleakly, to accommodate the heavy traffic, residential and commercial, passing in and out of these skyscrapers. What place do these ugly concrete blocks have in the middle of our lovely little forest?

Apartment blocks, whether they are condominiums, apartments, tenements, or so-called "town houses" belong in an urban environment, where their traffic can be absorbed in a multitude of streets.

As to the feverish desire of certain social reform groups to sacrifice the suburban homes of the life-long residents of Newton Centre, as well as the Webster Conservation Area, to provide a pitifully small number of so-called "low-income housing units" (a cold-blooded expression used by social ideologues and real estate developers to describe human dwellings), the question arises again, "Where is the need?" or, indeed, "Where the justification?"

We have no slums in Newton, and we have no facilities in Newton Center for a mass population. This type of construction would lead only to hardship for the 17 (?) families of "low-income" who might be brought in to inhabit it.

This so-called "town house" project could admittedly cost three and a half million dollars. Any lesser appropriation is a gamble which will have to be backed up by enormous extras (avidly anticipated by the greedy exploiters). The area under consideration is not only woodland, but it is also replete with ledges and underground rock formations and has complex water problems.

Our representatives in government, whose duty it is to protect our welfare and our property, have failed us. So we, citizens of Newton, come to you and implore you not to ignore the present population in the little streets around thev-thompsonville forest and the Webster Conservation Area for the benefit only of a crafty group of real estate manipulators. You can stop this entire enterprise, Towers and Tenements, by refusing to finance the MCDF project with the taxpayers money.

The Camp Dresser McKee report, which formally stated what Ken Smith, CDM consultant to the district, had been telling the group, "held no surprises," said Waltham DIRECTOR OF Public Works Edward Delaney.

The report recommends having the waste hauled out of the city until a regional resource-recovery facility can be built in either Newton or Waltham as part of the state's master plan for solid-waste management.

Upgrading of the incinerator is viewed in the report as undesirale from a cost standpoint and would entail a financial commitment to continuing the use of the incinerator and would not result in recovery of many reusable materials.

CDM suggests that Waltham share Newton's incinerator until next December, if the state will allow it.

The district committee, in reality a planning group, will be in existence until next September under a grant from the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency. The district become opeational by approval of the mayors and legislative bodies of both cities.

Levitan asked the committee to begin in earnest to look for federal funds to help the district, if approved, to get underway.

The decision about replacing Executive Director Philip Pattison, who has taken the position of public works director in Beverly, was settled by doing nothing.

Pattison has been working as a part-time district director for more than a month, while working full-time in Beverly. Some members of the district committee felt that the district needs at least one person full time, and several resumes had been obtined toward filling the job.

While it had been rumored that Newton's director of public works, RICHARD Dudman, was in serious contention for the district directorship, moves in that direction were squelched at Tuesday night's meeting.

Dudman is leaving his Newton job next week.

Newton members Melvin First and Mary Adelstein were in favor of Dudman's being hired, but Pattison said, "I can fill the job on my own. I'm willing and pleased to work part-time at this." At an earlier mention of Dudman as a candidate, Pattison said he would have "no problems" working with Dudman, who has been a member of the district committee since its beginning.

City Councillor Jack Koutoujian of Waltham questioned whether there might be a "political problem with your Board of Aldermen," if Dudman got the job.

Newton alderman David Jackson, who along with Koutoujian is co-chairman of the committee, thought not, if Dudman were Pattison's assistant.

"The political situation is changing," Jackson said. "Some (12) of the aldermen have actually written the mayor asking him too keep Dudman on."

"Some of them are beginning to see the wisdon of things DUDMAN HAS DONE, AND I think only two or three aldermen would have antipathy toward him."

Delaney, too, considered Dudman "controversial politically, and he might affect the vote (on the district) in Newton."

Adelstein and First felt that Dudman's familiarity with the district would outweigh political objections.

The vote to retain Pattison alone, part-time, was six in favor, two abstaining, two absent.

Licensing Board vote ruled invalid

An unannounced meeting of the Licensing Board, at which a vote was taken to issue a victualler's license to McDonald's, has been held in violation of law, and the vote declared invalid.

City Solicitor Howard Levine issued an opinion this week that the March 25 meeting was in violation of the open meeting law, which requires posting of meetings of all city boards, committees, and commissions.

The action, Levine said, amounted to an executive session, since no notice was posted nor sent to "interested parties."

Under law, executive sessions are allowed only to consider or vote on matters which might adversely affect the public security, the financial interest of the city, or the repuration of any person, Levine's opinion stated.

"It is highly unlikely that the granting of a victualler's license is so highly infused with municipal security or protection from harm," the opinion read, "that an executive session would be permitted . . . The vote of the Licensing Board on this matter must be declared invalid."

Levine said he expects the Licensing Board to hold another hearing, thus obviating the need for a citizen to petition for a writ of certiorari (an order of a court to review the proceedings).

right leg," he told the court. "The doctor will not let me go back to work."

Machain sustained a job-related back injury in December, 1973, and had only been back to work for three weeks when the Obermayer incident occurred.

Asked if he told Gingrass he was injured, Machain said he did not tell him before being sent back up in the tree a second time to continue removal.

Asked if Obermayer had "tried to persuade" him to come down, Machain replied, "I do not remember seeing him until after the incident."

All parties said that after the first time Obermayer got into the truck, Machain, angry, came down and Obermayer went back into his house.

Obermayer testified he then heard an "argument" among the crew members and then saw Machain go back up into the tree a second time.

After disrupting the tree cutting efforts the first time, Obermayer testified he went back into his house and "called some neighbors."

"All I really wanted to do was talk," he told the court, 'to see if official approval had been given."

After the incident originally occurred Director of Public Works Richard Dudman told reporters that due to an "operational mixup" the forestry crew was sent to cut down the tree one day earlier than originally intended.

Dudman said that he planned to talk to Obermayer in the afternoon on March 14 about removing the tree. The incident took place in the morning.

Accounts of Obermayer's second round with the crew differed.

Gingrass and crew member Richard Coughlin testified Obermayer put the truck into reverse a second time, but Obermayer said the second time he tried to get into the truck he did not touch the controls.

"I tried to get into the cab of the truck," he recounted. "It was like a game of touch football. I went around and around trying to dodge crew members.

"I opened the driver's side, got on the running board and looked up at the man in the bucket. I did not touch the controls. The man came back down."

"It was my intention to create enough commotion to delay the thing," Obermayer commented. "I definitely had no intention of harming Mr. Machain."

Obermayer's attorney argued that there was no "probable cause" for the charge saying the evidence did not support a contention the defendant wanted to "intentionally cause physical harm."

"He knew the action he took would not do this," the attorney said.

The district attorney responded that "the action the defendant has admitted he took certainly was calculated and could have thrown the man out of the bucket."

"Clearly, the action could have caused serious injury or death," he said.

Basbas declined jurisdiction over the second charge against Obermayer's unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and sent it to the higher court too.

The March 14 incident was the city's second attempt this year to remove the sugar maple tree.

Reports on its condition indicate that it has been damaged, and contains dead limbs and some areas of rot inside. Reports indicate the tree "presents a hazard" but is not completely dead.

Tree still stands

The "Obermayer tree" has been kept standing by a temporary restraining order on the condition that Arthur Obermayer obtain a $100,000 bond "to save the city harmless from any and all liability" which may arise from the continued existence of the tree.

The condition, imposed last week by Judge Robert J. Hallisey of Middlesex Superior Court, was not fulfilled by Obermayer, whose lawyers instead obtained an insurance policy on the tree.

City Solicitor Howard Levine has found many unacceptable provisions in the policy, which Judge Hallisey accepted in lieu of the surety bond "for the time being."

According to Levine, the insurance policy does not cover city workers working under or near the tree, consequential damages (such as down wires), or "acts of God."

Levine is pursuing his request that the judge require the bond as originally ordered and may appear in court this week on the matter.

specially equipped vans for transporting handicapped youngsters and the purchase of special equipment and materials.

A member of the audience said she was opposed to the lumping together kids with different needs. Peterson said final decisions about program have not been made.

Mrs. Needleman asked if further budgetary appropriation will be necessary to support the program. Peterson replied that he did not know.

The motion passed by the School Committee endorsing the program included Spaulding School as a tenative site, and allowed for final approval of the program at a later time.

In other action, School Committeeman Gerard Byrne said that the advisory committee on buildings would like to instruct the consultant on the Nine School Study to prepare a final report.

The School Committee unanimously approved this action.

Byrne said that the committee still seeks a definition of "charter maintenance and repair."

"We hope to make recommendations for a 10-year program," Byrne said. "We cannot move without knowing whether we can repair a leaky roof."

Byrne commented that the Nine School Study recommends a $9,000,000 expenditure over a 10-year period. He said that $1,640,000 can be spent now under an existing definition of maintainance of repair.

Byrne stated that the advisory committee on buildings can make a recommendation to the School Committee by the middle of June.

The School Committee unanimously approved a motion to seek information from the mayor and the city solicitor about the definition of maintainance and repair.

Presently, under the city charter, the School Department may spend four per cent of a previous year's budget on "ordinary maintainance and repair." Capital outlay must be approved by the Board of Aldermen.

Housing

"The Newton Housing Authority has been in contact with other housing authorities around the state," Miller said. "It is apparent that the state's construction cost guidelines are totally out of touch with current market conditions, and it is the consensus that the '705' program cannot work effectively in urban communities."

Miller added that the state nas suggested Newton consider acquisition of existing single and two-family homes which could be rehabilitated and leased to low income tenants by the Housing Authority.

"The Authority, while not rejecting this notion completely," he said, "does not see the logic of such a plan."

"Most importantly," Miller added, "this approach would not increase the supply of housing in the city and would also result in major relocation problems and would tend to provide only a temporary solution to the city's housing needs."

Salary

School Superintendent Aaron Fink, who maintained throughout the meeting that the shortage was known to the Board of Aldermen since last summer, acceded to Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small's interpretation of the whol affair as "Maybe not misinformation but misunderstanding."

Compared to most School Department-Finance Committee confrontations, last week's was decorous and restrained.

All persons concerned thanked all the others, and even the School Department's nemesis, Arthur Marr, said his parting advice in a goodnatured way: "The School Department should not do this again."

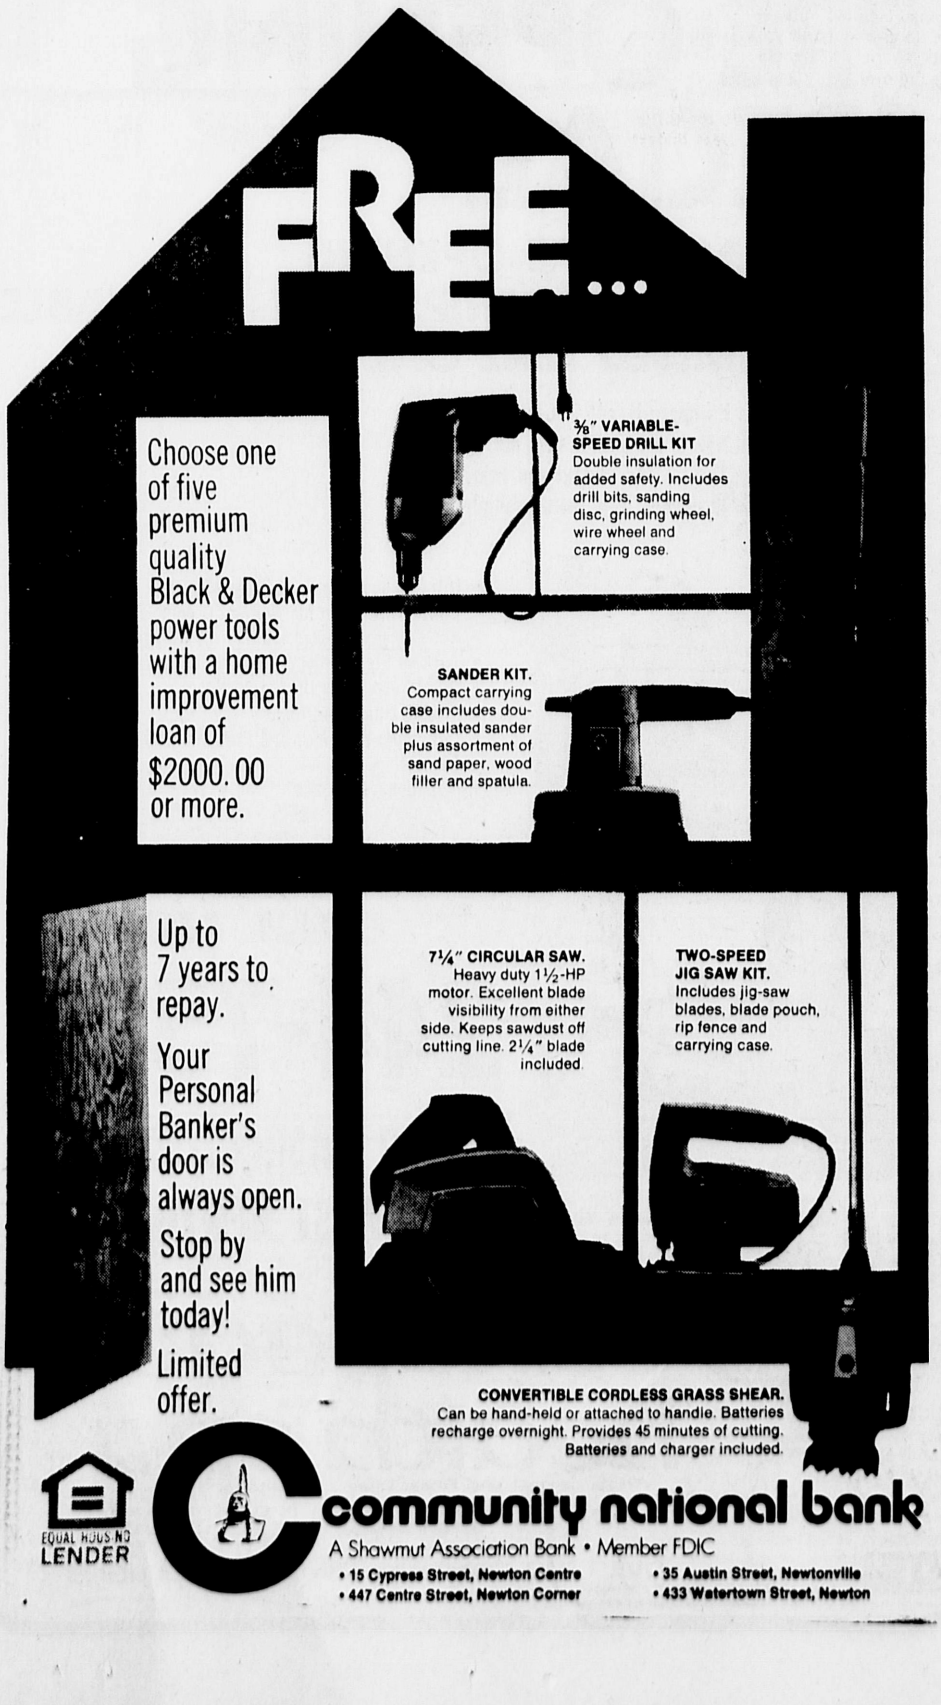

Smoke Rings

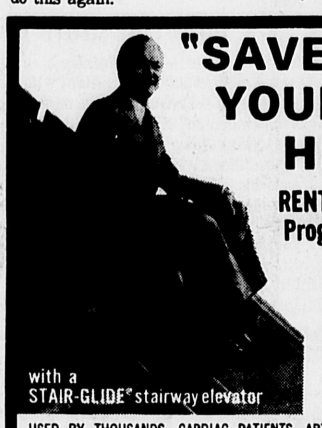

BONN (UPI) — Government figures show that the number cigarettes smoked in West Germay in 1973 remained approximately the same as in 1972, despite a known drop in smokers. An industry spokesman explained this by saying "the continuing smokers are smoking more."

Tracking Station to Close

CANBERRA (UPI) — The Australian government has announced that the U.S. National Aeronautical Space Agency's tracking station at Carnavon in West Qustralis will be close at the end of 1974.

Abolitionist John Brown was hanged in Charles Town, W. Va., on Dec. 2, 1859, after failing in his attack on the federal armory at Harper's Ferry.

TV Profile

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Among television series regulars no actor plays as big a slob or as unsympathetic a character as Wynn Irwin in "Lotsa Luck."

He is the cigar-chewing, bathrobe-encased brother-in-law who sponges his living from Dom DeLuise in the situation comedy. As Arthur Swan he is unemployed, spends his days handicapping the races and complaining about the food he eats, but for which he doesn't pay.

The downbeat character seems to have affected Irwin's own personality.

He is divorced and lives in a one-bedroom apartment in one of Hollywood's down-at-the-heels neighborhoods. His building has one distinction, however. It once was owned by the late Errol Flynn which gives Irwin spasmodic fits of laughter.

Misses New York

Irwin doesn't own a bathrobe that resembles the one he wears on the show, and he only lets his whiskers grow on the day the NBC show is filmed for a live audience at the Burbank studio.

In truth, Wynn Irwin dislikes Southern California. He is a native of New york City.

"I would like to go back to New York to get my head straight," he says.

"There are different values in Hollywood. I find more camaradie back east. I can see old friends and go walking in New York. People don't walk in Hollywood."

Still, Irwin prefers being employed in Hollywood to being unemployed in the east. "The ideal situation would be to see the whole television industry move to New Jersey."

Not All Work

Irwin's ex-wife and his son, Andy, 9, live in Los Angeles. Andy visits his father every other weekend and the two play ball or take in a movie.

During the week the actor's schedule is a fairly comfortable one. He reports to the studio for rehearsals Monday through Thursday at 10 a.m. By 6:30 in the evening he is free. On Fridays the show is taped and rehearsed from noon until 10 p.m.

Evenings are devoted to memorizing lines. But it's not all work. Irwin has a lady friend who cooks most of his dinners for him. She plays a large part in his life, but matrimony does not figure in his immediate plans.

Irwin is not an outdoorsman. His idea of exercise is going to the race track to bet on the nags. He considers himself a better than average handicapper and says he is ahead financially at the parimutuel windows.

Something of a Loner

He shows up at the Hollywood YMCA sporadically to work out but his attempts are half-hearted.

He's equally unobsessed by his need to cook for himself when his girlfriend doesn't fix meals.

Irwin has made few friends in California although he sometimes joins a group of other actors for poker. He doesn't pal around with other members of the "Lotsa Luck" cast.

While he is no fashion plate on the weekly series, neither is Irwin a fancy dan off-camera. He describes his wardrobe as better than Arthur's, but not much. Most of the time he wears blue jeans.

"Only during my depressed days do I look like Arthur," Irwin said, shaking his head at the thought of the character he portrays.

At one time Irwin left show business —during his marriage —to sell greeting cards and stuffed animals in Oakland, Calif. He said he was highly successful at the job but his real love is acting.

He landed his role on a fluke. He accompanied an actor friend to a meeting with a producer. The producer was looking for an actor to play Arthur. The producer took one look at Irwin, forgot about his friend who was applying for the role, and hired him on the spot.

Commander Wallis

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Producer Hal B. Wallis, Hollywood veteran of more than 400 movies, has been honored by Queen Elizabeth II. The Queen recently made Wallis an Honorary Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Moving sets a lot of wheels in motion

One of the first things residents do when they move into this area is to order a telephone.

But what actually happens from the time a telephone is ordered and the time the first call is made from it?

It's not as somple as many people would guess.

Take for example, a resident of Newton. Call him John Smith. He calls the telephone business office add talks with a customer service representative, in this case Mary Jones. She finds out what type of phone he wants and they agree on a day that an installer can go to the Smith home to hook it up.

When Miss Jones hangs up, she will send the information to the service order department, and go on to take the next request for telephone service.

At the service order department, Smith's request is typed and sent along to line-assigning personnel. Employees in the line-assigning group check to see what lines are available to connect the Smith phone with the central office, where equipment will route their calls to their destinations.

When Smith's request for service reaches the plant department, personnel here note what date he would like the telephone and what lines should be connected to it. They then check to see what installer will be available on that date and find that, say, Fred Craftsman can do the installation work.

Meanwhile, there are other telephone employees who need to be informed that Smith is getting a new telephone.

The repair department is told so they will know what lines are involved and where the Smith phone will be located should any problem develop with it in the future.

Directory assistance is notified of Smith's new number so its operators can assist persons calling Smith.

The directory department also is told so the Smith number will appear in the next issue of the local directory.

And the accounting department is notified so they can set up the Smith account for billing purposes.

Then, on the date customer Smith and service representative Mary Jones agreed upon, installer Craftsman arrives to install Smith's phone—a process that frequently involves complicated internal wiring and coordination between the installer and his counterpart in the central office.

And Smith is now part of the calling network.

Newton telephone manager Paul Duncan said, "this process is repeated thousands of times every year throughout Massachusetts. The details might vary slightly from area to area, but essentially the same steps are taken for each customer who requests telephone service."

"It's easy to assume that beyond one's telephone receiver is just a vast machine that instantly grinds out telephone service," he said, "but this not the case."

"Even where there are machines involved, there are people checking and maintaining the machines, feeding them more information or installing more equipment as the number of customers grows."

The job of seeing that there is enough equipment to provide the Smith family and other familiesiwith telephone service goes on constantly—not just when someone orders a telephone.

Engineers work to plan how much and what type of equipment should be installed in a particular central office. Installation of these facilities is handled by the equipment installation department.

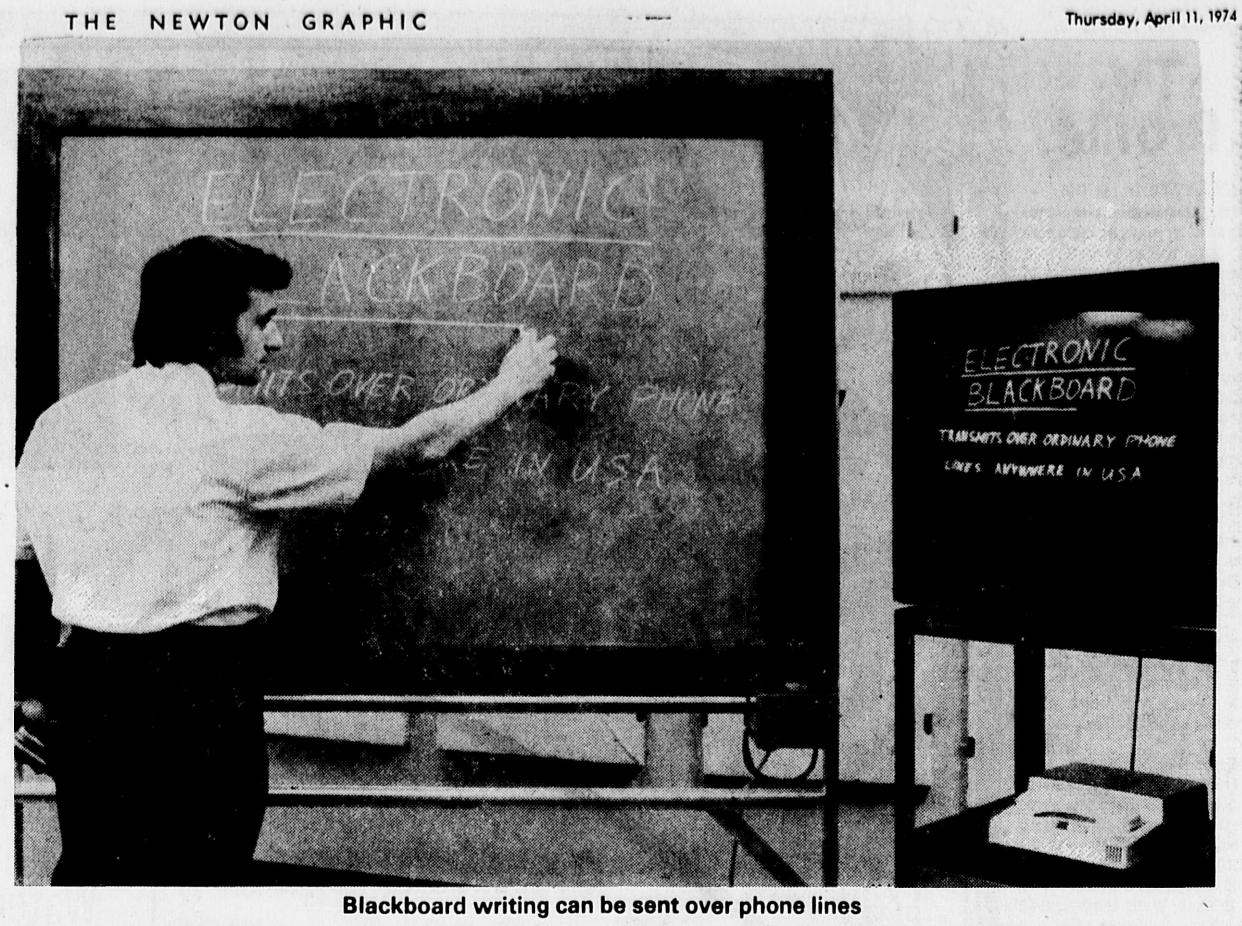

Often more room is needed for new equipment, and the engineersihave to plan building additions.

Other engineersiplan projects to place additional cable along Massachusetts streets, across bridges and under lakes to carry calls between customers' telephones and the equipment at central offices

Both groups of engineersiare using computers to help them plan many of these cable and equipment prvjects, but the bulk of the plannicg falls to the engineers themselves.

Meanwhile, other employees estimate how much each community will grow in the next 10, 20, or 30 years and what will be needed to provide telephone service for those residents.

Decisions must be made as to what areas will need more equipment or cable first, and long-range schedules are set to ensure that there will be lines available when Smith moves again.

Blackboard writing can be sent over phone lines

Coffee Day to support Easter Seal campaign

Mayor Theodore D. Mann recently declared Thursday, April 11 as Coffee Day for crippled children and their Easter Seal campaign in the City of Newton.

Thousands of small red and white buttons are now on sale for $1.00 each by waitresses, waiters and countermen at local restaurants, coffe shops and lunch counters in neighborhoods across Massachusetts.

On Coffee Day, customers who have a button may drink free coffee in any of the participating establishments.

Last year the Massachusetts Easter Seal Society provided more than 18,000 treatment services to nearly 4,000 disabled children and adults in the state. Services included not only physical restoration but also experiences for all ages in camping and recreation. Other services include programs to improve housing, transportation and education for the handicapped as well as a model advocacy project for children. Services are available through Easter Seal regional offices in Andover, Boston, New Bedford, Springfield and Worcester.

Coffee Day has the support of the Massachusetts Restaurant and Massachusetts Hotel-Motel Associations

Recreation notes

Tennis permits to be sold only at North pool area

The Newton Recreation Department will begin selling tennis permits on Tuesday, April 16 at the Newton North High School swimming pool area. The pool cashier will sell permits weekdays from 7-10 p.m., and Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

This will be the only location at which tennis permits will be sold. The change was made to facilitate financial accounting and record keeping. No permits will be available at the Recreation Department office, or at the courts as in past years. Tennis permits will be required to play at the Burr Park Courts in Newton Corner, the Brewer Playground Courts in Newton Centre and the South High Courts in Oak Hill.

The permits will cost adults $10 for the season. Students, including anyone going to school full time up to the age of 25 years, may purchase a permit for $5. Newton residents not desiring to purchase a permit may play for $2 per hour per court when the attendant is on duty. A family permit is also available at $20. Non-resident guests of Newton people will pay $1 per hour. The season is April to April.

When purchasing a permit, the applicant must show proof of residence. When playing, the permit must be prominently displayed and players must have proof that they are Newton residents on their person.

During the week, attendants will be on duty at the Newton Centre and Burr Park courts from 5 p.m. until dusk. Saturdays and Sundays, they will be on duty from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Attendants will be on duty at the Newton South High School lighted courts from 7 to 10 p.m., Monday thru Friday and Saturdays and Sundays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Permit holders may reserve court time during the hours attendants are on duty. Reservations are limited to one hour a day, or a maximum of three hours a week.

The target date for opening the clay courts is the weekend of April 19. The actual date depends on the weather. The lights for night tennis will be turned on the first week in May.

Commissioner John B. Penney points out that Newton has 44 hard surface courts, 6 equipped for night tennis and 15 clay courts. Permits are not required on most of these facilities, but tennis permits are required at the Newton Centre Playground, and Burr Park Courts at all times, whether or not attendants are on duty He asks the cooperation of the public in relinquishing the courts promptly on the hour if there are people waiting to play.

In the Newton Recreation Department's basketball program, the Pony title was won by Newton Centre, which defeated the Beginnings in two out of three games in the finals.

The swimming pool at Newton North High School will remain closed until 2 p.m. on Easter Sunday. The regular Sunday morning swim classes will be held from 2 to 3:30 p.m. From 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. there will be public swimming after which the regular Sunday schedule will resume. This includes a family swim from 4:30 to 5:55 p.m.; handicapped recreation swimming from 6 to 6:55 p.m.; adult swim from 7 to 7:55 p.m. and general swimming from 8 to 8:55 p.m. and 9:55 p.m.

The Lassie Softball League sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department will have an organizational meeting and practice on Tuesday, April 16, beginning at 5:45 p.m. The meeting will be held, rain or shine, at the Albemarle Field House. The Lassie League is for girls 12 to 15 years, and teams, as well as individuals, may sign up. People may call Fran Towle at 969-3171 for further information.

The Newton Womens' Softball League for women 18 years and over will be playing twilight games on Sundays and Wednesdays this season. The roster deadline is May 1 and interested teams or individuals may call Fran Towle at the Recreation office 969-3171.

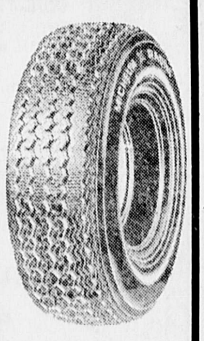

A two-day girls' volleyball jamboree will be held at Day Junior High this month. The jamboree is for girls 12 years and older. The first session will be held Thursday, April 18, from 1 to 4 p.m. and the second, Friday, April 19, from 10 a.m. to noon, and 1 to 4 p.m.

Drinan 'deplores' Nixon action on privacy

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D—Newton) said this week he "deplored" the gap between President Richard Nixon's promise and performance concerning the right to privacy.

Addressing the House of Representatives on privacy, Drinan states: "When it comes to the battle against access to matters considered confidential by our constituents, Mr. Nixon and his appointees are indeed a troop of summer soldiers."

The congressman noted that the subcommittee on civil and constitutional rights of the House Judiciary Committee, of which he is a member, has recently been holding hearings on various proposals to regulate the storage and dissemination of data compiled by law enforcement agencies.

"The testimony by Attorney General Saxbe, FBI Director Kelley, and Deputy Assistant Defense Secretary Cooke was misleading, uninformed, and contradictory," Congressman Drinan said.

"When you sit day after day in the hearing room and listen to Nixon Administration officials bob and weave on the crucial questions of privacy, it is no wonder that the confidence of the American people in the presidency and the Nixon Administration has reached an all-time low".

"Comparing Richard Nixon's promise to protect privacy in his State of the Union message with the recent statements of his appointees, I am truly appaled by the wide gap between them," the Congressman observed.

Drinan expressed particular concern over the position of the Department of Defense (DOD).

"That agency would like unlimited access to arrest date compiled by the FBI and other police agencies," the congressman stated. "However, DOD has not given us any facts upon which to conclude that we should authorize such access."

"Indeed, Mr. Cooke conceded that DOD has never denied employment, severed an employee, or refused clearance solely because of an arrest, or even a conviction record. Why then does DOD need unlimited access?" Congressman Drinan asked.

Drinan also seriously questioned the proposal of the Defense Department "to prohibit state and local governments from imposing more stringent safeguards on arrest data. In other words, federal agencies would have unlimited access to local arrest records no matter what restrictions are imposed by state law," the congressman continued.

Congressman Drinan commented on the "ominous nature" of that proposal for states like Massachusetts which imposes stricter requirements on the dissemination of arrest information.

"Mr. Cooke stated that thousands of Massachusetts citizens have already been adversely affected because my state refuses to give the Defense Department arrest data Thus even the person with no arrest record at all suffers because DOD says it cannot complete its investigation," the Congressman noted.

Congressman Drinan concluded his remarks to the House by observing that President Nixon and Administrative officials, while professing to be in favor of protecting privacy," are doing all they can to scuttle proposals which would secure that basic right."

"It leads me to wonder whether Congress and the American people have again been the victims of Administration double-dealing," the Congressman observed.

ENGLAND BY BICYCLE AND CANAL BARGE

A unique six week experience is being offered to a small group of 20 young people (aged between 15 yrs. and 17 yrs.) this summer in England. Centered on the ancient town of Chester, participants will cycle and travel by canal barge through the English and Welsh countryside for three weeks. This will be followed by a homestay period with a young English person and their family, with many excursions to places of interest. The program will end with a week in London.

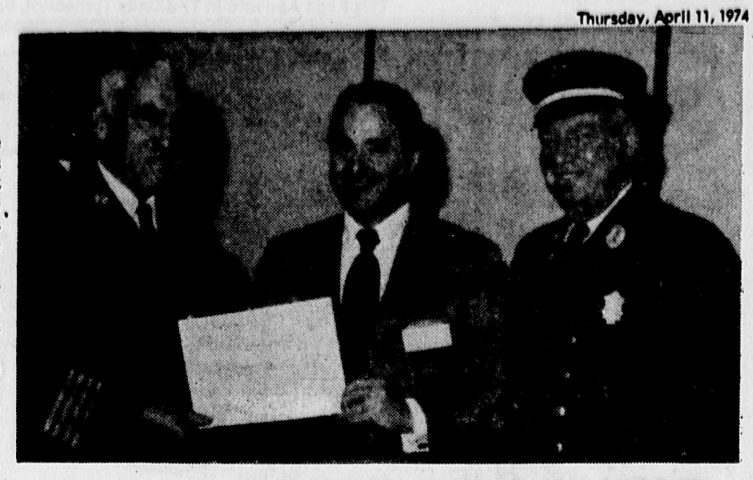

The program will be accompanied throughout by an experienced married couple from Newton whose own teenage son will be a participant and they will be assisted by three leaders in England.

A few vacancies remain in this exclusive program.

The dates are: 4th July to 18th August 1974 and the total cost is $1185.00 For further details write or phone:

Until 15th April, Mr. Malcolm J. Malson from the England office of The Peripatetic Group will be in Boston and is pleased to meet and talk with any interested participant or their parents and to arrange for an informal meeting with the leaders in Newton.

Award

Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins (left) and Lt. Joseph T. Fitzsimmons (right) received a second place award in the National Fire Prevention contest from Charles A. Morgan (center), president of the National Fire Protection Association. The awards, given annually, are made in recognition of a successful year-long effort in the field of fire prevention and safety.

DONALD G. HICKS, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon A. Hicks of 49 Rochester Rd., has been accepted as a freshman in the communications program at Grahm Junior College.

Davoren to get Fernald award

The 1974 "Man of the Year" award of the Friends of Fernald School for the Retarded is to be conferred on State Secretary John F. X. Davoren at a reception to be held Sunday evening, April 21, at the Chateau deVille inframingham, it was announced by the board of directors of the Friends of Fernald.

The directors of this organization dedicated to advancing the cause of the Fernald School for the Retarded voted to award this honor to the Massachusetts secretary of state because of his long-standing interest in helping in the care of retarded children as demonstrated by his record in public office and private philanthropy.

As spokesman for the Friends of Fernald, Mrs. Charles Malone of Waltham, founder of the organization, said her group has been the beneficiary of Secretary Davoren's personal participation in "bringing some sunshine into the lives of retarded children" as well as his financial contributions.

Each year, Secretary Davoren and his wife have hosted a Christmas party at the State House to which the children of the Fernald School, as well as handicapped youngsters from other state and private institutions, are invited. They are entertained, given Christmas gifts and served refreshments in this day-long jubilee which is the highlight of the year for many of these retarded youngsters.

Mrs. Malone also pointed out that during the time Davoren served as speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, he personally headed a special legislative committee studying ways and means of coping with the problems confronted by retarded children and those caring for them.

As a legislator, Davoren was instrumental in filing and advancing many measures that proved to be of invaluable assistance to the cause of retarded children. He successfully supported increased appropriations of state funds for those institutions caring for the retarded. Many bills under Davoren's tenure as leader of the House that became law, were beneficial to retarded children and served to ease their plight.

Davoren, in his travels on official business of his office, makes a practice of cisiting both state and private institutions for the mentally retarded and in the course of the year, distributes several thousand dollars from the proceeds of his annual Charity Ball in order to make life brighter for retarded children.

The response to invitations for the Friends of Fernald affair at thevChateau deVille already is indicative that the function will be a hugh success. Ticket sales are brisk and the outlook is for a sell-out.

Mrs. John A. Volpe is honorary chairman. Among those serving on the committee with the chairman, Mrs. Malone, are Mrs. Arthur J. Clark and Mrs. Richard Dacy, co-chairmen; Mrs. Gene Falco, ticket chairman; Mrs. John Casamento; Mrs. John Kasper; Mrs. Peter J. Cohn; Mrs.pErnest Montilio; Mrs. Paul Melanson; Mrs. Frank J. Kenney; Mrs. Vincent Cannistraro; Mrs. Mary Churnick, Mrs. Frederick LaChapelle; Mrs. Charles Barbo; Mrs. Eugene Marmonti; Mrs. John Tashjian; Mrs. Abner Freedman; Mrs. Armond Iodice; Mrs. Louis Parrella and Mrs. Frank Taverna. Brigadier General Richard E. McLaughlin will serve as master of ceremonies.

Rotary slates benefit auction

Arthur T. Gregorian and his son John will be the auctioneers at the Newton Rotary's Patriot's Day Auction.

Proceeds of the auction will go toward youth service programs. All donations are deductable.

Donated items can be dropped off at 450 Lexington St., Auburndale. Call 527-0800 for a pick-up, week to have items picked up weekdays from 9 a.m. 1 to 5 p.m.

The auction of old and new items will be held at the YMCA field on Church Street in Newton Corner at 1:30 p.m., after the Boston Marathon. The event will be held inside the YMCA if it rains.

Cadmium in cigarettes may cause emphysema

The precise components in cigarette smoke that may cause emphysema have not yet been pin-pointed. But cadmium is high on the list of suspects.

Only minute amounts of cadmium, a metal poisonous in high concentrations, are inhaled with one cigarette. But the metal builds up in the body in almost direct proportion to the number of cigarettes smoked. Not only does it accumulate in the lungs but some of it also passes on to the liver and kidneys, where it mounts up more. Autopsies on emphysema patients show excess levels of cadmium in all three organs.

According to the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, Dr. Gordon L. Snider of Boston University's School of Medicine conducted experiements to find out how cadmium impairs the lungs. Each day for five days rats were exposed to an aerosol containing only one percent of a cadmium compound. After only a few days, the rats' lungs showed marked damage. The air sacs, where oxygen and carbon dioxide are exchanged, were partially destroyed. This is exactly the king of damage found in emphysema patients. The surprise is that it happened so fast.

Damage to the air sacs has also been found in victims of industrial accidents who were exposed to high concentrations of cadmium. There is more evidence of lung impairment in workers exposed to cadmium dust for long periods.

In addition, there are disturbing implications for nonsmokers. Some research has shown there is even more cadmium in the smoke that drifts off the burning end of the cigarette than in the drag the smoker inhales.

To find out more about the consequences of cigarette smoking, people may contact the lung association. They may call 326-4061 for free pamphlets, film loans, or information on stop-smoking-clinics.

Board formed

Capt. Charles H. Hurley of Newton, president of Waterfront Service Co., of Boston, one of 20 members recently organized board of visitors of the Massachusetts Maritime Academy at Buzzards Bay, will participate in the all-day session on Saturday, April 27, at the Academy.

Rear Admiral Lee Harrington, president, will preside and be host for the day.

The board comprises members with experience in widely diverse fields emphasizing the maritime and education world.

The board includes a representative of the shipping industry, shipbuilding and repair, merchant marine master mariner, merchant marine chief engineer, U. S. Navy officer designated by the Commandant of the First Naval District, a Coast Guard officer designated by the Commandant of the U. S. Coast Guard, a representative of the State Board of Education, the Academy alumni, and the administration.

Commenting on the board, which will meet once or twice each year, Harrington said the board would prove to be "a distinct and invaluable asset" to the healthy growth and successful expansion of the maritime college.

Eagle endangered

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — While the bald eagle, our national bird, is in danger of extinction, there is an encouraging report on the bald eagle population in Oregon this spring.

The state's 47 active eagle aeries have produced 42 young. That is encouraging because the estimate for the 48 contiguous states is but a total of 1,000 nesting pairs.

Alaska, on the other hand, has a healthy eagle population and may be the last frontier for the bird. There, the population is between 30,000 and 40,000 birds.

Senior citizen volunteers help in City Hall, schools

Volunteers from the Newton Wellesley Weston Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. are making contributions at Newton City Hall and in the Newton school system.

Volunteers from the RSVP program man the information desk at Newton City Hall every day from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and give directions to visitors.

A group of RSVP volunteers has been working under the supervision of Alan Licarie of the Elections Commission and undertook the job of mailing out the Newton census forms. They also coded the data from the forms for the Planning Department. These volunteers were honored by Mayor Theodore Mann in a special ceremony in the Mayor's office recently for their contribution to their community.

Forty RSVP volunteers are giving weekly service to 16 Newton Schools including Davis, Underwood, Horace Mann, Day Junior High, Weeks Junior High, Newton North High, Newton South High, Williams, Hyde, Bigelow Junior High, Hamilton, Oak Hill, Pierce, Ward, Claflin, and Beethoven School.

Volunteers work as teacher aides, library aides, living history aides, math tutors, guidance aides, mini-course instructors, and foreign language tutors.

One of RSVP's most innovative programs in the Newton School System has been the intergenerational living history project. This has been a weekly sharing of life experiences from the first half of this century.

The talents, experience, and wisdom of senior volunteers has been coupled with the curiosity and empathy of junior and senior high school students in seminars at the Weeks Junior High School under the direction of Mrs. Eloise Levitt.

Some of the topics that have been covered at living history sessions are "Honesty vs. Corruption—The 1920's as compared to the 1970's;" "Life in Ireland - 1906-44," "Role of Women - A comparative view 1900-1940," "A German's Perception of The Rise of Hitler," "The Famous Depression of the 1930's," and "The Roaring Twenties." Living history resource volunteers have also been utilized at Day Junior High School, Bigelow Junior High School, and Newton South High School.

RSVP volunteers discovered that you are never too old to learn the new math when they attended an 11 session math tutoring workshop conducted by Mr. Arthur Short, coordinator for mathematics in the Newton school system. The volunteers have been placed in elementary schools in Newton and now attend a weekly supervisory session led by Mr. Short.

Four RSVP volunteers are serving as hostesses for the Newton Crop-In Center, a new program sponsored by the Newton Council on Aging. An RSVP volunteer serves as hostess for the Wednesday noon social hour at the Newton Library.

The Auburndale Community Schools under the direction of Mrs. Joan Chaisson has been sponsoring the Auburndale RSVP Community Helpers Group who have been preparing medical supplies for Newton-Wellesley Hospital and mailings for the City of Newton, Newton Red Cross, Newton lead screening program, and SSI Alert.

Other RSVP volunteers in Newton have been working at the Garden City Activity Center, Newton-Wellesley Hospital's lead screening program in Newton, Newton Headstart, Chetwynd Nursing Home, Newton Medfield Community Rehabilitation Program, and Communities United.

There are still a large number of .volunteer opportunities available to retired men and women aged 60 and over. RSVP provides assistance with expenses for transportation, meals, and insurance. For more information people may call RSVP at 969-5906.

Boxing

Former world middleweight title contender Joe DeNucci and St. Barnard's Holy Name Society have initiated a program of physical development for boys ages 7 to 17. The group meets from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturdays. The program includes basic physical fitness, calisthenics and boxing. DeNucci is assisted by Matty Torchia and Bernie Doherty. Interested young people can drop in at St. Bernard's any Saturday afternoon.

Tennis lessons offered

The Boston Chapter of the United States Sports Clubs (formerly the Boston Ski Club) will be conducting a beginners' tennis course at La Salle College.

The courses consist of three two-hour lessons and will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. May 28, June 4, and June 11, and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. May 29, June 5, and June 12, and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. May 30, June 6, and June 13.

The complete three lesson, six-hour course includes instruction in the forehand, backhand, serve, scoring, and rules of the game.

The classes will be taught by certified instructors, many of whom are top ranked tournament players. The program is under the direction of Morton S. Lederman, a member of the United States Professional Tennis Association and the United States Lawn Tennis Associaton.

Mary Bowler retires

William M. Sanderson, president of R.H. Stearns Company, Boston, regrets to announce the retirement of Miss Mary E. Bowler as assistant personnel director after 40 years of service.

Miss Bowler is a resident of Newton.

Dealership

A-Quality Muffler Centers, Inc. has awarded an exclusive dealership to Bram's Tires and Auto Service, 252 Walnut St., Newtonville.

All mufflers and tailpipes are installed with a written, lifetime guarantee. The average car is fitted within 20 minutes.

Sperber to lead library seminar

The Newton Free Library has announced a second series of informal seminars on "Fiction and Psychiatry," led by Dr. Michael Sperber of Newton at the Main Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, beginning on Tuesday, April 16, at 7:30 p.m.

Sperber will lead a discussion of Stephen Crane's novel "The Red Badge of Courage" and "The Veteran," a short story considered by some to be an extension of Crane's novel.

The group, while discussing Henry Fleming, the 'hero' or 'anti-hero' of Crane's novel, who has an intense feeling of shame, will consider the psychology of shame, what types of people experience it, what the experience is like and how it may be overcome.

Considered a war novel, "The Red Badge of Courage" uses the Civil War as a metaphor to depict Fleming's struggle to achieve manhood . . . to fight the struggle within Ambitious readers could bring another dimension to the discussion by also reading "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber" by Earnest Hemingway, a short story that could add additional prespective to the discussion of Crane's works

The current readings relevant to ninth graders and up, are organized to relate to previous seminars where the concept of guilt and shame were discussed in relation to Conrad's "Lord Jim," Chekov's "The Darline," and "Portnoy's Compalint."

Sperber, a psychiatrist affiliated with the Harvard Medical School, also taught in the department of Social Relations at Harvard. He lives in Newton Centre 7with his wife Renee and their two children, Lisa, two, and Jeffrey, five.

The seminar, an open ended discussion, is free and open to all interested citizens. Though not required, it is suggested that participants read Crane's "Red Badge of Courage" prior to the meeting.

GOP committee to select officers

Newton's eight Republican Ward Committees have completed their cycle of meetings and have elected their representatives to serve on the nominating committee of the Newton Republican City Committee, it was announced by GOP Chairman Julius L. Masow.

The committee is to bring in a slate of officers who are to lead the organization for the next two years. Presentation of the report is scheduled for the May 1 assembly of the full city committe which is comprised of members from all eight ward committees.

The following were elected to the nominating committee: Ward One - Catherine M. Faucher; Ward Two - Barbara Schiller; Ward Three - David James; Ward Four - Mrs. G.M. (Gussie) Swift; Ward Five - Robert Corbett; Ward Six - Katherine F. Bruce; Ward 7 - Martin Stocklan; Ward 8 - Marjorie Heiser.

Stocklan, Ward Seven's chairman, was designated by Masow as chairman protem for the purpose of convening the group.

Red Cross picks chairman

Kerkor Kassabian of 22 Kensington Ave., West Newton, was recently appointed volunteer first aid chairman for the safety programs department of the Greater Boston Red Cross, 99 Brookline Ave., Boston.

As head of the chapter's first aid committee, Kassabian assumes the responsibility of coordinating efforts to further develop, expand and promote first aid program activities throughout the chapter's 20 Greater Boston communities.

Kerkor Kassabian

The new chairman is a certified Red Cross first aid instructor-instructor trainer, and has served as a staff member of the Camp Kiwanee American National Red Cross Acquatic & First Aid School in Hanson, Mass

In addition to his Red Cross efforts, Kassabian is associate professor of Health & Physical Education at Northeastern University. He is also vice-president for the Boy's and Men's Athletic Division of the Massachusetts Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation; former precident of the Eastern Athletic Trainers Association; active member of the professional education committee for the National Athletic Traicers Association; and professional advisory board member for the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Metropolitsn Boston.

Kassabian and his wife Elizabeth have two sons, Gregory, 14, and Paul, 12.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

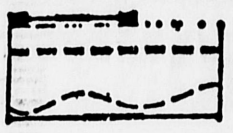

1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

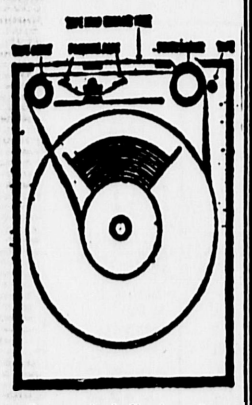

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care. the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes

How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

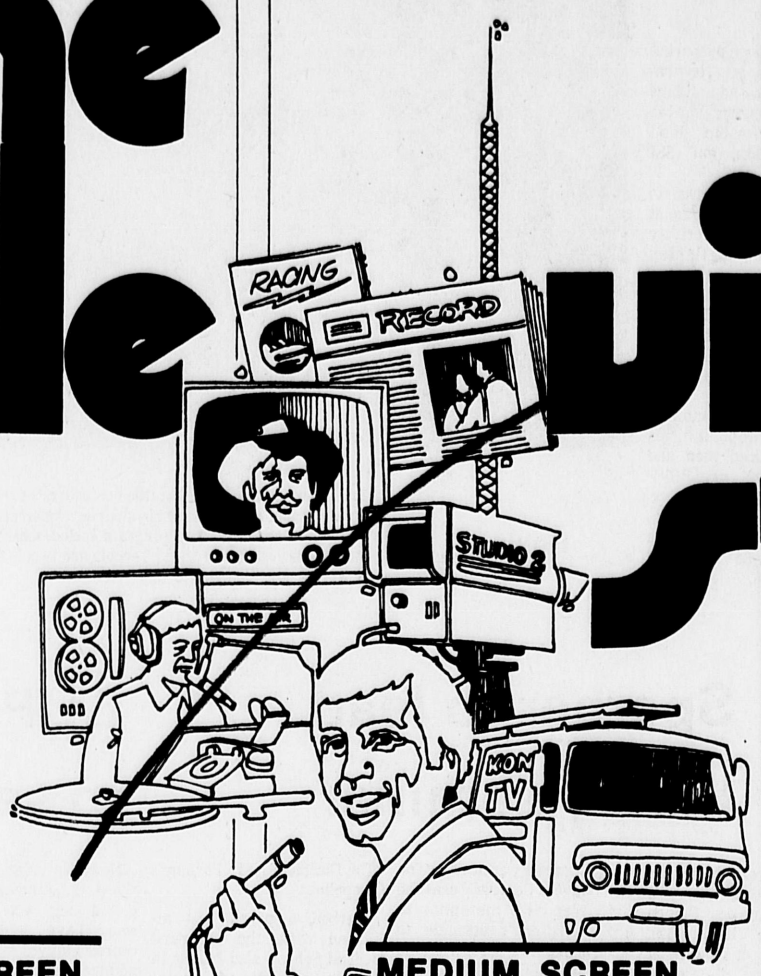

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: I am interested in two recipes—one for a Sunday-type pork chop main dish and the other is a meat loaf that's a little different. Thank you.

Mrs. D.W., Norwood

Answer: By selecting thick chops with pockets, you will find a pork chop serves as a double portion because of a savory stuffing. Ask your meat man to cut pockets in chops from the rib side so they will close during cooking to seal in the stuffing. The family-style meat loaf is flavorful and it's rich red coloring makes it an eye-appealing dish also.

SWEET POTATO STUFFED PORK SHOPS

To prepare stuffing for 6 to 8 chops, cook ½ pound bulk pork sausage with ¼ cup finely chopped onion and ½ cup chopped celery until lightly browned. Pour off drippings. Drain 1 can (18 oz.) sweet potatoes and mash with ½ teaspoon salt. Stir into sausage to blend and fill pocket of each chop with ¼ cup of the mixture. Brown chops in 2 tbs. lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season chops with 1 tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper; cover tightly and bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes or until done. Serves 6-8.

FAMILY BEST BEEF LOAF

2 pounds ground beef
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1 egg
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
one-third cup chopped green pepper
2 medium-sized onions, chopped
¾ cup finely crushed cracker crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup catsup

Combine ground beef, tomato sauce, egg, Worcestershire sauce, green pepper, onion, cracker crumbs, salt and pepper. Mix lightly but thoroughly. Shape meat mixture into a loaf approximately 10 x 4 x 2 inches and place on a rack in an open roasting pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Pour catsup over top of meat loaf and continue baking 10 to 15 minutes or until done. Serves 6-8.

Question: We usually entertain at least 25 people Easter Sunday afternoon and I would appreciate a pretty cookie as well as cake recipe.

Mrs. P.N., Dedham

Answer: The following two recipes can be found in a leaflet offered by the famous Smucker Company. For your free copy, please send a self-addressed, stamped business envelope to: "Smucker's Favorite Recipes," The J. M. Smucker Co., Strawberry Lane, Orrville, Ohio 44667.

BERRYPATCH COFFEECAKE

2 cups unsifted flour, stirred before measuring
½ cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt.
one-third cup butter or margarine
1 egg, slightly beaten
¾ cup milk.
1 cup Smucker's Strawberry Jam
Crumb topping

Stir together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse cornmeal. Blend egg and milk. Add to flour mixture, stirring only until dry ingredients are dampened. Spoon into well-greased 9-inch square pan. Spread strawberry jam evenly over batter. With a knife, swirl jam through batter, first in one direction, then in opposite direction. Sprinkle crumb topping evenly over cake. Bake in 400 degree oven 25-30 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan on wire rack. Serve warm. CRUMB TOPPING: Mix together two-thirds cup firmly packed light brown sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine and ½ cup chopped pecans until crumbly. Makes 9-inch cake or 9 servings.

THIMBLE COOKIES

½ cup butter or margarine
one-third cup confectioners' sugar
1 egg separated
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup unsifted flour stirred before measuring
⅛ teaspoon salt
¾ cup finely chopped pecans
½ cup red raspberry jelly

Cream together butter and sugar. Add egg yolk and vanilla extract; beat well. Stir in flour and salt. If necessary, chill dough until firm enough to handle. Working with half the dough at a time, measure level teaspoons of dough onto waxed paper. Shape into ¾ inch balls. Using a fork, dip balls, one at a time into slightly beaten egg white, then roll in nuts. Place 2-inches apart on ungreased baking sheets. With thimble or thumb, make a depression in center of each. Bake in 350 degree oven for 5 minutes. Remove from oven. Make depression again. Bake an additional 5 to 7 minutes or until set. Cool on racks. At serving time, fill centers with jam. Makes 3½ dozen 1½-inch cookies.

The following two recipes are from a kitchen in Jerusalem, Israel. Mrs. Mary Sanders shares two of her company favorites, Sesame Candy and Stuffed Eggplant.

SESAME CANDY

2 cups toasted sesame seeds
2 tablespoons sugar (heaping tbs.)
2 tablespoons honey

In saucepan heat together the sugar and honey until it comes to a boil. Add sesame seeds and cook approximately 15 minutes, stirring, until seeds turn golden. Pour out onto a wooden bread board which has been spread with a "dot" of oil (to prevent sticking). Dip a spatula in water and spread out mixture. Cool to lukewarm. Cut into squares with a sharp knife and refrigerate.

MARY'S ISRAELI EGGPLANT

Slice a large eggplant one-half inch thick. Make a pocket and fill with prepared hamburg mixture. Dip slices into a mixture of an egg which has been seasoned with salt, pepper, garlic powder and paprika. Dip into bread crumbs and fry in corn oil. Prepare a tomato sauce: Saute 1 onion and 1 sliced green pepper; add a small can tomato paste, garlic powder, salt and pepper. Put sauce in bottom of a baking dish and top with eggplant slices. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

Across the Kitchen Counter

food and fashion
by Ruth Lenson

Easter, throughout the Christian world, brings the happy feast which follows the Lenten fast. Sweets, meats, delicacies which the devout have denied themselves may be relished completely.

This most holy of holidays is a time for families and friends to gather together for festive rejoicing. Children look forward to Easter egg hunts and the Easter bunny's gifts of sweets, toys and flowers.

Fragrant baked ham has been one of the traditional Easter foods, although for some families the traditional has been a crown roast of spring lamb or luscious roast stuffed turkey.

The convenience of fully cooked boneless ham is a boon for the man doing the carving. And because there is no waste, the homemaker gets her money's worth of good flavorful eating. A fully cooked ham only needs to be heated in a 325 degree oven, about 10 minutes per pound to an internal temperature of 130 degrees and a colorful sparkling glaze is the crowning touch for a ham to give the meat that picture-perfect appeal.

Rich desserts and handsome breads are generally a most important item in an Easter dinner — perhaps because many people have missed sweets during the Lenten season. Cakes decorated with jelly beans — fruit pies — cookies grace the Easter table.

FRUITED HAM ON RICE AMANDINE

8 slices (¼ inch) boneless fully cooked ham
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup syrup from fruit cocktail
One-third cup honey
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 pound can fruit cocktail, drained
2 bananas cut into 1-inch slices
4 cups cooked seasoned rice
¼ cup toasted slivered almonds

Brown ham slices in butter or margarine in skillet over moderate heat. Remove ham slices from skillet, cover and keep hot. Combine syrup from fruit cocktail, honey, lemon juice, cornstarch, and nutmeg; mix well. Stir into pan drippings. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add fruit cocktail; heat. Mix rice and almonds. Place ham on hot rice. Arrange banana slices around ham and pour piping hot sauce over all. Serve immediately. Serves 4-6.

BAKED HAM WITH PINEAPPLE GLAZE

5 to 7 pound butt or shank half of a "cook before eating" ham or

5 to 8 pound boneless fully cooked formed or rolled smoked ham

Place ham in an open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part and does not rest in fat or on bone. Do not add water. Do not cover. Bake in slow 325 degree oven until fully cooked ham registers 130 degrees and the "cook before eating" ham registers 160 degrees. Allow approximately 15 minutes per pound for a fully cooked ham and 22 to 25 minutes per pound for a "cook before eating" half ham. For a whole one, allow 18 to 20 minutes per pound. It is always nice to score the ham in a diamond pattern with a sharp knife and insert cloves about half-way through the baking for a pretty effect. The following glaze adds the final gilding.

PINEAPPLE GLAZE

1 cup dark corn syrup
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1½ teaspoons dry mustard
1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) crushed pineapple
Maraschino cherry halves

Combine corn syrup, orange rind, dry mustard and crushed pineapple. Bring to a boil. During last hour of baking, glaze ham with mixture. Decorate with cherry halves.

CRANBERRY LEG OF LAMB

1 leg of lamb 4½ to 5 pounds
1 clove garlic, sliced
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 can (8 oz.) (1 cup) whole cranberry sauce
½ cup cherry jam
2 tablespoons port wine
2 tablespoons all purpose flour
¼ cup cold water

Cut 2 or 3 slits in lamb; insert garlic pieces in slits. Combine ginger and mustard; rub over lamb. Place meat, fat side up, on rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast in 325 degree oven for 3 to 3½ hours or till meat thermometer registers 175 to 180 degrees. Meanwhile, in saucepan, combine cranberry sauce and jam. Stir over low heat till melted; stir in wine. After meat has roasted 1 hour, pour sauce over lamb. Baste occasionally during roasting. Place meat on warm serving platter. Skim excess fat from meat juices; add water to meat juices to make 1¼ cups. Blend flour with water; add to meat juices. Cook quickly, stirring constantly, till mixture thickens and bubbles. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Pass sauce with lamb. Serves 10-12.

HOLIDAY ORANGE CAKE

2 and one-third cups sifted cake flour
1 and one-third cups sugar
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ cup shortening
Two-thirds cup freshly squeezed orange juice
One-third cup water
3 eggs
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
Gold Dust filling
1 orange, peeled, sectioned, well-drained
Flaked cocomt

Sift together dry ingredients into large mixer bowl; add shortening, one-third cup orange juice and water. Beat at low speed until blended, scraping sides of bowl; beat at medium speed for 2 minutes. Add eggs and remaining orange juice, blending at low speed; beat at medium speed for an additional 2 minutes. Stir in orange peel. Pour into 2 waxed paper-lined 8-inch cake pans; bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes. Let stand in pans 10 minutes before turning our onto wire racks for cooling. When cool, spread half of Gold Dust Filling between layers and top with remaining filling. Arrange drained orange sections in a spiral design around the top of the cake and sprinkle coconut in center.

GOLD DUST FILLING

¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
4 teaspoons grated orange peel
1½ cups freshly squeezed orange juice
1½ tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
2 eggs, well beaten
1½ tablespoons butter or margarine

In saucepan, thoroughly combine sugar and cornstarch; blend in orange peel and juice, stirring until very smooth. Blend in remaining ingredients; bring to a boil over medium heat; stirring constantly. Boil for 2 minutes. Cool.

APPLESAUCE MINCE PIE

1 pkg. pie crust mix
1 can or jar (1 lb.) applesauce
2 cups prepared mincemeat
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

Line a 9-inch pie pan with pastry. Combine applesauce, mincemeat and melted butter or margarine; fill pie pan. Top with remaining pastry, rolled thin, cut in strips, and woven lattice fashion; trim. Press edges together and flute. Bake at 425 degrees for 35 minutes. Serve with cubes of sharp cheddar cheese.

Eyeglasses that beautify

The eyes have it

"It all began with Grace Kelly, Jackie Onassis and Audrey Hepburn," explained tall, handsome Don Wilbur, northeast zone manager of Providence based Universal Optical Company, at a recent optometrist convention.

"Twenty years ago, Grace Kelly appeared on the cover of Life magazine wearing a pair of large sun glasses, and from that point on we became a fashion business and it's been growing tremendously."

The glass shelves of the Universal Optical booth at the Sheraton Boston were laden with ice cream color plastic frames in all sizes and shapes as well as delicate metal frames in gold and silver. Though all around there was much noise and milling about, Don Wilbur greeted us warmly and took time out to answer some questions about the current booming eyeglass industry.

What are the new trends in eyeglasses?

Definitely the large eye—the trend world-wide has been the large eye look. This has caused some problems in the optical business because it is very difficult to get lenses to fit extra large frames. Many times we have to design a frame that looks larger than it actually is in order to get a prescription lens to fit. The major lens manufacturers have already changed production over to make large lenses both in plastic and glass.

Are today's lenses shatter-proof?

Lenses are not shatterproof, but they are "impact resistant." According to government regulations, the lense has to be a minimum thickness and has to go through a drop ball test. The test is the drop of a 0.56 ounce steel ball five-eighths inch-in-diameter from a height of 50 inches. This test is performed on the surface of every lens — each lens that survives is impact resistant to that standard. This does not mean that a lens cannot be broken—it's just that after undergoing this drop ball test the chances that a lens would break are extremely remote.

What frame colors are "in" this year?

The new colors are all over the lot. Fresh bright colors. Black has disappeared for both men and women. The day of buying a basic frame to go with every outfit is over. Today a woman should have two or three frames to match various color combinations she may wear. The fashionable woman of today would own a minimum of three pairs of glasses—evening glasses, fun glasses (which could also be sunglasses) and of course her reading glasses.

Frames have been colored for the past few years and the newest ones are the soft ice cream colors—the fades. Soft colors which are cosmetically appealing in varying shades of pinks, blues, greens.

What is the best method of choosing a frame?

Frames come in various sizes. This does not mean that an extra large frame would be correct for a small face, but it would mean that the woman with a small face would still be choosing a larger frame than she wore 10 years ago. The little narrow frame is out. It's passe. Frames come in any number of sizes — anywhere from 4 to 10 sizes in one particular frame.

The oval, the round, the octagonal shape—they're all "in" as long as they are large. The trend has been for the plastic frame for women. The younger woman is wearing the metal goggle and the more mature woman is wearing plastic or what we refer to as "zyl" (which rhymes with smile) — a special form of plastic.

Are lenses now treated for indoor as well as outdoor wear?

Yes. Corning glass developed what they call a photochrome lens which was originally available in grey — a light gray. It wasn't truly a sunglass — it was a fashion tint. It did darken; exposure to ultra violet rays would cause them to darken but they weren't truly sunwear. Today, however, they have a sunwear lens they call "photosun" which is darker than the original and is available through our distributors by prescription.

Within the next few months, this summer, there will be another color to this photochromic which is already big in Europe which is called "Photobrown" or "phototan." Two difference companies are making them and they are beautiful, especially in gold metal frames.

What about lens tints?

In the plastic lenses you can have any shade you wish, especially in yellow lenses. These are called shooting lenses and what they do is cut down on fog and would be great for driving. Primarily your sun lens will be grays, green and more and more tints. These are not harmful.

What are the new fashions in men's eyeglasses?

Primarily metal. Gold and silver frames. The square look with double-barred bridge. The goggle is still in and has been for the past two years. Basically it's the same goggle that was used in World War II, a pilot's goggle but not quite as extreme as they were in those days.

Is there a particular lens that should be worn by people sensitive to fluorescent lighting?

There are some people who are sensitive to ultra violet light. A doctor will prescribe the proper lens — however, there are lenses that are perfectly clear that will absorb ultra violet light and light tints will also be effective. But this would be a doctor's decision wherever this sensitivity existed.

—o—

Summing it all up is the caption in a recent Vogue magazine Universal Optical advertisement: "Without good vision, you squint. And frown. And eventually, wrinkle! And when it's too late you'll wish you'd listened to this advice. "Have your eyes examined regularly. If you need glasses, wear them." These wise words come from the eye professions dedicated to your complete visual well-being.

Newton residents host World Vision dinner

Mr. and Mrs. O. Berner Vikre of Newton will be a host and hostess for the big World Vision dinner program Saturday, April 27, at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Newton.

More than 1,200 Greater Boston churchmen, and several score of churches sponsor orphans and children under the WV childcare program which now provides total care for 57,074 children overseas. Total care includes housing, feeding, clothing, medical assistance and Christian education—all to help children lead healthy, normal lives.

The keynote speaker at the event, for 600 clergy and lay leaders, will be the Rev. Dr. Stanley Mooneyham, president of W. V.

He will report on the expanding program for childcare, and other projects involving clinics, leprosariums, babies' homes, schools, leadership training for nationals, famine relief in Africa and other countries, and providing seeds and tools to help people help themselves.

Auburndale Club has 'Spring Fling'

The eighth annual spring fling of the Auburndale Woman's Club will be celebrated on Wednesday, April 24, at the clubhouse of the Auburndale Club on Melrose St.

In 1967, the executive board of the club started the tradition of having, for its fund-raising affair, a so-called spring fling. In 1968, a smorgasbord was included and has, by popular request, been an annual event.

After the luncheon, there will be an afternoon of card and other games with table prizes. Reservations may be made by calling Miss Clara Ashley, 969-8588 on or before April 21.

Weddings

Quebec honeymoon trip for Mr. and Mrs. David H. Currier

The Fremont Methodist Church in Gloversville, N.Y., was the scene of the March 30 wedding of Sandra Jean Baker and David Hamilton Currier.

Rev. Albert Brockway officiated at the ceremony and the reception was held at the Circle Inn, Mayfield, N.Y

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion C. Saltsman, Gloversville, had her college roommate, Deborah Heintz, as her maid of honor. The bridesmaid was Miss Cynthia Reali of Gloversville.

Mr. Currier, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Currier of Newton and Vineyard Haven, had George C. Robinson of Waban as his best man.

The new Mrs Currier graduated from Emerson College. Her husband is a graduate of Newton High School and the Lenox School. He served with the U.S. forces

Mrs. David Currier

Patricia Poche weds James Patrick McMahon

The marriage of Patricia Poche and James Patrick McMahon was solemnized on March 30, at St. Jean's Church in Newton

Rev. George Defore officiated at the double ring ceremony, and the bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Alfred Mannarino of West Newton. The reception was held at the home of the bride's mother

The new Mrs. McMahon, daughter of Mrs. Nickie Poche, West Newton, wore a candle light, peau d'soire gown trimmed with alecon lace and beads. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and baby's breath.

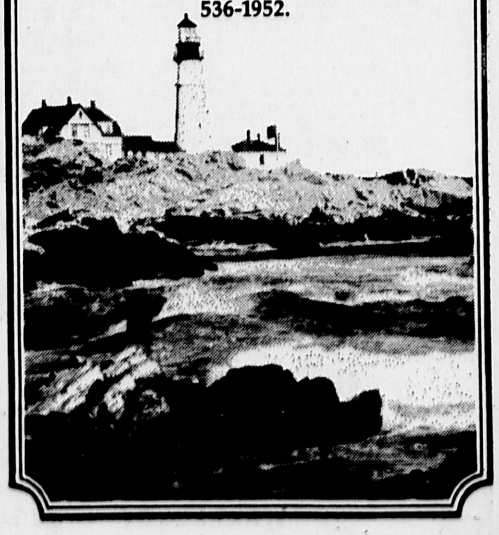

Linda Poche was her sister's maid of honor and Curt McGloughlin, of Cambridge, served as best man for the groom.

Mr. McMahon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. McMahon of Cambridge.

After a honeymoon trip to the Smokey Mountains in Virginia, the couple are residing in Waltham.

Women's Co-operative plans opening of Auburndale center

The Newton Women's Co-operative will have an Open House on Sunday, April 21, from 2-5 p.m. to celebrate the opening of its new center at the Centenary Methodist Church, 230 Central St., Auburndale. The center will be open Monday and Friday mornings, Wednesday afternoon and Thursday evening from 7-9 p.m.

As a part of a continuing service to the women's community, the co-op will begin a series of courses and workshops, the week of April 21, in areas ranging from resume writing to crafts to bicycle mechanics to a course in women's literature and poetry, and to a session in movement awareness. Child care will be provided at a minimum charge for any women utilizing these programs or just visiting and working at the center.

The co-operative will function as a multi-service center where women will have a "free space" to come together to explore their collective resources in order to provide specific services to women in the community. Some of these services include establishing support groups, initiating day care and after school care programs; and providing referrals, information and consultations through the counselling task force. The counselling task force is also compiling lists of employment centers, in addition to referrals for mental health and medical facilities which provide quality care for women.

Chartered as the Women's Co-operative, Inc, of Newton, in 1973, the group is a non-profit educational and social service organization with a membership of over 100 women. The co-op evolved to enable suburban women to overcome their isolation from each other and from society by providing women with a sense of community and with a basis of support for one another.

For further information contact the center at 244-6843 or visit the office at 230 Central St., Auburndale.

Ms. Cushman to describe Egypt

"Egypt As I Saw It" will be described by Miss Elizabeth B. Cushman of Newton during a slide talk scheduled for the Waban Branch of the Newton Free Library on Thursday, April 18, at 10:30 a.m.

Miss Cushman travels extensively and has selected a group of slides for this presentation including scenes of the pyramids at Gizah, the Great Temples at Karnah and Luxor, The Valley of the Kings, Cairo and Alexandria.

Waban Branch Librarian Arlene Lynde, who joins Miss Cushman in welcoming all to a view of Egypt in Waban, will keep coffee hot for all guests from 10 a.m. on.

Nash named to advisory board

Professor Paul Nash of 123 Park Street, Newton, has been named to the advisory board of the national committee against corporal punishment in schools.

Nash, a professor at Boston University's School of Education, said the board seeks more humane treatment of children. "Some states have outlawed corporal punishment. But few local communities have taken steps to eliminate physical punishment in their schools. It is simply left up to the teacher to decide," Nash said.

His current research focuses on helping people develop self-insight and an ability to communicate. "The universally condemned and universally used practice of corporal punishment hampers a child's ability to either know himself or relate to his world," according to Nash.

Also serving on the board are Bruno Bettelheim, Ramsey Clark, William Glasser, Edmond Gordon, John Holt, Jonathan Kozol, Fritz Redl, Robert Schaefer, and Charles Silberman.

VA program tries to rescue drug addicts

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — The talking stopped as Herbert walked into the room, took his regular seat in the circle, and began slowly stroking his neat Afro.

Each of the other 16 men stared at the tall, muscular youth until one finally asked, "Well?"

Herbert grinned and began: "I saw the dude about work. Then went by to sign for school. Ran into Leon."

The others hooted and groaned, but Herbert continued, speaking softly with a slight slur.

"Leon was my main bag man, you know. He offered me a chip, but I thought, man, and I flew."

Unusual Group

Ralph Simmons, a heroin addict for 18 years but now a counselor for other addicts, interrupted. "Go on, Herbert, tell them what you asked me this morning when you picked up your pass."

"Aw man, I was just kidding," Herbert protested. "Well, I asked Ralph how they could tell if I came back dirty. He said I'd have to take a golden flow test and if they found heroin in my urine I'd be kicked out of the ward. And, well, I know I'm not ready for the streets."

Herbert eased back as Ralph turned to another addict and began prodding. It was an unusual looking group assembled in the top floor of a ward at the Jefferson Barracks Veterans Administration Hospital. A middle-aged, white insurance salesman sat next to a black cab driver. Heroin, and an attempt to free themselves from the drug, had brought them together.

Most of the men going through the program are veterans of Vietnam.

"The final thing for me was when my Momma caught me stealing her watch and ring," said Ron, another of the group. "She was in the kitchen and she just turned and saw me as I was going through her pocketbook. She said, 'Ron, I love you so much I hate to see you coming.'"

Looked So Peaceful

Jonathan, a young black wearing blue military pajamas like most of the others, spoke up: "I remember my first time. I was watching these guys nodding out. They looked so peaceful. I asked one dude what was going on. He said junk. He took me down to this basement, there was tinfoil and matches all over the floor. He said it cost $4.

"I never did like taking shots but, when he shot me, it didn't hurt like a doctor. I said, 'Hey, man, you poisoning me.' I couldn't even keep my eyes open. I was back that night with another $4."

"The drug does something to you," said Oscar, who had been listening silently. "What else would make you get up in the morning when it's three below and seven inches of snow on the ground and they're closing schools and you go stand in a cold hall somewhere waiting for the man with a fix?"

Brad, a long-haired white youth with Mickey Mouse tattooed on his left forearm, leaned up from his chair and spoke loudly: "I gotta quit acting like a baby. I'm getting married and I hope my wife will mean more to me than dopem The first time I hoot I'm gonna blow it all. I don't have many friends who don't do dope. I'm gonna have to find some new ones."

Al, sitting in the circle, is 41 and has been on heroin for more than 20 years. "You sound like a storybook," he remarked to Brad. "You get married and live happily ever after. It's not like that.

Looking for a Fix

"I've been in the penitentiary five times. I know I'm tired of what I'm doing—waking up every morning looking for a fix. I have a nice income, own my own cab. But it's all going in my arm. I called my friend Ralph and said, 'help me.'"

The Veterans Administration has set up 44 drug programs, and mandated its 168 hospitals to accept drug-related cases. It recently sent two representatives to talk with Dr. Soujas C. Lahiri at the Jefferson Barracks Hospital and try to learn why his program is one of the nation's most successful in convincing addicts they can live without heroin.

Let It Start With Me

One wearing a yamalke. and one holding a spray of palm
A melancholy old Jew and a lonesome old Christian
Sat side by side - Silently - Brooding.

"Easter and Passover now have passed
In glory. the youngest son has basked
The four questions have all been asked
Elijah's cup and the sumptuous repast
Have conjured memories out of the past.

The only ones who rued the holy days
Were the pascal lamb and the Easter Ham
The boy in the casket from Viet Nam
And the youngster caught up in the drug scene jam '

The old Jew raised arms high. "Moses. lead us to the Promised Land."
The old Christian crossed his arms, "Jesus. take us by the hand."
Then, together they prayed, "Oh God. let these holy days be the beginning of a kinder world.
And, Oh, God, let it start with me - Shalom - Alleluia '

Community schools serve Auburndale and Oak Hill

Auburndale Community School is unique among the community schools in Newton in that is is the only one which combines two elementary school districts into one community school.

When the committee at Williams School learned that the idea of a community school was also being discussed among Burr School parents. it was suggested that the two groups combine forces in fostering one community school for all of Auburndale

In the beginning non-conflicting programs operated in both schools, but because the Recreation Department has been running programs five nights a week in the Burr School, it proved more practical to hold all community school offerings there. The fact that the Newton Recreation Department allows the community schools to "piggy-back" on its athletic programs in various schools throughout the city has been an important factor in their rapid growth over the past few years.

The Auburndale Community School Council, composed of Carol Walsh and Joe Doolin from Burr School, and Ruth Brandwein, Sherwin Feinhandler and coordinator Joan Chaisson from Williams School first convened a year ago.

Acting on the results of a survey run in the Auburndale Community Association Newsletter, this committee wrote a propsal and eventually obtained funding from the Newton Community School Council for the three programs offered in the Fall of 1973 These were pottery guitar, and modern dance The pottery workshop with Martha Akagi. and guitar lessons with Nancy Dallaire have proven so popular that they are repeated in the spring term. which began Feb 25

A new program of folk dancing led by Bud Hoff was added and is also well received. This is an open class which anyone may join any Thursday evening at the Burr School, continuing through May 2. Another new class, quilting, taught by Barbara Trelstad, was to begin on Thursday, April 11, 7:30-9 p.m. and run for seven consecutive Thursday, terminating May 23.

Running concurrently with the evening programs are four daytime programs at Burr and Williams for children in grades one, two. and three. Twelve children from each school participate in puppetry workshops under the tutelage of Martha Akagi. and 26 youngsters take part in dance workshops conducted by Beverly Kandler.

In addition to these offerings, the program includes special events such as the Auburndale Community Sing, held recently at Lasell Junior College. A spring bicycle clinic and rally, still in the planning stage, and a Newton North High School band concert is scheduled for May.

Another adjunct to the community school is the opportunity for community service offered through the two Auburndale community helpers programs

The first of these. the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) meets for two hours each Tuesday afternoon in the general meeting room of Norumbega Gardens on Ash Street. A dozen or more workers have rolled hundreds of bandages for Newton-Wellesley Hospital, made favors for nursing homes, stuffed envelopes for the American Red Cross, done clerical work for Newton's lead screening program, and participated in many other endeavors.

The second community helpers program involves a number of women who bake home made cookies each month for the residents of Medfield State Hospital. New volunteers are encouraged and welcomed to both these projects.

It is felt that it is essential that the community school reflect the tastes of the entire community The Auburndale Council seeks to expand the community school council until it represents all segments of its village population. People are invited to help plan next year's programs. For further information people may contact Joan Chaisson (332-8544).

Serving the Oak Hill Park section of Newton. Memorial Community School offers courses in yoga, silk screening, drawing, pottery, needlework and bridge. and a women's discussion group.

The courses are held at Memorial School on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

Future plans include a spring ecology walk through the woods which border Oak Hill Park Guided trails will be planned for various age groups, pre-school through adult.

A family day of games, picnics, and music is also being planned. Recipes for a communicy cook book are presently being gathered.

For further information concerning Memorial Community School. people may call Naomi Stein at 332-8188.

Rabbi Ira Youdovin to speak on Reform Judaism

The final lecture in the adult education series concerning "Reform Judaism—Past, Present, Future" will be held at Temple Beth Avodah, 45 Puddingstone Lane, on Friday, April 12, at 8:15 p.m. following the worship service.

Guest speaker will be Rabbi Ira Youdovin, director of the North American Board of the World Union for Progressive Judaism (W.U.P.J.). His topic is "Reform Judaism Throughout the World."

The World Union for Progressive Judaism was established in London in 1926. Delegates from six countries were involved: Great Britain, United States, France, Sweden, Germany, and India. Their purpose was first to assist Jews everywhere whop by themselves, would not be able to maintain a liberal Jewish program. Second, they instituted a series of biennial conventions at which delegates from all over the world gathered to discuss matters of mutual concern.

Today, the W.U.P.J. has affiliates in 25 countries. The World Union has become increasingly involved in building a viable progressive Jewish movement in Israel. It has nine firmly established congregations.

Before attaining his present post, Rabbi Youdovin was assistant rabbi of Temple Emanuel in worcester. He has been active in youth work, and has served as program director of the first NFTY Nation Academy. He is also director of the Israel Commission of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

During a year long study of Reform Judiasm, the congregation has considered Reform beliefs and values in the United States.

The group will examine the position of Reform Judaism in the rest of the world, and examine how American convictions about Reform Judaism contribute to the world wide Progressive movement.

Rabbi Robert Miller and the congregation of Temple Beth Avodah invite guests to worship with them on April 12, and join them for the lecture by Rabbi Youdovin. For further information, epole may call the temple at 527-0045.

Rabbi Ira Youdovin

Sunrise service at Echo Bridge

The annual Sunrise Service at Echo Bridge will be held Easter Sunday at 6 a.m.

Many local churches are participating in this traditional service, sponsored by the Second Baptist Church.

Rev. David Voymas, pastor of First Methodist Church; Rev. William Hardy, pastor of Wellesley Bible Fellowship; Rev. Craig Laurent, assistant pastor of Hyde Park Congregational Church; Rev. Argos Zodhiates of the Greek Evangelical Church; and Rev. David Black will be with Second Baptist Pastor Francis Crisci at the service.

The young people from the Greek Evangelical Church will sing and Rev. Black will play a trumpet solo.

Dan Lane of Campus Crusade High School Ministries, will be the speaker.

Coffee and homemade muffins will be served at Second Baptist Church after the service.

Everyone is welcome.

Easter services at Second Baptist

Rev. Francis Crisci, pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Newton, said this week that Easter services April 14 will be held at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

At the morning service, Rev. Crisci will speak on "The Risen Lord."

Nursery and children's church services will be provided.

An Easter concert will be given at the evening service. John Miles of Canton will perform a trumpet solo, Fred Young will be the vocal soloist, as will Lois Hover and Howard Wilkins. Ruth Whalen and Rev. Crisci will sing a duet.

Several instrumental arrangements by young people of the church will end the musical story of Christ's resurrection.

Easter music planned

Easter Sunday will be a special day at the Evangelical Baptist Church, 23 Chapel St., Newton.

Easter music will include such selections as, "Hallelujah," by Buck, "Easter Chimes," by Gregg, "The Messiah," by Handel, and "Hail The Conquering Saviour," by Carter, sung by the sanctuary choir under the direction of Robert C. Carter.

Soprano soloist, Mrs. Dorothy Gott, will render, "Open Wide Ye Doors," by John Peterson, and a group of high school students will bring a special selection, "Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow."

Several new members will receive the right had of Christan fellowship into the church from the diaconate and the pastor, John S. Viall.

Easter Lilies, plants and ferns will add to the joy of the Easter services.

At 7 p.m., there will be a special presentation of Easter music in an Easter cantata by the sanctuary choir. An added feature will be an Easter presentation in pantomine and music by the youth of the church.

An invitation is extended to the general public by the pastor, John S. Viall.

Spanish Jewry lecture subject

Solomon Schechter Day School P.T.A. will hold its Third Annual Irving R. Shapiro Memorial Lecture Tuesday, April 16.

The lecture series was begun three years ago after the untimely death of the president of the board of trustees of Solomon Schechter Day School, Irving R. Sapiro - a man of vision and deep sensitivity who gave so much of himself for the children of the school.

Yosef Hayim Yerushalmi, a Schdchter parent, will be the featured speaker. A native of New York, Yosef Yerushalmi was educated at Yeshiva University, the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and Columbia University from which he holds a doctorate in Jewish History.

Specializing in Sephardic and Marrano studies, he has engaged in extensive research in the archives of the Inquisition in Portugal, Spain and Italy. Among his books, the most recent is a major study of Marranos in the 17th century entitled "From Spanish Court to Italian Ghetto," published by Columbia University Press.

Yerushalmi is professor of Hebrew and of Jewish History at Harvard University.

Yersuhalmi's topic for this lecture will be "Return to Sefarad: Modern Spain and the Jews Since the 19th Century." The lecture will be held at 8 p.m. in the Vestry of Temple Emanuel. There is no admission charge. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Yosef Yerushalmi

First Baptist group visits Haiti

Members of the First Baptist Church Senior and Junior High Fellowship and Tuxis clubs held a 20-mile Wallathon through Newton recently.

The purpose was to raise money to send members of the Senior High Fellowship on a work-study trip to Haiti.

After departing from Logan Airport Friday, April 12, the group will arrive in Port-au-Prince the same afternoon. From there they will travel to Limbe and visit the citadel of Henrie Christophe. They will also visit the Baptist Hospital in Limbe. From there they will journey to Verrettes and help on some work projects at the primary school. This school, Ecole la Providence, is one of the first primary schools in the rural area of Haiti, and there are plans to expand it into a secondary and vocational school. If it develops according to plan, it will be one of the very few rural secondary and vocational school in Haiti.

At both Limbe and Verrettes the Fellowship group will be identifying need priorities on a larger scale, whether in medical care or educational services, to which they can dedicate their concern and their efforts to help bring about a significant improvement. The group will leave Haiti from Port-au-Prince on April 20 and return to Newton Centre that evening.

Members of the group going to Haiti are: Margaret Bartlett, Marlene Moy, Bill O'Donnell, Joy Peck, Ray Rist, Phil Rounseville, Lloyd Taylor, Gail Temperley, Alex Wyman and Pam Wood. They will be accompanied by Chris French, who worked in Haiti for two years, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wittrup and Willem VanPelt.

Woman cantor here April 23

Cantor Sheila May Cline of Mount Neboh Congregation in New York City, one of the first two women in Jewish history who will be invested as cantor, will present a concert of Jewish music Tuesday, April 23, at the Chestnut Hill Country Club at 6:30 p.m. for B'nai B'rith Market Lodge.

Her program will include liturgical music, Chassidic nigueneem, Israeli and Ladino songs, Jewish opera and pop.

Cantor Cline was graduated from Brandeis University as a national scholar in the creative arts and also holds a diploma from the New England Conservatory of Music. She is continuing her studies at Hebrew Union College - School of Sacred Music, New York City.

Boston born Canton Cline was winner of the Massachusetts Young Artist's award. As soprano soloist of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations' Institute for The Creative and Performing Arts, Cantor Cline worked with composers Paul Ben-Haim of Israel, Frederick Piket and Lazar Weiner, both of New York City and Herbert Fromm of Boston. Her professional appearances have included opera, concerts, summer stock, radio and television, and she has been profiled on the ABC Television Network program, "Women and the Temple."

Reservoir grounds closed

The Metropolitan District Commission issued a reminder recently that the Chestnut Hill Reservoir grounds are still closed to the public.

The grounds were closed last November by order of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, when it was found that abuses were taking place that could possibly pollute the public water supply.

Several. years ago an iron picket fence surrounding the reservoir was opened in order that residents of neighboring communities could utilize the grounds for recreational purposes.

M.D.C. Officials said that they would like to open the reservoir to the public again but must receive greater public support before it is possible.

Nearly 150 exhibits at MIT open house

Ever wondered what a virus looks like? Or wanted to see the world's most powerful magnet? Or bring in an airplane for a simulated landing at a busy airport?

These and nearly 150 other exhibits and demonstrations will be featured at the 1974 Open House at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Saturday, April 13, from noon to 5 p.m.

The program will also include a number of dramatic, musical and dance performances, a major environmental art exhibit in Hayden Gallery, the M.I.T. Historical Collections and other cultural and sports events.

Open House, held every two years, is organized and carried out by M.I.T. students who want to show their parents and the public the things that make M.I.T. an interesting place.

This year's program is organized around a dozen tours covering as many areas of the campus. Guided tours will run continuously and visitors may take as many as time and endurance permit. Visitors will also be free to roam on their own to see exhibits that are of particular interest.

One tour, called "brobdingnagia," will take guests through five of M.I.T.'s large interdepartmental laboratories, including the Francis Bitter National Magnet Laboratory, the Nuclear Reactor, the High Voltage Laboratory, Project MAC, the Parsons Hydrodynamics Laboratory and the M.I.T. Historical Collections. Buses, running at 10-15 minute intervals will transport visitors to these facilities.

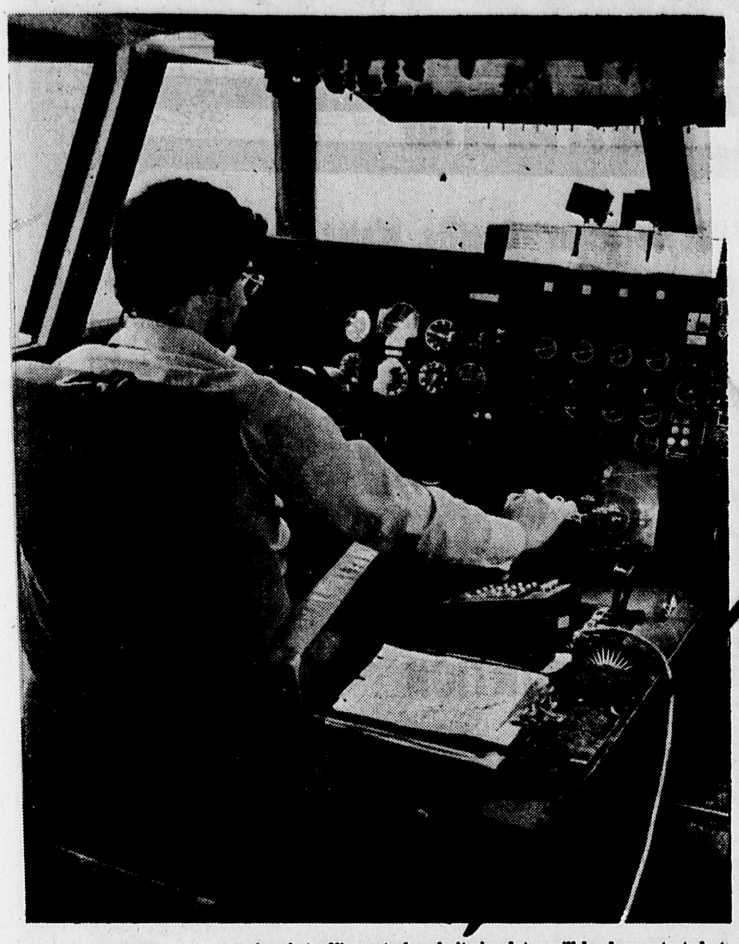

Special exhibits will include light and photography experiments in Professor Harold E. Edgerton's "Strobe Alley," creation of newspaper ads via computer, building models in the architecture department, a mock-up and flight simulator of the Concorde supersonic transport cockpit, a live microwave-cable link up between the television centers at Harvard and M.I.T., and a demonstration of glass blowing techniques.

Several lectures have been scheduled. A major panel discussion, "Economics and the Future of Energy," will be presented at 1 p.m. in Room 1-120. Speakers include Professors Morris Adelman, Henry D. Jacoby, Paul W. MacAvoy, Paul W. Joskow, with Erick Rosenfeld, a junior in economics, as moderator.

Also on the program will be several events which have proved popular at previous Open Houses. One is "The Ultimate Magic Show, or Chemistry in Action," an action-packed demonstration scheduled for 1 p.m. In the Center for Materials Science and Engineering there will be a demonstration of metal castings and sample M.I.T. medallions will be given to visitors.

M.I.T.'s Bates Linear Accelerator--which recently achieved its optimum 400 megavolt operating level--in Middleton, Mass., also will be open for visitors on Open House day. Tours and lectures will be held there from 1-4 p.m.

Complete programs for Open House are available by calling the Open House office, (617) 253-5430.

MIT FLIGHT

An air traffic control cockpit simulator will be demonstrated at the 1974 Open House at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Saturday, April 13, from noon to 5 p.m. The simulator includes a screen (right center, near the pilot's hand) which displays for the pilot other aircraft in the immediate vicinity.

Exhibit of embroideries at Art Museum

The Museum of Fine Arts has mounted an exhibition of "Brooks, Blossoms, Birds and Bowers" English Embroidery 1575-1700, which will be shown through June 23, in Galleries T-1 and T-2.

Nearly 100 English embroideries of the Elizabethan era and the seventeenth century are assembled for the first time in this exhibition. All of the rare embroideries on view, worked either by professionals or amateures, were intended for home use.

Small, exquisitely worked bags, gloves, and costume accessories are featured, as well as large and showy crewel-embroidered bed hangings. As the exhibition's title indicates, the English lady of leisure had a keen interest in gardening and natural history, two subjects which inspired lively patterns for embroidered costumes, accessories and home furnishings. Fanciful designs of silk-embroidered flowers, frequently accompanied by caterpillars, flies, and ladybugs, gayly embellished the costume of the well-dressed Elizabethan lady.

The exhibition also includes embroidered pictures, elaborate writing boxes and jewel cabinets, which were worked by young girls in the 17th century.

All of the embroideries included in the exhibition are from the Museum's permanent holdings in English Embroideries, the core of which is The Elizabeth Day McCormick Collection.

Lobsters to hold tryouts

BOSTON — The Boston Lobsters of the World Team Tennis League today announced plans for a tryout camp to evaluate prospective players not under commitment to other World Team Tennis teams.

According to Managing Director John Korff, the team will give exceptional men and women the opportunity to make the Lobsters' 8-player roster during sessions at the Boston Harbour Tennis Club on Friday, April 19 (9 a.m. - 4 p.m.); Saturday, April 20 (4 p.m. - 10 p.m.) and Sunday April 21 (1 p.m. - 5 p.m.).

The camp will be conducted by Director of Player Development Arnie Brown. Participation will be by invitation only, although established New England players wishing to compete may contact the Lobsters' office at (617) 783-2110.

LOBSTER TALES. . . Ion Tiriac, player-coach, of the Lobsters, recently won the men's doubles in the World Championship Tennis Tournament in Sao Paulo, Brazil with his Italian partner Adriano Panatta. . . After a very successful visit in Boston, Pat Bostrom is undergoing intensive coaching in California under Tony Traebert. . . Also looking towards the Lobsters' season opener is Kerry Melville. Kerry has been training in Australia for the past month and is now returning to Virginia Slims Competition. . . Lobsters' draftee Roger Taylor reached the semifinals of World Championship Tennis South African tournament with a brilliant win over Rod Laver. . . During extensive phone conversations with Jeanne Evert's father, Jimmy, Evert indicated that Jeanne is interested in playing in World Team Tennis if not this season then next year. The only drawback for Jeanne is the speed of the World Team Tennis court surface. On a recent trip to Florida it was noted that Jeanne, high on the Lobsters' draft list, and all the Everts were wearing Lobster T-shirts.

NASL signs 4 more top draft picks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The North American Soccer League has announced the signing of four more top draft choices to bring to a record six the number of signings with three weeks left before the season opener.

The Miami Toros signed two players —All-American striker Steve Baumann of Penn and Kip Jordan of Cornell. Dave D'Errico penned with the Seattle Sounders while goalie Kurt Kuykendall signed with the Washington Diplomats.

In other pre-season signings, the Los Angeles Aztecs announced contracts with Uruguay goalie Uri Banhoffer and four members of the Trinidad national team along with four Argentinians

The league also announced that the St. Louis Stars signed an eight game television package with Dallas sportscaster Frank Gleiber to do the play-by-play.

Melton injured

CHICAGO (UPI) — X-rays of the injured left hand of Chicago White Sox slugger Bill Melton were negative Monday, and the third baseman probably can continue to bat until the injury heals.

Melton was struck on the hand by a pitched ball Sunday. He will make the trip with the team to Minnesota, and probably be assigned as designated hitter in the Twins series.

Manager Chuck Tanner indicated he would put Ron Santo, who has been a designated hitter, into the lineup at third base.

Bobby Fischer wants separate chess quarters

PARIS (UPI) — World Chess champion Bobby Fischer has said he will take part in the 21st Chess Olympiad in June providing he plays his games in a building separate from all other competitors, organizers said today.

A spokesman quoted Edward B. Edmondson, president of the U.S. Chess Federation, as saying: "He (Fischer) and I have had some most friendly discussions on this subject.

"He has indicated that he will play at Nice if his games take place in a separate salon, not in a salon separate to the other rooms in the Palace of Expositions but in a completely separate building."

The spokesman said the organizers are considering Fischer's conditions.

A powerful Russian team, including Boris Spassky and two other former world champions, already has confirmed its participation along with 75 other countries.

The Olympiad is scheduled to take place June 6-30 at Nice on the French Riviera

Lake Placid urged for Olympics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Monday urged the International Olympic Committee to pick Lake Placid, N.Y., as the site for the 1980 winter games.

Lake Placid, which hosted the 1932 Winter Olympics, already has been picked by the U. S. Olympic Committee as the official United States "bid city" in the running to host the 1980 winter sports extravaganza.

The International Olympic Committee is scheduled to meet in Vienna in October to make its selection.

By voice vote without dissent or debate, the Senate adopted a resolution extending an official invitation on behalf of Congress to bring the games to the United States.

"The congress of the United States expresses its sincere hope that the United States will be selected as the site for the 1980 winter Olympic games, and pledges its cooperation and support in their successful fulfillment in the highest sense of the Olympic tradition," the resolution said.

The House was expected to adopt the resolution soon. It does not require President Nixon's signature and carries no force of law, but is merely an expression of congressional sentiment.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who introduced the resolution a month ago, said then it is estimated $8 million in state funding and $16 million in federal appropriations will be needed to support the Lake Placid games if the New York resort is tapped to host the event.

But, Javits said, "this would be a modest investment for an event so important in the world of athletics, tourism and international friendship."

The last Winter Olympics held in the United States were in 1960 in Squaw Valley, Calif.

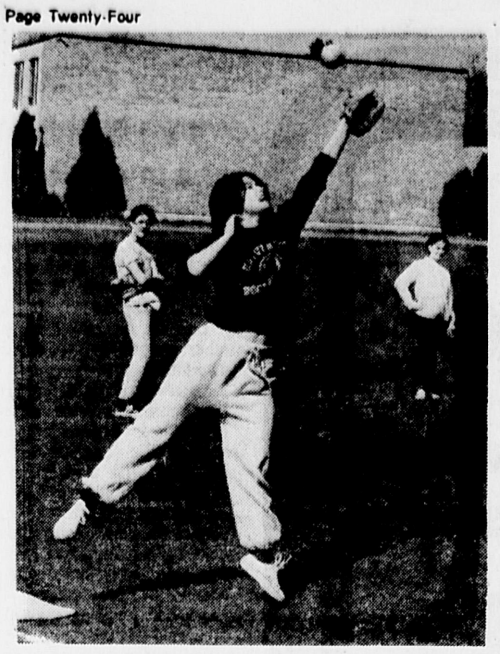

German track star marries U·S· girl

RADEVORMWALD, Germany (UPI) — Heide Rosendahl, the West German track and field star who bagged two Gold medals and one Silver in the 1972 Munich Olympics, today was married to U.S. basketball player John Ecker in a civil ceremony.

The 27-year-old Heide swept Gold medals as a member of the 4 x 100 meter relay team and in the broad jump, and added a Silver in the pentathlon.

Ecker, 25, of Los Angeles, Calif., plays with the TUS 04 Leverkusen basketball team in the Rhineland.

Heide told newsmen that she and John would be moving to the U.S. within the next few weeks to enable John to continue his studies of political science.

Co-ed gym program at South allows diversity

By TOM GRAVES

This year, for the first time, Newton South High School has a "unified" physical education program.

Nearly all gym activities are coeducational. Exceptions include team sports and activities such as wrestling which include close physical contact.

According to George Winkler, head of the physical education department at Newton South, bringing boys and girls together "allows us to offer more."

"We can utilize the talents of the eight department members better," Winkler noted. He added that activities which formerly required two teachers, one for boys and another for girls, may now only require one when the classes are combined and made coeducational.

The physical education year at Newton South is divided into four quarters. Students may elect to take one of a large variety of offerings each quarter.

Electives offered during the winter quarter include badminton, volleyball, self-defense, physical fitness, yoga, trampoline, rhythmic gymnastics, boys' intramurals, fencing, and independent study.

Students fill out applications for independent study. They generally apply for programs which are not offered at the school, such as scuba diving, karate and advanced swimming.

Varsity athletes are presently exempt from physical education. Winkler said that this policy is under review, and that it will probably change next year.

One current problem, according to Winkler, is the fact that some students choose the same kind of elective every quarter.

"We don't want someone to graduate here without becoming knowledgeable in some lifetime activity," Winkler commented. He classified archery, tennis, golf, volleyball, jogging and fencing as possible lifetime activities.

Winkler added that it would be desirable for every student to participate in at least one coed activity.

"We have spent time and energy to get an exciting program," Winkler said. "We want to make sure youngsters take advantage of it."

The physical education department does not presently require that students choose varied activities. Winkler stated that he expects more explicit demands will be made in the future so that students will have exposure to different types of electives.

Winkler acknowledged that students still skip gym classes, but he called it a "school problem." According to Lenor Hersey of the phys ed department, it was found in January and February that the percentage of cutting in gym classes was no worse than in other departments at Newton South.

Students are no longer required to wear gray uniforms to class. According to Winkler, they are expected to wear shorts, T-shirts and sneakers ("socks are encouraged").

"I think physical education has divorced itself from the militaristic outlook of everyone wearing the same uniform and lining up in squads," Winkler said.

A program is planned for students who are normally excused from physical education. Warren Bechtold, a certified corrective therapist, will work with such students in South's fitness room.

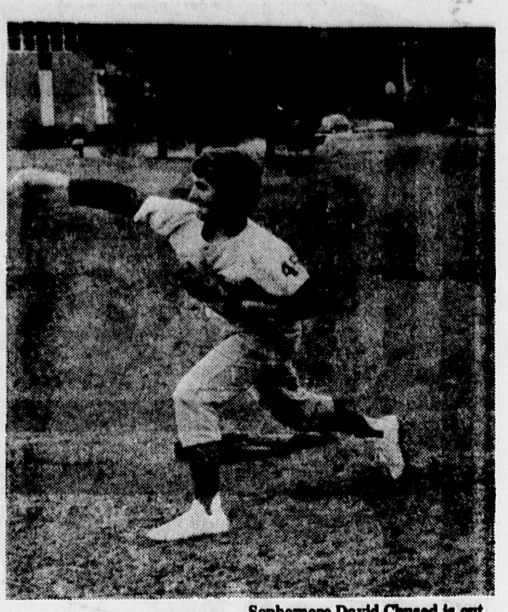

There are intramural programs at Newton South for both boys and girls. Boys have an elective intramural program the last period on Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. During the winter, basketball, hand hockey, and floor hockey were offered as activities.

An average of 35 girls participated in a gymnastics intramural program for five weeks during the winter. Both boys and girls had fitness intramural programs.

After April vacation, South will have use of the Newton North pool three nights a week for intramurals. Activities are expected to include water polo and swimming.

There is even a coed interscholastic sport at Newton South. Winkler said that 16 girls have gone out for the track team. "If we get more, we will try to have an all-girls track team," Winkler commented.

Girls have volleyball, basketball, field hockey and tennis teams already. South is starting an informal interscholastic softball program this year, and 37 girls have come out. Softball may be a varsity sport next year.

Mauch back to Expos soon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Manager Gene Mauch of the Montreal Expos said he would know within a few days when he will return to his baseball club.

Mauch flew to California to be with his wife, Nina Lee, who underwent emergency abdominal surgery at Presbyterian Hospital in Whittier.

"She's doing fine," Mauch said. "Hopefully, I'll know by Wednesday that it will be all right to return to the club."

The Expos season opener scheduled for Pittsburg tonight against the Pirates was postponed because of cold weather and rescheduled for Wednesday. Third base coach Dave Bristol will manage the club during Mauch's absence.

Hank was at bat 2,900 times more

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron expected there would be controversy, and he was right.

There is already.

The luster is still fresh on his new home run record, but that isn't preventing some people from continuously reminding that Hank Aaron has now had 2,900 more official times at bat than Babe Ruth ever did.

That number will grow, not diminish, and so will the argument that Aaron can't really compare with Ruth as a pure home run hitter. Hank Aaron knows he'll keep hearing this more and more down through the years, and he accepts this fact of life.

Likewise, he's aware he hasn't heard the last yet about his poor performance last Sunday in Cincinnati.

Was he really trying to hit No. 715 there, or wasn't he?

People are still asking that now and will keep on asking it. Some of them are like a dog with good, juicy bone. They never let go.

I saw a good deal of Babe Ruth, spent time speaking with him, and was at Memorial Hospital in New York, the place he died, the night he did. I still remember the exact time of his death. It was 8:01 p. m., and I still remember Babe Ruth, the ballplayer.

He and Hank Aaron will wind up with only one thing in common as far as I can see.

The record book will show each hit his last home run for the Braves.

Apart from that, I see no similarity whatsoever.

Babe Ruth batted from the lefthanded side; Hank Aaron hits righthanded. Ruth generated most of his power from his arms and shoulders; Aaron gets his from his wrists. Ruth had a compact swing; Aaron's is smoother, more fluid. Ruth usually went for the fences; Aaron doesn't.

The overall result was that his fellow ballplayers thought of Ruth primarily as a home run hitter, which he was, while Aaron's fellow ballplayers think of him as the supreme hitter, which he is.

I know one Hall of Famer who played against Ruth and who, at least, has seen enough of Aaron to come up with some assessment of the two.

He won't, though. He simply laughs when people try to push him into comparing the two. Privately though, when he talks of Aaron, he scoffs "Home run king, my back."

I think he's being a bit unfair to Aaron, but he's getting along in years now, naturally treasurers his memories of Ruth, and I believe I know what he means.

Years from now, players of that era will relate much more to whomever it is challenging Aaron's record, if for no other reason than he will be one of them, than they will to Aaron. And the players around today will keep talking about Aaron the same way the players of yesterday now speak about Ruth.

Archers meet Waltham

Two special events highlighted the conclusion of the archery program conducted by the Newton Recreation Department at the field house on the Newton Centre Playground.

The first was an inter-team shoot and the second, a post season match against a visiting team from Waltham in which Newton took two of the three first places.

Results of the Newton-Waltham match shoot off are as follows: In the expert division, shooting 242 out of a possible 270, Newton's Jon Robbins took first. Waltham archers finished second, third and fourth (Arthur Dellusha, 214; John Capello, 196 and Donald Dormier, 180). In fifth place was Elaine Chin with 172 and sixth, Dave Miller with 157, both of Newton.

Larry Harron won first place for Newton in the bowman division with a 170 score. Dave Martin of Waltham was second with 165 and Suzanne Conway, also of Waltham took third with a 109. Newton's John O'Brien place fourth with a 106, followed by Lisa Chin of Newton with 97 and Paul Cook of Waltham with 93.

Darlene Thomas of Waltham topped the archer division with a score of 104. Ellen Flanders with 95 and Paul Crowe with 67, gave Waltham second and third. Newton archers finished fourth, fifth and sixth. They were Greg Jacobs, 48; Russ Shaw, 46 and John O'Brien 32.

Named ski coach of year

HANOVER, N. H. (UPI) — Jim Page, in his second year as ski coach at Dartmouth College, has been named Coach-of-the-Year by the Eastern Intercollegiate Ski Association. Page guided the Big Green to the Eastern Intercollegiate championship this year and to fourth place in the NCAA championships. Two team members, freshman John Macomber of Concord, Mass., and junior Doug Peterson of Excelsior, Minn., were named to the All-East Division One first team.

Calvin Hill jumps to World football

HONOLULU (UPI) — Calvin Hill has signed a contract to play for the new World Football League but first he hopes to help the Dallas Cowboys win the Super Bowl.

Hill, a Cowboy running back, Tuesday signed a three-year contract with the Hawaiians which will begin in 1975 after he plays out his option year this season with Dallas.

Hill said he would do "everything in my power to help Dallas win the Super Bowl this year."

The five-year NFL veteran said he believed that his plans to play in the WFL wouldn't hamper his work for the Cowboys this season.

"I think we have a great chance of winning the Super Bowl," he said. "I plan to do everything I can to help the Cowboys do just that."

Although contract terms were not made public, a WFL spokesman said the money was "substantial."

Hill said that playing for the Hawaiians would be "like being in on the ground floor.

"It is a chance to be part of something that is starting from scratch and has a chance to become something bit and worthwhile."

Chris makes her debut

The traditional Good Friday liturgical action will be celebrated at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. The Mass of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated on Holy Thursday at 12:05 noon and 7:30 p.m. Father Stransky will celebrate the 7:30 liturgy on Holy Thursday.

Rabbi and Mrs. Murray Rothman of Temple Shalom of Newton will conduct a Seder Service at a traditional Jewish Passover Meal on Wednesday, April 10, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets for the meal are available with special family rates are available on request. Reservations should be made by calling the Paulist Center at 742-4460.

An Easter Vigil service will be celebrated on Holy Saturday at 11 p.m. by Father James Young, C.S.P. The Easter Sunday Masses at 10 a.m., 12 noon and 6 and 8 p.m.

Bunuel film series at Museum of Fine Arts

The Museum of Fine Arts' film series on "Luis Bunuel, Surrealist and Filmaker," opened last week and will continue through May 23. The showing of "Madrid 1938 (France-Spain, 1936" will be the first ever in the United States.

This retrospective highlights every period in the career of Spain's greatest director. Now through May 23 films will be shown on Thursday evenings at 6:30 p.m. in the Museum Lecture Hall, which is equipped with custom-built 35 mm projection facilities.

Bunuel is one of the most profound and mysterious artists in the history of cinema. In seeking spiritual liberation, he has dealt obsessively in his films with individual frustraton and social repression.

His uncompromising portrayals of modern Europe's bourgeoisie make performances by Jeanne Moreau, Michel Piccoli and Catherine Deneuve unforgettable. While Bunuel's moral and intellectural attitudes are consistent, his variety of approach and subject matter indicate the breadth of his vision.

Film notes, distributed at each performance and compiled for subscribers, have been prepared by Bunuel specialist, Randall Conrad. Conrad is an instructor of film at the Museum School and author of a forthcoming book on Bunuel.

April 11 - Land Without Bread (Las Hurdes, Spain, 1932) and Madrid 1936 (Espagne 1936, France-Spain, 1936).

April 18 - This Strange Passion (El, Mexico, 1952).

April 25 - The Criminal Life of Archibaldo de la Cruz (Ensayo de un Crimen, Mexico, 1955)

May 2 - The Exterminating Angel (El Angel Exterminador, Mexico, 1962).

May 9 - The Diary of a Chambermaid (Le Journal d'une Femme de Chambre, France, 1964).

May 16 - The Milky Way (La Voie Lactee, France, 1969).

May 23 - Tristana (Tristana, Spain, 1969).

Each program runs 60-100 minutes, with English subtitles or notes. Reductions are available for series subscriptions; individual tickets are sold at the door one hour prior to each performance.

For subscription and price information call 267-9300 Ext. 395.

"Yeomen of the Guard" by B.U. Savoyards

The Boston University Savoyards scour London for an escaped sorcerer April 20, 21, 22, 25, 26 and 27 when they perform Gilbert and Sullivan's Yeomen of the Guard in Hayden Hall, 685 Commonwealth ave. In the most professionally written of the Gilbert and Sullivan works, the yeomen and townspeople musically attempt to resolve the problems attached to the convict's marriage to a young merrymaid for the purpose of thwarting a realtive's scheme to inherit his fortune.

The 7 show is a popular one for lovers of light opera and was the favorite of Gilbert and Sullivan. It is their most human work, yet it retains the delightful humor and memorable music they are known for.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. on April 20, 22, 25, 26, and 27 and at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, April 21. Call 353-3654 for ticket information and reservations, or write Boston University Savoyards, 775 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass. 02215.

FINE FUTUREm Q. I have been reading your column and like it very much. Please give me some information about my emotions, romance, and future. Also am I a Leo or a Virgo? I was born on August 24, 1958 at approximately 7:30 p.m. in Southington, Conn.

L.S.

A. In 1958 the Sun entered the Sign of the Zodiac Virgo at 10:47 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on August 23rd which is more than a day prior to your birth, therefore your Sun Sign is Virgo. However, the planet Mercury which indicates how you think, speak and convey impressions to your mind, etc. was in Leo.

Your Moon was in Capricorn and this is indicative of your feelings, instincts, personality, etc. so that your whole horoscope must be considered and not just whether you are a Leo or a Virgo.

Your chart as a whole indicates you have a fine mind, a well organized personality and are inclined to take life and its responsibilities quite seriously. You do have a sense of humor and are fully aware of the weakness and problems of others. You are more inclined to try to enlighten and improve their thinking than to donate material contributions to help them.

At this time in your life and stage of development, you are learning and are far from the magnetic and charming person you can eventually become. Your greatest asset at present is your determination and your curiosity.

You have the ability to be quite persuasive but must learn to avoid letting your mind wander off into the wide blue yonder by daydreaming or thinking up impractical thoughts.

You can be passionate and have deep emotions which may be easily stimulated by the right man but use your ability to discriminate if you wish to avoid a dramatic experience in romance. If you are not discriminating you will have variety in love affairs and ups and downs but you also have good recuperating powers.

'Y' registering for Family Outing Club

The Newton YMCA announces that registrations are now being taken for membership in the Family Outing Club, its pool and tennis club at the Chickami Recreation Center in Wayland.

The Family Outing Club is a purely informal program open to any family. The facilities of the Chickami Recreation Center are available for 72 days this summer to club members. The fee is $75, regardless of the size of the family.

Features include an Olympic-size outdoor swimming pool (with diving board, slide, and beginner's end), a kiddle pool, locker rooms with hot showers, two tennis courts, athletic fields, fireplaces, picnic tables, and a recreation hall.

The club opens May 25 and remains open on weekends only until July 1. Then, until Sept. 2, the club is open six days each week until 8 p.m

Pull on's pull off's

No zippers or buttons in these fashions designed by Stephen Burrows.

The McCall Pattern Company has acquired the exclusive pattern rights to Stephen Burrows designs. The talented young black designer's new patterns, introduced in McCall's counter catalogues, reflect the designer's fashion outlook that . . . "clothes should have line, humor, lots of color . . . and move easily."

All the patterns are taken from Burrow's current Seventh Avenue collection and are for the soft, sinuous, unconstructed styles that he has made famous. Designed for lightweight, supple knit jersey fabrics that cling to the body, these patterns epitomize easy living and easy sewing.

The Stephen Burrows original designs include patterns for long and short dresses; midriff tied, wrap, middy and flyaway tops; soft pants and a gored skirt in three lengths.

Two famous Burrows fashion signatures are incorporated: 1) bright red stitching edges almost everything . . . both a zig zag or straight stitch can be used, 2) the curling "lettuce" hems (also stitched in red) which capture the essence of his fluid designs.

Both of these finishing touches are easy to do and McCall's gives clear instructions in each pattern, so that homesewers can duplicate the originals exactly.

These patterns are for what Stephen Burrows calls his . . . "pull on . . . pull off clothes" . . . not a zipper or a button is needed to make these styles. He believes women should be as casual about their wardrobes as they would be about a toy. Stephen's fashion philosophy is that clothes should be colorful, fun to wear, flexible, easy to pack and carefree. He designs for the active, young-minded woman of today.

Stephen Burrows, at the young age of thirty, has already won a Coty Award, and was one of the 5 American designers who recently took part in the Versailles fashion spectacular

Stephen Burrows stands behind two of his new pattern designs. Left, a tie bodice bares the midriff and tops easy pants, all edges stitched in a red zig-zag. McCall's pattern 4091. Right, a sleek wrap top and a swinging "lettuce" edged four gore skirt. Skirt comes in three lengths. McCall's pattern 4092.

Gallery to show students' art

Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, Ohio, has recently opened a new art gallery. As part of its first year schedule of exhibitions, it has invited the Newton schools to present work from their art program.

The exhibit is made up of work by elementary and junior high students, and work from the photography class at Newton South High School.

The show will run from April 7 through May 5, and will open with a program of animated films made in the summer Newton Creative Arts Center.

Students win scholarships

Two Newton students have been announced as winners of corporate-sponsored four-year Merit scholarships.

James C. Reilly of 18 Bowdoin St., Newton Highlands has won the General Tire Foundation Merit Scholarship. Reilly attends Catholic Memorial

Thomas W. Kenslea of 861 Commonwealth Ave., Newton Center has won the Nathan Cummings-Consolidated Foods Merit Scholarship. Kenslea attends Boston College High School.

R. E. Bolton heads Cancer Crusade

Richard E. Bolton

Every year during April, about two million volunteers of the American Cancer Society ring doorbells and ask the American people to dig down and give to help defeat cancer.

"This year the American Cancer Society budgeted more than $79 million, of which $62 million went for research, education, service, and rehabilitation," said Richard Bolton, Newton chairman of the Prospect Valley Branch.

"Research, which is making gains against Cancer, will receive about 30 cents of each dollar, or about $24 million," he noted.

"Informing people about Cancer's Seven Warning Signals and urging regular health checkups to discover cancer at its earliest and most curable stage are at the heart of our public education program and received about 18 cents of each dollar or $14 million," Bolton said.

Patient and community services such as the Reach to Recovery Program for women who have had breast surgery or teaching people who've lost their voices after throat cancer surgery how to speak again will receive more than $15.5 million or about 19 cents of each dollar.

Nearly 11 cents of each dollar or about $8.6 million will be devoted to professional education. These programs provide physicians, dentists, nurses, and other medical personnel with the latest information on diagnosis and treatment of cancer.

Fund raising will take 11 cents of each dollar or $8.9 million; management of the Society's affairs takes 10 cents – or $7.9 million.

"Together we can win the war against cancer," said Bolton. "We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime. Join us by being alert to cancer's warning signals and by having a periodic health checkup. Then help others with a check or cash."

Taxpayers ask IRS

Editor's Note—The following questions and answers on the federal income tax are prepared by the Internal Revenue Service. Tazpayers should also note that due to the fact that April 15 is being celebrated as the Patriot's Day holiday, returns may be postmarked April 16 and still be filed on time.

Q. I contributed toward my pension all the years during which I worked. Now I'm about to receive the first benefits from it. How much of what I'll receive will be taxable?

A. There are two basic rules to be applied here. Either you will receive back all the money you contributed during the first three years you are retired, and you'll start paying taxes only when that has been fully returned to you; or, it will be more than three years before you recover an amount equal to the cost to you, so you will have to pay tax on a portion of your benefits every year. In order to determine how much should be taxed, contact the source of the pension payments.

Q. A lump sum payment of my share in a profit-sharing plan was made to me. Is there any special tax treatment of this?

A. If this payment represented all your interest in the plan, some or all of it is probably eligible for capital gains treatment, that is, only half of it will be taxed. You should, however, contact an IRS office for advice on your particular situation.

Q. If I don't use the short form, can I still use the tax tables?

A. As long as your adjusted gross income (line 15, Form 1040) is less than $10,000 and you are not in the category of people who can be claimed by their parents as dependents who have gross income over $750 including some unearned income, you may use the Tax Tables with either Form 1040 or 1040A.

Q. If I deduct moving expenses, must I itemize my deductions?

A. No, you need not itemize in order to exclude moving expenses using Form 3903.

Q. I forgot to deduct my real estate taxes for 1972. May I deduct them on my 1973 return?

A. No, you may only deduct expenses in the year they were paid. You may however, file a claim or an amended return for the year 1972 which may result in a refund of tax for you for that year.

Q. Although I incurred my medical bills in 1973, because they were so high I couldn't pay them until 1974. When may I deduct them?

A. 1974's federal return should reflect these expenses. You may only deduct expenses in the year paid if you are a cash basis taxpayer.

Q. I am married. My pusband works full time and I work part time. We have a 4-year-old child who goes to a day care center. May we deduct child care expenses?

A. There are several stipulations which apply to child care deductions. If you meet these tests, call your IRS office for further discussion.

(1) If married, a joint return must be filed.

(2) Both spouses must be gainfully employed on a substantially full-time basis.

(3) Your payments may not have been to relatives.

(4) Your expenditures must have been necessary to enable you to be gainfully employed, and

(5) You must have maintained a household that included at least one qualifying individual.

Q. If I have deductible child care expenses, must I pay FICA for the babysitters?

A. If any one babysitter earns $50 or more in a calendar quarter, a 942 form must be filed and FICA must be paid.

Q. We adopted a child last year. Are these expenses deductible?

A. Adoption fees are not deductible.

Q. I ran for public office in a local election. May I deduct my campaign expenses?

A. These are not deductible expenses.

Q. Is it all right for me to use Form 1040A even though I won $100 in the lottery?

A. No, Form 1040A may only be used for income from wages, salaries, tips, interest, and dividends.

Q. I put storm windows on my house to conserve energy. May I deduct this?

A. No, this is not a deductible personal expense. However, if this building is part rental property, a proportionate share may be rental expense.

Q. I didn't get a Schedule B this year. How can I get one?

A. There is no longer a Schedule B. You should show your total interest and dividend income on the front of Form 1040 or 1040A. No listing is necessary with your return, but you should keep records for your own use and any possible future audit.

Q. Is it true that there are special rules for servicemen on extended active duty on buying a new home after selling an old one?

A. Yes, there are some special rules for this group of people. Call your IRS office for assistance in this area.

Q. My daughter's cat knocked over and broke a very valuable screen we had. May we deduct it as a casualty loss?

A. No, this is not considered an extraordinary, sudden, and unexpected loss, so it does not qualify as a casualty loss.

Q. Because we can't afford an increase in our car insurance, we didn't put in a claim for damages done to our car when our daughter had an accident. May we take it as a casualty loss even though we were insured to cover it?

A. No, as long as you could have been reimbursed, it is not deductible.

Q. I earned the maximum in wages subject to FICA withholding. My wife earned $6,000 in wages subject to FICA. May we claim the excess FICA credit since we'll be filing a joint return?

A. No, the FICA tax is applicable to each individual sepatately. Even if you file a joint return the amounts earned by each are not combined for the purpose of determining if you paid out an excess amount.

Q. My dog was hit by a car, resulting in some very expensive medical bills for him. May we deduct these on our federal tax return?

A. Veterinary expenses are not deductible.

Q. If I'm expecting a refund, where should I send my return?

A. All Massachusetts residents should send their returns, whether they're expecting a refund or not to:

Internal Revenue Service Center,

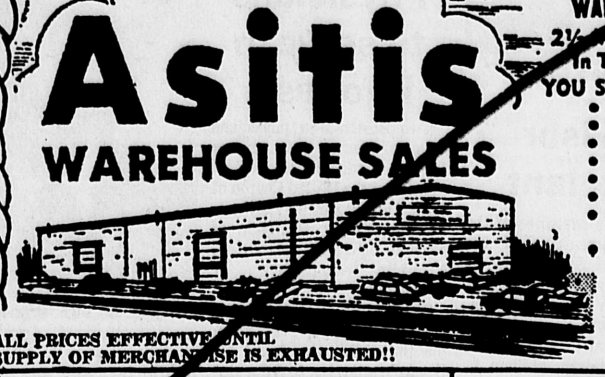

310 Lowell St.,

Andover, MA 01812. Returns should be postmarked not later than April 16.

Q. I discovered recently that my credit card had been stolen—but not before the thief had charged $500 to may account. Am I liable to pay for this?

A. No. The Federal Trade Commission advises that under an amendment to the Consumer Credit Protection Act there is a $50 limit to a consumer's liability in the event that his or her credit card is stolen.

Renewal payback by state urged by Mann

Mayor Theodore D. MAnn of Newton recently appeared before the Joint Committee on Urban Affairs at the state legislature in support of Senate Bill 391, which would reimburse cities and towns for monies committed for urban renewal programs by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

"It is about time we stopped back-door legislation which ultimately affects the property tax of the Commonwealth," Mann said, and pointed out that Newton alonce would have a net loss of $137,000 over the next six years if the state does not honor its commitment made to urban renewal programs.

Mann stated, "The cities and town of the Commonwealth made urban renewal commitments based upon a formula of reimbursement. The state cannot run out on its responsibility in this matter."

"The answer to property tax relief utlimately must come in dollar cost legislation and the finding of a solution by the General Court and the Senate of a better tax program," Mann concluded.

Lincoln-Eliot decision not final at this point

The Lincoln-Eliot School addition will not be a sure thing until the end of the month, according to Public Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson and a spokesman for the contractor, Rich Construction.

The bond authorization by the Board of Aldermen is subject to approval of 65 per cent reimbursement from the School Buildings Assistance Board, which Larson is confident will come through on April 23, when he formally presents the proposal.

But bids on the project expire today (April 11), and the contractor is trying to hold his subcontractors' bids until state approval is obtained.

The spokesman for the general contractor said Tuesday that he has sent out letters to all his subcontractors, asking to stick with their bids past the deadline.

He feels that they will extend their bids. Larson is not so certain.

The contract cannot be signed until approval is given by the School Building Assistance Bureau.

Head Dysautonomia drive

Two active leaders of the Greater Boston community will head the 1974 Massachusetts Dysautonomia Campaign.

Herbert Carver, president of the Atlas Capital Corp., and vice-president of the Atlantic Corp., and C. Gerard Drucker, vice-president of the Atlantic Corp., both Newton Centre residents, are co-chairmen of the drive which seeks to support research into the causes and cure for the dread genetic disease which strikes mostly Jewish children.

Carver, who is also a director and executive committee member of the City Bank and Trust Co., has held leadership roles in many social, civic, medical, educational and philanthropic organizations.

He is a member of the Brandeis University president's council, treasurer of the Greater Boston Brandeis Club and is an officer or director in the Brookline Hospital and its men's auxiliary; the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged; Combined Jewish Philanthropies, Cub Scouts, the Boston Junior Chamber of Commerce and Kiddie Kamp. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania.

Drucker, a 1959 graduate of Brandeis University was, recently, the first alumnus elected as president of the Greater Boston Brandeis Club. He is a Fellow of the University. His community roles also include leadership posts at the Brookline Hospital, the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the aged, the Brandeis Alumni Association and Temple Emanuel in Newton.

Both men are active in a variety of business and trade groups in the investment baking and real estate industries.

The Massachusetts drive for Dysautonomia is an integral part of an ongoing national effort of the Dysautonomia Foundation Inc. with headquarters in New York City.

Roderick supervisor of army printing plant

Robert Roderick of 120 Jewett street, Newton, has been promoted to the position of supervisor of the printing plant at the Army Materials and Mechanics Research Center in Watertown.

He brings nearly 20 years of experience in every phase of printing operations at the Center to his new assignment.

In addition to a career in the graphic arts which began at the Watertown Arsenal in 1954, Roderick has long been active in Newton civic affairs. He served as a member of the Mayor's Citizens' Advisory Council and as chairman of the sub-committee on urban renewal.

He was chairman of the Executive Board of the Newton Corner Citizens' Participation Committee; a member of the Newton Corner Study Committee; and assisted with arrangements for the Newton Centennial Parade.

Roderick has also devoted a great deal of time to Newton school activities, as chairman of the ways and means committee and a member of the building committee of the Lincoln Eliot School; and as vice president of the Bigelow Junior High School Parent-Teachers Association.

Roderick and his wife, Sylvia, have two children, William J., who is 14; and Susan J., 11 years old.

Robert Broderick

HERBERT SCHNEIDER has been appointed director of the Jacob & Rose Grossman Camp of Westwood, a day camp for children age 5-15.

Paul Dunn promoted

Paul Dunn, a resident of 80 Fuller St., Waban, Mass. was recently promoted to associate underwriter in the group claims and underwriting department of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co

The announcement was made by Gordon W. Thomas, vice president.

In his new position, Dunn will participate in the underwriting of group cases, the analyzing of complex problems arising in the underwriting of group life and casualty business, and the supervising of underwriting assistants and assistant underwriters.

Dunn joined the John Hancock as a management trainee in 1968. He was an underwriting trainee from 1969 to 1971 and held theposition of underwriting assistant and assistant underwriter prior to his recent promotion.

A graduate of Miami University of Ohio, Dunn served in the Peace Corps from 1966 to 1968.

ROGER B. WILSON of Waban has been admitted as general partner of the Brewer & Lord Insurance Agency. After attending Franklin & Marshall College and Suffolk University, Wilson joined the Phoenix Insurance Co. as an underwriter and later as a special agent. In 1962, he purchased an agency and operated it until joining Brewer & Lord in 1970.

School official to speak in France

Al Hurwitz, coordinator of arts for the Newton Public Schools, has been invited to speak at the Center for Pedagogical Studies in Sevres, France, on April 17.

Hurwitz will report on the elementary art program in the Newton schools, with particular attention to the "Art from a Laboratory," as it is being presented in Oak Hill and other schools.

Hurwitz will also attend a meeting of the World Council of the International Society for Education through Art — UNESCO, to which he is a U.S. delegate.

Hurwitz hopes to return with a collection of slides of several French public school art programs to show to Newton teachers, administrators, and community groups.

Savitz promoted

Nathan Savitz of West Newton has been promoted to executive professional representative for Merck, Sharp & Dohme. He has been with the firm for 28 years and is a graduate of the New England College of Pharmacy (now known as Northeastern College of Pharmacy) where he received an R.Ph degree.

A member of the B'nai B'rith Pharmaceutical Lodge, Savitz has a daughter Lesley, and a son, Dr. Martin H. Savitz. Nathan Savitz' wife, Bernice, is also a registered pharmacist.

Researchers present papers at conference

Several Newton area residents were among 48 Forsyth Dental Center researchers whose papers were presented at the 52nd general session of International Association for Dental Research at Hyatt Regency Hotel in Atlanta, Georgia, recently.

Dr. Benjamin Amdur, 19 Cottage St., Newton, helped prepare a paper entitled, "Difficulties in Classification of Oral Gram Positive Rods."

Dr. Finn Brudevold, 284 Woodward St., Newton, helped prepare seven different papers. He presented a paper entitled, "An Enamel Biopsy Method for Determination of Trace Methods" which discussed methods of providing pure samples of surface enamel from teeth for trace element analyses. Dr. Shelby Kashket, 97 Manet Rd., Chestnut Hill, presented a paper entitled "Purification of Bacterial Aggregating Factors from Saliva."

Dr. Ralph R. Lonbene, Walnut St., Newon, researched two papers; "Laboratory and Clinical Studies Relating Amylase Sorption and Plaque Accumulation", and "The Effect of Amine Fluorides on Human Plaque and Gingivitis."

Dr. Martin A. Taubman, 55 Lothrop St., Newtonville, presented a peper entitled "Further Studies of the Immunogolbulins of Human Dental Plaque" and helped to prepare two papers.

Physicians to serve in Rhodesia

Two Boston-area physicians have volunteered their services for two months to the medical mission of the United Church of Christ in Rhodesia. They are Dr. Charles A. Thompson of Newton Highlands and Dr. J. Franklin Donaldson of Auburndale.

The doctors responded to an emergency call for help from the United Church Board for World Ministries to fill a six-month gap during which Dr. Almarose Worden would be attempting to carry the entire patient load of two mission hospitals: the 175-bed Willis F. Pierce Memorial Hospital in Mt. Silinda and Sister Buck Memorial Hospital with 46 beds in Chikore.

Thompson, who will serve during April and May, is a member of Newton Highlands Congregational Church of the United Church of Christ. Donaldson, who will serve during the June-July period will be returning "home". He was physician-in-charge at the Chikore hospital from 1958 to 1971 before he went into private practice in Auburndale.

JAMES P. FEENEY has been promoted to vice president–administration of American Brush Co., Boston. He joined the firm in 1965 and was made controller in 1967. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees in business from Boston College. He is a member of the National Association of Accountants and he is pack master of Cabot School Cub Pack No. 301. Feeney, his wife Vivian, and their four sons and daughter live at 215 Mill St., Newtonville.

Faye Hoffman named manager

Faye Hoffman has been named manager of the Lane Bryant store in The Mall at Chestnut Hill, Newton, according to Edward Urban, area manager. The new Lane Bryant store opened on Feb. 27.

Since 1964 Ms. Hoffman was associated with the Lane Bryant store in Shoppers' World, Framingham, MASSACHUSETTS, MOST RECENTLY AS STORE MANAGER. Previously, she was self employed in real estate in the Newton area.

Ms. Hoffman presently resides in Boston. She has three children.

Russell Weston given gold watch

Russell L. Weston of 118 Langley Rd., Newton Centre, recently received a gold watch on the occasion of his 25th anniversary with Boston Gas Company.

Weston, a customer service representative, joined the utility in 1949, and has been employed in the customer service department for 25 years.

He and his wife, Elinor, have lived in Newton for the past 26 years. They have six children, with one son and one daughter still at home.

Flea market

Plans are under way for a flea market at Warren Junior High School, 1600 Washington Street, West Newton to be held on Saturday May 4, 1974 between 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. in the gym.

The school is looking for people who would like to display and sell goods -- parents, teachers, students, organizations, family groups, and feeder school PTA's.

Selling areas are being rented. There are no other costs involved.

To reserve space and obtain more information, people may contact Mr. and Mrs. Brendan Feeney at 332-4464.

Appointed

Roger E. Fradenburgh of 41 Algonquin Rd., Newton, was recently appointed New England Telephone engineer in Framingham.

A native of Fairfield, Conn., he graduated from Roger Ludlowe High School and Brown University, Class of 1971. He is currently attending Northeastern University for a master's in business administration.

Fishman asks ambulatory care in health insurance programs

Sen. Irving Fishman (D-Newton) is continuing his efforts to make health insurance programs more comprehensive

He led last year's successful fight to make mental illness coverage a mandatory part of health insurance contracts.

Recently, Senator Fishman testified before the Committee on Insurance on behalf of his bill (S. 1499), which would require that any health insurance policy offered in the Commonwealth must include coverage of a minimum package of ambulatory benefits.

"Guaranteed reimbursement of ambulatory services is critical to checking the spiraling inflation of health care costs," Fishman said. "With this program hospitals will have positive financial incentives to develop ambulatory care programs."

Under S. 1499 private insureres would have to offer comprehensive coverage for ambulatory (routine or outpatient) care in addition to the usual reimbursement of inpatient hospital care and related services, such as lab tests and x-rays.

"The premiums and deductible payments which cover ambulatory services under private plans today are priced beyond the reach of most people," Fishman said. "Without meaningful ambulatory coverage, many people will continue to be discouraged from seeking medical care on a regular basis.

"People should not wait until hospitalization is necessary to seek medical help," Fishman continued. "This bill will both encourage preventive medical caree and permit our health care dollars to be spent in a more efficient manner."

In a related matter, the Committee on Insurance reported out favorable another bill sponsored by Sen. Fishman to require insurance companies licensed to do business in the Commonwealth to report unsafe and dangerous products to the Consumers' Council. The Council would then tkae appropriate action to protect the public.

Paper recycling program expanded by city, schools

By BETSY LEWENBERG

In this era of crisis and shortages, we now face an additional and unexpected one—a paper shortage.

In light of this fact, it is more important than ever before that Newton residents recycle their newspapers and magazines. But this alone is not enough. Additional grades of paper should also be recycled. Waste paper is the most logical next ste—and it is being recycled at City Hall and in the Burr School.

The newspaper recycling program has been in operation for two years now. According to Nunzio Piselli of the Street Department, Newton received $5.06 for each ton of newsprint when the recycling program began in April 1972. In January, 1973, the city began receiving $10 per ton of newsprint. This price dropped to $7 per ton in April, 1973, but jumped up to $20 per ton in October. As of March 1, 1974, Newton began receiving $27.50 per ton.

Prices seem certain to keep rising due to the paper shortage (which shows no signs of abatement in the near or distant future). If more residents participate in the recycling program (which, incidentally, is mandatory, although not enforced as such), Newton should be able to make a profit on the recycling program.

We must remember that the paper recycling program was initiated for the dual purposes of reducing our solid waste and recycling a valuable resource. The case for recycling today is even more compelling in light of both the paper shortage (which also means higher prices received for our newsprint) and the closing of our incinerator.

Increasing the volume of trash (i.e., paper) recycled will decrease the volume that will have to either be hauled out of Newton or incinerated and subsequently deposited in landfills as residue. Whichever course Newton may follow, reduced volume of trash would mean reduced disposal costs.

City Hall has just begun recycling its waste paper. Anyone who has recently visited City Hall may have noticed shocking-pink trash cans at the ends of each floor labeled "recycled papers only". According to Public Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson, those containers will be emptied and collected daily for recycling.

The Burr School has been recycling its waste paper since late January. Each classroom has a cardboard box set aside for waste paper, and students then bring the collected waste paper to the custodial area of the school several times each week. Enthusiasm for this program is high, although paper volume is low. (Schools generally have little waste paper—much is reused or sent home with students.

The city of Newton as both a purchaser and recycler of paper is very much aware of the paper shortage. Hopefully, more resident will come to the same realization and will recycle their paper whenever possible.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of a Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by ALLEN I. SINGER and HELEN D. SINGER to THE HUDSON NATIONAL BANK, dated July 20, 1972 and recorded with the South Registry District of Middlesex County as Document No. 501014, Certificate No. 78886, Book 524 Page 136, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage, and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on the premises on Tuesday, May 7, 1974 at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely.

That certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in Newton in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth, bounded and described as follows:

Easterly by the Westerly line of Leewood Road, one hundred feet;

Southerly by Lot 133 as shown on plan hereinafter mentioned, ninety-seven and 40-100 feet;

Southwesterly by land now or formerly of Victor H. Vaughan Tr., ninety-five and 19-100 feet; and

Northerly by lot 135 on said plan, one hundred thirty-seven and 43-100 feet.

Said parcel is shown as lot 134 on said plan.

All of said boundaries are determined by the Court to be located as shown on a subdivision plan, as approved by the Court, filed in the Land Registration Office, a copy of which is filed in the Registry of Deeds for the South Registry District of Middlesex County in Registration Book 245, Page 529, with Certificate No. 36662.

There is appurtenant to the above described land the right to use in common with others entitled thereto, all abutting private ways shown on plan filed in Registration Book 220, Page 169, namely Upland Avenue, Andrew Street, Columbia Avenue and Old Winchester Street in common with all others entitled thereto.

The above described land is subject to the right to slope under a Taking by the City of Newton for laying out Leewood Road, Document 133019.

The above described land is subject to zoning laws of the City of Newton.

The above premises are subject to a first mortgage to Newton Savings Bank dated July 14, 1972 and recorded in Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds (Land Court) as Document no. 499866 with Certificate no. 78886 in Book 524, Page 136, in the original sum of $25,000.

Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, municipal liens, and assessments existing thereon.

TERMS OF SALE: One thousand five hundred ($1,500.00) Dollars must be paid by the Purchaser at the time and place of sale, and the balance of the purchase money upon delivery of the deed within fourteen (14) days thereafter, at the office of said The Hudson National Bank, 17 Pope Street, Hudson, Massachusetts.

Other terms will be announced at the sale.

How to avoid future shock.

Tomorrow won't take care of itself. And, deep down, you know that. So you'd better do something about your future money needs today.

There's a painless way. Simply start building your nest egg a little at a time. It's easy when you buy U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

You can save as little or as much as you want. Just specify the amount. And it'll be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

Then, when the future arrives, you'll be better fixed to face it. Because Bonds are the best shock absorber around.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 4 months. The first year, Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen or destroyed. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Chalk up another bright idea from Volkswagen.

To "let a little sunshine into your life," Volkswagen is offering special limited edition 1974 Sun Bugs. The cars have glittering metallic gold paint and the accent on all three versions — Beetle and Super Beetle sun roof models and Convertible is on enjoying the out of doors inside your car, even if you don't make as many long trips as you used to.

In addition to the distinctive paint, Sun Bugs have a warm toned interior of brown leatherette and, in some versions, plush mocha fabric inserts in the seats. Standard equipment also includes a padded covered steering wheel, special sports wheels and a "sunburst" shift lever knob.

Convertible and Super Beetle Sun Bugs have a simulated rosewood dashboard inlay.

Herb Anderson Volkswagen, located at 1210 Providence Highway, Norwood, can also install an optional tunnel console to match the dashboard, a special Sun Bug emblem on the engine compartment lid and whimsical Sun Bug decals.

According to Ray Hall, general sales manager, a spokesman for Herb Anderson Volkswagen, "People have had a lot of bad news lately about the energy crisis; but the Sun Bug emphasizes that with a VW you can have an economical, practical car and not give up the fun of driving. Owners can expect to get about 25 miles per gallon regular gas."

Like all 1974 Volkswagens, Sun Bug models are equipped for VW's exclusive Computer Analysis and carry a comprehensive 12-month, 20,000-mile warranty as part of VW's Security Blanket owner protection program.

Insert for second paragraph.

To "let a little sunshine into your life," Herb Anderson Volkswagen is offering special limited edition 1974 Sun Bugs. The cars have glittering metallic gold paint and the accent on all three versions — Beetle and Super Beetle sun roof models and Convertible — is on enjoying the out of doors inside your car, even if you don't make as many long trips as you used to.

Highway Patrol studies show that the average age of female hitchhikers in California is 19 and for men 22.

Prolonged idling is tough on engines

Waiting in long lines for 7gasoline may be hard on your nerves, but it's worse on your car's engine if it's idling continuously. Allowing the engine to idle for any sustained period of time, once the oil pressure has normalized after starting your car, causes fouling of the spark plugs and hastens the formation of harmful carbon deposits in the engine and sludge in the oil. One fouled spark plug can increase gas consumption by as much as eight percent.

Contributing to the problem is the fact that many motorists now do not have the necessary gasoline for long trips which used to help remove at least some of the carbon build-up.

The fact that cars are driven fewer miles during the gasoline shortage does not lessen–in fact, increases–the need to pay attention to routine maintenance. The effects of neglected maintenance will not be apparent immediately, but can result in expensive repairs at some time in the future, depending on car age and mileage, and on the owner's driving habits.

The problem is compounded because preventive maintenance (including practically all under-hood routine maintenance inspection and about 30 percent of all service work) usually performed by more than 200,000 service stations across the country may have been neglected because many stations have been unable to offer routine service while fueling cars. Other stations have gone out of business due to the lack of gasoline.

However, in some areas, service stations stay open nights especially for service work. Many stations offer service at hours when they are not pumping gasoline. Still others service cars by appointment during gasoline pumping hours.

You should check with the service facilities that have normally performed inspections and maintenance work for you to determine when they now handle this work. Or you can perform some of the more simple, routine checks and maintenance yourself. But howecer you do it–be sure it is done. It is more important than ever.

Violinists in 'China Night'

Robin Yuan and Lynn Chang, two well-known violinists, will be participants in China Nigh '74.

They will perform a collection of traditional Chinese folk songs arranged by Yuan.

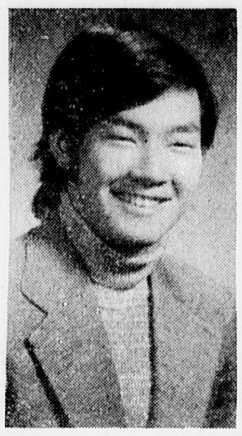

Joining them in this second annual charity variety show for the benefit of Chinatown community projects will be a host of other students and professionals performing classical and character Chinese dances, skits in English, Mandarin, Cantonese, and Toisanese, acrobatics, and vocal and Chinese instrumental music.

Both Robin and Lynn have much in common. Both are sons of two well-known pairs of doctor-parents. Robin is the 19-year-old son of Dr. Robert Yuan, a neurosurgeon and Dr. Grace Yuan, a medical reseacher. Lynn is the 21-year-old son of Dr. Tewen Chang, a bacteriologist and Dr. Diana Chang, a radiologist.

Both were 1971 graduates of Newton High School and are students at Harvard University. Robin will be graduating from Harvard this June after only three years there and was given an early acceptance to Harvard Medical School which he will attend this coming September. He majored in Biology while at Harvard. Lynn is of the class of 1975 at Harvard and is majoring in music.

As concerns their musical background, Robin and Lynn started out on violin together with Sarah Scriven and both later found their way to Alfred Krips, former assistant concertmaster of the BSO, for further studies. Lynn then went to Ivan Gallamian at Julliard with whom he is currently studying. Both Robin and Lynn have performed in the Boston and Newton area.

China Night '74 will take place Saturday, April 13, starting at 8 p.m. and will be held at Hayden Hall, Boston University, 685 Commonwealth Ave. Tickets for this charitable event can be bought for $10 (honorary), $4.50, $3.50, or $2.50 at the door or by calling 498-3888.

Schneider in "Mame"

Joseph Schneider of Newton will appear as "Gregor" in an Independent Theatre production of "Mame" at Curry College on April 18-20 at 8 p.m.

Music Tanglewood's forest setting provides inspiration for an impromptu string rehearsal for students from Boston University's Tanglewood Institute. The summer-long programs in music and theater begin their ninth season on June 30 as part of the Berkshire Music Festival.

Tanglewood starts auditions April 27

Auditions for outstanding musicians at the high school, college, and professional level to participate in Boston University's summer programs at Tanglewood, in the Berkshire mountains of western Massachusetts, will be held at the School of Fine and Applied Arts, 855 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, on Saturday, April 27 and May 11, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Persons wishing to audition should contact Larry Hecker at 353-3386 for an audition appointment.

Boston University Tanglewood Institute, which will run from June 30 through Aug. 25, is now in its ninth year.

It offers programs of concentrated study with concert artist-instructors from the university faculty and with members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in-residence at the Berkshire Music Center. For those who qualify, academic credit is available.

This summer's institute programs include applied music: a program of in-depth study and practice for experienced instrumentalists; the Young Artists Instrumental Program for high school musicians, which stresses study and performance of the chamber music and symphonic repertoire and private study with master instrumentalists; the Young Vocalists Program, also for high school students, which includes participation in small chamber ensembles and in the Boston University Tanglewood Institute Chorus; and a piano seminar and harp studies for musicians experienced in those instruments.

The Young Artists Symphony Orchestra, a performing vehicle of the Young Artists Instrumental Program, will be conducted by Lawrence Smith, conductor of the Oregon Symphony Orchestra.

Chamber music studies will be directed by Roman Totenberg, chairman of the string department at Boston University. In addition, master classes will be conducted by Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flutist; Ralph Gomberg, oboist; Harold Wright, clarinetist; Sherman Walt, bassoonist; and Charles Kavaloski, French horn player. All five are first chair players with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and adjunct professors at Boston University.

The Young Vocalists Program, which will run from June 30 through July 28, will be directed by Joseph Huszti, former director of the Bakersfield College Choir and co-founder of the Middle Atlantic States Intercollegiate Choral Festival. The program will be augemented by master classes by Mac Morgan, concert baritone and a chairman of the voice department at Boston University.

The piano seminar, conducted by Dr. Bela Boszormenyi-Nagy, will include a survey and analysis of selected Mozart and Haydn sonatas, the seven Partitas of Bach, and four concerti; and the program in Harp Studies includes 12 private lessons and intensive practice under the direction of Lucile Lawrence.

In addition to the music programs, there will be a workshop in acting, stage movement and voice-speech.

The workshop, conceived for actors, teachers of acting, and teachers of dance and stage movement, will offer class work under the direction of Broadway actress and stage director Rose Schulman, stage movement director Joseph Gifford, and actor and stage director William Lacey.

Youth Symphony audition

The Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras will hold auditions for membership in the orchestras during the 1974-75 season at Boston University's School of Fine and Applied Arts, 855 Commonwealth Ave., from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. May 4, 11, and 25.

Because of the large number of 12th grade members who will be graduating in June, there will be openings in all sections of the three orchestras. Any student who has not yet graduated from high school is eligible to apply.

Students interested in applying for membership should write for an application and information sheet from GBYSO, 855 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Massachusetts 02215 or call the office (353-3348). Applicants will be chosen for audition on the basis of their preliminary application. All applications should be submitted by April 15.

Symphony to perform April 23

The Metropolitan Wind Symphony will perform a concert on Tuesday, April 23 at 8 p.m. at Newton North High School.

Gary Good will conduct a program of wind pieces by Grainger, Werle, Bennett, Benson, Mendelssohn, and Sauter. John Stevens of the New Haven-Yale Symphony Orchestra, will be tuba soloist in Eric Sauter's "Conjectures."

The Metropolitan Wind Symphony, a community-based symphonic wind group, was formed in 1971 to provide an outlet for the many talented wind and percussion players in the Greater Boston area. The Metropolitan Wind Symphony is devoted to the playing and performance of contemporary as well as standard wind music.

Greater Bostonians planning benefit show

Amy Shuster of Waban will appear with the Greater Bostonians in a benefit concert in Symphony Hall at 8 p.m. Friday, April 26.

Tye concert is sponsored by the Knights of Pythias to benefit Horizons for Youth, an affiliate of Kiddie Kamp.

Tickets are available at the Symphony Hall box office or through Horizons for Youth, 828-7550.

Library to show films

The Newton Free Library's special family film fare for April features three films selected for their wide appeal to film fans of all ages on Wednesday evening April 17 at 7 p.m. The library will screen "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau: Sharks," "Elsa and Her Cubs," and "Elsa Teh Lioness."

In the Cousteau film, myths associated with sharks are explored. "Elsa And Her Cubs" is a personal documentary filmed by Joy and George Adamson in Kenya. Their extraordinary friendship with Elsa is shown from the time Elsa was a cub until she had her own cubs.

"Else The Lioness" stars the real Elsa in a documentary filmed after she hurt herself in a jungle fight and returned to the Adamson family for care, bringing her three cubs with her.

Family films add another dimension to the Newton Free Library's year long film program which includes children's films at different libraries throughout the NFL Library system, regularly scheduled Wednesday noon films and Thursday evening films, both presented at the Main Library.

The feature film, "A Tale of Two Cities" is scheduled for screening Thursday, April 18 at 7 p.m. The film is an adaptation of the classic novel, recreating Dickens' teeming Paris and squalid London. The film stars Dirk Bogarde and is directed by Ralph Thomas.

Annotated film schedules are available for the Newton Free Library's Wednesday noon and Thursday evening film series. People may call 527-7700 for additional information.

Exhibit

Photographs will be on exhibit Sunday, April 14, from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Concord Art Association in Concord.

The exhibit will continue through May 5.

Among those exhibiting are Newton residents Georgia Litwack, presently an instructor at the DeCordova Museum in Lincoln; and Eric R. Myrvaagnes, an instructor in mathematics and photography at Suffolk University.

A bagel for Sam

Mark Rosenfeld got a letter from Chevy Chase, Md., this week, with an unusual request — deliver some bagels to Cambridge Saturday morning.

The letter was from Mrs. Samuel Dash, wife of the chief prosecutor in the Watergate proceedings.

When she and her husband were in Boston in February, Mrs. Dash wrote, friends brought them some Rosenfeld bagels, "and now we're addicted."

"Will you please bring three or four dozen bagels — regular, onion, and pumpernickel mixed — to our hotel in Cambridge, and divided so we can carry them home on the plane?" the letter asked.

The letter was exciting to Rosenfeld not only because someone thinks his bagels are so good, but also because it was from the Sam Dashes.

"Sam Dash has been a personal hero of mine, sort of like Ralph Nader," Rosenfeld confided.

Rosenfeld operates Rosenfeld's Bagels in Piccadilly II in Newton Centre.

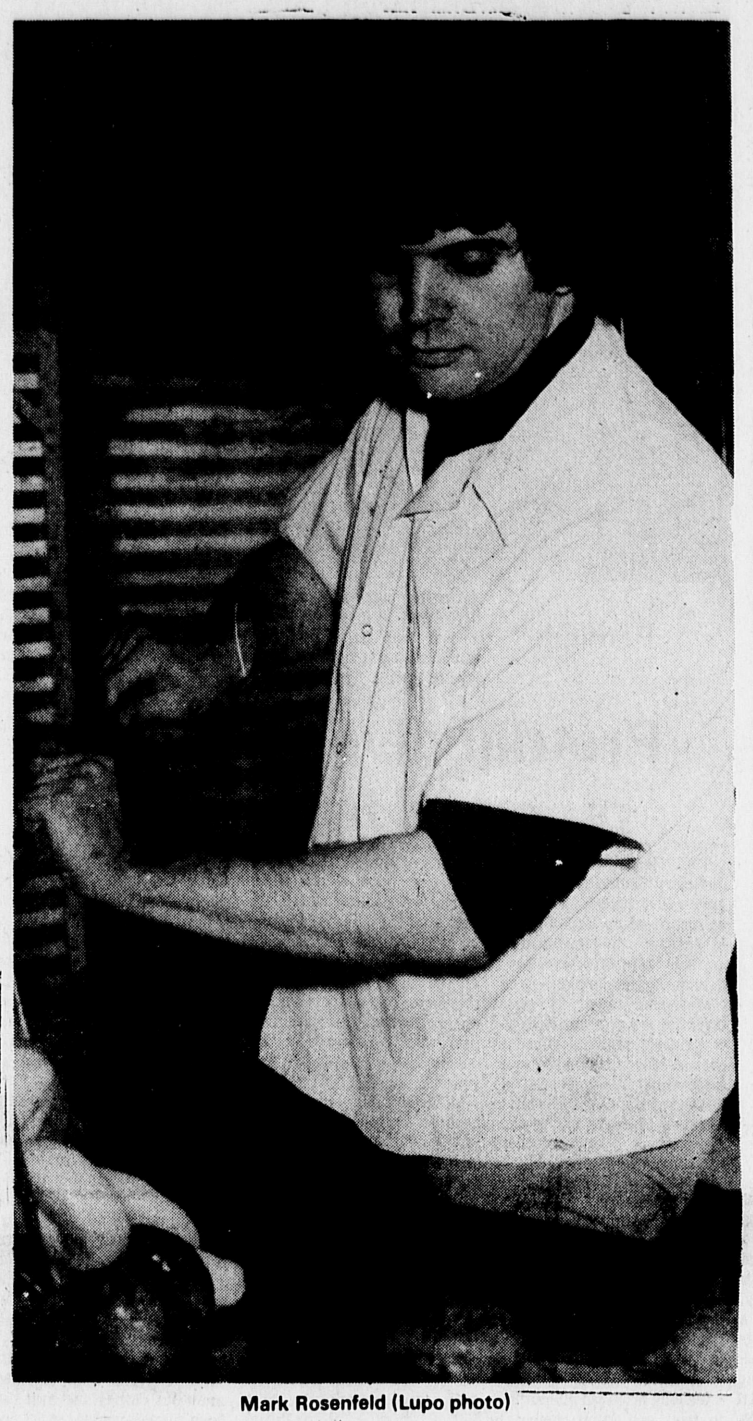

Only 28, Rosenfeld has been a lawyer and an English teacher before becoming a bagel tycoon.

He comes from Patterson, N.J., where he learned about bagels working with a friend in the business. Since bagels are, if not a dime a dozen, certainly plentiful in New Jersey, Rosenfeld decided to go into bagel baking elsewhere

He's now a confirmed New Englander. He has just bought a house in Jamaica Plain and is going to open another bagel store on Beacon Street in Brookline very soon.

Will he deliver the bagels as requested?

"Of course," Rosenfeld said. "How could I miss it?"

Life Care Center denied by Board

Even with the previous defects in site plan corrected, the proposed Life Care Center was pushed into limbo Tuesday night, as the Board of Aldermen voted to deny without prejudice the three petitions under consideration.

Arthur Ullian, one of the developers of the proposed six-story, 179-unit, Auburndale "residential care facility" for the elderly, commented immediately after the vote that he had expected the denial action.

Asked whether he would resubmit the petitions (one amending the zoning ordinances, one changing the zone from Residence A to E, and one for permissive use to build), Ullian said he would. Denial without prejudice allows immediate resubmission of a petition, without the waiting period of one year required by outright denial.

Ullian would not comment on what changes he and the co-developer, Dr. Edwin Guiney, would make in the proposal for its next pass through the Board.

Ald. Alan Barkin indicated that the venture would probably turn "nonprofit," which would make it more palatable to several members of the Board.

The combination of high-density land use, a 60-foot-tall building, and a profit-making enterprise with what some considered limited social value was more than many of the aldermen were willing to swallow.

The vote to deny all three items without prejudice was 21 in favor, 1 opposed, and 2 absent. Louis Egelson was the sole opponent of the denial, after vote changes by Ernest Dietz and Robert Gaynor. Michael Antonellis and David Jackson were absent from the entire Board meeting.

Other actions of the Board this week included unanimous approval of appropriating $678,796 for the School Department.

The appropriation of $528,796 had been voted 7-0 by the Finance Committee at a special meeting April 3 in order to avert a crisis caused by a shortage of money for teachers' June salaries.

The request had been for $648,796, but that amount had been reduced by $120,000 through the diligence of Larry Marino, assistant to Comptroller Arthur Marr, who found a surplus in school salary accounts.

The new figure does not mean the School Department needs or will receive more money, but reflects a transfer by the School Department of $150,000 from its "charter maintenance" account into city surplus, and then an appropriation from the city's surplus account to the schools' salary accounts.

In reducing the original amount needed for teachers' salaries through this fiscal year from slightly over $1 million down to the $648,796, the School Department had made what Marr and City Solicitor Howard Levine thought might be construed as an illegal transfer of $150,000 from one account to another in its budget.

Levine therefore hit on the double transfer subject to Board acceptance as a sfaeguard against possible illegality.

The Board vote included the words "for this purpose only at this point in time," in reference to both transfers.

In other business, the Board wrangled over a decision by Land Use Chairman Joseph McDonnell to hold action on Joseph McMullin's petition for permissive use for signs, a service center, vehicle storage and rental of trucks and trailers at 926 Boylston St., Newton Highlands.

McMullin had requested the committee not to report its vote out to the full Board until the May 6 meeting, since he would be away.

McMullin, who has been operating his business for 24 years, many of them in violation of zoning ordinances, had been recalcitrant in agreeing to the conditions imposed on the continued operation of the service center, but all differences were finally ironed out, and the Land Use Committee had voted 5-0 in favor of granting the permissive use.

Ald. Terry Morris, Susan Schur, Mark White and Joan Saklad wanted to take the item from committee and put it to a vote, but Barkin and McDonnell wanted to postpone the vote, since they had had told McMullin they would.

Morris remarked, "There is no rationale for holding this. The time to influence aldermen is in committee."

But Barkin said, "The time to influence aldermen is right up to the last minute. I've got a funny feeling that the people who are anxious to take this out of

Census analysis shows Newton trailing Wellesley in statistics

The 1970 median family income in Newton was $15,380, compared to a median of $9,133 for families in Boston and $19,400 in Wellesley, according to a recent report from the United Community Planning Corp. (formerly United Community Services of Boston).

Census figures recently analyzed by the UCPC research department from 1970 U.S. Census Bureau records show that twenty-three per cent of Newton families had an annual income of $25,000 or more, and three per cent earned less than $3,000 per year. In Boston three percent of the families earned $25,000 or more per year, and ten per cent had an annual income of less tha $3,000. In Wellesley these figures are thirty per cent and two per cent, respectively.

Racial composition in Newton was ninety eight per cent white, one per cent black and one per cent other racial groups. Boston's composition was eighty-two per cent white, sixteen per cent lback, and two per cent other groups. In Wellesley racial composition is ninety-nine per cent white, one per cent black and other.

Thirty-one per cent of Newton residents aged 25 and older graduated from college, compared to ten per cent in Boston and 45 per cent in Wellesley. In Newton twenty-one per cent of the same age group did not complete high school compared to forty-six per cent in Boston and twelve per cent in Wellesley.

Job classification showdd 72 per cent of Neton workers with white-collar jobs, compared to fifty-seven per cent of Boston workers and seventy-eight per cent of Wellesley workers. "White collar" jobs are defined as professional, technical, administrative, managerial, clerical, and sales.

Fifty-eight per cent of Newton residents had live in the same dwelling for almost 10 years, and seventy per cent owned their own homes. In Boston seventy-three per cent of the residents rented their living quarters.

Forty-one per cent of Newton residents were born outside the United States or had at least one parent born outside the U.S. Of this number twenty-three per cent were Russian, seventeen per cent Italian, and fifteen Canadian. In comparison, thirty-seven per cent of Boston residents or at least one parent were foreign-born; of these, twenty-two per cent were Irish, nineteen per cent Italian, and fifteen per cent Canadian. In Wellesley fifty-eight per cent of the residents were foreign-born or had at least one foreign-born parent, with twenty-three per cent of these Canadian, thirteen per cent Irish, thirteen per cent Italian and thirteen per cent English.

The United Community Planning Corporation compiles and publishes metropolitan Boston population characteristics for use in comprehensive social planning. Census data for the Boston metropolitan statistical area (Boston and 83 surrounding cities and towns) are available upon request from UCPC, 14 Somerset St., Boston 02108.

Managers hazy on smoking ban

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

Newton markets have had varied responses to a recently passed city ordinance banning smoking in retail food stores.

Spokesmen at six markets were asked this week about their experiences with the ordinance. No smoing signs are reportedly up at all six stores, but apparently not all of them are enforcing this request.

The assistant manager at a Newton Highlands market said that customers who have been seen smoing have not been asked to stop.

"We have no company law to tell us no smoking," the spokesman said. "If we tell them to stop, we feel they may take it as hard feelings toward our store."

The assistant manager said that "if people complained, we would do something." He reported only one incident realting to the no smoking ordiance. He said that two male customers got into a verbal battle about one of them smoking, but that they resolved their dispute and left the store amiably.

A customer of this market has confirmed the policy stated by the assistant manager. She claims to have smoked in the store with no objection from store personnel.

The director of store operations of this company was contacted, and he said that the company had "found it hard to enforce this kind of ordinance." H e noted that the "pulic might become resentful.

When questioned about his store's policy, he aggred that smoking customers should be told about the no smoking ordiannce. He implied that this will soon become policy at this Newton Highlands store.

A second market in Newton Highlands has apparently been equally lax about enforcing the no smoking ordinance. A worker at the store said that people still smoke and that they are not stopped.

The worker said that there is probably not as much smoking since the ban went into effect. He surmised that some people are probably not aware of the law.

A spokesman at a Newton Centre market reported having seen two smokers since the ordinance was passed. Both smokers were spoken to, and according to the spokesman, there was "no trouble."

He added, however, that he could not picture himself "physically throwing someone out og the store" who would not complay with the ordinance.

The manager at a Waban market said that there have been no problems relating to the ban. When asked f he had seen any smokers, he said "not a one."

According to the assistant manager at a Newtonville market, his policy has been to inform smokers of the no smoking ordinances rather than ordering them to extinguish their cigarettes. He said that all smokers he has talked to have responded the same way; they have stopped smoking.

The assistant manager said that he has had only one complaint about the ordinance. One person though t it an "inconvenience."

The manager of a third Newton Highlands market claims to have spoken to one or two people about putting cigarettes out. "Our company has made no rules about it," the manager commented.

NRA faces new developer problem

By ELEANOR SIEGEL

The Newton Redevelopment Authority, which has had a host of problems since its inception, learned last week that Sparling and Slye, commercial developers of the Lower Falls site, think "taxes for the project will be twice the amount projected" possibly making the plan "unfeasible."

William Phelan, project manager for the developer, told members that the "assessors indicate they will cooperate."

The three buildings Spaulding and Slye propose are causing the difficulty, since they will be taxed at a higher rate than a one building project.

The developers stated that they based their tax projections on "comparable buildings in Newton as well as completed buildings along 128 and Wellesley and Burlington."

Richard Clarey, member of the authority asked if this would make these buildings the "highest taxed in the state" and the answer was "yes".

The developers also have financing problems with the three buildings since they can only get financing on one completed building. This building would have to be on its own piece of land.

Whelan explained that "we are not proposing to change the land, only allocate it differently and create legally zoned lots." The developer also requested increasing the construction period from 18 months to 24 months.

Housing is still another issue facing the Authority. Originally the redevelopment plan called for 60-75 units of low-moderate income housing. However, an effort to relocate four merchants on Washington Avenue caused a cutback in the housing to about 40 units.

This cutback has been challenged by Clarey, who stated that if this project is "to have any redeeming social value, it was from the promise that a considerable amount of low-income housing would result. . . a cut from 60 to 40 is a breach."

Clarey pointed out that 28 luxury units which were approved on Concord Street "replaced a single house on a sliver of land."

While the housing is being debated, the post office, it seems is also in jeopardy.

A letter was read to authority members from Alderman Louis Egelson to the director of postal services expressing concern that the Lower Falls Post Office may not be able to continue.

The post office is being evicted by it's landlord, the Lower Falls Wine Company. Donald Budge, president of the Lower Falls Improvement Association, suggested to the Authority it "help keep the post office here by using the Old Farmdale Ice Cream building."

The authority scheduled another meeting tonight (April 18).

Auto Center could cost in improvements

The proposed automotive center at Newton South High School, now estimated at $100,000 construction cost, could end up costing far more than that in other improvements to the school.

The Public Buildings Committee in March tentatively voted, after a public hearing on the center, to support the addition provided that it be a "readily demountable and movable" metal building and that 65 per cent of the costs are reimbursed by the state School Buildings Assistance Bureau (SBAB).

But Stephen Hart, school plant specialist and educational consultant for the SBAB, explained recently that getting the automotive center is not as easy as it seems: "You don't come in and say, 'We need an auto shop.' "

"You tell us the number of kids you have and the program you have, and we tell you what you ought to have," Hart said. "People that come to us don't have the answer first, they have the problem. But some communities think they have the answer."

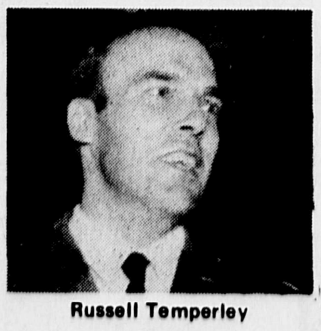

Looked at from some cities' and towns' point of view, the "assistance" in the name of SBAB is purely financial, but from the state's point of view it means assistance in planning and program first, and financial aid second.

Ex-POW's— one year later

By ELIZABETH McKINNON

Only a year ago, Newton turned cartwheels for her two repatriated prisoners of war, Capt. Paul Brown and Maj. Russell Temperley.

Where are they now?

Russell Temperley is in Texas, and is married to his childhood sweetheart.

Paul Brown was in town on leave last week, and we had a chance to talk with him for a few hours over a few drinks.

We remembered the big celebration (big for Newton) last April 11, when the two POWs got home to Newton, and what he had talked about then. How he thought he'd like to leave the Marines and do a lot of traveling, then get a job "working with people."

Paul, who is now 30, changed his mind a bit. He stayed in the Marines and last month made his first solo flight. He loves flying (he had been a bombardier when he

A former child views 'Mister Rogers'

By ANDY FIELDING

Six or seven years ago, when I was still in elementar school, the phrase "Educational Television" wa synonomous with science experiments and "cultural programs (To a sixth grader, as I recall, the wor "culture" usually was equated with boredom).

The Educational Television we saw and there reall wasn't much of it—didn't seem to offer much in terms o imagination or appeal.

That's changed.

Today, it's called "Public Television," and I certainl wish that today's Public Television programming, par ticularly those shows directed at kids, was around when was in elementary school. Having shows like "Sesam Street" and "The Electric Company" and "Zoom" t watch—all on public TV—would undoubtedly have mad the whole learning process a much more enjoyable an interesting one.

Those shows really speak for themselves—they've al continually received plaudits (and awards) from critics parents, and kids. They are prime examples of the grea strides that have been made in the past few years in the way of television programming for kids (Some shows on com mercial television, like "Make A Wish," "Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids," and locally "Jabberwocky" as well as others have received much praise. Many persons, however, like those at Action for Children's Television in Newton, still lodge heavy complaints at many commercials and com mercial TV shows).

There's one children's show on public TV, however, that I think deserves special attention, and that is "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood," a half-hour Monday through Saturday show starring Fred Rogers (Channel 2, 5 p.m., Mon.-Fri., 8:30 a.m. Sat.)

Shows like "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" are fantastic shows—they're funny, they're clever, they're put together beautifully—and I don't wish to belittle their value. But it seems that something is often lost on those shows amidst the emphasis on the mechanics and the fundamentals of words, spelling, math, and knowledge. They do tend to lack a personal touch, the one-to-one communication with the youthful viewers that does seem so important.

Fred Rogers (with a background in music, theology, child development, and television writing and production) provides that communication. Every day, from his little "home" at WQED in Pittsburgh, he talks and sings and opens up to young children in an enormously friendly, calm, and undoubtedly reassuring fashion. He's not stuffy or condescending—he's a friend, who speaks to children about values, about his and their problems and concerns, about how to understand both the bad and the good things that go on in this world.

Topics he'll discuss on the show will include such things as: overcoming fears of being hurt; how trust can strengthen friendships; conformity; coping with anger; individuality; family life; how children try to gain attention; or even observing a colony of bees working together to illustrate the idea of cooperation.

His shows will also feature instructional or informational segments, such as: building sand castles; the care of animals; learning to make simple toys; or a whirlpool treatment demonstration.

The show also provides musical performances and entertainment (pantomime, marionettes, etc.) There is also a daily trip into the "Neighborhood of Make Believe," in which puppets are used (with Rogers himself supplying the puppet voices).

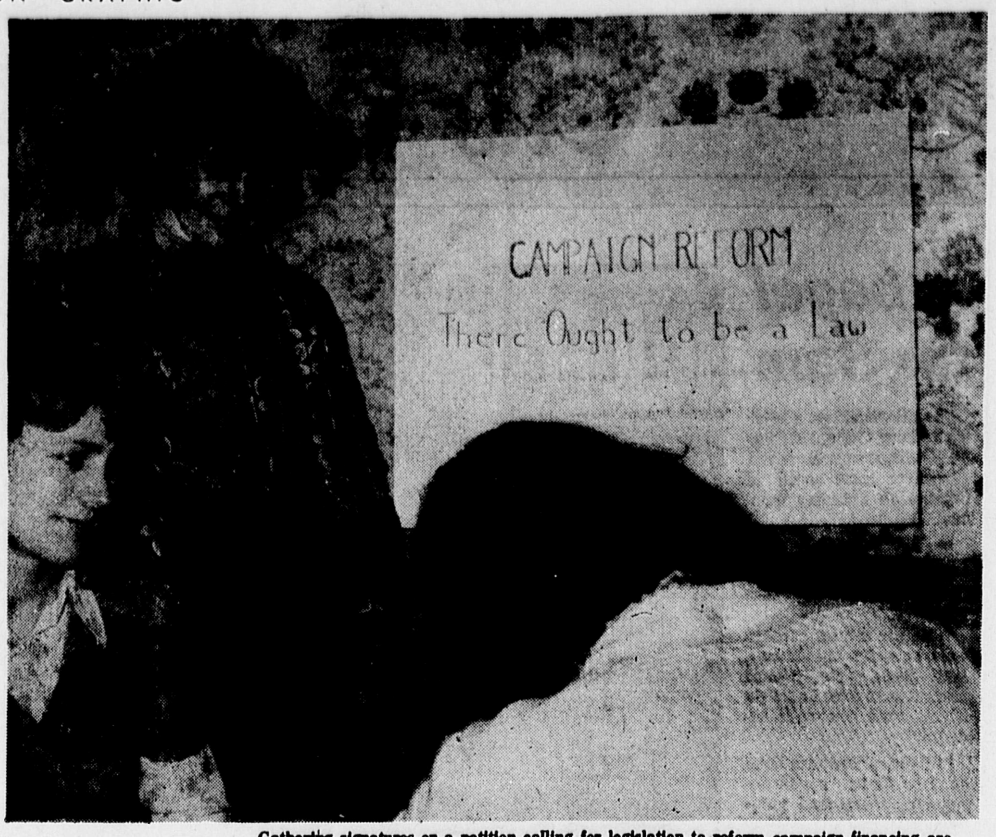

His songs (which he writes) are an important part of each show. Assisted by Music Director John Costa on the piano (obviously an extremely talented musician), Rogers will sing songs like, "Won't You Be My Neighbor," "A Place of My Own," "You are You," or "I'm Angry."

In one song,i"It's Such A Good Feeling," he sings:

It's a good feeling
To know you're alive
It's such a good feeling
You're growing inside
And when you wake up ready to say
"I think I'll grow 12 inches today
It's such a good feeling, a very good feeling
The feeling you know you're alive.

Aside from his television show, Rogers has released a number of albums, as well as a "Mister Rogers Songbook." In addition, some very interesting Mister Rogers news information packets are being published 10 times a year, called "Around the Neighborhood," which include a newsletter, records, stories, etc.

Throughout it all,nFred Rogers' warmth always shines through. One senses that he really does care about each person watching him, that he is a friend to all. In an age of mechanization and complexity and confusion, it's so nice to see Fred Rogers and his real concern, his simplicity, and his wisdom. Every young child should get to know him.

metro education topic May 2

The Newton PTA Council has scheduled a panel discussion of "Consideration of Metropolitan Education" for Thursday, May 2 at 7:30 p.m. at Newton North High School.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, a member of the panel, talked about metropolitization this week.

Fink views metropolitization as "collaborative efforts between urban and suburban school systems to provide better education for all kids.

"There are lots of resources in the city which should be used by suburban kids," Fink commented.

He noted that collaboration can reduce costs and provide more efficient service.

"I think no community can put a high fence around itself," Fink said. "Our future is very much tied up with the city."

Fink remarked that the METCO program "has brought something to the Newton community." He said that there is less "stereotypic thinking" in schools which have a mixture of kids.

"Metropolitization means different things to different people," Fink commented. "To some people it means busing or one big school district."

Fink said that he is not interested in one big school district. He said he is interested in local control of schools.

It was noted that a regional program may provide things that cannot be provided locally.

Fink said that to set up a regional program, three things have to be worked out: legislation, governance and funding. "I happen to feel that if there are regional programs, they ought to be funded principally by the state," Fink commented.

Fink said that the state does have regional offices, including one in Newton, but they do not run programs for schools. "They merely advise and bring people together," Fink remarked.

Fink suggested that a regional office could develop programs, run them and be reimbursed by the towns or cities which use them.

Fink said that several programs which involve collaboration already exist. He cited as examples a program for the hard of hearing, a work-study program in EDCO, and a reading program.

Fink mentioned purchasing, social services, libraries, and programs as areas in which collaboration may be advantageous.

Pretrial diversion bill reported favorably

The legislature's Joint Judiciary Committee last week gave a favorable report to a bill co-sponsored by Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) to provide for pretrial diversion of delinquency complaints.

Mofenson says, "Pretrial diversion is a program designed to "divert" youthful offenders out of the criminal justice system and into improved job and living situations. The bill is designed to assist in the reintegration of young offenders into society.

"In a period characterized by a growing crime rate, rising costs of government, increasing complexity in legal processes, and growing recognition of the ineffectiveness of existing correctional programs it is imperative that present methods for dealing with crime be reexamined and new alternatives developed. Courts have long provided alternatives to trial and imprisonment in certain limited instances, such as when dealing with the mentally retarded. However, since the late 1960s, the idea of offering effective alteratives in a wider range of circumstances has been gaining support. Pretrial diversion has emerged as one such effective alternative."

Under the bill, the office of the Commisioner of Probation certifies and supervises all programs to which defendants may be diverted. The bill also calls for the establishment of an advisory board to the office of the commissioner for the overseeing of programs. The members of the advisory shall be the Attorney General, the commissioners of Education, Mental Health, Rehabilitation and Welfare, a district court judge, the director of the Division of Employment Security, the president of the District Attorneys' Association, or the designees of any of the above persons,and seven experts in the area of human services to the sociologically and economically disadvantaged through community-based programs, one of whom shall be an exoffender. The seven experts would be appointed by the governor for terms of two years.

Mofenson explained that because of its informality and flexibility, pretrial diversion broadens the resources that can be used to deal with offenders. It makes these resources available to the offender earlier than do traditional approaches, since it does not require conviction before referral to a rehabilitation program.

If an offender successfully completes a pretrial diversion program he retains no criminal record, and without the stigma of a record, an offender has a better chance of eventual success in life and avoidance of later problems with the law.

Project Crossroads, Washington, D.C., Manhattan Court Employment Project, New York City, and Boston Court Resource Project have shown that pretrial diversion programs tend to increase substantially the employability of participants and to decrease significantly the rate of recidivism. Experience in these and other similar programs has also demonstrated that pretrial diversion is an economical rehabilitative tool.

Pretrial diversion programs have made a dramatic difference in the lives of individuals on the brink of full criminal involvement. The programs convince many participants that they can succeed in society and prepare them to do so. Pretrial diversion in certain instances is a workable alternative to the traditional approach of trial and punishment.

The concept of pretrial diversion is not an unknown area but rather one that has been experimented with and has proved successful. The legislation seeks to expand this service and make it available in all the sistrict courts of the Commonwealth.

YMCA hires new development director

Re. Philip D. Chamberlain, formerly the state public relations and service extension director of the Salvation Army, has joined the staff of the Newton YMCA as director of development.

Chamberlain brings a wealth of experience in communications, public relations, promotion, and fund raising to his new position. A graduate of Wheaton College and the recipeint of the Masters in Divinity from Gordon-Conwell Seminary, Chamberlain spent nearly 20 years in the Baptist ministry.

In 1953, he became director of public relations at Gordon College and Gordon-Conwell Seminary, then took his position with the Salvation Army in 1959.

Chamberlain is a member of the National Society of Fund Raisers and a founding member of the board of the Massachusetts chapter.

Filling the position vacated by Robert Strine, who recently joined the staff of the Hartford, Conn. YMCA, Chamberlain's responsibilities include the continuance of the "Y's" Centennial Fund program begun by Strine in 1973.

The Centennial Fund program has three major components: the Building Fund, to replace the 64-year old facility in three phases over a 10-year period; the Sustaining Fund, to establish and continue an annual community appeal designed to move the association toward a self-sustaining operating budget; and the Endowment Fund, a continous deferred-giving program .

Conservation Commission

The Newton Conservation Commission will run the last in a series of spring clean-ups at the Houghton Garden section of the Webster Conservation Area on Saturday, April 20, at 9:30 a.m. at the end of Suffolk Road.

Attention will be given to the area around the rock formation in the Garden west of Hammond Brook. Adult volunteers with tree saws would be especially welcome.

Locations will be chosen for pathway markers. The markers can be put up as soon as the Street Department has a supply of chipped wood large enough to bring in to cover the slippery clay section of the pathway on the south side of Hammond Brook.

In case of rain on April 20, the alternate clean-up date will be Sunday, April 21, at 2 p.m. For information call Helen Heyn at 527-9121.

On Tuesday, April 30, 7 a.m., the Houghton Garden will be used by Deborah Howard, commission member, for the first of the 1974 community bird walks which are sponsored by the Massachusetts Audubon Society and which last through the warbler spring migration period.

The next regular commission meeting will be May 1 at 8 p.m., at City Hall.

Cohen out of race for state senate

Eliot Cohen, president of Newton's Board of Aldermen, and until this week a possible candidate for the State Senate, has decided not to run.

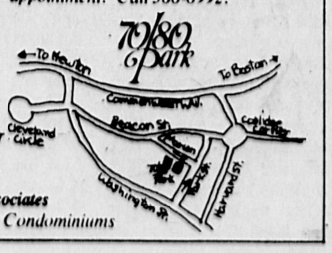

The field for the new seat, created by redistricting last year, seems to be occupied only by Newton's Sen. Irving Fishman, who now represents Newton-Watertown, and Brookline's Sen. Jack H. Backman.

Cohen said this week, "I have made up my mind that my real interest is the city of Newton."

"If I run for anything besides alderman, it will be for mayor," Cohen said.

Housing Authority, DCA clash over project here

By ELEANOR SIEGEL

A dispute has arisen between the Newton Housing Authority and the State Department of Community Affairs DCA over the per unit cost for the propsoed 20 low-income family dupliexes which were to be built on Beaconwood Road.

The DCA contends that with the new bids, the homes would cost $56,051 a unit. According to Tadhg Sweeney, deputy commissioner of the DCA, these bids are "out of the ball park" since he says "a quick estimate of Newton's single homes show they sell for $38,000-40,000. He commented that "if one assumes this, there is no necessity for the state to pay $56,000 for half of a duplex."

However, Helen Stepakoff, real estate agent for Longwood Associates says that the average home in Newton sells for $45,000-50,000.

Sweeney states that during discussions with the mayor and the Housing Authority, it was made clear that "we would look favorably at a total development cost of $35,000; $40,000 would raise serious questions and $45,000 would be turned down."

The NHA architect, Dave Sheffield of Architects Collaborative, states that he is "in direct disagreement with Sweeney's figures." However, no formal communication between the NHA and the DCA has been produced.

James Miller, chairman of the NHA calls the rejection "unconscionable." The Housing Authority maintains that the DCA never made its position clear and Frank Quinn, executive director of the NHA asked "why did the DCA encourage us to go out for bids?"

Miller said the DCA "initiated" the building of low-income family units.

Another issue emerging from this imbroglio is that the DCA charges Newton "has not made it easy for the NHA to build" because it has not offered to help in building streets or supplying services and utilities, fire lines, sewerage lines, or electric lines.

Miller stated that "no other city builds its own streets." Sweeney acknowledged that no other city was giving this kind of help for low-income family housing.

Zoning is another issue since the DCA says that Newton should "think about granting a zoning bariance" on Beaconwood to enable more units to be built 48 privately owned units on Beaconwood.

"If it is not feasible for a private developer to build fewer units, it certainly isn't feasible for us," declared Seeeney.

A personal appeal to Governor Francis Sargant to overturn the DCA decision has been made by Mayor Theodore D. Mann, James Miller and Anthony Medaglia, former NHA chairman. Mann says he told the governor, at the 45 minute meeting, that "any delay in accepting the bids on the part of the DCA will cost the state 1.5 percent per month in construction costs." Mann said the governor stated he would take the matter "under advisement."

The NHA has 30 working days in which to accept the low construction bid which came in at $874,700 from P.J. Stella Construction Corp. in Wakefield, Mass. The units were to include 15 3 bedroom apratments, five four bedroom apratments and two handicapped units. All apartments were to have one and a half baths.

Tax rebates proposed for homeowners and tenants

Rep. Peter F. Harrington (D-Newton) has joined with a broad coalition of 54 representatives and senators to file legislation giving property tax rebates to overburdened homeowners and tenants through a state income tax credit.

The bill (H. 4001) allows homeowners and tenants up to $500 relief from excessive property taxes. Its basic principle is that people with incomes under $10,000 should not pay more than eight percent of their income for property taxes.

"The 'circuitbreaker' approach prevents a tax overload on overburdened taxpayers without interrupting the flow of revenue from those who can afford to pay," Harrington said. "It gives large families and retired people a much-needed break in their taxes, while maintaining the right of cities and towns to collect local property taxes and pay for essential municipal services," he added.

Harrington explained how H. 4001 works. For example, a typical homeowning family of three with a total yearly income of $9,000 owns a house and pays $1,100 in local property taxes. They get $500 credit or rebate on heir state income tax, under H. 4001's three-step formula.

1. Their adjusted income is calculated by substracting their personal exemptions from their total household income. Adjusted income would be $5,800 ($2,600 exemption for husband and wife on joint return; $600 for each dependent).

2. Their excess property tax is found by taking eight percent of their adjusted income and subtracting that figure from their property tax for that year (eight percent of $5,800 is $464; subtracting $464 from the $1,100 property tax gives $636 as the excess property tax).

3. Their tax relief is found by taking 90 percent of their excess property tax. Because it is greater than the $500 maximum allowed, the family gets a credit, or tax refund, of $500 (90 percent of $636 is $552.40).

The "circuitbreaker" also provides relief for tenants. For example, a typical family of five makes $8500 a year and rents an apartment for $200 a month ($2,400 a year). Their property taxes are assumed to be 25 percent of their total annual rent. For tax credit purposes, this family's property taxes would be set at $600. Here's how the formula would work:

1. Adjusted income ($8,500 less $4,400 exemptions — $2600 for husband and wife, $600 for each dependent) is $4,100.

2. Excess property tax (eight percent of $4,100 is $338; $600 minus $338) is $262.

3. Tax credit (90 percent of $262) would be $235.80.

Harrington emphasized that passage of H. 4001 would bring real tax relief to elderly people. For example, an elderly couple might have a retirement income of $3,000 and a local property tax of $700. If they qualify for an elderly abatement from their city or town, they pay about $350 and save $350. If they choose, instead, to pay their full local property tax and file a claim under H. 4001, they pay only $200 and save $500."

"H. 4001 helps more retired people than the abatement system," Harrington said, "because it has no artificial age limits. Since it is based on the amount of tax actually paid, elderly people can use whichever tax relief method saves them the most money."

H. 4001, and its Senate companion S. 370, will be heard by the Joint Committee on Taxation, April 16 at 10:30 a.m. in Gardner Auditorium at the State House.

Harrington, other sponsors, and numerous private citizens expect to testify on the need for and merits of this legislation.

Commercial reappraisal underway

The reappraisal of all commercial real estate in the city of Newton began this week.

Commercial property located north of the Massachusetts Turnpike will be inventoried first, according to Paul Reinhard, project supervisor for Cole - Layer - Trumble, appraisers.

The inventory procedure for commercial property is basically the same as that of residential property, Reinhard said. The commercial "lister" asks permission to inspect the interior and exterior of each commercial property and also records the exterior measurements of each improvement.

In addition, the commercial lister will request economic information such as current monthly or yearly income and expense figures, lease information, and recent sales. Capitalization of income is the primary method used by the appraiser to determine value on commercial property.

Reinhard stressed that the commercial lister is not setting values but is merely collecting and recording raw data to be studied, analyzed and used at a later date in the appraisal process for determining market value.

The inventory phase of commercial real property is expected to be completed by late summer. Reinhard added that the inventory of commercial personal property will not be started until sometime next fall.

Inventory of residential property is presently about 50 percent completed, with first calls presently being made in Newton Centre, Newton Highlands, and Newton Upper Falls.

The residential phase is progressing according to schedule and is expected to be completed by late summer.

The first week in May, Reinhard said, working hours for the residential listers will be extended to 8 p.m. This will allow the listers additional time to make callbacks to those properties where the occupants are not home between the normal working hours of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Consumer committee tries branching out

The mayor's Advisory Committee on Consumer Affairs, headed by Rev. Robert McEwen, has initiated an investigation into broadening the committee's scope.

Right now, the committee is set up as a research and investigating arm.

Rev. McEwen said this week that he believes "the committee is severely restricted in its ability to initiate programs other than those specifically directed by the mayor." It is his intent that the committee delve into a wider range of consumer advocacy programs.

This action would be aimed at having the Board of Aldermen create a commission whose efforts would be legally binding.

A copy of a model ordinance, obtained from attorney Terrance J. Hamilton of the state Consumers Council, was forwarded to the Newton city solicitor to see whether it conflicted with the city charter.

An ordinance such as this would give a commission the right to investigate, the right to advise the general public, and the right to hold public hearings.

The committee also adopted a resolution supporting a recent aldermanic decision to invite the Food and Drug Administration to come into Newton to conduct a survey of restaurant conditions, using stringent inspection standards. The FDA does not charge for this service.

McEwen indicated that Newton's health department inspection was not adequate.

Compost

April showers bring May flowers all right, but you can help your flowers and vegetables along with the rich, black compost free for the taking at the Beacon Street compost area.

Every Saturday till further notice Newton residents may fill their own containers, over and over again if desired. If you have a trailer, you can even fill that.

Hours at the compost area, which is on Beacon Street near Kippy Drive (near Four Corners), are 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Teacher's notified officially of staff cuts

The Newton School Committee decided during budget hearings this year that 31.3 professional positions in the Newton School System should be eliminated.

Assistant Superintendent for Personnel James Laurits said this week that employees in the schools have been notified that they have been released in order to make this cut possible. It was necessary to notify the employees by April 15. Otherwise, a teacher's contract is automatically renewed.

Laurits explained that the cutting was done very carefully, school by school. "We decided which schools must cut back due to enrollment," Laurits said.

Laurits noted that many people released may be rehired. He said that last year 76 people were released and over 40 were rehired.

This year, about 70 people were released. This includes people who were hired during the year as temporary employees.

Laurits said that timing made it impossible to cut positions before April 15 through resignations and retirements. He commented that most vacancies do not occur this early. He noted that the School Committee had to take action in late March so people could be notified before April 15.

Laurits said that most of the people released are "fine teachers. It's a shame to go through this exercise."

Amnesty Week at local libraries April 21-27

Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian reminds patrons of a National Library Week (April 21-27) event, Amnesty Week, a 'fine-free' week, when all overdue library materials may be returned without charge - with no questions asked.

Free films scheduled for screening at the Main Library during National Library Week include "The Sea Beast," the silent film version of Melville's "Moby Dick," starring John Barrymore, on Wednesday, April 12 at noon; and three films: "Boston Harbor - City Islands," "The Sixth Continent," and the "Beautiful Blue and Red Danube," Thursday evening April 25 at 7 p.m.

Another offering is an exhibit of Edward Movitz's paintings. A professor of art at Massachusetts College of Art, Movitz is exhibiting 14 oils at the Main Library.

In the glass cases patrons can view a month long exhibit of antique sheet music loaned from Mr. Robert McCarron's extensive collection of paper ephemera.

Interested citizens are urged to read the Newton Free Library Bulletin, listen to WNTN, and to check with their local librarians for specific days and times of library events.

Opportunities for preschool children

Workshops on opportunities for preschoolers in Newton will be held April 23 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre.

From 9-10 a.m. there will be registration, displays and introduction. From 10-10:45 and 11-11:45 (repeat) the workshops will be conducted. There is a 50 cent admission charge.

The workshops will be on the following topics: nursery schools, family day care, play groups, day care centers, and Chapter 766 and the preschool child.

The conference is sponsored by the Council for Children, the Newton Department of Human Resources, the Women's Cooperative, the Newton School Department, the Nursery School Teachers Association, and the Newton chapter of the National Organization for Women.

Open meetings

If anything at all is sacred to reporters, it is the "Open Meeting Law." It is the only thing standing between the public and secrecy in government.

Open meeting laws may vary from state to state, but they all have one thing in common, they tell elected officials when it would be improper to meet behind closed doors.

While the present law in Massachusetts can be considered illdefined and weak, it has tended to serve its purpose in Newton. Newton's mayor and aldermen are generally vocal themselves when it comes to keeping meetings open to the public while Newton's School Committee remains a little more tight lipped.

Last month, the Newton Graphic became involved in a dispute over the propriety of several "conference committee" meetings that have been held at the mayor's office. We contended that since the meetings involved the top elected officials of the city, ostensibly members of a committee formed by the mayor to iron out differences between aldermen and school committee members, the meetings should be open to the press.

Friday, in a two-hour meeting with the mayor, we ironed out our differences in this matter and arrived at what we feel is an equitable solution.

The mayor says he has disbanded the conference committee, but nevertheless, is amenable to having the city solicitor decide whether a group of city officials can meet in his office without having the meeting open to the public and press.

We agreed to having the city solicitor rule on each meeting on an individual basis. If he says the meeting should be open, the mayor says it will be.

We also agreed that our major objection to meetings behind closed doors centered on elected officials, not city employees or department heads

As the chief executive of the city, we feel the mayor does have a right to meet with these people on regular business without having reporters present

Elected officials, however, are responsible to all of us and we feel it is imperative their actions are known to voters as fully as possible

The mayor has maintained throughout his administration that he too is opposed to secrecy He demonstrated his sincerity when he told the city solicitor Friday he wants to "live up to the letter and the spirit" of the open meeting law

We feel it is the responsibility of the press and the public to protect its rights when officials want to hold executive sessions.

No one is obliged to get up and leave a room because some official wants to close a meeting. Meetings can only be closed for specific reasons and they are spelled out in the state law. Citizens, observers and reporters who do leave meetings without determining their exact purpose are relinquishing their own rights.

We will continue to press for open meetings and to make sure before we leave a meeting that it is being legally closed. We welcome anyone who would like to join with us in protecting these rights.

We also feel that with Howard Levine as Newton's city solicitor, we can rest assured these matters will be judged fairly and impartially. We trust any dispute put before him will be fairly resolved because he is a fair man.

Earth Day

Newton has no plans to celebrate Earth Day.

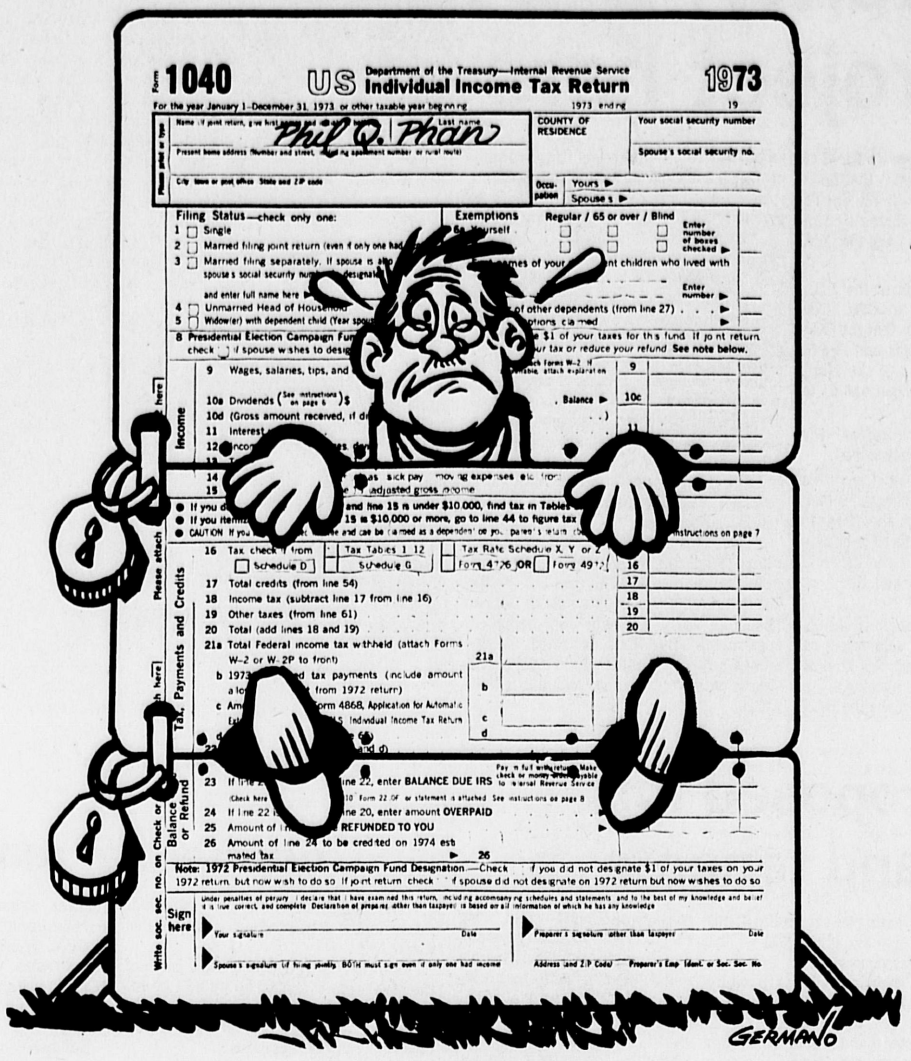

The Boy and Girl Scouts are going to clean up Cold Spring Playground on Saturday, the Conservation Commission will clean up the Houghton Garden, there will be a tree planting on Commonwealth Avenue next week by the Newton Arboretum.

But there is no observance planned for April 22.

We are conservation-minded in Newton—we put out our token newspapers for recycling, we claim to be the Garden City, we are fanatical about road salt, we compost our leaves—yet no one from the mayor down to all the conservation and ecology groups has been able to stir up interest in Earth Day.

Where is everybody?

Need Democratic help to win - Lt. Gov. Dwight

Lieutenant Governor Donald R. Dwight quoted Christian A. Herter, "one of the truly great Governors in Massachusetts history," as pointing out repeatedly that neither he nor any other Republican could win a state-wide election fight in Massachusetts without some Democratic help.

"That help and respect must be earned," Dwight observed. "Any Republican Governor of Massachusetts, who appointed only Republicans, would defeat both himself and his party.

"By working with the Democrats and giving recognition to them, Governor Francis Sargent has kept Massachusetts a two-party state," he declared.

Lieutenant Governor Dwight made these statements in an exclusive interview as he answered the criticism of some Republicans that Governor Sargent has not done enough to build up the GOP and has given too much recognition to Democrats.

"I'm sure Francis Sargent will be reelected next November," Dwight asserted. "But if he should be defeated, Massachusetts almost immediately would become a one-party state."

"What Christian Herter said back in 1952 and 1953 is more true than ever today," Dwight continued as he pointed out that Massachusetts now probably is the most Democratic state in the nation and was the only one of the 50 states George McGovern carried over Richard Nixon in 1972.

Dwight, who will be the second half of the Republican gubernatorial ticket next November, has been the top trouble-shooter of the Sargent administration.

He brought order out of chaos at the Walpole State Prison when he was placed in charge of the state's penal system after former Correction Commissioner John O. Boone was fired last June.

For 12 consecutive weekends before Boone was ousted the state police either were alerted because of trouble at the Walpole State Prison or were actually sent into the institution to quell a disturbance.

That did not happen once during the four months Dwight was restoring order in the Massachusetts penal system. One of Dwight's notable accomplishments was to establish communications with the guards and correctional officers who had not been listened to for a long time.

For all practical purposes Dwight was the acting commissioner of correction. He supervised the programs at all the prisons, got a permanent superintendent for Walpole, recruited and recommended a new correction commissioner and gradually overcame perhaps the most troublesome problem of the Sargent administration.

Dwight also has functioned with skill and efficiency for Governor Sargent in the fields of education and economic development and in spearheading the fight for the reorganization of some phases of the state government. He also presided over the Governor's Council hearings on the petition for the removal of former Judge Jerome Troy.

After working closely with Governor Sargent for more than five years, the first two as Deputy Governor and Commissioner of Administration and Finance, the last three years and three months as Lieutenant Governor, Dwight voices a warm admiration for Francis Sargent.

"Because there is a public trust and confidence in Frank Sargent. Because he has the integrity people are yearning for and, very basically, the people not only trust him but like him. His honesty and standing with the people come through. The people instinctively trust him."

That was Dwight's reply when he was asked why he believes so strongly that Francis W. Sargent will be reelected next November as the Republican Governor of a Democratic State.

He said somewhat the same thing when he was asked what he believed are the big issues Sarge has going for him in the coming election.

"Public confidence and trust," Dwight emphasized. "His personal characteristics. The belief that he is working for everybody, not for any special interests. He makes hard decisions on tough problems which the people respect even though they don't always like them."

Dwight observed that no new state taxes have been enacted during the past three years of Mr. Sargent's service as Governor even though the cost of running the state government has gone up. The state's economy has kept pace with the increased expense.

In response to a question, Lieutenant Governor Dwight expressed the conviction that former State Correction Commissioner John O. Boone will not be an issue in next fall's campaign in view of the fact that Governor Sargent fired him last June. "He would be an issue if her were still Correction Commissioner," Dwight asserted.

The Lieutenant Governor dodge one question that was put to him. That involved the battle between Attorney General Robert Quinn and former State Representative Michael Dukakis for the Democratic nomination for Governor, the winner of which will engage Francis Sargent in the final November election.

"I'll let the Democrats choose their own candidate," was Dwight's tactful reply.

Early primary date to affect some contests

The primary campaign next September for Democratic and Republican nominations for state offices will be one of the shortest in Massachusetts political history.

Traditionally, the people don't turn their full attention to the primary contests until after Labor Day and the children have returned to school. The primary next September will be held just eight days after Labor Day.

If a tremendous furore erupts in Boston and Springfield over forced busing when public schools reopen, that also will take the spotlight of public attention away from the primary candidates.

Ordinarily, the primary would be held on Sept. 17. But Sept. 17 this year is a Jewish Holiday. So the primary has been moved ahead to Sept. 10. That will have an effect on some of the primary battles.

From an overall standpoint it will help the incumbents and hurt the lesser known challengers.

It will be a handicap to former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan in his Republican primary fight with Governor Sargent. As a practical matter, Sheehan has no chance whatever against Sargent. But the earlier date will make it more difficult for Sheehan to make even a respectable showing.

It will hurt Representative Paul Guzzi of Newton in his run against Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren. It will help a candidate such as former Lieutenant Governor Francis X. Bellotti who has a big organization of supporters he can throw into a final seven-day drive for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General.

Campaigning during the summer doldrums is a thankless, difficult task. Many of the candidates show up at clambakes and outings where the assembled men and women have scant interest in political speeches and appeals and sometimes resent them as an unwelcome intrusion.

Most of the contenders probably will revise their strategy because of the earlier primary date and depend more on the media to get their messages to the voters.

Gov. Sargent to walk "So others can run"

When you answer your doorbell on Sunday, April 28, don't be surprised if you find Governor Francis W. Sargent or Senator Edward W. Brooke standing there and asking for a dollar. Or even Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight or former Senator Leverett Saltonstall, now the elder statesman of the Republican party in Massachusetts.

They will not be panhandling. They will be participating in a so-called Republican Unity Walk and seeking $1 donations to the GOP campaign.

It obviously is a publicity stunt, and whatever money is realized will be raised the hard way. But it will get Sargent and Dwight out meeting the people and will give a personal touch to their campaign which should help them.

The money collected will be disbursed through the Republican Finance Committee to GOP legislative candidates throughout Massachusetts in an effort to increase Republican strength in the State Senate and House of Representatives.

"We want you to walk with us so others can run," was the catchy slogan voiced by Governor Sargent as he invited other Republican office holders to join in the Republican Unity Walk a week from Sunday.

Installation ceremonies

By CYNTHIA BLACK

At Christmas time, we unwittingly created some hard feelings in Nonantum due to our selection of the front page Christmas picture we used in the paper that was taken at the Noantum Christmas party.

Since that ime, we've had discussions on this incident and other matters in the little publicized sector of the city and agreed that we really ought to get ourselves together and do some writing.

First, we produced the feature on the Silver Lake Health Center and last night, I was invited to attend the installation ceremonies at the Sons of Italy Lodge.

I certainly appreciated being invited to the affair and I enjoyed myself thoroughly. I've attended meetings of both women's and men's clubs (the Kiwanis is kind of fun), but

Completely Black

I've never had the opportunity before to see the formal ceremony for the installation of officers.

The Sons of Italy and its auxiliary here, Fiori D'Italia, conduct a very precise and pleasing ceremony that was short and meaningful.

I particularly liked the way the installation was organized in a large rectangle with officers seated by rank.

This little touch of organization really did make the ceremony look like a ceremony.

After the installation, members of Fiori D'Italia served supper. Tony Lupo also appeared and we expect to have a picture for next week's paper.

Before I go on to tell you who the new Sons of Italy officers are, I'd like to comment that this event makes one good point that applies to everyone.

We never like to hear anyone say they feel they do not get as much publicity in this newspaper as other groups do because its our policy to alert readers to everything that goes on in Newton

But we also need help from you. If you tell us, drop us a note, come and see us with an idea, we can pursue it. And anyone who is thinking their idea would get them laughed right out of a newspaper office, is wrong.

Truly, some of the best leads on features, pictures and interesting people in Newtom come from readers. Some of the best ideas for stories come from little notes about meetings that are going to be held.

We were happy to hear from the Sons of Italy and we'd be happy to hear from the rest of you.

Now, the officers.

Newly elected officers of Umberto Primo Lodge No. 1069 are: Joseph Capalbo, venerable; Nunzio Pellegrini, assistant venerable; Rocco Marzilli, ex-venerable; Dominic Messina, orator; Paul Cardarelli, recording secretary; Anthony Proia, financial secretary; Loreto Piselli, treasurer.

The trustees are Frank Dalicandro, Ronald Caira, Richard Pizzi, Louis Parella, Anthony Pellegrini. Carmine Cellucci and Daniel Marzilli are the masters of ceremony and Russell Pellegrini is the sergeant-at-arms.

The Fiori D'Italia Lodge No. 1640 installed the following officers: Lee Parella, venerable; Roberta Hamilton, assistant venerable; Connie Cetrone, orator; Marilyn Tedeschi, recording secretary; Florence Salvucci, financial secretary; Jo Cacchia, treasurer.

The trustees are Esther Marchione, Lois Tedeschi, Loretta Fraiolli, Anna Doucet and Carolyn Grasso. Mistresses of ceremony are Connie Fanara and Lola Toomey. Alice Webber is the sentinel.

OPINION . . .

Situation impossible

To the editor:

In this time of obvious need for competent men in all kinds of government, Richard Dudman, the efficient and dedicated director of public works for the City of Newton has had to resign from that position.

The reason, it seems to me, is "politics."

Newton officials should gratefully encourage a man of his caliber to work for good city government and not make situations so impossible that he would leave instead.

As a resident who lives on one of Newton's unfinished streets, I have tried unsuccessfully for years to have my street and others like it accepted and paved by the city. Until Mr. Dudman's time, nothing was done about these streets.

His leaving is indeed a loss for Newton and I, for one, am really disturbed about it. It is so sad that a good man must leave simply because he doesn't do the bidding of others indiscriminately, but prefers instead to do the right thing.

I urge others who are concerned about having capable men in city government to do what is necessary to have Mr. Dudman stay and continue his dedicated service to the city.

Traffic hazard unabated

Dear Mr. Simmons:

We have an unsolved traffic hazard at Newton Corner which has existed without solution ffor far too long.

Almost every issue of the NEWTON GRAPHIC has a letter from one of our citizens protesting this state of affairs. This week let me add my voice!

As I watch women with toddlers by the hand or babies in arms, older citizens and unaccompanied children attempt to get from Woolworth side of the street to the bus stop in front of the bank, I cannot believe that the Planning Department thinks that the one light, which works sluggishly at best, in front of Howard Johnson's is a solution to the problem.

At the last municipal election there was a young mother who braved the icy winter evening to circulate a petition on this very subject. Surely other petitions also at different voting places were circulated. I would hope that the traffic commission would give some time on their agenda to considering the source of these citizens concern.

Very truly yours,
Zaida C. Petlevich

the committee are the people who are anxious to defeat it. The vote was 4-2 in the committee to hold it, and that vote should be respected."

A motion to take the petition out of Land Use Committee was defeated on a hand vote.

A move to suspend the rules to allow a vote on the mayor's appointment of Leo Karas to the Housing Authority failed by four votes (18 are required to suspend the rules to allow an item to come to the floor when it has not been on the docket.).

In a quick recess meeting of the Land Use Committee, Karas was rejected by a 4-3 vote, in spite of a letter from the Newton Committee for Fair Housing and Equal Rights, reversing its earlier unfavorable opinion of Karas expressed to the committee

Land Use Chairman McDonnell assessed Karas as a person with a "general background," who in testimony during an interview "did not show any great interest in housing." The Housing Authority has been asked to accept people who have a good "general background," he said, but it also needs people with a "particular interest."

"We need a housing activist, or even one who qualifies for low-income or elderly housing," McDonnell said.

The Newton Taxi Association was denied the chance to ask for increases in fares and waiting time and for commercial advertising on cabs until next September.

Approval and adoption of the 1973-78 capital improvement program (CIP) were finally voted by the Board, by a 20-0 vote. The city charter mandates a procedure of a public hearing and Board action to amend or accept unchanged the program every year.

At this point it would make no difference whether the 1973-78 CIP had been approved, since the 1974-75 budget has already been made up and voted on, with little reference to capital improvements scheduled in the CIP, and the next (1974-79) CIP will be out of the printshop in about a week.

Police hear lectures

Newton Police In-Service Training has taken on new dimensions in the area of service to the community.

Community relations and Safety Officer Roy A. Fairweather delivered two lectures on new services and updated approaches to crisis responses.

Chief William Quinn stated: "As a 24 hour agency, our police officers meet situations that call for immediate action. Officer Fairweather has devoted considerable time i the study of notification of survivors and also in the psychological approach to informing citizens of illness, disaster or death and the emotional ersponses that may follow. Fairweather outlined methods of approach, reaction and encouraged dialogue, drawing upon the experience of the assembled officers."

The chief added, "Another area of interest is in the care and assistance to our many senior citizens. As a result, Fairweather has taken a course given to representative senior citizens. As a result, Fairweather has taken a course given to representative social agencies by the Social Security Administration, and has been licensed by the agency to conduct eligibility investigations and make referrals of those who may not know of the supplemental income program

"Over 12,000 senior citizens live in Newton and many have not been informed of the supplementary assistance program," the chief said. "We are pleased to have the interest and ability to help."

Managers hazy on smoking

He said that he expected the responsibility for enforcement of the ordinance lies with the city.

A customer of this market reports having smoked without interference in the store. A second customer tells of having seen snother person smoking, and objecting to management because she did not have the same right. The smoker told management that shw was not aware of the ordinance, and she stopped smoking.

According to Sgt. Charels Feeley, the Newton police "have not been called in to my knowledge."

Feeley said that police do not normally patrol the aisles of a supermarket. "Any merchant has the right to call us," Feeley commented.

"Basically e have no way of enforcing the ordinance unless we're called in."

Feeley indicated that based on his own experience, the ordinance is "being observed very well. Every time I go into a market, I want to see if its working."

The ordinance, passed last December, says that "any person who knowingly violates this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdeameanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in an amount not exceeding fifty ($50) dollars."

State Representative Lois Pines, who propoed the ordinance, said this week that she has had phone calls from people who were enthusiastic and happy about the smoking ban. Ms. Pines said that she thinks there has been "a significant improvement" since the ordinance was passed.

Rep. Pines added tht no smoking signs are up, but she was not sure that stores were "being policing agents as much as they could be."

She said that the ordinance was "pretty much self-enforcing" through the efforts of non-smokers.

Auto center would cost

For example, Hart said, a school department may feel that some part of its program should be expanded or a new facility provided. When SBAB reviews the entire program at the school in queation, it would look also at the adequacy of the cafeteria and the gymnasium.

John Gilleland, the school department's director of support services, is in the process of preparing a statistical analysis of the educational program and space requirements to be presented to the SBAB.

Since many schools were built, Hart ppinted out, the physical education requirements have been raised by the state, and what once was enough gymnasium space is now too small because of the need for more or longer classes.

The SBAB might wind up saying that a school needs an automotive center, a larger gymnasium, and other improvements. And though SBAB reimburses 65 per cent of the cost, 65 per cent of cost of unplanned-for improvements might be more than a city wants to spend.

At tonight's (Thursday's) meeting of the Public Buildings Committee, Commissioner Gene Larson will present a close estimate of building costs.

Downing to speak

John Downing Jr. will speak on "Whither Goes the Supreme Court" at the Newton Community Center on April 22 at 8 p.m.

Free test of garden soils

Courtesy Massachusetts Department of Agriculture

Another chance to have your garden soil tested without charge, comes next Monday, when the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture (MDA) participates in the celebration of Earth Day on Boston Common.

The MDA will set up a booth at Park Street station as part of the April 22nd observation, for the purpose of accepting garden soil samples to be analyzed by the UMass labs. The booth will be staffed by Miss Deena Moran, garden advisor of MDA.

To get a proper analysis of the mineral content of your garden soil, you must provide a proper sample. Here's how to do it:

Take one trowel of soil from various parts of your garden plot, and mix them thoroughly in a bucket. Take one cupful from this mixture — make sure it's dry — and put it in a plastic bag, with your name and address on a slip inside. Bring the sample to the MDA booth on the Common, and you will receive a report by mail.

The UMass soil testing lab at Waltham processed more than 900 samples which were brought to the MDA booth at the New England Flower Show last month, and worked overtime to complete the work.

This is the time, says Guy Paris of MDA, to be spading your garden preparatory to spring planting. Turning over the soil is the hardest part of gardening, so it should be done a little at a time. The ground before planting should be open and fluffy, says Paris; is you leave it hard-packed, your seeds will not do well.

Another rule of thumb worth observing is to cover seeds with not more than twice their diameter of soil. Seeds germinate faster when planted at proper depth.

Lay out your garden with rows running east-and-west, so the sun will strike all the rows throughout the day. North-south rows of plants cast shadows on each other, and make for uneven growth.

Spring-dug parsnips from nearby farms are on the market, in reasonable supply. There have been some light receipts of local greenhouse cucumbers, fresh and unwaxed, but the supply is limited, and you'll have to shop for them.

Yard sale

On the theory that one man's junk is another man's treasure, members of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Waban will hold a fund-raising giant yard sale on Saturday, May 18, rain or shine, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

It will include old furniture, books, tools, sleds, bikes, golf clubs, sports and household items, gardening equipment, and so forth. Refreshments will be available throughout the day.

The yard sale will be held on the premises of the Church of the Good Shepherd at 1671 Beacon Street in Newton, just off Waban Square, which is accessible by subway on the Riverside line (station: Waban). Members of the public are invited to attend.

Miller to get award

Paul Miller of Waban, will receive the Ezra Saul Award, for his long-term contribution to the field of psychology in the state, at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Psychological Association, April 26.

Maxwell Schleifer, Newton, president of the state professional association of psychologists, and Richard Lanyon, West Newton, are in charge of the program for the two-day meeting at the Statler, Boston. Grace Baruch, Newton, Dr. Sanford M. Autor, Newton Centre, Stanley P. Rosenzweig, Newton Centre and Herbert H. Hoffman, Auburndale, will also lead discussions on topics facing clinical and applied psychologists.

Non-members and students, as well as members, are welcome to attend. The meeting starts Friday, April 26 at 9 a.m. For further information, people may call 267-8673.

was captured in 1968). "There's a lot of challenge in flying. If you're not good, you're dead."

He still likes the military way of life and the people. He's still a bachelor and goes for the moving from place to place.

Last year Paul Brown wanted to go to England. Staying in the Marines, the closest post he could get was Spain, which he turned down, but when his flight training is over he'll probably be sent to California, which he likes very much, and eventually Japan or Hawaii.

We mentioned that there was a lot of talk here in Newton after he left last spring about what a natural politician he would make, and how lots of people who had met him hoped he would turn to politics.

His dark brown eyes stopped glancing around and fastened on ours if we had found out a secret.

"I was thinking about politics," he said. "I'd like the political, public life, I'd like to help people in a rational, fair, just way." He means it.

When he was in Washington he discussed politics with Sen. Edward Brooke, whose advice was to "start in Newton, then get into state politics, and then into the federal level." No trying to start at the top.

Paul Brown has plenty of time for politics. He'll be only 42 when he's eligible for retirement from the service.

Meanwhile, he is a young man who still has to catch up with five years lost out of his twenties.

Thinner than he was when he was the returning hero, with shorter, Marine Corps hair, he hasn't quite caught up with the changes in, he says, "the physical world, lifestyles, and morals."

He has been home a couple of times since last April, but he speaks somewhat regretfully of the Newton Memorial Day parade, where "nobody knew who I was." But he makes it clear that he is not a "professional POW."

In fact, he still says little about his experiences in prison camp. He did tell us about the pumpkin soup and bread that was all there was to eat for months or years. And about how the prisoners would never allow themselves to think the war was ending, because they had been fooled so many times. And about what it's like to have absolutely nothing to do, nothing to read, day after day, month after month.

He prefers to talk about people - people he knows now or has known or will know. "People are more or less the same all over. I get strong vibes from people."

He has lost touch with most of his fellow POWs, who are scattered all over the country, and has corresponded only once with Russell Temperley.

Brown and Temperley, who is 38, did not know each other in Newton.

Temperley has an uncle here, but his mother, Mrs. William Hopf, now lifes in Falmouth, so Temperley's base of operations has shifted out of town.

The main Newton connection is his bride of four months, the former Sylvia Messner of Newton Centre, whom he had known since they were both children, according to his mother.

Mrs. Hopf told us about the wedding, which took place in Falmouth in December, in a church whose minister was a classmate of Temperley's at Bostn University. Sixteen more classmates, all ministers, and their wives flanked the entrance.

Then the Temperleys took off for Randolph Air Force Base in Texas, where, just as Temperley said last April he would do, he went to air flight training school and will end up teaching flying.

Mrs. Hopf was a proud mother as she described these events in Temperley's life, especially when she told us Temperley had graduated almost the highest in his class.

He will be able to retire from the Air Force in four years, and then expects to go into private teaching, Mrs. Hopf said.

Concert April 27

Carolyn McDade of Newtonville and Nan Ackerman will present a concert of "Songs For, By and About Women" at the Arlington Street hurch in Boston at 8 p.m. on Saturday, April 27.

Their program will include a wide variety of both traditional and contemporary songs that portray women in music - their image, their concerns and their stuggles.

Nan Ackerman, a native of Toronto, Canada, is a linguist. She studies voice at Longy School of Music and teaches both folk guitar and languages to singers.

Carolyn McDade, from Louisiana, is a songwriter, potter and teacher. She is active withthe Arlington Street Women's Caucus. Last fall the group made a record called "Honor They Womanself," which included many of her songs.

The concert will be held in the Clark Room of the Arlington Street Church, with the entrance at 355 Boylston Street. Admission is $2.

Brooke to speak

Senator Edward W. Brooke will be the principal speaker at the seventeenth annual Law Day Dinner sponsored by the Boston College Law School Alumni Association Wednesday, May 1 at the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Eagle awards

Stephen M. Rubin and Scott H. Wayne of Troop 250, Norumbega Council, Scouts of America will receive the Eagle Award at a special Court of Honor, on April 25 at Memorial School, Oak Hill Park, Nwton, at 7:30 p.m.

The Eagle Award is the highest award given to a young man who has attaind the ideals and goals of the Scouts of America. This award represents years of determined effort plus demonstrated leadership ability. A special service project which has proven benefits to the community must be accomplished, along with earning merit badges in many phases of scouting skills.

The Eagle Award requires team work as both a member and as a leader in a scout unit, living the scout oath and law, and community service and conservation projects.

The Scoutmaster of Troop 250 is Milton Davidson of Newton. The troop is co-sponsored by the Oak Hill Park Association and by the Brotherhood of Temple Beth Avoodah, Newton.

Timetable for a new car model

BY AUTOMOTIVE INFORMATION COUNCIL

The timetable for producing a new model automobile has much in common with baking a pie, according to a major car manufacturing engineer. They both require lead time, the amount of time required to see the project through from the planning stage to the finished product.

In baking a pie, sufficient time is needed to decide on the kind of pie, obtain the ingredients, select the correct size mixing bowl, pie pan, and other utensils, and take into consideration the actual preparation and baking time. If you want the pie out of the oven by a certain time, you have to work backwards to set up a schedule or timetable.

The same principle applies to producing an automobile, plus a few more complications. The schedule or lead time needed to introduce a new engine, for example, might be as long as five years, depending on the extent of the changes involved. The manufacturer sets an announcement date and then plans the schedule accordingly.

Actual production design and processing requires decisions as to the kinds of new machines and dies that may have to be developed and built to produce the engine components. If the engine is a radical departure from conventional engines, it might possibly need a different type of starting motor, generator or carburetor - all requiring more research and development, and, of course, more lead time. Engineers have to develop not only a product with satisfactory performance, but one that can be manufactured at a reasonable price. This involves still more time in the choice of materials and production methods.

Before a new model is introduced to the public, it must be put through an extensive testing program. Time is needed to evaluate the car's ability to perform under extremes of heat, cold, rain, poor road surfaces, etc. New cars must also be tested no less than 50,000 miles just to determine that they meet government emission standards.

Lead time also depends on the number of units produced. One industry spokesman states that Detroit could build a single car from the ground up in three weeks, but to build one million cars on assembly lines across the country presents far-reaching timetable problems not the least of which is to make sure the right quantities of component parts are at the right places at the right time.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Conservation Commission estimates that extensive strip mining has cost fishermen more than $140,000 since 1961. It explained the estimate was based on fish kills through acid draining from mines, with the dollar figure arrived at by giving each fish killed a value of 24 cents.

Australia (UPI) — A brass registration plate thought to have come from the red plane of World War II German fighter ace Baron von Richtofen has been withdrawn from exhibit by the Australian War Museum. It appears it was one of several "genuine" registration plates actually manufactured in Melbourne long after the war.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

PLANT SOME BEANS: The bean family is a big one, and provides us with some excellent dishes. A garden is not a garden unless it has some beans growing, either bush or pole types. Beans are easy to grow and many of them produce a crop in as little as two months. A bean that's different is the Romano pole bean, often referred to as "The Gourmet Bean." Pods are broad, short and with a unique flavor, eaten fresh, green-shelled, canned or frozen.

A brand new bush bean called Executive, an All-American Winner which bears in 50 days. Kentucky Wonder Pole bean is an old favorite used as green pod, or dry-shelled. The dried bean is a fine source of protein and makes a good substitute for meat.

Garbanzo bean is another bush type with a chestnut-like flavor, ideal in soups, stews, stuffings and salads. Some people use the Garbanzo bean in a "peanut-butter" spread by placing boiled shelled beans in a blender. A dash of salt and honey are added.

The fava bean is a bush-type, shaped like a huge lima bean. Some people call them "horse beans." They have the taste of garden peas. Of course there are yellow and yellow and green pod bush beans, baby lima and Pole Lima beans. The new and colorful Royalty Purple pod bush bean grows in colder soils, and it is said that beetles and insects avoid it. The purple pods turn green when cooked.

WATERING YOUR HOUSE PLANTS: Should you water from top or from the bottom? If you see what salts on the surface of your soil, loosen up the soil with tines of a fork and wash the salts back down. Florists call this "leaching." Most house plants are watered from the top. But either way is fine. When watering your plants give them a good soaking but don't let them remain soaking wet because this rots the roots. When it comes to feeding your plants, remember this: Plant foods are NOT a cure-all for everything, nor a substitute for good culture. Quite often too much feeding will cause concentration of salts (such as potassium, calcium, nitrates, phosphates, sulfates and chlorides, to build up in the soil. The college term "soluble" salts refers to the particles (ions) found in the soil and which dissolve easily in water. Too many salts will damage the roots.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We want to grow the ground cherry or husk tomato. Are they difficult?"

Ans: No, start the seed (many seed houses sell it) now, in pots and when warm weather comes set them out. They'll fruit the first year and give you enough for all the pies, jams and topping you can eat. Everyone should grow some husk tomatoes.

Newton College to host talks on "Women in Government"

Mary Newman, secretary of manpower affairs for the state, and Nancy B. Beecher, chairman of the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission, will be the featured speakers at a lecture-discussion at Newton College on Tuesday, April 23 at 8 p.m.

The event, open to the public at no charge, will be held in the East Lounge of Stuart House on the Newton College campus on Centre St., Newton.

The speakers will focus their discussion on "Women in Government." The evening is being sponsored by the "Women in Politics and Government" course given through Newton College's Center for Continuing Studies.

Mrs. Newman, whose official title is secretary of the executive office of manpower affairs, is presently the only woman in Gov. Sargent's cabinet. Prior to assuming her current post, Mrs. Newman served for 15 years as state representative from Cambridge. She was a candidate for the office of secretary of state in 1970.

Mrs. Newman served as chairman of the petition drive aimed at cutting the size of the state House of Representatives. She has also been a member of the Massachusetts Parole Board, and an active member of the League of Women Voters, serving as Cambridge president from 1948-50 and state vice-president from 1950-52.

Mrs. Beecher, who has been Chairman of the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission since 1970, also served in active roles as a member of the League of Women Voters. She was president of the Concord-Carlisle League in 1969; a member of the board of directors of the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts, directing civil service action, from 1963-67; and a member of the board of directors of the Concord League from 1959-62, directing a study of the merit system in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Beecher served as a teacher in the Robert College Community School in Istanbul, Turkey from 1949-52.

Symposium April 22

Pine Manor Junior College at 400 Heath Street in Chestnut Hill will hold a one-day symposium on literature and the arts on Monday, April 22, with novelist Michael Butor.

He is the author of "La Modification," writer of the opera "Votre Faust" with composer Henri Pousseur, and collaborator with contemporary artists in the exhibit "Michel Butor et Ses Peintres," currently touring the United States.

There will be a lecture in French at 5 p.m. (College Hall 217), and an open discussion in English at 7:45 p.m. in East Commons.

People may call 731-7089 for further information.

Volunteers

Mrs. Everett Blake, Mrs. Harry V. Anderson and Everett Blake talk to students at the Audubon School library in Dorchester. All three are Newton residents.

Local volunteers aid Boston libraries

Newton volunteers are part of a city-wide celebration this week of the library program of the Boston Public Schools.

Newton residents have been responsible for organizing and staffing several Boston school libraries, currently including the Albert Palmer School Library in Roxbury and the Audubon School Library in Dorchester.

All members of School Volunteers for Boston and the school libraries are participating in the celebration of the opening of the 100th library in the Boston elementary and junior high schools.

In addition, April 22 is the beginning of National Library Week.

Each child is being given a commemorative bookmark by his school library, featuring a symbol designed for the occasion, Boston's Fanueil Hall grasshopper reading a book. These were made by students at Boston Technical High School.

Special activities including visits by authors of children's books and leaders in the community are occuring in many of the school libraries during the celebration week.

Now serving 72 percent of Boston elementary and junior high school children, the Library program is directed by Margaret Brown and Polly Kaufman, professional librarians. More than 500 parent volunteers from all over the city and 100 suburban volunteers are currently engaged in opening and staffing the Boston school librarires in the program which began in 1966.

Each share the same basic objective which is to make library books and reading exciting to children.

Approximately 100 volunteers and aides have received the University of Massachusetts training.

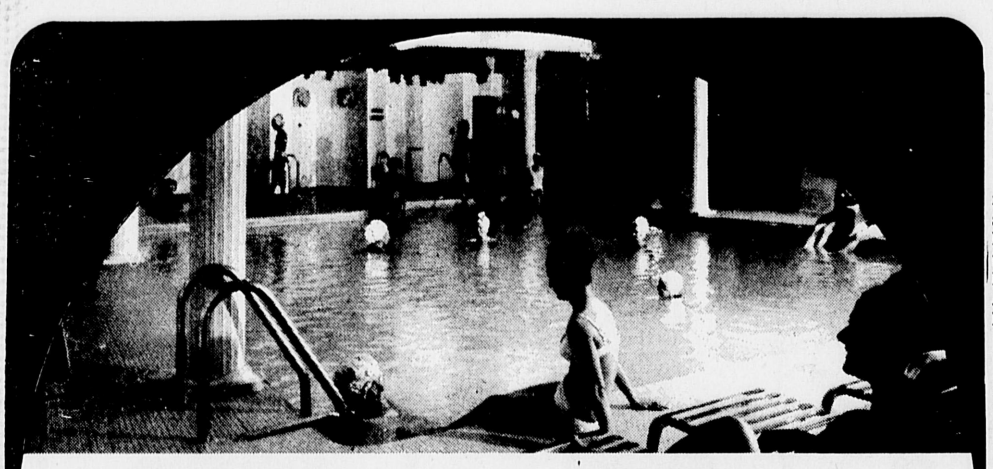

Community people, including firemen and policemen, will learn what it is like to help out in their school librarires as they join in with the everyday library activities of storytelling and checking out books as part of the celebration. The climax will be the releasing of 400 balloons by the children of the Oliver Hazard Perry School in South Boston at 2 p.m. on April 24 as those children open the 100th library in the Boston elementary and junior high schools.

Newton volunteers include: Mr. and Mrs. Everett Blake, Mrs. Harry V. Anderson, and Mrs. Thekla Mafico at the Audubon School and Mrs. Damon Carter, Mrs. David DeRogatis, Mrs. David Hubel, Mrs. Boyd Johnson, Mrs. James Laurits, Mrs. Albert Seeler, Mrs. Charles Thompson, Mrs. Robert Whittlesey, and Mrs. Lyman Ziegler at the Albert Palmer School.

Gary Kessel receives his Eagle Award from C. Benjamin Lofchie, chairman of Troop 225, at a scout dinner at Temple Emmanuel.

Scout dinner held at Temple Emanuel

The twenty-fourth annual scout dinner was recnetly held at Temple Emanuel Community Hall. Over 200 scouts, cubs and their families were present for dinner and a program. The event was co-sponsored by Troop 225 and Cub Pack 217.

C. Benjamin Lofchie, master of ceremonies, introduced the head table which included commitee members and invited guests of Troop 225 and Pack 217.

After dinner, the following cub pack den mothers were awarded certificates of appreciation: Dorothy Jacobs, Helen Brissette, Roberta Brener, Cynthia Abramson, Gwen Fineberg, Susan Levin, Rhoda Klayman and Nancy Lattanzio. Also given certificates were Jack Bradley, cub pack chairman, George Belsky, cub master, and Melvin Jacobs, webelo leader.

S. Michael Turner, assistant scout master of Troop 225 also received a certificate of appreciation.

The feature of the evening was the Eagle presentation to Gary Kessel, grandson of Joseph Winer, scout master of Troop 225. Lofchie convened the Eagle Court of Honor. The Eagle Citation was read by Adolf Andersen, scout executive of Norumbega Council B.S.A. Presentations were made to Gary, his mother and to Mrs. Joseph Winer, his grandmother.

Morris Danovitch was presented with a Paul Revere bowl for 25 years of continuous service to Norumbega Council and Temple Emanuel.

The entertainment of the evening was a presentation of "Magic Through Science" by Kenneth Pauley, director of special activities at the Museum of Science in Boston. He performed a series of experiements and demonstrations.

Serving on the supper committee were C. Benjamin Lofchie, co-chairman; Irving Medoff, co-chairman; Daniel Bloom, reservation chairman; Joseph Winer, Harry Weiner; Morris Danovitch; Chester Rubin; Jack Bradley; and Melvin and Dorothy Jacobs.

Charles River study to be shown April 25

A study of the Charles River commissioned by the Waltham Conservation Commission will be presented at a special meeting of the Newton aldermanic City Planning Committee at 8 p.m. April 25 in the Memorial Auditorium of Newton City Hall.

Newton's study is in process and will be completed in August, while Watertown has just signed an agreement for a similar study.

The Waltham study, including a conservation-recreation design plan and a three-phase acquisition plan, has been subjected to citizen review at public hearings in that city, and implementation of the plan has begun.

Mrs. Eunice Burstein, chairman of the Waltham commission, will present slides and charts and maps will be displayed.

Conservation Commissions from Newton, Boston, Brookline, Needham, Watertown, Wellesley and Weston have been invited, as well as local conservation groups, legislators, and representatives from the Metropolitan District Commission, the Metropolitan Area Planning Council and the Charles River Watershed Association.

Canoe Service open

Canoeing on the Charles River, a favorite pastime for several generations of Massachusetts residents who remember Norumbega Park in Auburndale, is once again possible, under the auspices of the Charles River Canoe Service and the Metropolitan District Commission.

Many remember Norumbega Park but few realize it was the national canoe center between 1880 and 1900. Until the area was sold several years ago canoeing was still a popular sport on the Charles among those who gloried in paddling from Norumbega to the Moody Street bridge in Waltham.

The Charles River Canoe Service, in conjunction with the M.D.C., began its 1974 season on April 1. Canoeing on the Charles from the boat berths at the M.D.C. police station on Route 30, Commonwealth Avenue, in Auburndale continues until October 31, on weekdays between 11 a.m. and dusk, and on weekends from 9 a.m. to dusk.

Services offered at the canoe service headquarters, across the river from the Route 128 Norumbega duck feeding station, include rentals, instructions, and river trips, including guides. Director Tom Downing and his staff will teach groups efficient and safe canoe technique, enabling patrons to use it as a toll to study the ecology, history and folklore of the Charles River. Tow and three-day trips will be offered. Of particular interest is a one-day tour set up as a teaching supplement to a school's history, biology, or environmental courses.

Further information about the CharlesRiver Canoe Service may be obtained by phoning Tom Downing or Lydia Mills at 527-9885.

Sister Therese Higgins

Regis College picks president

Sister Therese Higgins, Ph.D. has been elected president of Regis College, effective July 1.

A native of Winthrop and a cum laude graduate of Regis College, Sister Higgins earned a master's degree from Boston College and a doctor of philosophy degree in English from the University of Wisconsin. She has pursued post-doctoral study in literature and theology at Harvard University.

The president-elect is an associate professor of English at Regis College and holds membership in the Modern Language Association, and the Association of University Women. She is listed in "Who's Who of American Women" and in "Community Leaders and Noteworthy Americans."

Sr. Higgins has held numerous administrative positions in the Congregation of the Congregation of the Sisters of St.Joseph, for which she is currently a member of the board of directors, and an area councilor. She also serves as a trustee of Aquinas Junior College and the Boston School for the Deaf.

Sr. Therese is the daughter of Mrs. James C. Higgins of Auburn Street, Auburndale, and the sister of Mrs. Joseph L. Burke of Parker Street, Newton, a Regis College graduate whose daughter, Joanne, is also an alumna of the liberal arts school.

Handi Kids meetings held here

"They must be thought of as children first and handicapped second," someone remarked at a Handi Kids meeting held recently at the Marriott Motor Hotel.

The main speaker of the evening was Andrea Beal, director of Outreach, a program at a handicapped center in San Francisco, Calif.

Ms. Beal explained in detail how, through on-the-premisis programs conducted for severely handicapped, homebound individuals, Outreach recreation specialists have been able to "help create a new awareness of self and inner strengths.

Contact with others, like themselves, with whom they can share social experiences in person or by telephone, is an invaluable aid to the handicapped in learning to relate to other people and acquiring the social skills necessary to function in a larger group, Ms. Beal observed.

Kenneth Singer, president and founder of Handi Kids, stated he was "eager to initiate a Handi Kids program this summer."

Local man to speak in Paris

Dr. Lewis E. Braverman, a resident of 118 Glen Avenue, Newton Centre and chief of endocrinology and nuclear medicine at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, will speak at the thirtyth annual Congress of the American College of Allergists in Paris, late in April.

Braverman, who is also a professor of medicine at Tufts University School of Medicine, will present a paper on "Adverse Effects of Chronic Iodine Administration on Thyroid Homeostasis."

Television notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Broadcasting Company's estimate of the number of U.S. households with color television sets as of Jan. 1 was 44,950,000, or 67.3 per cent of total video homes. The increase over the January, 1943 figure was put at 5½ million sets.

CBS will have a one-hour drama titled "The First Woman President" at 9:30 p.m. April 14. It is the story of the second Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who is supposed to have assummed unofficially many of President Wilson's duties after his stroke in September, 1919. Eva Marie Saint and Richard Basehart have the leading roles.

ABC has renewed the "Marcus Welby, M.D." series, starring Robert Young in the title role, for a sixth year.

A forthcoming "ABC Afternoon Special" is "The Runaway," drama of a teen-aged diabetic girl who runs away from home when her mother plans to remarry and has a tough time trying to survive in Los Angeles.

The newly completed Grand Ole Opry house in Nashville, Tenn., will be the locale of a television special for the first time on April 26 when singer Johnny Cash headlines a cast of country music stars. NBC will air the one-hour program, "Country Comes Home," at 10 p.m.

Gerald Green has dramatized his successful novel of some years ago, "The Last Angry Man," for telecasting on the ABC network April 17 with Pat Hingle in the title role of an iconoclastic but good-hearted Brooklyn physician. GKREEN REports there is a possibility that a network series might spin off this presentation.

appliances

WHEN BUYING A MAJOR APPLICANCE, CHECK ITS EFFICIENCY. To cut your electricity and gas costs and to help conserve energy, make sure that the appliance you're buying will give you the most efficiency per watt used. Ask for facts and figures on power use. Make sure too, that the item is a famous brand — like Frigidaire, Hotpoint, Maytag, Admiral, Whirlpool, General Electric. Such units are often less expensive to operate in the long run, because they are designed to give you the most efficiency per wattage used. Best of all, come to Lechmere where you will find the widest selection of famous brand appliances — priced Lechmere's low. low way.

If you purchase a major appliance from Lechmere we will give you a "low price guarantee" certificate that assures you that if you find a lower price within 30 days we will refund the difference to you.

by Ruth Lenson

Here comes the bride—and groom

When a girl agrees to become a bride, the search is on for the perfect dress. This could be the most important apparel decision she has ever made and the shopping expedition should be made in an unhurried, thoughtful manner.

Don't go alone, counsel the experts, take one other person, preferably mother, sister or best friend, but three's a crowd when shopping for a wedding gown.

Wear shoes the same height you'll wear on the great occasion to insure the proper gown length and try to wear the same hairstyle you plan for the wedding—this will aid you in choosing the gown's neckline as well as headpiece.

Wedding day measurements are important. So often a girl will insist on buying a gown a full size smaller, convinced that by the time the wedding bells ring out she'll be pounds lighter. These good intentions are often foiled by the many pre-bridal showers and partying. Invariably, at the final fitting time, she has not lost weight.

Couples are doing their own thing; writing individualized ceremonies, selecting the type of wedding best suited to their life style, and not accepting what others feel they should have, according to the famed bridal expert, Priscilla. She feels that brides still desire to look like brides, and they purchase this look; gowns that are more comfortable, molded to the body, softness of skirts, shorter trains and, for spring and summer, in ethereal, floating fabrics.

"Materials such as jerseys and chiffons are also in demand," says Priscilla, and sheer organdies are flattering. Gowns are adorned with beautiful laces, delicately appliqued and pearled. Flowers of pastel organdies—blue, pink, yellow and green on white—a touch of color always makes for a lovely garden wedding. For the bride, white or ivory should be chosen, taking into consideration her own coloring.

Since the bride is truly the center of attraction on her wedding day, we asked the beauty experts at Love Cosmetics for some suggestions to prepare her for the most important day in her life.

"If you want skin that's glowing and radiant on your wedding day, don't rely on a last minute miracle," says Sandra Westin, beauty authority at Love Cosmetics. "Instead, begin well ahead of time with a skin care routine of cleansing, toning, and moisturizing." She suggests a fresh lemon cleanser, used morning and evening, followed by toning with an astringent, and regular moisturizing with a light creme too start you on the way to a bright and dewy complexing—a treatment so quick and easy, even the busiest bride-to-be can fit it into her schedule.

On your wedding day, Miss Westin suggests you apply a creamy cover with a slightly dampened sponge. To be a truly blushing bride, add a creamy cheek color, blending high on the cheekbones and out to the temples. Just a dot on your forehead and chin will give your whole face the kind of radiance every bride hopes for.

Something blue can be a forget-me-not shade that is blended, soft and subtle around the eyes. Lips polished with a glazed strawberry shade adds just the right amount of shimmer and shine. And the final touch is a light application of fragrance to surround yourself as you float down the aisle.

And what about the groom! Leaders in the formal wear field, After Six, announces that color is important—from soft pastels to more vivid shades in a variety of fabrics, patterns and textures.

Color is offered in tuxedos, dinner jackets, formal separates and furnishings. The result is total coordination, from a fellow's tie to his toes. The new emphasis on color enables bride, groom and the entire wedding party to blend beautifully with a minimum of effort. In fact, formal wear rental specialists across the country have learned the artful technique of style and color matching.

Frilly shirts are putting up a great front for contemporary formal wear. Today's bridegroom can take his choice from a selection of pastel-trimmed whites as well as a full spectrum of soft colors, shown to best advantage with a coordinated bow tie—the over-sized tear-drop is the current favorite.

The style trend for spring leans towards a longer silhouette, enhanced by a touch of braid or trim. The latest in styling are: The "Windsor" with clover-shaped lapels in lush velvet framed with a handsome satin border and comes in a choice of fabric and colors. The "Wyncote" is an elegant linen-like coat with a rich contrasting velvet trim on the notch lapels and square flap pockets.

According to Modern Bride, more couples than ever before will be altar-bound this coming year—over 2,275,000 and over 85 percent of those first marriage ceremonies will be formal.

Today's bride wants the dignity, even the pageantry of a religious ceremony. Whether the ceremony is a traditional one—a reading from a favorite poet or an exchange of a specifically created vow, old-fashioned pomp and ceremony are back on the wedding scene.

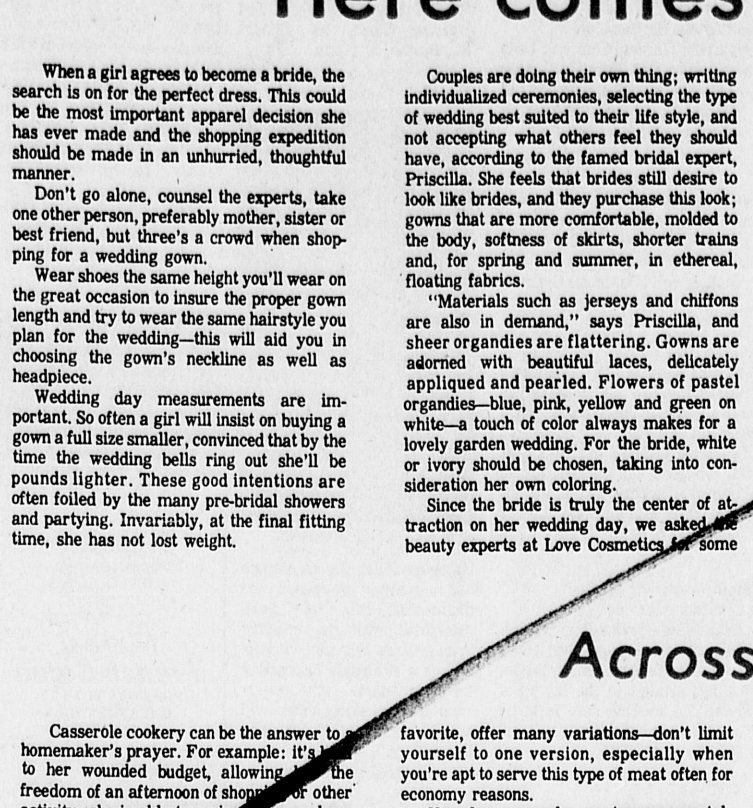

Across the Kitchen Counter

Casserole cookery can be the answer to a homemaker's prayer. For example: it's kind to her wounded budget, allowing her the freedom of an afternoon of shopping or other activity; she is able to arrive home an hour before dinner and serve a nourishing, delicious meal with little or no last minute fussing.

Actually, the term "casserole" has been used in a broad sense and is generally applied to any dish that is put together and baked in a baking dish. Meat loaves, always a family favorite, offer many variations—don't limit yourself to one version, especially when you're apt to serve this type of meat often for economy reasons.

Very few casseroles are temperamental. Most of them will patiently wait a while for family or guests, but not indefinitely because the food can overcook and dry out as any other type of dish.

All over the world, recipes have been developed that make great dishes with modestly-priced ingredients. In our own regional cookery, there are such treasures as Chicken and Potato Scallop, in the Pennsylvania Dutch style, that are rich in flavor and nutrition, but low in cost. To complete the meal, serve a Spinach Salad with a special salad dressing flavored with dry mustard, oregano and garlic. A good bread to serve with this meal is made by brushing sliced white bread with butter or margarine, sprinkling with chopped parsley, and broiling the bread very lightly.

Orange fish rolls, brussels sprouts

Along with these attractive meal-in-a-dish features is the pleasure of knowing that all you need to add to the meal is a salad, bread, dessert and beverage to make the meal nourishing, economical and gobbled up.

CHICKEN AND POTATO SCALLOP

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in pieces
1 teaspoon ac'cent
Salt and paprika
1 cup thinly sliced onion (1 large)
1 cup chopped celery
2 cups thinly sliced potatoes
1½ cups thinly sliced carrots
3 teaspoons salt, divided
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk

Sprinkle chicken with Ac'cent, salt and paprika; reserve. Add vegetables to small amount boiling water in saucepan with 2 teaspoons of the salt. Cover; bring to a boil. Boil 5 minutes; drain and reserve. Melt butter; add flour, remaining 1 teaspoon salt and pepper; stir to a smooth paste. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Alternate vegetables and sauce in a 1½ quart casserole. Place chicken pieces, skin side up, around edge of casserole. Bake in 375 degree oven for 1 hour, or until chicken and vegetables are tender.

SPINACH

4 cups spinach leaves
2 cups torn lettuce
½ cup sliced radishes or carrot

In a large bowl combine spinach leaves and lettuce. Add radishes and salad dressing (below); toss to mix lightly. Serves 4.

SALAD DRESSING

6 tablespoons salad oil
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
½ teaspoon Accent
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon dried leaf oregano
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 clove garlic, cut in half

In measuring cup beat together oil and vinegar. Stir in remaining ingredients. Let garlic stand in dressing ½ hour, then remove.

LASAGNA CASSEROLE

1 pkg. (10 oz.) medium size shell macaroni
1½ pounds ground beef
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 pkg. (1½ oz.) spaghetti sauce mix
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1½ cups water
1 carton (16 oz.) farmer style cottage cheese
1½ cups grated cheddar cheese

Cook macaroni according to package directions; drain. Brown ground beef until crumbly; drain fat. Add seasoned salt, spaghetti sauce mix, tomato paste, tomato sauce and water; stir thoroughly. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. In a shallow two quart casserole, layer half of the macaroni, cottage cheese and meat sauce. Sprinkle ½ cup cheddar cheese over meat sauce. Repeat layers, ending with meat sauce. Top with remaining cheese. Bake at 350 degrees 30 to 40 minutes, or until bubbly and cheese is melted. Makes 8 servings.

SHRIMP CASSEROLE

5 slices white bread-cut off crusts and cut in cubes
1 cup grated sharp cheese
1 cup cooked and cleaned shrimp
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 cups milk
3 eggs, beaten
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper

Combine bread cubes, grated cheese and shrimp and put in buttered casserole. Make sauce of remaining ingredients. Pour sauce over shrimp mixture in casserole. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Serves 6.

TUNA TERRIFIC

1 pkg. (6 oz.) seasoned long grain and wild rice
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen peas
4 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 can (10½ oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup
¾ cup milk
2 cans (9¼ oz. ea.) tuna, drained and flaked
¾ cup thinly sliced celery
¾ cup thinly sliced carrot
1 can (4 oz.) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

SAUCE

¼ cup (½ stick) butter
¼ cup all purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ cups milk
2 tablespoons chopped parsely
1 teaspoon shredded lemon peel

Prepare rice according to package directions. Stir in frozen peas; remove from heat. Combine egg yolks, soup and milk. Stir in tuna, celery, carrot, mushrooms; stir in rice. Beat egg whites until frothy. Add cream of tartar and beat until stiff but not dry; fold into rice mixture. Divide into 2 buttered 1½ quart casseroles. Bake in 375 degree oven 40-45 min. or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Let stand 5 min. before serving. To prepare sauce: in saucepan melt butter; blend in flour and sault. Remove from heat; stir in milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute only. Add parsley and lemon peel. Serve with casseroles. Yields 2¾ cups sauce. Makes 6 servings for each casserole.

COUNTRY COTTAGE CASSEROLE

1½ pounds ground lamb
1½ teaspoons garlic powder
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup ginger snap crumbs
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 cups cooked rice

Question: I've been looking for a recipe for Stuffed Eggplant — an easy recipe, please. Thanks. — Mrs. E. E., Roslindale

Answer: Everyone's catching on to the unique flavor of eggplant these days — add this recipe to your eggplant file:

STUFFED EGGPLANT

1 large (2 lbs.) eggplant
½ to two-thirds cup olive or salad oil
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 pkg. 8 oz. stuffing mix
¼ cup melted margarine
½ cup hot water
1 can (10½ oz.) spaghetti sauce with mushrooms

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Wash, peel and slice eggplant into ¾ inch thick round slices. Heat oil over low heat in heavy skillet. Add garlic. In a separate dish, combine flour and salt. Dip eggplant slices in flour mixture, turning to coat both sides. Fry on both sides, adding more oil as needed. Blend stuffing mix, margarine, water and half of the spaghetti sauce. Spoon about one-third cup stuffing into the center of each eggplant slice. Firmly press slices back together, forming an eggplant with stuffing between slices. Insert a long skewer to hold it in shape. Put eggplant in a shallow baking pan; pour remaining spaghetti sauce over and bake in preheated oven, uncovered, 40 minutes or until eggplant is tender. Makes 6-8 servings.

Question: I would like to confess that when it comes to cooking fish, no matter what type of fish I prepare, it all tastes the same and that is no compliment to my cooking. Since fish is really quite expensive, almost as much as meat and sometimes more, I would appreciate a really super type of fish dish. Thank you very much.

Answer: Here's a delectable medley of flavors — fillets of sole or flounder rolled around a stuffing of orange sections and simmered in a spicy orange juice broth. Serve with it Orange-Glazed Carrots and Brussel Sprouts with Grapefruit Butter Sauce — perfect companions for the fish rolls.

ORANGE FISH ROLLS

1 large orange
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon minced onion
½ cup seasoned bread crumbs
1 teaspoon Ac'cent
1 teaspoon salt, divided
6 sole or flounder fillets, about 2 lbs.
2 cups orange juice
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Remove small amount of orange rind with vegetable peeler. Slice to make 1 tablespoon slivered orange rind; reserve. Secton orange and dice sections. Melt butter in skillet; add celery and onion; cook until tender but not brown. Add orange sections and seasoned bread crumbs; mix well. Sprinkle fillets with Ac'cent and ½ teaspoon salt. Divide orange stuffing among fillets, covering entire top surface. Roll up; fasten with wooden picks. In large skillet, heat orange juice, slivered rind, sugar, remaining ½ teaspoon salt, ginger and dry mustard until mixture just begins to boil. Add rolled fillets; reduce heat. Simmer, covered, until fish flakes when touched withfork, for 5 minutes. Remove fish to heated platter; remove picks and keep warm. Dissolve cornstarch in a little cold water; stir into orange juice mixture in skillet. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and becomes clear. Pour some of sauce over fish; serve remaining sauce separately. Yield: 6 servings.

ORANGE GLAZED CARROTS

8 carrots, pared
¼ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed and undiluted
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Cook whole carrots until almost tender in large saucepan or skillet, about 25 minutes. Drain; add remaining ingredients. Stir constantly over medium heat, turning carrots often, until glazed. Yield: 4-6 servings.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS WITH GRAPEFRUIT BUTTER SAUCE

1½ pounds Brussels sprouts
3 tablespoons frozen Florida grapefruit juice concentrate, thawed and undiluted
4 tablespoons butter or margarine

Wash sprouts and remove outside leaves. Cook sprouts in small amount of salted boiling water, about 15 minutes or until tender. Drain and add remaining ingredients. Let simmer about 5 minutes. Yield: 4-6 servings.

Question: I've always admired people who could bake a really dark date and nut loaf. Do you suppose you could publish such a recipe? — Mrs. T. H., Dedham

Answer: I am quite sure this is the recipe you're looking for. Hope so!

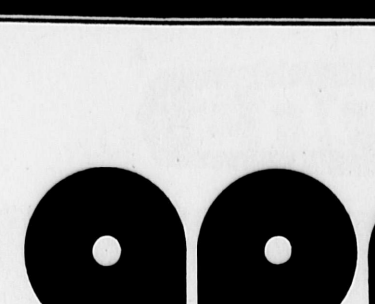

DARK DATE AND NUT LOAF

1 cup boiling water
1 pkg. (8 oz.) dates, cut into large pieces
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup coarsely chopped nuts
2 tablespoons shortening
1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
2 eggs

Pour boiling water over dates and baking soda; allow to cool. Sift flour with salt. Add nuts. Cream shortening with brown sugar in mixing bowl. Blend in eggs and beat well. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with dates, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Blend well after each addition. Grease bottom of 9 x 5 x 3-inch pan; pour in batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 60-70 minutes. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack.

Here comes the bride—and groom

When a girl agrees to become a bride, the search is on for the perfect dress. This could be the most important apparel decision she has ever made and the shopping expedition should be made in an unhurried, thoughtful manner.

Don't go alone, counsel the experts, take one other person, preferably mother, sister or best friend, but three's a crowd when shopping for a wedding gown.

Wear shoes the same height you'll wear on the great occasion to insure the proper gown length and try to wear the same hairstyle you plan for the wedding—this will aid you in choosing the gown's neckline as well as headpiece.

Wedding day measurements are important. So often a girl will insist on buying a gown a full size smaller, convinced that by the time the wedding bells ring out she'll be pounds lighter. These good intentions are often foiled by the many pre-bridal showers and partying. Invariably, at the final fitting time, she has not lost weight.

Couples are doing their own thing; writing individualized ceremonies, selecting the type of wedding best suited to their life style, and not accepting what others feel they should have, according to the famed bridal expert, Priscilla. She feels that brides still desire to look like brides, and they purchase this look; gowns that are more comfortable, molded to the body, softness of skirts, shorter trains and, for spring and summer, in ethereal, floating fabrics.

"Materials such as jerseys and chiffons are also in demand," says Priscilla, and sheer organdies are flattering. Gowns are adorned with beautiful laces, delicately appliqued and pearled. Flowers of pastel organdies—blue, pink, yellow and green on white—a touch of color always makes for a lovely garden wedding. For the bride, white or ivory should be chosen, taking into consideration her own coloring.

Since the bride is truly the center of attraction on her wedding day, we asked the beauty experts at Love Cosmetics for some suggestions to prepare her for the most important day in her life.

"If you want skin that's glowing and radiant on your wedding day, don't rely on a last minute miracle," says Sandra Westin, beauty authority at Love Cosmetics. "Instead, begin well ahead of time with a skin care routine of cleansing, toning, and moisturizing." She suggests a fresh lemon cleanser, used morning and evening, followed by toning with an astringent, and regular moisturizing with a light creme too start you on the way to a bright and dewy complexing—a treatment so quick and easy, even the busiest bride-to-be can fit it into her schedule.

On your wedding day, Miss Westin suggests you apply a creamy cover with a slightly dampened sponge. To be a truly blushing bride, add a creamy cheek color, blending high on the cheekbones and out to the temples. Just a dot on your forehead and chin will give your whole face the kind of radiance every bride hopes for.

Something blue can be a forget-me-not shade that is blended, soft and subtle around the eyes. Lips polished with a glazed strawberry shade adds just the right amount of shimmer and shine. And the final touch is a light application of fragrance to surround yourself as you float down the aisle.

And what about the groom! Leaders in the formal wear field, After Six, announces that color is important—from soft pastels to more vivid shades in a variety of fabrics, patterns and textures.

Color is offered in tuxedos, dinner jackets, formal separates and furnishings. The result is total coordination, from a fellow's tie to his toes. The new emphasis on color enables bride, groom and the entire wedding party to blend beautifully with a minimum of effort. In fact, formal wear rental specialists across the country have learned the artful technique of style and color matching.

Frilly shirts are putting up a great front for contemporary formal wear. Today's bridegroom can take his choice from a selection of pastel-trimmed whites as well as a full spectrum of soft colors, shown to best advantage with a coordinated bow tie—the over-sized tear-drop is the current favorite.

The style trend for spring leans towards a longer silhouette, enhanced by a touch of braid or trim. The latest in styling are: The "Windsor" with clover-shaped lapels in lush velvet framed with a handsome satin border and comes in a choice of fabric and colors. The "Wyncote" is an elegant linen-like coat with a rich contrasting velvet trim on the notch lapels and square flap pockets.

According to Modern Bride, more couples than ever before will be altar-bound this coming year—over 2,275,000 and over 85 percent of those first marriage ceremonies will be formal.

Today's bride wants the dignity, even the pageantry of a religious ceremony. Whether the ceremony is a traditional one—a reading from a favorite poet or an exchange of a specifically created vow, old-fashioned pomp and ceremony are back on the wedding scene.

Across the Kitchen Counter

Casserole cookery can be the answer to a homemaker's prayer. For example: it's kind to her wounded budget, allowing her the freedom of an afternoon of shopping or other activity; she is able to arrive home an hour before dinner and serve a nourishing, delicious meal with little or no last minute fussing.

Actually, the term "casserole" has been used in a broad sense and is generally applied to any dish that is put together and baked in a baking dish. Meat loaves, always a family favorite, offer many variations—don't limit yourself to one version, especially when you're apt to serve this type of meat often for economy reasons.

Very few casseroles are temperamental. Most of them will patiently wait a while for family or guests, but not indefinitely because the food can overcook and dry out as any other type of dish.

All over the world, recipes have been developed that make great dishes with modestly-priced ingredients. In our own regional cookery, there are such treasures as Chicken and Potato Scallop, in the Pennsylvania Dutch style, that are rich in flavor and nutrition, but low in cost. To complete the meal, serve a Spinach Salad with a special salad dressing flavored with dry mustard, oregano and garlic. A good bread to serve with this meal is made by brushing sliced white bread with butter or margarine, sprinkling with chopped parsley, and broiling the bread very lightly.

Along with these attractive meal-in-a-dish features is the pleasure of knowing that all you need to add to the meal is a salad, bread, dessert and beverage to make the meal nourishing, economical and gobbled up.

Orange fish rolls, brussels sprouts

CHICKEN AND POTATO SCALLOP

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in pieces
1 teaspoon ac'cent
Salt and paprika
1 cup thinly sliced onion (1 large)
1 cup chopped celery
2 cups thinly sliced potatoes
1½ cups thinly sliced carrots
3 teaspoons salt, divided
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk

Sprinkle chicken with Ac'cent, salt and paprika; reserve. Add vegetables to small amount boiling water in saucepan with 2 teaspoons of the salt. Cover; bring to a boil. Boil 5 minutes; drain and reserve. Melt butter; add flour, remaining 1 teaspoon salt and pepper; stir to a smooth paste. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Alternate vegetables and sauce in a 1½ quart casserole. Place chicken pieces, skin side up, around edge of casserole. Bake in 375 degree oven for 1 hour, or until chicken and vegetables are tender.

SPINACH

4 cups spinach leaves
2 cups torn lettuce
½ cup sliced radishes or carrot

In a large bowl combine spinach leaves and lettuce. Add radishes and salad dressing (below); toss to mix lightly. Serves 4.

SALAD DRESSING

6 tablespoons salad oil
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
½ teaspoon Accent
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon dried leaf oregano
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 clove garlic, cut in half

In measuring cup beat together oil and vinegar. Stir in remaining ingredients. Let garlic stand in dressing ½ hour, then remove.

LASAGNA CASSEROLE

1 pkg. (10 oz.) medium size shell macaroni
1½ pounds ground beef
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 pkg. (1½ oz.) spaghetti sauce mix
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1½ cups water
1 carton (16 oz.) farmer style cottage cheese
1½ cups grated cheddar cheese

Cook macaroni according to package directions; drain. Brown ground beef until crumbly; drain fat. Add seasoned salt, spaghetti sauce mix, tomato paste, tomato sauce and water; stir thoroughly. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. In a shallow two quart casserole, layer half of the macaroni, cottage cheese and meat sauce. Sprinkle ½ cup cheddar cheese over meat sauce. Repeat layers, ending with meat sauce. Top with remaining cheese. Bake at 350 degrees 30 to 40 minutes, or until bubbly and cheese is melted. Makes 8 servings.

SHRIMP CASSEROLE

5 slices white bread-cut off crusts and cut in cubes
1 cup grated sharp cheese
1 cup cooked and cleaned shrimp
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 cups milk
3 eggs, beaten
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper

Combine bread cubes, grated cheese and shrimp and put in buttered casserole. Make sauce of remaining ingredients. Pour sauce over shrimp mixture in casserole. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Serves 6.

TUNA TERRIFIC

1 pkg. (6 oz.) seasoned long grain and wild rice
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen peas
4 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 can (10½ oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup
¾ cup milk
2 cans (9¼ oz. ea.) tuna, drained and flaked
¾ cup thinly sliced celery
¾ cup thinly sliced carrot
1 can (4 oz.) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

SAUCE

¼ cup (½ stick) butter
¼ cup all purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ cups milk
2 tablespoons chopped parsely
1 teaspoon shredded lemon peel

Prepare rice according to package directions. Stir in frozen peas; remove from heat. Combine egg yolks, soup and milk. Stir in tuna, celery, carrot, mushrooms; stir in rice. Beat egg whites until frothy. Add cream of tartar and beat until stiff but not dry; fold into rice mixture. Divide into 2 buttered 1½ quart casseroles. Bake in 375 degree oven 40-45 min. or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Let stand 5 min. before serving. To prepare sauce: in saucepan melt butter; blend in flour and sault. Remove from heat; stir in milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute only. Add parsley and lemon peel. Serve with casseroles. Yields 2¾ cups sauce. Makes 6 servings for each casserole.

COUNTRY COTTAGE CASSEROLE

1½ pounds ground lamb
1½ teaspoons garlic powder
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup ginger snap crumbs
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 cups cooked rice
10½ oz. can beef consomme
8 oz. can stewed tomatoes
2 tablespoons chopped chives

Combine lamb, seasonings, crumbs and soy sauce. Form into 1-inch balls. Brown in vegetable oil. Drain on absorbent paper. Spoon rice into greased 2-quart casserole. Arrange meatballs on top of rice. Blend consomme, stewed tomatoes and chives. Pour over meatballs. Cover and bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Question: I've been looking for a recipe for Stuffed Eggplant — an easy recipe, please. Thanks. — Mrs. E. E., Roslindale

Answer: Everyone's catching on to the unique flavor of eggplant these days — add this recipe to your eggplant file:

STUFFED EGGPLANT

1 large (2 lbs.) eggplant
½ to two-thirds cup olive or salad oil
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 pkg. 8 oz. stuffing mix
¼ cup melted margarine
½ cup hot water
1 can (10½ oz.) spaghetti sauce with mushrooms

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Wash, peel and slice eggplant into ¾ inch thick round slices. Heat oil over low heat in heavy skillet. Add garlic. In a separate dish, combine flour and salt. Dip eggplant slices in flour mixture, turning to coat both sides. Fry on both sides, adding more oil as needed. Blend stuffing mix, margarine, water and half of the spaghetti sauce. Spoon about one-third cup stuffing into the center of each eggplant slice. Firmly press slices back together, forming an eggplant with stuffing between slices. Insert a long skewer to hold it in shape. Put eggplant in a shallow baking pan; pour remaining spaghetti sauce over and bake in preheated oven, uncovered, 40 minutes or until eggplant is tender. Makes 6-8 servings.

Question: I would like to confess that when it comes to cooking fish, no matter what type of fish I prepare, it all tastes the same and that is no compliment to my cooking. Since fish is really quite expensive, almost as much as meat and sometimes more, I would appreciate a really super type of fish dish. Thank you very much.

Answer: Here's a delectable medley of flavors — fillets of sole or flounder rolled around a stuffing of orange sections and simmered in a spicy orange juice broth. Serve with it Orange-Glazed Carrots and Brussel Sprouts with Grapefruit Butter Sauce — perfect companions for the fish rolls.

ORANGE FISH ROLLS

1 large orange
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon minced onion
½ cup seasoned bread crumbs
1 teaspoon Ac'cent
1 teaspoon salt, divided
6 sole or flounder fillets, about 2 lbs.
2 cups orange juice
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Remove small amount of orange rind with vegetable paper. Slice to make 1 tablespoon slivered orange rind; reserve. Secton orange and dice sections. Melt butter in skillet; add celery and onion; cook until tender but not brown. Add orange sections and seasoned bread crumbs; mix well. Sprinkle fillets with Ac'cent and ½ teaspoon salt. Divide orange stuffing among fillets, covering entire top surface. Roll up; fasten with wooden picks. In large skillet, heat orange juice, slivered rind, sugar, remaining ½ teaspoon salt, ginger and dry mustard until mixture just begins to boil. Add rolled fillets; reduce heat. Simmer, covered, until fish flakes when touched withfork, for 5 minutes. Remove fish to heated platter; remove picks and keep warm. Dissolve cornstarch in a little cold water; stir into orange juice mixture in skillet. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and becomes clear. Pour some of sauce over fish; serve remaining sauce separately. Yield: 6 servings.

ORANGE GLAZED CARROTS

8 carrots, pared
¼ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed and undiluted
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Cook whole carrots until almost tender in large saucepan or skillet, about 25 minutes. Drain; add remaining ingredients. Stir constantly over medium heat, turning carrots often, until glazed. Yield: 4-6 servings.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS WITH GRAPEFRUIT BUTTER SAUCE

1½ pounds Brussels sprouts
3 tablespoons frozen Florida grapefruit juice concentrate, thawed and undiluted
4 tablespoons butter or margarine

Wash sprouts and remove outside leaves. Cook sprouts in small amount of salted boiling water, about 15 minutes or until tender. Drain and add remaining ingredients. Let simmer about 5 minutes. Yield: 4-6 servings.

Question: I've always admired people who could bake a really dark date and nut loaf. Do you suppose you could publish such a recipe? — Mrs. T. H., Dedham

Answer: I am quite sure this is the recipe you're looking for. Hope so!

DARK DATE AND NUT LOAF

1 cup boiling water
1 pkg. (8 oz.) dates, cut into large pieces
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup coarsely chopped nuts
2 tablespoons shortening
1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
2 eggs

Pour boiling water over dates and baking soda; allow to cool. Sift flour with salt. Add nuts. Cream shortening with brown sugar in mixing bowl. Blend in eggs and beat well. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with dates, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Blend well after each addition. Grease bottom of 9 x 5 x 3-inch pan; pour in batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 60-70 minutes. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack.

World Horizons

By RAYMOND WILKINSON

NAIROBI (UPI) — Africa's vast elephant herds are being indiscriminately slaughtered despite six-month-old hunting bans imposed by several countries, according to wildlife officials.

Poachers using weapons ranging from acid tipped arrows to machine guns have scarcely been touched by the new restrictions, according to these sources.

Illegal hunting increased dramatically throughout the continent last year as speculators, especially in the Far East, switched from uncertain currencies such as the U. S. dollar into such durables as ivory.

As prices shot up several hundred per cent entire herds became threatened with extinction. Several countries—Kenya, Tanzania, Zaire, Ivory Coast-slapped bans on elephant hunting. Tanzania recently made permanent a ban on all types of hunting.

The move hit hard at professional hunters who squire rich clients through the bush, but did not take the sting out of the poaching trade.

Wounded Animals

A recent report from Kenya's huge Tsavo West National Park said: "This has been one of the worst periods known for poaching. We've found it very difficult to come to grips with these poachers. Apart from animals that died there are still many wandering around with terrible festering wounds caused by arrowheads...some of which appear to have been treated with some form of acid."

Ted Norris of the East African Wildlife Society said things may have improved marginally in the last six months.

"The little man may have been forced out of business," he said, "but the big operators are untouched. We can only hope to moderate the situation. We will never be able to eliminate poaching entirely."

Ivory can now fetch more than $86 a kilo (2.2 pounds) on the open market. One game warden estimated the price would have to drop to the impossible figure of 15 cents a kilo for poachers to decide it was not worthwhile.

The Tsavo report said a "very important deterrent would be the full use of the maximum sentence of five years imprisonment and-or 40,000 shillings ($5,700) fine" for poaching, rather than the current average sentences of around two months in jail

Hunters Complain

Governments have become tougher recently. Nderito Mateo, former mayor of the Kenyan town of Nyeri, was sentenced to three years imprisonment and fined $286 for unlawful possession of ivory. He was the most prominent person convicted in the current drive.

The continent's professional hunters have also suffered under the ban, unjustifiably they claim. They argue the ban may have been counterproductive on at least a couple of scores:

—Their clients bring in much needed hard currency (Tanzanian hunters had a half million dollars worth of business on hand when hunting stopped) which in turn could be used to protect wildlife.

—The very presence of legitimate hunters in the field deterred would-be poachers who now have greater freedom of movement through the plains.

According to professional hunter Ram Manji many of his colleagues have lost up to 50 per cent of their lucrative business in which they charged clients up to $300 a day. Some three dozen hunters from Tanzania have been driven out of business altogether because of the permanent ban now in effect there.

Fashionettes

Remember page boys and the sexy peek-a-boo hairstyle that covered nearly half a face? They are coming back, says the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association Inc.

The classics in sportswear for summer are very soft, without hard lines. Softness is the word. Fabrics include the old softies —jersey and soft knits. Anything uptight —narrow armholes, close-to-the-skin necklines, or tight waistlines — is out.

Foreign influences on summer's fashions come from China and India. Many shapes will have a vaguely Mandarin or Chinese look with little stand-up collars and roll-back sleeves.

In jewelry, ropes are the thing this season. From the most delicate to the boldest link, they're sensational with everything from casual sportswear to sophisticated evening clothes. The most versatile piece of jewelry a woman can own, ropes are a link to a limitless number of looks.

No wardrobe is complete without at least two or three jewelry ropes. Loop, tie, pin, double, triple and mix the ropes with chains, pendants, tassels and matinees.

White jewelry will be the big winner again this summer. The white stars in necklaces including sleek collars, swishing tassels, pretty pendants and versatile ropes.

Beaded bracelets for summer are meant to be worn by the armful. The more the merrier.

Lucille Ball will not be back in a CBS series next fall. Instad, she will do several specials for the network in 1974-75. Beginning in 1951, she has starred in three series—"I love Lucy," "The Lucy Show" and the current "Here's Lucy."

Mini business boom in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — An economic study pubblished here predicts a four per cent increase in capital investments this year over 1973 by Argentina's manufacturing industry. The study by the Foundation for Latin American Economic Investigations also predicted an increase of 22 per cent in investment in durable goods by the manufacturing sector.

Rarebird

Although only 45 remain in the wild, the regal whooping crane may avert extermination as a result of wildlife biologist Ray Erickson's effort. Since Erickson (above) began hatching the birds artificially from eggs taken in the wild, 17 whoopers have been born at Maryland's Patuxent Wildlife Center.

Endangered species featured in Natonal Wildlife issue

Today, no less than 109 species of American wildlife, ranging from the timber wolf and black-footed ferret to the whooping crane and southern bald eagle, are in imminent danger of extinction. The roster of animals in jeopardy has steadily increased over the years and dozens of others seem destined to join them in the near future.

The predicament of American wildlife and its hope for the future is detailed in the special April-May issue of NATIONAL WILDLIFE Magazine, published by the National Wildlife Federation. The special issue, the first in the magazine's 12-year history, is devoted entirely to the plight of endangered species.

The accelerating threat to U.S. wildlife is noted by Harry Goodwin, a world authority on endangered species who served as special consultant for the issue. Goodwin points out that the recorded disappearance of only two mammals and three birds in the U.S. and Puerto Rico between 1600-1850 jumped to 17 mammals, 28 birds, and 12 fishes during the period 1850-1972. This represents 10 times as many species lost in the last 153 years as disappeared in the previous 250 years.

Besides Goodwin, who headed up the endangered species staff for the International Union for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) for the past three years, 13 other well-known natural science authorities are featured in the special issue including Isaac Asimov, Jean George, and Roger Tory Peterson.

An overview of the urgency of the endangered species problem and a comprehensive review of the past and the current situations are covered. The issue also takes a hard look at the continuing problems.

Loss of habitat and increasing environmental pollution are seen as the principal problems facing diminishing forms of wildlife, whether it be mammals, birds, insects, or plant life. "To survive, wild animals need suitable habitat," explain the editors. "But habitat is more than just a place. It is food and cover, water, and living space - an enormously complex web of many environmental factors. Through farming, industrialization and relentless development, man has altered that web. And for many beleaguered creatures, he may well have altered it irrevocably."

Several recent governmental actions stand out to Dr. Lee Talbot, senior scientist to the Council on Environmental Quality, as significant rays of hope for the global ecosystem, described as an "unraveling web." Evidence of growing international appreciation of the value of wildlife culminated in the 1972 U.N. Conference on the Human Environment Stockholm in the 1973 meeting in Washington during which 80 nations agreed to protect endangered species through control of international trade.

While Congress last year appropriated money for the first time to conserve and protect endangered species, the amount in the view of NATIONAL WILDLIFE's Washington Editor George Reiger, writing in the article "Laws of Nature Versus Laws of Man," is "distressingly modest." A maximum of only $10 million will be given to states in cost-sharing funds over the next three years. In passing the Endangered Species Act of 1966, however, and strengthening it in 1973, Reiger feels Congress has officially pledged to conserve and protect species threatened with extinction.

Famed science writer Isaac Asimov, a professor of biochemistry at Boston University's School of Medicine, sums it up: "As life loses its diversity, the world becomes impoverished. . . in practical ways."

The spectacularly illustrated special issue is an invaluable reference for students and teachers. Besides providing a complete perspective on the endangered species situation and its problems, comprehensive lists are provided of the 62 extinct species which have disappeared from the U.S. and Puerto Rico since the beginning of the 17th century, as well as the 109 mammals, birds, fishes, reptiles, and amphibians now on the endangered list and 69 species now classified as "threatened."

Non-members of the 3½ million member Federation may purchase heavy-bound copies of the full-color April-May issue for $2 each from the NWF, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Cadmium in cigarettes

The precise components in cigarette smoke that cause emphysema have not yet been pin-pointed. But cadmium is high on the list of suspects.

Only minute amounts of cadmium, a metal poisonous in high concentrations, are inhaled with one cigarette. But the metal builds up in the body in almost direct proportion to the number of cigarettes smoked. Not only does it accumulate in the lungs but some of it also passes on to the liver and kidneys, where it mounts up more. Autopsies on emphysema patients show excess levels of cadmium in all three organs.

According to the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, Dr. Gordon L. Snider of Boston University's School of Medicine conducted experiments to find out how cadmium impairs the lungs Each day for five days rats were exposed to an aerosal containing only one percent of cadmium compound. After only a few days, the rat' lungs showed marked damage. The air sacs, where oxygen and carbon dioxide are exchanged, were partially destroyed. This is exactly the kind of damage found in emphysema patients. The surprise is that it happened so fast.

Damage to the air sacs has also been found in victims of industrial accidents who were exposed to high concentrations of cadmium. There is more evidence of lung impairment in workers exposed to cadmium dust for long periods.

In addition, there are disturbing implications for non smokers.Some research has shown there is even more cadmium in the smoke that drifts off the burning end of the cigarette than in the drag the smoker inhales.

Cadmium is only one of the many damaging chemicals in cigarette smoke. That is why cigarette smoking is the major cause of severe lung disease.

To find out more about the consequences of cigarette smoking, contact your lung association. They have the facts. Call 326-4081 for free pamphlets, film loans, or information on stop-smoking clinics.

Announcing Newsradio

You'll find we keep regular hours at WEEI/Newsradio 59. Our special features and reports are carefully scheduled between news segments

So it follows that parts of your day will dovetail with parts of our day. Like clockwork

You might, for example, get up at Gordon Barnes Weather time; dress by Helicopter Traffic-time; gulp coffee by Steve Fredericks Sports-time; race out by Ed Berger Business-time; get in by Hughes Rudd CBS News-time

Of course, the flow of news on a given day can alter feature times slightly. But this weekday 24-hour program schedule is a very good guide to Newsradio 59.

We thought you'd like to keep it handy. That way, our time can be your time

Jordan Marsh to celebrate Earth Day

Earth Day is coming . . . and what better time than spring to celebrate the wonders nature provides'

Jordan Marsh will commemorate Earth Day this year by paying tribute to the trees. On Saturday, April 20, starting at 9:30 a.m., Jordan's will be distributing to the public a total of 30,000 seedling pine trees at its main store, Boston, and at its branch stores in Braintree, Framingham, Peabody, and Burlington. Each tree will be individually wrapped for preservation and will be tagged with planting instructions.

William Brownell, the commissioner of Natural Resources, will be on hand to present the first tree on Saturday, April 20, on the street floor, Boston, while members of the teenage Marsha Jordan Fashion Board distribute the trees

VA information

Q—The Veterans Administration started paying me $220 monthly under its dependents' educational assistance program while I was single. Now that I'm married, will my benefits be increased?

A—No. The law does not provide for additional assistance because of dependents of participants in this program.

Q—I'm a 73 year old veteran drawing pension from the Veterans Administration. Is it true, as I have heard, that I don't have to submit an annual income questionnaire?

A—Yes, that is correct. Veterans 72 years old and older who have been on the agency's pension rolls during two consecutive years are exempt from filing the questionnaire. They are required to notify VA if the value of their estate or annual income changes, however.

Q—I'm a Vietnam era veteran. My employer is willing to set up an on-the-job training program for me. How does my employer go about getting approval so I can draw GI Bill benefits during training?

A—Both you and your employer should contact the nearest VA office for complete information and assistance.

Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Eskimo culture at Aquarium

Especially for children, the New England Aquarium is featuring Eskimo culture, "the way it used to be," thru April 20.

Eskimo children's games, chants, songs, and stories, along with a special film series featuring "Tuktu," a little boy, are part of the week long look at Eskimo culture, as seen through the eyes of a child.

"Tuktu and the 10,000 fishes," and "Tuktu and the Great Kayak" are part of a series from the National Film Board of Canada and are on loan for the week's program through the courtesy of the Canadian Consulate General in Boston.

Special exhibits of artifacts and display from Harvard's Peabody Museum round out the week long look at Eskimo culture from a child's view

The Aquarium's special programs on Eskimo children are scheduled for 10:30 a.m., 11:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 2:30 p.m

Historic houses open to visitors

The Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities announces the opening of its Boston area historic house museums this spring. The Society is devoted to preserving distinctive examples of New England's architectural history. It also provides technical expertise to groups and individuals who want to save an old building.

The Society operates more than 60 house museums, most of which are open to the public. It is noteworthy for saving all early materials in its houses and for preserving the sense that a house has been lived in and modified by many generations with differing tastes.

Boston: The Harrison Gray House, 141 Cambridge Street, is open year round, Monday-Friday, 10-4. Admission is $1.00. The house was designed by Bulfinch in 1796. It has been carefully restored, based upon scientific analysis of early paint, family documents, contemporary inventories, and paintings in the Museum of Fine Arts. Special features are the wall paper borders and surprising paint colors.

Cambridge: Cooper Frost Austin House, 21 Linnaean street, is open June-October, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, 1-5. Admission is $.50. This 17th century lean-to is believed to be the oldest house in Cambridge.

Quincy: The Josiah Quincy House, 20 Muirhead street, is open June-September, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, 1-5. Admission is $1.00. The house was built in 1770 by Colonel Josiah Quincy and contains important collections of family furniture.

Norwell: Jacobs Farm, corner of Main street and Jacobs lane, is open June-September, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, 2-5. Admission is $2.00. The mid-18th century farmhouse is approached by a long country lane surrounded by fields with numerous barns and out buildings.

Yarmouthport: Winslow Crocker House, King's highway, is open June-September, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, Saturday, 1-4. Admission is $.75. The house was built in 1780 and is of particular interest for its fine collection of furniture. Next door is the Thatcher House, which is also open to the public.

Waltham: Lyman House, Lyman street, is open July and August, Thursday and Friday, 11-4. Admission to the house is $1.00, $.50 to the greenhouse. Built in 1793, the "Vale" is one of Samuel McIntyre's most ambitious country houses. The mid-19th century greenhouse is of considerable interest and is noted for its grape vines and camelias which are over 100 years old

Lincoln: Codman House, Codman road, is open June-October, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, 1-5. Admission is $2.00. This Georgian country estate was federalized during the 1790's and contains a remarkable accumulation of family furnishings of various periods and styles.

Danvers: Nurse House, 149 Pine street, is open June-September, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, 1-5. Admission is $1.00. This picturesque 17th century house, surrounded by open fields, was built by the Nurse family on the site of the grave of Rebecca Nurse, who was hanged as a witch in 1692.

Gloucester: Beauport, Eastern Point Boulevard, is open June-September, Monday-Friday; tours begin at 2:30, 3:30, and 4:30. Admission is $2.00, $1.00 for children 12-16. The 30 room mansion contains whole rooms from pre-revolutionary houses, which were moved to Beauport, and other rooms decorated in dramatic moods or themes by its creator, Henry Sleeper.

Newbury: Short House, 39 High road, is open June-September, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, 1-5. Admission is $.50. Dating from 1732, this frame house has brick ends and contains lovely interior paneling from the William and Mary period.

Amesbury: Rocky Hill Meetinghouse, Portsmouth road, is open June-October, Wednesday-Saturday, 1-5; inquire at the parsonage. Admission is $1.00. This is a fine example of an 18th century meeting house whose box pews and raised pulpit are virtually unchanged.

Information about the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities and its properties in other parts of New England is available at 141 Cambridge street, Boston, Massachusetts, 02114.

Charles M. Furcolo to run for Treasurer

At a press conference held at the State House in Boston recently, Charles Mark Furcolo announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the office of Treasurer and Receiver-General of the Commonwealth and issued the following statement:

I am a candidate for state treasurer. I am and always have been a Democrat. I plan to wage a hard campaign but a clean one. I think you should know something of the background and experience of any candidate. Let me tell you mine. I taught history and government at the Mount Hermon School in Gill, Massachusetts for two years. I am a practicing attorney and have been both an assistant attorney general and an assistant district attorney. I am 33 years old.

CHARLES M. FURCOLO

As a teacher of government I've known firsthand the frustration and anger of young people with the everyday, business as usual kind of government we've been experiencing in recent years — the easy acceptance by public officials of what has become a shabby way of political life — the unholy alliance of big money and power politics — the anything goes style — the good fellow who is taking care of himself rather than fighting for the people — the conspiracy of silence between public officials and the financial powers. As an assistant attorney general I represented the Commonwealth's Department of Banking in its attempt to control and regulate the banking powers in our state. And in my battles with the banks in our Supreme Judicial Court I've seen firsthand the powerful resources which the banks have at hand in terms of manpower, money and high-priced legal talent. As an assistant district attorney I have witnessed firsthand the crime in our streets, the fear in our communities — and I don't mean in the downtown financial districts where imposing stone fortresses remove and separate the big money powers from the people and their problems.

For too long now, the name of the game of government has been politics, patronage, money and feathering one's own nest — and that has to be changed. We need a state treasurer who cares — who cares — who cares not about what that office will do for him personally but rather about what rate of return the people get on their money. We need a state treasurer who will be a fighter — who will fight for the people no matter how wealthy or powerful the adversary. We need a state treasurer who will speak out — who will speak with the voice, the will and with the authority of the people he represents. I believe that such a state treasurer could change the kind of government we've been experiencing in recent years, could begin to dismantle the existing unholy alliance of big money and politicians and could destroy the conspiracy of silence that presently enshrouds the state treasurer's office.

Furcolo was born in Springfield, Massachusetts, on September 10, 1940, to Kathryn and Foster Furcolo. He attended grade school in Longmeadow and secondary school in Wilbraham. He is a graduate of Yale University and of the University of Pennsylvania Law School.

Since law school he has been a teacher of history and government at the Mount Hermon School in Gill, Massachusetts, has served as an assistant attorney general for the Commonwealth for two years and for the past year has served as an assistant district attorney For Suffolk County.

He has been a lifelong resident of Massachusetts and he presently lives in Cambridge.

He has three younger brothers and one younger sister: David Furcolo, age 30; Foster Furcolo, Jr., age 29; Hope Furcolo, age 21; and Richard Furcolo, age 20. He is currently a practicing attorney in Somerville.

Abstract sculpter exhibit

An exhibition of recent works by leading abstract sculptor Michael Steiner at the Museum of Fine Arts is continuing through April 28. Two of the monumental metal constructions on view in Gallery CC have never before been exhibited in the U. S.

The sculptures on exhibition span a four year period from 1970 to the present & represent the artist's recent "elevated" period. Raised off the ground, Steiner's new pieces look like diagramatic line drawings "filled with matter." Thick metal planes overlapping and tilting at various angles give his sculptures a feeling of openness and energy. They achieve expressiveness through the use of surface and edge.

Steiner works first in wood, to scale, then has the thick rectilinear slabs fabricated in corten steel. This technique allows him the freedom to manipulate his design while developing it and accounts for the clean, precise lines of the finished sculpture.

Although only 28 years old, Steiner represents an important alternative too Anthony Caro who has dominated the field of sculpture for the last decade. In the catalog published in conjunction with this exhibition, Kenworth Moffett, curator of Contemporary Art at the Museum, traces the development of Steiner's work and discusses his role in contemporary art. The illustrated catalog is available for $1.50.

Carey, Ryan lead North to 8-0 win

By RICK GORDON

John Carey's no-hitter and a third inning offensive explosion propelled Newton North to a rain abbreviated 8-0 triumph over Rindge Tech.

Although Carey often fell behind on the count to batters, he continuously battled back to retire them. The junior only walked one while striking out eight and faced just 18 batters during his five-inning stint.

Carey fanned the first two batters and breezed through the opening inning. The Tigers asted little time getting themselves on the scoreboard in their half of the inning.

Jack Ryan singled and stole second base. With one out, Steve Dibenidette dropped the ball in front of the plate and outraced a wild throw to first, taking second as Ryan scored on the catcher's error.

In the top of the third Carey encountered his only danger. Kenneally's blooper to left field eluded Ryan who was given an error on the play.After a pair of forceouts a Rindge runner reached third on a stolen base and a balk. Carey bore down to strike out the next hitter and preserve Newton's one run lead.

The Tigers broke open the ballgame with seven runs in their half of the third.

Ryan opened the rally with a single and took second on Bob Kinsella's sacrifice. Dibenidetto's single sent Ryan to third. Bob Vona walked to lead the bases.

After fouling off a squeeze attempt, Dan Turner reached first on a fielder's choice with the play on Ryan at home coming too late. Joe Rondina then reached on an error as Dibenidette scored the third Newton run. Cappucci dealt passes to Keith Glasser and Dana Foley forcing home two more runs.

Carey greeted a new Rindge hurler with a sacrifice, producing another run, before Ryan collected his third single and second of the inning for two runs batted in and an eight run Tiger bulge.

Neither side challenged after the third inning and in the last of the fifth with Glasser at bat the umpire called first for a delay, but moments later ruled the game official.

The Tigers play at home this afternoon against Arlington and again tomorrow with Waltham at Lincoln Park making up a game which was postponed earlier.

Brae Burn holds three paddle tennis tournaments

Paddle tennis at Brae Burn Country Club is now winding up its third season. Many of the players have entered New England open tournaments and brought back to the home courts new skills which have upgraded the play.

These last few weeks have seen the play of the three traditional season-end tournaments: the men's, the women's and the mixed doubles.

In the men's doubles, the previous two years' winners, Bill Brown of Weston and Bill Woods of Newton were defeated by the first-time team of Royce Taylor of Lincoln and Bob Libbey of Natick. In the finals, Bob Libbey and Royce Taylor defeated Dennis Dowd of Dover and Chauncy Steele of Cambridge.

In the men's doubles consolation match, Tom Johnson of Wellesley and Jerry Jordan of Wayland defeated Loring Powell of Newton and Franny Bryson of Weston.

In the women's doubles, in a very close match going to a tie-breaker in the third set, Joanne Bryson of Weston and Nancy Fleming of Wayland defeated Sally Prescott of Wellesley and Sukey Grousbeck of Weston.

In the women's consolation, Winnie Powell of Newton and Helen Brown of Weston defeated Joan Eaton and Jo Staub, both of Wellesley.

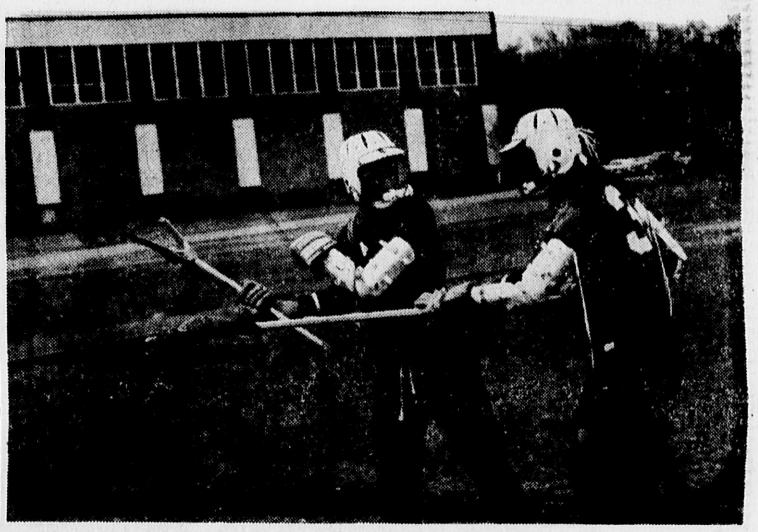

The mixed doubles was held over a weekend with the largest number of entries so far in Brae Burn's paddle tennis history. Sally Prescott of Wellesley and Bill Woods of Newton defeated Audrey and Bill Plumer for the championship. Sally and Bob Libbey of Natick defeated Nancy and Sam Fleming of Wayland in the consolation match.

College news

Joseph L. Tansey Jr. of Newton recently received a varsity letter for being a member of Bowdoin College's hockey team.

Sophomore Barry Stone of Newton is a candidate for Nasson College's baseball team. According to a press release, Stone was "an all-around substitute last season."

George Reynolds of Newton is one of several returning veterans on Army's lacrosse team. Reynolds, who also played hockey, is an attackman.

Junior Steve Stockman of Newton is expected to be a pitcher for the Union College baseball team this spring.

Tax Free Towns

ROME (UPI) — Securing tax exemptions seems to have been an Italian national sport since the Middle Ages.

Yes, it does. Because the healing Principle taught and practiced by Christ Jesus can apply to anyone at any time. New proofs of its healing power occur every day.

Healing in Christian Science means much more than physical release. It means a victory over fear. A clearer understanding of God, and of yourself.

You're invited to learn more at our Sunday service. The Bible Lesson you'll hear will explain more of how Christian Science heals.

Swim team nears end of season

The Newton swim team is nearing the end of its first season in the new Newton North High School pool. In past years the team, sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department, has worked out at the Brighton YMCA pool during the winter and at the Gath Pool during the summer season.

The use of the new North High swimming facility has resulted in a dramatic increase in the number of prospective swimmers. Almost 200 swimmers tried out for the limited number of places on the team. Despite the energy problem, pool problems, limited pool hours, and the increased number of swimmers the team was able to get new members into competion.

Meets were held with other cities and towns having comparable amounts of workout time weekly. Newton defeated Belmont and Brookline and lost to Woburn and Dover-Sherborn.

A number of Newton swimmers have competed in AAU Meets. At the Medford AAU Relay Meet Newton's 13-and up team consisting of Mary Mulvaney, Patti Higgins, Scott Pohlman and John Mescall won third place medals in the co-ed special relay.

Swim team The Newton swim team, sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department, is shown working out at the new Newton North High School swimming pool.

Mark wins tennis titles

Dr. Melvin Mark of Newton emerged as the men's singles tennis champion of Sudbury Skating & Tennis Club in a club tournament recently concluded.

Mark beat Bruce Shoemaker of Framingham, with whom he later teamed up as a partner to capture the men's doubles title.

A long-time racket buff, Dr. Mark is dean of the College of Engineering at Northeastern University, and lives at 17 Larch Road in Newton

Jog-A-Thon to support United Cerebral Palsy

Local residents will join John Kelley (of Marathon fame) in a "Run for Fun" sponsored by the Marriott Motor Hotel and United Cerebral Palsy of Metropolitan Boston on Sunday, April 28.

People may run any distance up to five miles at their own speed. The event is open to anyone over 16 years of age. It will not be a competitive race, but rather a "fun" get together for runners or joggers in support of United Cerebral Palsy.

The entry fee is $1.00 or more (tax deductible). Additional support for United Cerebral Palsy will be derived from sponsors (neighbors, friends, business associates) who will pledge money for each mile run by a jogger.

The "Run for Fun" will begin at the Marriott at approximately 11 a.m. on April 28. Entries must be in before April 25.

For additional information, people may write to Johnny Kelley, Jog-A-Thon Chairman, United Cerebral Palsy of Metropolitan Boston, P.O. Box 62, West Newton, Mass. or phone 965-9850.

Funds needed

The Newton Youth Hockey Association is soliciting financial assistance from families whose economic condition will allow them to make contributions in addition to tuition payment.

Some families are assisting in other fund raising programs. A major means of fund raising will be a printing of a yearbook with pictures of all the teams and their performance records. Advertisements in the book will range in cost from $10 for a professional listing to $200 for a full page

Dedham fair May 4

Plans are being made for the twenty-fifth annual Dedham Country Day School Fair to be held Saturday, May 4, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The fair will be held, rain or shine, at the school grounds on Sandy Valley Road in Dedham.

The fair features fun for all ages. There will be games and rides (including a Merry-Go-Round) – pets, pizza, popcorn and pinball machines. There will be used clothing, toys, books or at the "Treasures & Trivia" booth.

Also for sale will be handmade and hand-decorated items, frozen food, baked goods and plants. At noon there will be a raffle drawing with prizes for adults and children.

The chairmen for this year's fair are Mrs. Maxwell Montgomery of Westwood and Mrs. Peter Swift of Walpole. Profits from the fair go in part toward scholarship aid for the school.

There will be a shuttle bus service (and parking; available from the Norfolk County Trust, located on Rt. 1A in Dedham center.

58 cars in Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Five more entries for the May 26 Indianapolis "500" were received Tuesday afternoon, bringing the field to 58 cars.

Indianapolis Motor Speedway President Tony Hulman said he expected about 65 cars to be entered. The entry deadline was midnight Monday but those postmarked before then will be accepted.

Among those expected in the mail yet were entries from the Vel's-Parnelli Jones team.

Five entries which arrived Tuesday afternoon included three from the Roger Penske team and two from the Roy Woods racing team.

Penske's entries included Drake-Offy McLarens for Gary Bettenhausen of Monrovia, Ind., and Mike Hiss of Tustin, Calif., plus a Drake-Offy Eagle with no driver assigned.

John Mahler, Newport Beach, Calif., was listed to drive one of the two Drake-Offy cars entered by Woods, of Marina Del Rey, Calif. No driver was named for the second machine.

Parade April 21

Newton Central Little League will open its season on April 21 at Cabot Park.

A parade will form at the First National Store parking lot at Craft and Washington streets. The parade is expected to begin at 12:30 p.m.

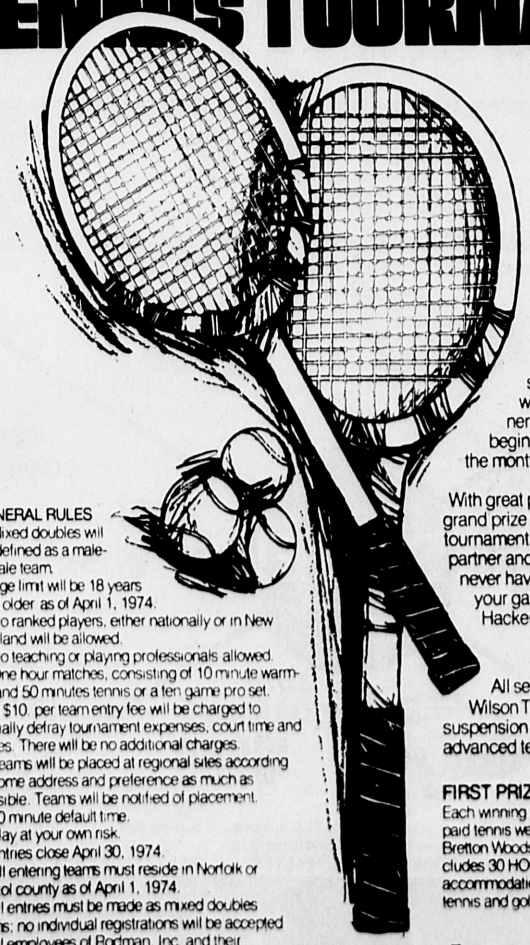

A police cruiser will lead the parade, followed by a fire engine. The parade will proceed west on Washington street to Newtonville Square, then south on Walnut street to Cabot street. It will go east on Cabot street to the new baseball diamond at Cabot Park.

Dr. Len Tocci will be introduced to start the opening ceremonies.

Representatives of city government will be present. Mayor Theodore D. Mann will throw out the first ball.

A tennis tournament for the un-ranked amateur

1ST ANNUAL RODMAN HACKERS' INVITATIONAL MIXED DOUBLES TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Forget the well-travelled tourng pro, put the haughty ranked amateur out of your mind, thumb your nose at the club tennis instructor. This is a tournament for you.

It's the First Annual Hackers' Invitational—the tournament that can be won with your years of slick gamesmanship, your favorite weekend drop shot, and your partner's unerring lob attack. Play will begin in May and continue throughout the month, with the finals in early June.

With great prizes to all semi-finalists and a grand prize to the winning team, this is truly a tournament you won't want to pass up. Grab a partner and get a slice of the action. You'll never have a better chance then now to put your game to the test in the Rodman Hackers' Invitational.

All semi-finalists receive a trophy and the new Wilson T-3000 steel racquet. The unique string suspension system makes the T-3000 the most advanced tennis racquet available today.

FIRST PRIZE
Each winning team member will receive an all expense paid tennis week at the Emerson-Laver Tennis Camp in Bretton Woods, N.H. A $900 value, the tennis week includes 30 HOURS OF INSTRUCTIONS, complete hotel accommodations, all meals, and unlimited use of all tennis and golfing facilities

To enter, register at Rodman Ford, Route 1, in Foxboro before April 30, 1974.

Lawn Doctor®

If you like what we're doing for someone else's lawn... you'll love what we do for yours!

No two lawns are exactly the same. That's why Lawn Doctor gives you customized service!

Year round, your Lawn Doctor specialist gives you customized service, tailored to your own lawn's unique needs. What's right for your neighbor's lawn or the fellow's down the street isn't necessarily right for yours.

Your neighbor may have a chickweed problem. The guy across the road may be fighting off armyworms.

But your lawn's worst enemy may be fungus, grubs or billbugs. That's why Lawn Doctor chemically analyzes your lawn before prescribing the best treatment to keep it healthy and beautiful.

Seeding, fertilization, weed, fungus and insect control—these are just some of the services we customize for your lawn's year-round care. And we always follow through with periodic checkups to ensure that your lawn receives the best possible care!

Special $24.95 introductory offer.

Take advantage of the special one-application introductory offer available now from your local Lawn Doctor lawn service. It begins with a thorough examination of your lawn. This includes soil tests to determine the exact composition of your lawn. Once the results are analyzed, you get seed, two kinds of top-quality fertilizer, power aeration, power rolling and all labor. You get all this —for an area up to 4,000 square feet—for just $24.95. That's practically what you'd pay for the seed and materials alone!

Church group plans dinner, garage sale

The annual Men's Club Congregation Night will be held at The Union Church in Waban on Thursday, April 25 in the vestry.

The entire congregation will be invited to share a catered buffet dinner at 7 p.m. Calvin A. Hill, president, will be in charge of arangements.

Following the dinner, Miss Carole Taynton, associate lecturer for the Boston Museum of Fine Arts will show slides and discuss: "Collections of the Museum of Fine Arts, and how they grew."

Miss Taynton received her B.A. and M.A. degrees from Oberlin College; was an instructor at the Toledo Museum of Art; and, since 1966, has been with the Boston Museum.

She is also a semi-professional singer, and has been a contributing editor and music critic for the Boston Globe.

On Saturday, May 4 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., the Men's Club will sponsor a garage sale to benefit the Union Church budget. Richard W. Husher is chairman, and Robert Brandt, treasurer, of the project. A variety of articles will be sold at various home sites.

Maps showing the location of the homes involved will be distributed at the church parking lot the day of the sale.

Art festival

Portrait painter Jacob Binder (left) focuses his attention of his painting, "The Talmudist," now on exhibition with 50 others at Temple Mishkan Tefila in Chestnut Hill through April 24. The artist was honored at a testimonial dinner Wednesday (April 17). Shown here with him are Julius R. Teich (center), dinner committee chairman, and Canton Gregor Shelkan.

Lodge to honor Harold Russell

B'nai B'rith Automotive Lodge will honor the chairman of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, and the First Lady of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at its annual ACE Awards Breakfast Sunday, May 5, at the Marriott.

Mrs. Francis W. Sargent will present the lodge's 12th award to Harold Russell for his leadership in the field of employment for the handicapped.

Russell, who lost both hands in a wartime training accident in the Army, skyrocketed to fame and became a national symbol of courage in meeting the challenge of disability when he was selected to portray the role of Homer Parrish, a handless sailor in the movie, "The Best Years of Our Lives." For his performance, he won two Academy Awards, one for his performance as best supporting actor and the other for "bringing aid and comfort to disabled veterans through the medium of motion pictures."

Russell, in addition to the foregoing awards, has been honored as one of the Ten Outstanding Young Men (1950) by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Jessie Sargent, Massachusetts' First Lady, will present the ACE trophy to Russell. An accomplished author, she has written, among several books and articles, "The Governor's Wife: A View from Within," "Catalysts for Help," "Children Scarred in Land of Beauty." She has served on or directed such groups as the National Committee for Children's Lobby, Women Concerned with Criminal Justice, Cardinal Medeiros' Committee on Drugs, and Massachusetts 4-H Foundations, Inc.

Harold Russell

Coordinating plans for the Ace Breakfast are Automotive Lodge President Michael Sandler, Program Chairman Samuel S. Press, and Reservations Chairman Norman Krista.

'Outreach Week' slated

Rev. Ockenga

The United Presbyterian Church in Newton Corner has announced an "Outreach Week" program April 21-28.

The week program will include the following events:

Sunday, April 21, Richard Pease, formerly a missionary in Africa, will speak at 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. He will show slides of his work in Africa at the 6z;30 p.m. meeting.

Lyle Schrag of Gordon College will show slides of his work in sending Bibles behind the Iron Curtain at a junior and senior high school fellowship meeting at 6:30 p.m. At 7:30 p.m., Schrag will speak to the Challenge II Group.

Rev. Robert Peterson of New alife Centers, Limerick, Me., will be the guest speaker Thursday, April 25, at 7:30 p.m. He will show slides of the work in homes for boys and girls who are wards of the state.

Refreshments will be served.

A special program for teens will be held Friday, April 26 at 7:30 p.m.

The International Students Dinnerfeaturing native dishes and speakers, will take place Saturday, April 27, at 6:30 p.m.

Rev. Harold John Ockenga, former pastor of Boston's Park Street Church, will be the special speaker Sunday, April 28, at 11 a.m.

Ockenga is now present president of Gordon College and Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary.

Special lectures close temple series

The final meeting of the spring Adult Education program of the Newton area conservative temples will be highlighted by two special presentations.

First, Marshall Schneider, chairman of the Soviet Jewry Committee of the New England Region, American Jewish Congress will chair a panel discussion on "The Prognosis for Soviety Jewry and Activism on Behalf of Soviet Jewy," and second, Rabbi Alvin Leberman, chaplain for Jewish affairs for the Veterans Administration hospitals in the greater Boston area, will present a general lecture on the impact of medieval Judaism on contemporary Jewish life.

abbi Liberman was ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary, and he received his Ph.D. in Near East Studies from Brandeis University in 1969, before and after which he has served in several pulpits in this area.

Schneider has visited the U.S.S.R. and the immigration centers in Europe and Israel. He is a lecturer on matters pertaining to the Soviet Jewry movements both here and abroad.

The Adult Education Program meets at the Temple Mishkan Tefila at 300 Hammond Pond Parkway in Chestnut Hill. The workshop on Soviet Jewry begins at 8 p.m., and Rabbi Leberman's lecture is scheduled for 9:15 p.m.

Program to probe singles' world

"Shadow Games and Silhouettes," a multi-screen, stereophonic sound production probing the games of the single world and exploring the question of maintaining individuality within an intense realtionship will be presented in Newton.

It will be a feature of the "Uncoupled Group" program at West Newton Unitarian Church, 1326 Washington St., Sunday, April 28, at 7:30 p.m.

Flea market at temple April 21

The third annual flea market of Temple Shalom of Newton will be held on Sunday, April 21 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the temple on Temple St., West Newton.

For sale will be old and new merchandise such as furniture, pictures, jewelry, books, and toys.

Admission is $.50, children $.25. There will be a snack bar.

Choirs to give three concerts

Beethoven's "Mass in C" and the "Jubilate Deo" (SWV 332) by Heinrich Schuetz will be presented by the combined choirs of the Cambridge Motet and the Church of the Redeemer, Chestnut Hill.

The works will be performed in concerts open to the public on Tuesday, April 30, at 8:15 p.m. at St. John's Memorial Chapel of the Episcopal Theological School, 99 Brattle St., Cambridge and on the following Tuesday, May 7, at the same hour at Emmanuel Church of Boston, 15 Newbury St.

The concerts will be directed by Alastair Cassels-Brown and will include soloists and an orchestra of 21 players led by Elizabeth Titus.

The same works will be performed within the Parish Eucharist at the Church of the Redeemer, 379 Hammond St., Chestnut Hill Sunday, May 5, at 10:30 a.m. Visitors are welcome at the service.

Tomorrow is a dream without colors.

The landscape of the future is like a page from a coloring book, blank until we paint it with our imagination.

If we look at the future with fear and foreboding, the colors we choose will be dark and angry.

On the other hand, if we look at the future with hope, the colors will be lighter. Brighter.

Or better yet, if we don't just look, if we all work together to make the future a little better, the colors will positively shine.

At WBZ Radio, we've been working with you to make things a little better for years. We tried to stop smoking, together. We tried to shape up, together. We assisted in changing the drug laws of the state. And we organized Commuter Computer car-pools. All Together.

We believe in the people's power, the power to color tomorrow a better place. We want to work with you.

Together. We're making tomorrow's history.

Planning the upcoming Garage Sale at Boston's Museum of Science are from left: Jacky Schwartz, service League president and Ellen Bettmann of Newton. The sale will be held May 18 and 19.

Museum gets ready for sale

A 1968 Cadillac and a cricket bat are only two of the intriguing variety of items that have already been received by the Museum of Science's Service League for the Giant Garage Sale next month.

Volunteers throughout Metropolitan Boston are busy preparing for the sale, to be held in the museum garage the weekend of May 18 and 19.

The sale will feature everything from an antique telephone and a rowing machine to a conglomeration of household items, toys, magazines, and other objects no longer of use to their donors.

With the emphasis on science oriented books, mechanisms and collections, the museum's volunteers are also seeking sports and camping equipment, bicycles, furniture, tools, small appliances, and almost anything else, with the exception of used clothing.

Volunteers who live in Boston and all surrounding areas have been appointed collecting captains, and they are ready and eager to arrange for pickup of donations.

The museum points out that not only is every contribution a boon to the sale, it also helps donors with their spring cleaning and gives them an opportunity to increase next year's federal tax deductions.

Individuals who would like to contribute items to the sale can contact Mrs. Michael Berrmann, 969-7137.

Six Church Belles Day, April 24

The tenth annual Six Church Belles Day will be held on Wednesday, April 24 in Newton Centre. Women from six Newton Centre churches will roll bandages and dressings for the Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

An interdenominational worship service at 9:30 a.m. will begin the day at the Sacred Heart Church with Msgr. William A. Granville officiating. The day's work will start at 10 a.m. in the Bishop MacKenzie Center. Volunteers are asked to bring their own scissors and bandage rollers.

A box lunch will be served at 12:30 p.m. Following the lunch, Mrs. P. Edward Eden of Bridgeport, Conn., who founded the Six Church Belles Day, will tell the women how it was organized. Mrs. Worthing L. West, a hospital trustee, will report on the Hospital's new Intensive Care and Coronary Care Units and its new Mental Health facilities. Mrs. Marguerite Roggeveen, director of hospital volunteer services will discuss the valuable service of volunteers.

The clergy and wives have been invited to join the women for lunch and to hear the speakers.

General chairman for the day is Mrs. E. Lake Jones, Newton Centre, and co-chairman is Mrs. Leo P. Waters Newton Highlands. Vice chairmen are presidents of the women's organizations within the participating churches.

Ushers at the church will be, Mrs. Cleo Jaillet, Mrs. Frank Lanchantin, Mrs. Carl Grant and Mrs. Albert Rochette.

Lutheran Church is represented by chairman, Mrs. Harold Hueber, and her co-chairmen, Mrs. Howard Vosburgh, Mrs. Jerry Kidman and Mrs. Robert MacDonald.

Methodist Church – Mrs. Charles L. Renker, chairman, and her committee Mrs. George Holland, Mrs. Hoyt Hallas, Mrs. Albert MacMillan, Mrs. Harold Bailey and Mrs. Carl Saunders.

Baptist Church – Mrs. Ronald Adams, chairman, with her committee Mrs. Earl Taylor, Miss Margaret Davis, Mrs. Max Brauninger.

Sacred Heart committee are, Mrs. Thomas Kenney, ticket chairman, telephone: 244-0411, Mrs. John P. Quinn Jr., Mrs. James P. D. Waters, Mrs. Joseph P. Walton, Mrs. Warren Garrapy, Mrs. Michael Taricano, Mrs. Philip Greene, Mrs. Michel DeFillippe, Mrs. Stephen Werbinski, and Mrs. John Connors.

Trinity Episcopal: Mrs. John W. Merrill, chairman, and Mrs. George W Haines, Mrs. George MacNair, Miss Beatrice Eastman.

The Greek Evangelical Church usually participates but due to previous commitments will not be present this year.

How to turn paper into silver. And why.

How is simple.

Buy .999 pure silver bullion. You get immediate delivery, and we can provide storage in a bank vault. We confirm orders by phone. And for our clients, we offer prompt resale service. (We're bonded, by the way, by Lloyd's of London.) The Silver you get comes in a variety of sizes, with exclusive mirror finish. So it's even handsome to look at.

But what's even more attractive is why you should buy silver now.

To begin with, silver is scarce. And it's getting scarcer. Obviously, its value is going up. Many investor's believe silver's potentials far higher than that of other commodities, real estate and securities.

The other side of the coin, of course, is that paper money is dropping in value. Inflation. Devaluation. Silver can far more effectively protect your capital against those twin devils.

We'd be pleased to discuss silver's future with you at any time.

But for your sake, the sooner the better.

Recreation

Basketball season's over

Basketball Season Completed

The Newton Recreation Department's basketball program has finished its seasons and champions have been crowned in four leagues.

The Waban Wonders won an unprecedented third consecutive championship by defeating The Troubadours in two straight games in the American A Division finals, despite the fact that The Troubadours finished first in regular season play. Both games were squeakers with the champs taking the first game 79 to 77 and the clincher 76 to 75.

The Hoops took the American B Division title with a late season surge. The team won 13 out of its last 14 games, including a playoff to gain fourth place in the regular season standings, and the last play-off spot.

In the semi-finals the Hoops ousted first place finishers, The Big Blues 2 games to 1 and then went on to take two straight from Upper Falls for the division crown.

National League

In the National League Newton Centre defeated the Boys Club in the semi-finals and then won two out of three from the Beginnings in the finals for the championship.

Pony League

Hawthorn A had an undefeated season in winning the championship.

Mini Bikes

The mini bike complex operated at the site of the former City Infirmary on Winchester st., Newton Highlands, is open for the season. The three tracks maintained by the Newton Recreation Department are open Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Newton mini bike owners desiring to use the facility should see Paul Patriacca, director or Bob Braceland, safety officer at the track on Saturdays.

No bikes may be ridden, or pushed to the track, but must be transported by car or truck. All local youngsters who want to ride their mini bikes are urged to take advantage of this facility, and are warned that these vehicles are illegal on the public highways.

The tracks and the mini bike club offer a safe and legal place for operation of mini bikes.

Newton Twi Softball League

The Recreation Department's Twi Softball League for adults, 18 and over, will open its 1974 season on Monday May 6. The league has been expanded from 24 to 31 teams this year.

A Division will have nine teams and B and C Divisions, 11 teams each.

Games will be played Monday through Friday nights with two contests scheduled for the Albemarle Playground and one each at Cabot, Warren, Weeks, Cold Spring and Hawthorn.

League entries are closed for this season.

Springfest

The public is invited to attend the Cultural Arts Commission's Springfest to be held on the Newton City Hall Mall from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, May 19.

The Newton Recreation Department's cultural arts program will be represented by exhibitions of hand made quilts made in classes sponsored by the department, pictures from drawing classes, craft displays, the work of senior citizens and a performance by the children's drama classes.

Earth Day celebration Apr. 22

When Massachusetts celebrates Earth Day '74 next Monday on the Boston Common, zoo animals, art, presentations on recycling, and Smokey the Bear will be among the 40 exhibits. The celebration will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 22.

The Earth Day Celebration Committee, which has put together the fourth annual Earth Day, will also feature environmental films, slide shows, a seed-planting workshop, car pollution testing, soil analysis, poisonous plant exhibits, and an ecology tour through the Boston Common.

The Earth Day Celebration Committee is headed by 16-year-old Marjorie Backman of Brookline, who lined up the American Lung Association of Boston, the Appalachian Mountain Club, Habitat School of the Environment, Audubon Society, Sierra Club, League of Women Voters, Massachusetts Forest & Park Association, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and Summerthing to sponsor the festivities.

Working in conjunction with these groups, Ms. Backman managed to put together an impressive list of participants, each of whom will have an exhibit on the Boston Common for Earth Day.

"Earth Day '74," said Marjorie Backman, "will be more than just a fun experience, it will be a learning process as well. Each of the exhibits will provide valuable information which can be used in everyday living, as well as part of a long-range program to make the earth a clean, healthy place to live in."

Participants with exhibits include: The Animal Rescue League, Department of Natural Resources, Animal Birth Control Action League, Boston Gas Company, Arnold Arboretum, Department of Agriculture, Smokey the Bear, Park Department and Ecology Club of Julie Billiart School, Boston 200, Trailside Museum, Charles River Watershed Association, U.S. Brewers Association, Haverhill Ecology Club, Hippocrates Health Institute, Erewhon, New England Aquarium, Recycling Revolution Coop, YWCA, Lead Prevention Clinic, Children's Zoo, Environmental Health, Solar Power Corp., New England Forestry Foundation and Forest & Parks Association; Zero Population Growth, Fund for Animals, Endangered Species, Metropolitan Ecology Workshop, Inc., Roxbury-Dorchester Community Beautification Program, Harvard University Environmental Law Society, Save the American Fisheries, Bicycle Revival, Mass. Horticultural Society, Dannon-Yogurt, Fish & Wildlife Service, S.C.A. Services, Inc., National Organization for Non Parents, Brookline Art Center, Graphics Workshop, and Mudflat.

Skating school victim of break

The Charles River Skating School, 125 Wells ave., was broken into last weekend, according to police.

Thomas McGinnis, director of the school, called police Monday. Office supplies, equipment, and an assortment of hockey sticks and pucks were allegedly taken. Entrance was reportedly gained by forcing a glass door to the school office.

Another break allegedly took place at 100 Suffolk rd., Chestnut Hill. David Rothausen called police Monday, and a tape recorder, a spearker and $2.00 in cash were reported missing. Entrance may have been gained by a forced rear window.

Two shift levers valued at $70.00 were reported taken from 277 Lexington st., Auburndale in a third break called into police on Monday. Entrance was reportedly gained by breaking a glass pane on a garage door.

On Saturday night there was reportedly malicious damage at the Newton Catholic School, 575 Washington st. A wooden panel in a door was reportedly kicked in, and five leaded glass windows were broken.

On Friday night, according to police, six windows were broken at the Emerson School.

Sgt. Charles Feeley of the Newton Police Department said that the crowd watching the Boston Marathon was the biggest he had ever seen.

"It was the most efficient gathering of a crowd I've ever seen," Feeley commented.

Bikathon to raise money for research

A Bikathon scheduled for the Newton, Waltham, Watertown and Belmont areas on Sunday, June 2, will be raising money for research into the causes and cures of diabetes.

The New England Diabetes Association is sponsoring the event with Don Nelson of the Boston Celtics and Senator William L. Saltonstall as honorary co-chairmen.

Three out of every one hundred people reportedly suffer from diabetes, yet no cure has as yet been discovered. Bikathon riders will be sponsored by friends and neighbors who agree to pay any amount from $.25 to $10 a mile - all proceeds directed by the New England Diabetes Association into research projects. Prizes will be offered to the riders raising the largest amount of money, but the real prize for the hundreds of persons expected to participate will be the satisfaction of having contributed to the solution of another of mankind's disease puzzles.

Registration and sponsor forms are available at McDonald's restaurants in the area or by writing or calling the New England Diabetes Association, 1233 Beacon Street, Brookline, Ma. 02146 or calling 731-2992.

Mrs. Dutton Van Alstine of Auburndale is chairperson for the city of Newton. She would welcome calls from any Newton groups, boy scout or girl scout troops, church groups, senior citizen groups, etc. who would like to register. She would also welcome chairpersons for any of the Newton "villages."

PTA Council meets on metropolitanization

A panel discussion on metropolitan education will be the main program at the annual spring conference of the Newton Council of Parent-Teacher Associations May 2 at Newton North High School.

Preceding the discussion will be a spaghetti supper in the cafeteria, prepared by teachers, students, parents, and members of the Nonantum Christmas Party Association. The supper will be at 6:15 p.m.

Participants in the panel, which begins at 7:30, will be Louis Amadeo of the Greater Boston Regional Education Center; Medill Bair of the Education Collaborative for Greater Boston (Edco); Forbes Bottomley, director of the Metropolitan Planning Project; Aaron Fink, superintendent of the Newton public schools; Kathy Jones, METCO coordinator; and Kathleen Sullivan, Boston School Committee member

The discussion will be moderated by John Livingston, a teacher at Newton North High School.

For reservations for the supper call Mrs. Clark Sawin, 95 Lincoln St., Newton Highlands, 969-9270. The cost is $1.50 each.

The spring conference is under the chairmanship of Louise Whittlesey.

Concert Dance Co. appears in Lexington

Newton dancers Barbara Goldfinger and Deborah Wolf will appear in a children's program of dance, performed by the Concert Dance Company at the Lexington High School, on Waltham Street in Lexington, Sunday, April 21, at 2 p.m.

The program will feature "Aesop's Fables" as well as an introduction to modern dance and explanation of what dance is. It is presented by the Battle Breen Chapter of Women's American ORT.

The Company has often appeared in the Newton schools as part of the Newton Creative Arts program.

Ms. Goldfinger has been with the Concert Dance Company for five years and also teaches adult modern classes at the Newton Community Center. She has been a member of the Dance Circle and is currently co-chairwoman of the Company's "portable programs."

Ms. Wolf graduated from New York State University at Brockport, where she also taught modern dance technique. She has performed with the New York Chamber Dance Ensemble, directed by Richard Bull, and she has participated in the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival.

The "Fables," enacted in mime and dance, will include "The Wind, the Moon, and the Stars," "The Fox with No Tail," "The Tortoise and the Hare," and several other favorites, choreographed by Ron Cunningham.

Cunningham currently dances with the Boston Ballet and choreographed their new "Raggedy Ann 'n' Andy."

When asked about dance for children, Cunningham said: "I love children, but I don't treat them like children. I treat them like people. I do what I find entertaining for me and it is entertaining for the child. The work can be understood on many levels by children and adults."

The Concert Dance Company is a critically-acclaimed repertory modern dance ensemble in residence at the Walnut Hill School of Performing Arts. A member of the metropolitan Cultural Alliance, it has performed on compuses across New England and for schools and organizations throughout the Metropolitan Boston area.

The program is sponsored by Women's American ORT. Group rates are available. For information call Roberta Weiner at 862-6127 or Vivian Channen at 862-2989.

Scouts to clean up Cold Springs April 20

On Saturday, April 20, boy scouts and girl scouts will gather at Cold Springs Recreation Area in Newton Highlands for a clean-up to protect and care for one of Newton's fine natural areas which includes woods and an area for cookouts with benches.

The organizers will welcome volunteers as long as children come with a friend and bring a note from home.

Bob Alkon, vice president of Newton Jaycees, Jan Holly, secretary of Newton-South Girl Scouts and in charge of the first aid station will be at the playground from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Three hundred plastic bags donated by the Jaycees will be passed out to volunteers. Refreshments will be served to thirsty workers during a break at 11:30 a.m. by Jane Lawson and George Lawson. After more cleaning up, some troops will use a lunch break for a picnic, with games.

Around 2 p.m., Bob Alkon will pick up assembled litter in his truck, loaned by the U.S. Army. There will be a closing ceremony with a friendship circle; badge requirements earned will be signed.

Other organizers include: Elgie Levin, Newton-South girl scout cadette leader, Betty Laning, brownie girl scout consultant in Newton-South, and Beth Hutton, Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council field director for Newton.

Smith elected chairman

The Ward Five Republican Committee elected Robert O. Smith of Chester street, Newton Highlands as its new chairman, it was announced recently by Julius L. Masow, Newton GOP Chairman.

Stocklan is also the committee's representative on the city committee's nominating committee and is designated its chairman protem.

The full city committee is schedule to meet May 1 for election of its officers to serve the next two years.

Porcupine Problem

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Porcupines aren't stupid, despite their reputation, according to Utah wildlife biologists.

The prickly animal's problem is poor eyesight. It can't distinguish stationary objects, even at a short distance, which is why people think it isn't too bright.

Branding Studied

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Nevada highway patrolmen will attend classes on brand inspection in an effort to catch cattle rustlers.

Patrol Chief James Lambert said his men will study administration of brand laws and will learn about techniques modern rustlers use. Ranchers say thieves commonly shoot a cow, drag it into a van and butcher it while the van travels to the nearest possible market. Patrolmen routinely will record pertinent information on vehicles and drivers involved in livestock shipments.

Gas Co. representative speaks to Woman's Club

The annual meeting of the Woman's Club of Newton Highlands will be held on Wednesday, April 24, in the Workshop on Columbus St.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m. by chairmen of the monthly meetings which include Charlotte Wilbert, Mildred Martin, Lillian Sicchio, Catherine Abele, Ruth S. Langley, Edith Deming, Gertrude Locke, Hope Vernon, Marjorie burrill, Edna Hockridge, Elezabeth Smith, Elizabeth Churchill, Lorraine Lytle, Constance Moulton, Edna White and agnes Eagen.

The business meeting which follows the luncheon will be presided over by Sue Jenkins, president, assisted by Elsa Badger, recording secretary and Mrs. Martin, treasurer.

Members and guests of the club will find out how to put more flavor in meals by a representative of the Boston Gas Company in a program titled "From Garden to Kitchen."

Scholarships

Students get Waban scholarships

At a recent meeting of the Waban Woman's Club, Mrs. H. Edward Schluntz, Scholarship Committee chairman, presented the club's 1974 scholarships.

These awards are presented annually to graduates of the Newton Public Schools who, along with other criteria, "are chosen by reason of superior character and high scholastic standing."

Recipients this year were Elizabeth Griesse, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Robert L. Griesse, 19 Fairlee Terr., Waban, and Andrew Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Moore, 2054 Beacon St., Waban, both seniors at Newton South High School.

Rev. Griesse is pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Newtons.

Miss Griesse, an honor roll student, works part-time at the Waban Library and also as a store clerk. She is uncertain yet where she will pursue her interests in art history and mathematics next year. A sister, Ann, received the Waban Scholarship two years ago and is completing her second year at Colgate.

Moore, while working 40 hours a week at Newton-Wellesley Hospital, has maintained his rank as an excellent student and an equally excellent athlete, having captained the soccer team at South.

He hopes to continue his studies in mathematics and education at Boston College.

Mrs. J. Marshall Leydon, Newtonville, became the new president of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Aid Association following the election at the Aid's annual meeting, April 9. She succeeds Mrs. Charles A. Higgins, Jr., Weston.

Mrs. John M. Case, Wellesley, was named first vice president and Mrs. Hugh M. Tomb, Newton, second vice president. Other officers elected were Mrs. Phillip J. Baird, Jr., Newton Highlands, recording secretary; Mrs. William E. Biddle, Jr., Auburndale, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edward V. Hickey, Jr., West Newton, treasurer; and Mrs. Jack S. Parker, Wellesley Hills, assistant treasurer

Speakers at the meeting were a father-son duo, Dr. Lewis S. Pilcher, Newton-Wellesley surgeon and his son, Dr. David B. Pilcher, associate professor of surgery at the University of Vermont Medical School. Addressing themselves to emergency medical care, the senior Dr. Pilcher took his audience all the way back to his medical great grandfather who was a circuit rider in Ohio and West Virginia. He had with him the saddle bags used by this ancestor, the first of a five generation line of Dr. Pilchers.

At that time Dr. Pilcher said medical men had one piece of equipment, a Bible, and about all they could do for their patients was pray. Dr. Pilcher's grandfather and father were both surgeons and he showed some remarkable slides of what emergency care was like in their day when ambulances were horse drawn vehicles, the doctor arrived at the hospital via horse and buggy, and emergency units and operating rooms were the sparest of facilities.

Dr. David Pilcher, picking up the thread of evolving emergency care, described programs today to train paramedical personnel to deal effectively with emergency care at the scene of an accident as well as to continuously train and retrain medical students, doctors and emergency nursing personnel in techniques which will save lives and reduce disabilities.

Too many lay people, Dr. Pilcher said, assume that the best criteria for emergency care is how fast the ambulance gets there and how fast it gets the accident victim to the hospital. Unfortunately, when speed is the sole goal, death and injury may unnecessarily result.

Dr. Pilcher, who is the American College of Surgeons New England chairman for emergency medical care, has been one of the prime movers in organizing emergency care in Vermont so that the entire state is covered by emergency care teams carefully trained, a full 800 of them as emergency medical technicians, and each having the backup of a hospital facility.

Another highlight of the annual meeting was the presentation of a check in the amount of $10,00 to the hospital's Administrative Vice President William S. Brines to be used in support of the hospital's School of Nursing. This is the third major gift of the Aid to the hospital this year. Upwards of $8,000, the proceeds of the Aid's annual Party Day, was given to purchase dialysis equipment for the hospital's new Special Care Unit and a gift of $15,000 was made towards the hospital's annual development fund goal.

Re-elected and newly elected Aid directors as voted by the meeting are: from Auburndale — Mrs. Winslow H. Adams, Mrs. Richard L. Kenney, Mrs. R. Emerson Sylvester, and Mrs. N. L. Fullington. From Newton Centre — Mrs. Elvyn K. Mentzer and Mrs. Thomas Peterson. From New Highlands — Mrs. Martin P. Luthy and Mrs. Charles A. Thompson, Jr. From Newtonville — Mrs. Philip C. Jacobs, Jr., Mrs. Harold S. Rice, and Mrs. David Railsback and Mrs. Harris Reynolds. From Waban — Mrs. Charles J. Macdonald, Mrs. Katherine L. Tucker, and Mrs. George J. Gibson. From Wellesley — Mrs. Richard Young and Mrs. Delbert L. Jackson, Jr. From Willesley Hills — Mrs. Thomas E. Franks, Mrs. William G. Bailey, Mrs. William Elfers, Mrs. James A. Morton, Mrs. Andrew G. Rosenberger, Mrs. John B. Ells, Jr., Mrs. Paul G. Douglas, and Mrs. William P. Baker. From West Newton — Mrs. Champe A. Fisher, Mrs. Thomas Sears Hayden and Mrs. Norman E. MacNeil. From Weston — Mrs. Charles A. Higgins, Jr., Mrs. Carl L. Recco, and Mrs. Donald B. CONANT. From Newton Lower Falls — Mrs. David L. Currier and Mrs. Nunzio Piselli.

Others re-elected were: Mrs. Robert H. Smith, Boston; Mrs. William G. Johnson, Newton Upper Falls; Mrs. Monte Basbas, Sudbury; and Mrs. Gardner C. Brooks, Natick. Mrs. Henry Brown of Wayland was newly elected. Supporting directors are: Mrs. Robert C. Casselman, Wellesley; Mrs. Henry T. Patch, Newton Centre; Mrs. Nelson Cutis, Waban; and Mrs. Alexander Duff, Wellesley.

True or false? The Geneva Movement is something Trotsky founded at age 19.

You guessed it. False.
The Geneva Movement is one of the more than two dozen devices at the Museum of Science that demonstrate principles of mechanics. These devices are fascinating. You can operate them yourself. And they show just about every movement, but political.
The Museum is a wonderland of science. From astrology in the Planetarium, to zoology. Demonstrations. Do-it-yourself exhibits. How your body works. How we explore outer space.
A gigantic wave tank. Live animals. A full-size, two story high Tyrannosaurus Rex (fortunately not live).
These are probably less than 1% of what the Museum of Science holds for you. But one of the Museum's best features is that it's right here in Boston. On an MBTA line.
So that while you, your family and friends are seeing something truly interesting, you don't have to burn a drop of gas doing it.
Because the energy shortage is still with us, the Prudential Insurance Company thinks there are better things to do this weekend than burning a tankful of gasoline. Seeing the Museum of Science is one of them.

Big Tomato Crop

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California farmers produced 4.8 million tons of processing tomatoes in 1973, just under the record tonnage of 4.9 million set in 1968. The 1973 crop was valued at $199 million, compared to the 1968 record of $203 million.

California produces 80 per cent of the tomatoes for processing in the nation. Processing tomatoes are those used for juice, canned paste, puree and sauces.

Ten teachers attend workshop on spelling

Ten teachers from Newton public schools recently attended a workshop on developments in teaching spellings.

The workshop was held at Hyde School and conducted by Judy Mancusi, reading specialist at the EdCo Reading and Learning Center.

Miss Mancusi cited research at Stanford University indicating, she said, that "contrary to what many people think, only 3 per cent of our words are not phonetically regular in their spelling. A lot of people dismiss teaching spelling as impossible because the language is irregular. This research indicates that just isn't true."

She said the research was done by programming a computer with a set of spelling principles, and then instructing it to spell more than 17,000 words. Using the rules it had been given, the computer misspelled only 3 per cent of the words.

"This indicates that children ought to be taught principles of spelling rather than just memorizing lists each week," she said.

Participants in the workshop also heard Claire Cohen, reading specialist at Beethoven School, explain a series of diagnostic tests for spelling which she developed over the past year-and-a-half.

Mrs. Cohen said the tests are designed to be an ongoing instrument to determine whether a child is mastering spelling techniques. The tests, which will also include suggestions for teaching spelling, are under consideration by a publisher. They have been used successfully in Newton, said Mrs. Cohen, and Brookline has asked permission to use them next fall.

"It sounds to me like an excellent diagnostic tool," said Miss Mancusi of the series.

Obituaries

Dr. Edward S. Stone

Dr. Edward S. Stone, 66, of 345 Dudley Rd., Newton Centre, died Saturday, April 13, in the Beth Israel Hospital.

Dr. Stone, a native of Boston, began his medical practice as a pediatrician, but later became interested in the field of opthamology, in which he specialiED FOR 3⅝ YEARS, AND DURING WHICH TIME HE WAS ASSOCIATED WITH THE Beth Israel Hospital.

During World War II, Dr. Stone was a commander in the Navy Medical Corps. In 1944, he was designated a Flight Surgeon for the Navy, and in 1946, when he returned to civilian life, he was appointed a flight for the Federal Aviation Administration.

Dr. Stone graduated from Tufts University in 1931, and from Boston University Medical School in 1934. He interned at the Providence R. I. Contagious Hospital, served his residency at Boston City Hospital, and later trained at the Brooklyn Eye and Ear Hospital. He taught at the Boston Dispensary for many Years, and was a past president of Phi Delta Epsilon Medical fraternity.

He belonged to Temple Israel of Boston, the Charles River Medical Society, the Massachusetts Medical Society, the American Medical Association, and the Massachusetts Opthamological Society. He was also a member of B'nai B'rith.

Dr. Stone is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ida Stone; two daughters, Mrs. Susan Cohen of Lexington, and Mrs. Maxine Losee of Kirkwood, Mo.; five granddaughters; and a sister, Mrs. Lillian Schogal of Longmeadow.

Dr. Stone's first wife, Grace Adelman Stone, the well-known artist, died several years ago.

Services for Dr. Stone were at the Levine Chapel, 470 Harvard St., Brookline, Sunday, April 14. Interment is in Sharon Memorial Park, Sharon.

Thomas Connolly

A funeral mass was held in Our Lady's Church Tuesday (April 16) for Thomas F. Connolly.

Mr. Connolly, 66, of 37 Clinton St., Newton, died Friday (April 12) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a short illness.

He was the husband of the late Anna C. Connolly and a lifelong resident of Newton. Mr. Connolly worked for the Street Department here.

Mr. Connolly is survived by his son, Thomas W. Connolly of Brighton; two daughters, Florence Connolly and Mrs. Ann Concannon, both of Newton; and three grandchildren.

Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Katherine Marusa

A funeral mass was said in Mary Immaculate of Lourdes Church Monday (April 15) for Mrs. Katherine M. (Murek) Marusa.

Mrs. Marusa, 87, of 31 Williams St., Newton Upper Falls, died Thursday (April 11) at home after a short illness.

A native of Poland, Mrs. Marusa came to this country as a young girl and lived in Newton for 70 years.

Widow of Anthony Marusa, Mrs. Marusa is survived by three sons, Alex of Cochituate, Anthony of Newton Upper Falls, Walter of Colchester, Vt.; five daughters, Stella, Mary and Stephanie, all of Newton Upper Falls, Mrs. Genevieve Solari of Somerville and Mrs. Josephine Gormley of Hopkinton; 16 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren.

Burial is in St. Mary's Cemetery in Needham.

Samuel Kapreilian Sr.

The funeral of Samuel Kapreilian Sr. was to be held today (April 18) at the St. James Armenian Church, 465 Mt. Auburn St., Watertwon, at 11 a.m.

Mr. Kapreilian, a long-time resident of Newton, is survived by his wife, Victoria A. Kapreilian; a son, Samuel Kapreilian Jr.; two sisters in Halib, Syria; and two grandsons.

He was the proprietor for 45 years of the Sam Kapreilian Master Shoe Rebuilders on Watertown St., Newton, and a member of the Newton Lodge of Elks.

Organizers

Smoking requires more air conditioning

Air-conditioning gobbles up energy. And smokers can make air-conditioning requirements skyrocket, says Dr. Marjorie A. C. Young, President of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

Research by an air-conditioning concern in Florida has shown that when someone lights a cigarette, cigar or pipe, the person's air-conditioning demands can jump as much as 600 percent.

According to CRS Industries in Tampa, in a nonsmoking situation, air-conditioning engineers usually provide the individual with five to ten cubic feet per minute of outside air. Each active smoker, however, requires six times this amount. The energy requirements for providing fresh air for 100 smokers can equal the requirements for 600 non-smokers.

Smoke fills the air with millions of semi-liquid particles plus a variety of gases and vapors. Contamination and odors are immediately created by such elements in tobacco smoke as ammonia and pyridine. Pyridine is a strong irritant that is produced when nicotine burns. The presence of a minute amount in one million cubic feet of air is enough to produce unpleasant odors.

Another finding that affects air-conditioning and increases demand is that the human body attracts tobacco smoke. Tobacco smoke creates a high electrical potential, whereas the human body has a low potential. The smoke in a room gravitates and clings to people in much the same way as iron filings are drawn to a magnet.

Some people do fine without the Payroll Savings Plan.

It depends on your dreams. If all they need to come true is a dime here and a quarter there, you'll do fine with a sturdy piggy bank.

But if you've got some bigger plans, like a vacation, college tuition for the kids or a new car, you need something more.

You need a savings program that delivers steady growth and healthy interest.

You need the Payroll Savings Plan. Just sign up for it at work. Then an amount you specify is automatically set aside from your paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

You can use your take-home pay for daily expenses. And at the same time you'll be building funds for the future.

U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. For people with big dreams.

Take stock in America.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds

Now E Bonds pay 5½% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Chances are, we have the exact model you want. Equipped the way you want it. If not, we'll order it. And we won't take forever to get it.

One thing you won't have to order, though, is good gas mileage. That's already built into every Volkswagen we sell. That's also why we have to keep so well stocked.

As the supply of gas gets smaller and smaller, the demand for our Volkswagen gets bigger and bigger.

Television notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — England's Young Vic acting company, innovative offshoot of the Old Vic, and the Post-Newsweek Stations have made a pact for eight television specials for young people to be made over the next two years. The four Post-Newsweek stations will broadcast them in prime time and syndicate them to other stations throughout the country. The first production will be an antic version of Moliere's "Scapino," to be seen in the 1974-75 season.

NBC has renewed the "McMillan & Wife" series, starring Rock Hudson and Susan Saint James, for next season, its fourth.

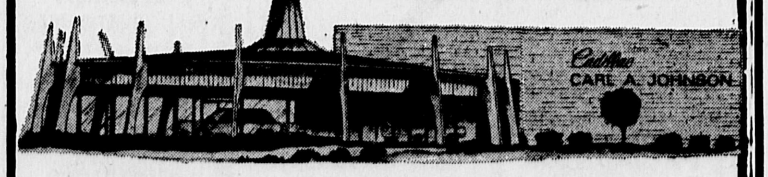

For its coverage of college football games next fall, ABC will institute a policy of having the expert commenting done by a number of major coaches around the country. Keith Jackson will be the play-byplay man for the nationally telecast games and for the major game on Saturdays when several regional contests are broadcast.

Broadway and London theater producer Alexander H. Cohen, who produces the annual telecasts of Broadway's Tony Awards, has signed with ABC to produce a drama special for the "ABC Theater" series next season.

NBC and the British Broadcasting Corporation will collaborate on a two-hour special, "The Inventing of America," as part of the Bicentennial programming NBC will be airing from July 4, 1975 to July 4, 1976. The program will show how inventions have played a part in development of this country.

The hours of the show are 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Thursday and Friday and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday.

Caryl Rivers to speak at library

Newton Free Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian will welcome library patrons and guests at an informal gathering to hear Ms. Caryl Rivers, author of "Aphrodite at Mid-Century: Growing up Catholic & Female in Postwar America," on Tuesday evening, April 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Main Library during the NFL's celebration of National Library Week.

Ms. Rivers, a Boston University faculty member in the School of Public Communications, grew up in Washington, D.C., attended Trinity College and acquired a master's degree in Journalism from Columbia University in 1960.

Her book, "Growing up Catholic & Female in Postwar America" was generated by an article she wrote for the New York Times Sunday Magazine about her Catholic childhood, an experience she long wanted to explore.

Ms. Rivers, a free lance writer currently working on a book of short stories and several magazine articles, is a frequent guest commentator for WGBH-TV Channel 2.

Her articles have appeared in the "Saturday Review," "Ms.," "World," "Glamour," "McCall's," and "The Nation," and she writes on such varied topics as the women's movement, the problems of the returning Vietnam veterans, and issues on the ways the media acquire and disseminate the news.

She and her husband, Alan Lupo, writer, news editor, and moderator of "The Reporters," live in Winthrop, Mass., with their two children, Steven, seven, and Alyssa, four.

The public is invited to attend the NFL's National Library Week reception on April 23 at 7:30 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

Maimonides Drama Club to stage Kesselring play

The Maimonides School Drama Club will present Joseph Kesselring's "Arsenic and Old Lace" Sunday, April 21, and Monday, April 22, at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Tickets will be available at the door.

The play is under the direction of Joanne Fray. The cast includes: Yoel Anouchi as Mr. Gibbs; Seth Aronson as Rev. Harper, Sam Bloomfield as Teddy Brewster, David Cohen as Mortimer Brewester, Lisa Cohen as Abbey Brewster, and Avi Gopin as Mr. Witherspoon.

The remaining cast members are: Mark Margolis, officer Brophy; Etta-Jo Murachver, Martha Brewester; Jeremy Peyser, Officer Klein; Elisheva Rothstein, Elaine Harper; Carl Sherer, Officer O'Hara; Eli Sherer, Dr. Einstein; Josh Teplow, Lt. Rooney; Ian Tick, Johnathan Brewster.

Bracha Halpfinger and Davida Tuchman are the prompters.

Mahler concert by NSO May 5

On Sunday evening May 5 at Newton North High School and May 12 at the National Theatre (Boston Center for the Arts), Michel Sasson will conduct the Newton Symphony Orchestra and the Masterworks Chorale in a New England premiere of Gustav Mahler's Das Klagende Lied.

Soloists for this performance include baritone David Arnold, also Phyllis Elhady, tenor Carl Olsen and soprano Deborah Ann O'Brien.

Telephone 244-8506 or 244-7560 for information and reservations.

Glee Club spring concert

The Highland Glee Club of Newton, under its conductor Robert C. Prince, will give its spring concert on Tuesday, April 23, at 8:15 p.m. in the Aquinas Junior College, Newtonville.

As in previous years, a scholarship award will be made to a deserving senior in the field of music.

The guest performers for the evening will be the Boston Center Chapter of the National Country Dance Society (instruments and dance) under its conductor Helene Cornelius.

Tickets will be available at the door and ample parking space provided.

Informality Pays Off for Restaurant

When a column calls a wrong shot, the scribe responsible is usually content to let the matter drop, and hope his readers will do the same. But when a column picks a winner, and calls the turn in advance of the happening, it's only human nature for the writer to claim an "I told you so." And in the case of TALLINO'S RESTAURANT in Chestnut Hill, the latter category pertains.

Now, three short months since changing policy, decor and menu, the famed eating spot has really taken off, and is already well accepted by the traveling and local gentry alike. Owner PAUL TALLINO, long believing in informality and comfort, has modified the dress code of the establishment to allow the popular "casual" look, and it's more than paid off in attendance. A new menu has been installed, and the price structure is such that patrons expecting to pay much more for their sustenance are amazed at the "realistic" tabs for the offerings. And beverages, whether served at the bar, in the lounge or in the main dining area, are also in the "bargain" class. The pushcart affixed to the center of the room still serves not only as a "do it yourself" antipasto bar, but more so as a "tourist attraction," and the lines around it, whether at luncheon or dinner, are a show unto themselves. But no restaurant can survive without quality servings, and here the spot excels. For not only is PAUL TALLINO a regular fixture in the kitchen, but he's everywhere evident on the floor, as a sort of goodwill ambassador to his guests. And MAITRE D' GEORGE DeBOOY, is as vital to the spot, as are the specialties served there daily.

All in all, TALLINO'S has not only justified our every prediction for its future, it's passed them and is 'way ahead of schedule. If good food, good drink and wonderful atmosphere are your cup of tea, then "drink to the fullest" at TALLINO'S in Chestnut Hill. Your first visit is long overdue.

Going Places

By SAM BERENSON

The only trouble that Paul Tallino may have is taking care of all the customers. His lavishly, but tastefully redecorated and refurnished Tallino's Restaurant, Rte. 9 in Chestnut Hill, should be catering to turn-away patrons. The menu is as new as the premises. With every entree, a hot loaf of Italian bread, a tureen of minestrone, pasta or a fresh vegetable and an antipasto that the diner puts together for himself from the 15 items on the original, 60-year-old pushcart that Paul's grandfather used when he went into business. Aside from that, Paul is tall, handsome and thoroughly affable. Opening night guests included Jim Plunkett, Randy Vataha and Atty. Bob Woolf.

City names new recreation head

Russell J. Halloran has been named new director of the Newton Recreation Department.

Mayor Theodore Mann made the announcement Wednesday.

Recreation Director John B. Penney will remain in the department administration in another capacity not yet fully worked out.

Halloran, 35, lives in Concord, where he was director of recreation from 1960 to 1962 while obtaining his B.S. degree in education from Boston University.

Halloran was superintendent of recreation for the town of Wellesley from 1963 to 1968, where he was responsible for supervision, direction, planning, and management of the department.

He is currently completing six years as business manager of the Rivers Country Day School in Weston, where he has been in charge of budget supervision, purchasing, maintenance of buildings and grounds, new construction, community relations, publicity, and general business administration.

In addition, Halloran is director of physical education for the seventh through twelfth grades and is head varsity baseball coach and assistant coach of basketball and football.

Halloran is a graduate of Newton High School and Boston University and expects to receive a Master of Education degree from Boston University next month.

James Salter, chief administrative officer of the city, Wednesday explained that the reorganization of the Recreation Department has been in process for some time, and that the retirement of several supervisory personnel at this time allowed the realignment of duties and budgeted salaries.

Penney, 49, has been recreation director here for the past 11 years.

Salter expressed his pleasure that the city would not lose Penney's services. The combination of Halloran and Penney will "build on the foundation" that Penney laid down over the past years," Salter said.

With the advent of a new recreation director and the selection recently of Dr. Burton Levine as the new chairman of the Recreation Commission, there may be a new direction taken in recreation.

A few months ago a young woman, Lynne Arthur, was appointed to the eight-member commission. She has already made her presence felt.

Robbins loses gun and license

By CYNTHIA BLACK
Of the Graphic Staff

The right to own a gun has been taken away from Samuel M. Robbins of 30 Prince St., West Newton.

Robbins, 51, charged with threatening, a charge his lawyer described as "quasi-criminal," appeared in court Monday. His case was continued without a finding for three months and his gun, confiscated after the March 14 incident, is to be dismanteled by state police.

District Attorney Richard Steinberg also said Monday Robbins would not be able to get another gun permit. His has expired since the March 14 incident.

Robbins, an investment counselor, was charged with threatening members of the Newton forestry crew with a gun March 14 as the crew attempted to cut down a sugar maple tree on city land in front of 239 Chestnut St., West Newton.

Arthur S. Obermayer, of that address, was charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (a truck) and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle in the same tree incident. His case goes to the Middlesex County Grand Jury May 6.

Members of the forestry crew, who have already appeared and testified at Obermayer's probable cause hearing in Newton District Court, again were witnesses Monday.

They described Robbins' appearance on the scene and said he had threatened them with the gun.

Judge Elbert Tuttle of Framingham, sitting in Newton court Monday, admonished Robbins for being "irrational" when he continued the case without a finding.

"You appear to be a rational person except when it comes to this tree," he told Robbins.

The judge advised the defendant not to "go around with these self-help programs with a gun in your belt."

"I believe you threatened these people," he said referring to the forestry crew. "Whether they were right or wrong is immaterial. I want no more of this."

Tuttle suggested Robbins apologize to the forestry crew.

The controversial tree was scheduled for removal after it was determined by three city ordered reports that it was partially dead and presented a hazard.

A crew was sent t cut it down Feb. 22 and was stopped. On March 14, a crew returned to cut down the tree, and Obermayer, trying to stop them again, jumped into the skyworker truck being used and put it in reverse, allegedly injuring the man who was up in the tree.

Shortly, Robbins appeared on the scene with his gun.

Described in testimony Monday, Robbins told the crew not to touch the tree and that he did not wish to hurt anyone.

Forestry crew member Gene Machain, the man assigned to do cutting up in the tree, testified that Robbins "confronted me with a weapon."

"He (Robbins) said if I have to use this, I'll use it," Machain testified.

"I told him to shoot if he was going to shoot," Machain told the court. He then

Bigelow meeting topic

Newton School Committee members and parents questioned Bigelow Junior High School personnel about their school at a School Committee meeting this week.

School Committeeman Herbert Regal asked about "articulation," the process of maintaining continuity between the curriculum of two different schools.

Henry Barry, a mathematics teacher, said that eight ninth grade teachers work with students individually to help them plan their high school programs.

Ms. Virginia Joyce, a reading teacher, talked about articulation between the elementary schools and Bigelow. She reported that a meeting has been held with elementary school personnel to talk about students with special reading needs.

Ms. Joyce commented that there are now more students with reading problems than in past years.

Nelson Nugent, an English teacher, noted this change also. "All of us in the ninth grade have noticed that kids read less well and with less enthusiasm than they used to," Nugent said.

Ms. Joyce pointed out that reading scores are lower throughout the United States. She suggested that students may be expressing themselves in drama and art. She added that articulation with the high school is going to be more formal in the future.

School Committee Chairman Emeritus Manuel Beckwith asked about how Bigelow personnel respond to parents seeking an "unstructured program."

Bigelow Principal Robert Frost had said in his opening statement that "we are told by various individuals at the Division of Program that we are the most structured junior high school in the city."

Frost responded to Beckwith by suggesting that "structured" may mean "that kids are supposed to be somewhere during the day." He noted that there can be flexibility at Bigelow "and special projects can be worked out."

A member of the audience said that "flexibility in class is limited only by imagination." She added that "structure" is "a word which isn't as emotionally charged in this community as in other parts of the city."

Frost was questioned about the absence of a full-time librarian at Bigelow. Frost said that Bigelow now has a full-time professional media person, and that he hopes to get a .65 librarian next year.

A parent asked if there are going to be cuts in the reading program. Assistant Superintendent for Personnel James Laurits said that "there will be an increase next year in the number of people working with the perceptually handicapped.

Frost was also asked about the future of a typing program at Bigelow. He said that a typing program is not going to exist next year. "Other needs, in my estimation, come first," Frost commented.

A Ward School parent said that "I understand children coming to this school find a lack of science equipment."

Norm Whitney, a science teacher, said that "we do have some shortages; I wouldn't say serious shortages."

A parent asked if there is a problem with narcotics at Bigelow. Frost said that there is, but that he did not know how much of one. He noted that the school has found a few individuals during the past three or four years involved with drugs. He added, however, that "these are the ones we've found."

Frost read a lengthy statement about Bigelow prior to the question peri0d.

"We have 600 pupils now and we are due to increase to about 631 in 1976 — about 105 per cent of capacity," Frost said. "If this happens, we will be the only junior high school (secondary school) in the city over capacity.

Tree must have bond by Monday

Unless Arthur Obermayer's lawyers by Monday afternoon produce a $100,000 bond indemnifying the city of Newton against all liability, the "Obermayer tree" is doomed.

The city has sought to remove the tree because of damage and disease and an opinion that it is a hazarrd to public safety. Obermayer, of 239 Chestnut St., WEST Newton, has tried to prevent the cutting down of the city tree outside his house.

City Solicitor Howard Levine argued Tuesday in Middlesex Superior Court against a previous court order accepting a $100,000 insurance policy in lieu of the bond originally ordered by the judge.

Judge Robert Hallisey vacated his previous order accepting the insurance

Boost in recycling proposed

A plan to institute collection of waste glass as well as newspapers for recycling, due to be discussed at the amay 9 meeting of the aldermanic Public Works Committee, is sure to run into a tangle of legal and operational problems.

Conceived by Ald. David Cohen and worked out by a citizen subcommittee appointed by the chairman of the apublic Works Committee, the proposed ordinance calls for twice-monthly street collection of glass and newspapers. The glass is to be separated for collection so that at one of the semimonthly pickups green glass would be collected and at the other, clear glass.

Newspaper collections would alternate with the glass pickups.

The glass would have to be put out in its own clearly marked container.

Another feature of the proposal requires a $5,000 appropriation for advertising the program "on a regular basis and to inform citizens of their collection days."

Many environmentalists feel that the limited and recently diminishing success of the newspaper recycling program is due to the lack of adequate promotion of the program and the widespread ignorance of collection days.

The proposed ordinance also specifies that the mayor shall appoint an advisory committee on recycling, whose functions would be to oversee advertising and publicity, find ways to increase citizen participation in the recycling program, and help determine markets and collection techniques for the material to be collected.

Lasell gets okay on dormitories

The Zoning Board of Appeals voted this week to grant a petition presented by Lasell Junior College.

The petition, according to attorney Robert Freeto, asked for a modification of a variance granted in 1967. That variance allowed two Lasell dormitories to exist approximately 12.4 feet apart rather than the 50 feet distance required by city ordinance.

The 1967 variance was due to expire on May 25, 1977. The Zoning Board had recommended seven years ago that Gardner Hall, one of the dormitories in question, be either razed or moved after the building of new dormitory space.

Lasell's petition reportedly asked that the expiration date of the 1967 variance be removed, so that Gardner Hall may exist indefinitely.

Victor Taglienti of the Building Department, who said Wednesday morning that the petition was granted, added that he did not know how the Zoning Board's decision is going to be written up by the Law Department.

Lasell had requested that the variance be modified so it might refurbish Gardner Hall in the near future, and not find in 1977 that its investment was wasted.

Freeto, representing Lasell, said that "Gardner Hall represents a fine example of Victorian architecture. It is in keeping with the general character of the neighborhood."

He noted that to preserve the building, it needs a new roof, painting and interior work.

Freeto explained that in 1967, the long range plans of Lasell included the razing of Gardner Hall and the building of additional dormitories.

He said that 240 beds had been contemplated for new dormitories in Rockwell Woods, but that only 130 beds were added.

The acting chairman of the Zoning Board noted that the hardship found in 1967 was that Lasell needed extra beds.

Freeto, who pointed out that 150 beds were lost by the razing of Bragdon Hall in 1973, said that there continues to be a need for dormitory space.

According to Freeto, Gardner Hall holds 38 beds and could hold a maximum of 40.

The possibility that Lasell will place a student union in an annex to Woodland Hall was a peripheral issue in the discussion of Lasell's petition.

City of many authors produces yet another

Rose Moss

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

Newton is a city of many authors.

A Newtonville woman is presently experiencing the publication of her first book.

Rose Moss of 580 Walnut St., has written a novel entitled "Family Reunion," recently published by Charles Scribner's Sons.

It is a strange book. It describes the reunion of three generations of a Jewish family from three different continents. On one level it can be appreciated as a series of very human interactions. In parts it reveals the limitations of its characters as they are unable to perceive the needs and motives of each other.

According to Ms. Moss, an important change takes place in one of the book's characters. At the beginning of the book, Chaim feels immobilized by a fear of death. Not until he accepts that he is going to die and can do nothing about it is he able to move both physically and psychically.

He accepts a reunion with a son he has not seen for years, and begins to appreciate and improve upon his present life rather than dreading the future.

Two other characters sense a helplessness at the end of the book. They are a pair of transplanted South Africans presently living in Cambridge, Mass.

Ms. Moss writes that if there were to be a world-wide upheaval, they would be ready to allow other people to take care of them, as they take care of their young child in the book.

From the first sentance of the book until its end, Ms. Moss mentions a coming apocalypse.

Sprinkled throughout are quotations from the Bible, particularly "Revelations." When adked about this reiteration or theme, Ms. Moss said that she started to write the book in May, 1970, when the United States was reportedly invading Cambodia.

She said that she had sensed a gradual apocalypse. "I feel that oee could get a human disaster out of human weakness," she commented.

The book frequently mentions the limited vision of its characters. An implication is that they, like possible readers, may not be perceiving an apocalypse which is beginnicg around them.

"Given that the world is a place where one id helpless, one can still live in a caring reconciliatory way with courage," Ms. Moss remarked.

Chaim is an example of someone acting with reconciliation and courage in the face of personal apocalypse (his own death).

Ms. Moss called Chaim "an incomplete, limited model." She said that in her next book, to be published next year, she asks the question: Is it enough to be good in one's own circle or should oee be political?

The setting for this book, called "The

Fishman, Backman to speak

State Senators Jack Backman and Irving Fishman will appear together at the Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center on Saturday, May 4 at 8:30 p.m.

The two senators have been representing districts in Brookline and Newton and will be running against each other in the September primary for the democratic nomination to represent a newly created Brookline-Newton district.

Voters will have a chance to judge the candidates and their styles and become better informed on the issues of the campaign. The format will include presentations by each speaker, a dialogue between them and discussion from the floor. Jay Orlin, president of the Center, will moderate the program.

Refreshments will be served. The general public is invited and welcome. For further information people may call 734-0800.

'Light the Way'

This week has been proclaimed "Help Light the Way for Retarded Children Week" in Massachusetts by Ken Hodge of the Boston Bruins, honorary chairman of the Massachusetts Jaycees.

The Massachusetts Jaycees will sponsor a camp in Foxboro for mentally handicapped children this summer.

Newton Chairman Marvin Gans said, "We hope this will be our most successful program.

"Please buy a jar and help a child!"

Rights commission seems destined for oblivion

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

With the present Community Relations Commission backpedaling furiously to avoid being given subpoena power for investigation of discrimination, a new ordinance proposing to convert the commission into a more active Human Rights Commission seems destined for oblivion.

Ald. Terry Morris, who drafted the proposed measure, sees the present Community Relations Commission ordinance as "vague," and believes that "the main function of the Human Rights Commission should be to get at the broad patterns od discrimination in this city."

"This proposal has no specific constituency. Its constituency may be absent, it may be outside the city," Morris said at a meeting of the Legislation and Rules Committee this week, referring to Newton's population statistics showing a black population of 1.2 per cent.

The Community Relations Commission wrote to Morris that in its opinion the function of the commission is to reconcile and educate, not to act as an investigative and enforcement agency.

Morris works for the Massachusetts Commission against Discrimination, a state agency whose powers have in recent years been extended to include enforcement of state antidiscrimination laws.

Morris would like to see the Newton Community Relations Commission be able to investigate complaints of discrimination in housing and employment and present the evidence to the state agency for enforcement.

McDonald's license approved

The Licensing Board voted again last week — this time before a large number of Newtonville residents — to grant a common victualler's license for a McDonald's restaurant at 340 Walnut St., Newtonville.

A previous vote on March 25 was ruled invalid by City Solicitor Howard Levine because of a failure to notify abutters and the general public that a meeting of the Licensing Board was to be held.

Of the three-member Licensing Board, Chairman Frank Maher and former alderman Ernest Angevine voted in favor of the license; Philip Lowe was absent.

Maher explained that there is no basis for denying the license, despite some neighborhood oppositition. The store, which has been vacant for about two years, is in the proper business zone and the parking problems cannot be considered as a reason to deny a license.

Maher referred to a March 20 letter from the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce, which reported a vote to support the McDonald location.

Asked how many of the Chamber of Commerce members the vote represented, Maher said he did not know exactly, but felt that it would represent "a majority" of the members.

Lewis Songer, executive vice-president of the chamber, said this week that the vote was taken by the 27-member board of directors on the basis of an investigation by committee chairmen.

Songer added, "The point here is that it is a legal zone and a legal business. The Chamber of Commerce position is that if traffic becomes a problem, McDonald's will have to do something."

The restaurant is planned to provide 260 seats.

The chamber believes that McDonald's will help the existing businesses in Newtonville Square by making available a fast, reasonable lunch, after which employees of surrounding businesses would shop in stores in Newtonville Square.

Howard Levine, Newton's city solicitor, said Tuesday that under law there is no way to deny the license, but the right of appeal to the state Superior Court exists in respect to Licensing Board decisions as with decisions of other municipal agencies. The time for such appeal is usually within 20 days after the decision of the agency.

Public Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson, whose department will issue any building permit required by McDonald's to make alterations to the building, said he knows of no reason not to issue the permit when it is requested.

Tree planting at City Hall

The Newton Conservators have chosen Arbor Day, Friday, April 26, 1974, at 3 p.m. for the planting of trees in the Newton Arboretum.

Fifteen trees will be planted at the Commonwealth Avenue Mall at City Hall, and Mayor Theodore D. Mann will be presented with a leather-bound book listing the donors of the trees. The public is invited to attend.

Revision of auto center specs sought

Fearing that the state will not approve 65 per cent reimbursement of the proposed automotive center at Newton South High School, the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee last week began thinking about building the project without state money.

A meeting has been called for May 9 between the Public Buildings Committee and members of the School Department and the School Committee to discuss revision of educational specifications for the automotive center.

Voted at last week's meeting was a recommendation to the mayor that he submit an appropriation "sufficient to construct a preengineered 2000 sq. ft." building.

The Public Buildings Committee voted in March to support the new facility only if it were a metal, demountable building that would receive approval of 65 per cent reimbursement from the state.

The cost of such a structure has been estimated by the Public Buildings Department at around $100,000 for a 2,000 sq. ft. facility.

The School Committee has voted to approve a 2,160-ft. facility, which is the minimum they said would be approved by the state School Building Assistance Bureau, and agreed at Monday night's meeting of the School Committee to pursue the SBAB approval of reimbursement.

Reservations about the SBAB approval was voiced in a letter to John Gilleland of the School Department from Stephen Hart, SBAB school plant specialist, who said, "Inasmuch as program produces spaces, it does not seem that it should be decided locally to add one space without an in-depth study of exactly why you need this particular space and why you would not obviously require an upgrading in total program, total spaces and functions, and the updating of sizes of existing spaces."

The existing spaces that might be under scrutiny by the SBAB would be the cafeteria, library, and gymnasium. Standards and requirements for such spaces have changed over the years, and what might have been adequate when NSHS was built may not be now.

Gilleland is now preparing the requisite program analysis for submission to the SBAB. Hart last week said the SBAB generally "takes the school system's word" on the statistics without investigating the school foot by foot.

Eleanor Rosenblum, chairman of the School Committee, said at this week's meeting that the School Committee "would go on in good faith" with its efforts to obtain SBAB approval.

School Committeeman Gerard Byrne called the Public Buildings Committee action last wekk "highly illegal," but Mayor Theodore Mann, ex officio member of the School Committee, disagreed.

The proposed automotive center has a history going back to 1971, when the School Department filed a budget request for a $20,000 755 sq. ft. facility.

At some later time, the facility grew in the minds of the School Department from a shop in which to work on cars and engines to a three-bay facility, a life, a classroom, a small-engine room, an office, and two toilets.

The Newton South auto center is described by the School Committee as intended to provide students with exploratory experiences in various courses. Trade-level and technical specialty programs for advances students would still be given only at Newton North High School

Rufo case delayed until May 17

The case against Local 800 President Louis Rufo, charged with receiving stolen property, has been delayed until May 17.

Rufo, charged in connection with the temporary disappearance of a bus stop shelter, appeared before Judge Monte Basbas last Thursday. His attorney, Peter F. Harrington, filed a number of motions seeking additional information.

Rufo has pleaded innocent to the charge.

Harrington explained that he was seeking information on what the city received the bus shelter, whether or not it is listed as city property, and what the sale cost to Newton was.

Harrington also asked for information concerning meetings held shortly after the Jan. 23 incident with Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Police Chief William Quinn, the city solicitor, the street commissioner and Rufo.

The attorney also said Mann might be called to testify in the case.

Vandals hit Meadowbrook

Meadowbrook Junior High School was still recovering early this week from vandalism discovered during the school vacation.

According to police, janitors reported that Meadowbrook had been vandalized Monday, April 15. Police said that entrance was gained through an unlocked second floor window.

The school library, science rooms and offices were reportedly vandalized. According to police, books were thrown around and furniture was tipped over. In one room there "was not a bare spot of floor," police said. Inside windows were broken also.

Meadowbrook Acting Principal William Jesdale said on Tuesday that the school was in the process of getting library books recatalogued.

A 20-year old Newton Highlands man was arrested twice early this week, police also reported.

William V. Lewis of 101 Upland Ave. was arrested on Sunday and charged with larceny of a motor vehicle and attempted larceny of a motor vehicle. He was arrested also on Monday and charged with attempted larceny of a motor vehicle.

A breaking and entering and larceny of a construction trailer was reported to Newton police on Monday. A trailer belonging to the C.B. Westgate Company was allegedly broken into over the weekend at 2300 Commonwealth Ave., Auburndale.

Entrance was reportedly gained by jimmying a traler door. Tools reported missing included on air compressor valued at $1,000.

Color televisions were reported missing from two Newton homes this week after breaks, police said.

Police were informed of a break at 149 Berkeley St., West Newton on Sunday. A Zenith color TV was reportedly taken. According to police, a hole was cut in a screen and a rear door was forced.

A break at 50 South Gate Park, West Newton was reported on Monday. A color Sony TV was reportedly missing.

Sgt. Charles Feeley said this week that "Commonwealth Avenue will be excessively busy on Sunday." The Newton Teacher's Association will conduct a bikathon for retarded children starting at 9 a.m. at City Hall. There will be three eight-mile routes for bikers.

A jogathon for United Cerebral Palsy will start at the Marriott Hotel at 11 a.m. on Sunday.

Finance Comm. tangles with Gulf over tanks

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

The aldermanic Finance Committee had a heated discussion with a representative of Gulf Oil Company last week about a request that the City buy 12 storage tanks owned by Gulf.

Wilfred Dery, city purchasing agent, had asked the Finance Committee for an appropriation of $7,135 to purchase the tanks and 16 pumps.

In a letter to Mayor Theodore D. Mann and the Board of Aldermen, Dery noted that in the past years it was common practice for the gas supplier to own the tanks it services.

When Gulf Oil's contract with Newton ran out in 1973, it reportedly asked ARCO, the new supplier to buy the tanks. After ARCO refused, it attempted to get the city to buy them.

Gulf is presently supplying Newton with gas again. Lee Douglas, a representative of Gulf, explained to the Finance Committee that his company's policy is that cities serviced by Gulf own their gas tanks.

"All cities and towns we deal with have been asked to buy their tanks," Douglas said. "This is the trend."

Douglas also said that Gulf wants tanks which it delivers to to have a minimum capacity of 4,000 gallons. "We have been trying to upgrade storage," Douglas commented. "We want to reduce delivery costs as much as possible."

Eight of the tanks Gulf is asking the city to buy have capacities of less than 4,000 gallons. As one alderman noted, Gulf has asked Newton to buy tanks which it does not intend to service in the future.

Alderman Sidney Small, chairman of the Finance Committee, said in his opening remarks that "we were told by Gulf that if we did not purchase the tanks by May 1, delivery would be on a COD basis."

Douglas said this would not happen. "We are not going to put you on COD," Douglas commented. "Don't even consider it."

Douglas proposed that the deadline date for Newton purchasing the tanks be moved to May 31. This coincides with the date on which drop tubes must be installed in the tanks to prevent vapors from escaping.

Douglas said that Gulf will continue to service tanks which hold less than 4,000 gallons at full capacity. He noted, however, that Gulf wants them upgraded.

Small indicated that he expected some changes in gas deliveries after May 31. At that time, Gulf may begin delivering only to Newton's large tanks.

Alderman Richard Bullwinkle said that Gulf's demand meant that Newton must either replace its smaller tanks or truck out gas from a central source.

Douglas mentioned a third alternative. Newton could pick up gas itself with a tanker.

Douglas said that "the fire chief is not keen on going to a central location" to get gas. Fire engines reportedly get about two miles per gallon.

Small proposed that Newton might buy only the large tanks which Newton owns. In reference to the smaller tanks Small said, "what good are tanks to us if you won't fill them.

"We won't insist that you deliver to the small tanks," Svall continued. "You take them out."

Douglas said that "it would cost us quite a bit of money to pull out tanks."

"You have made ultimatums and told us what you are going to do," Small remarked. "You want us to go into the tanker business."

Small asked Douglas if he had a price for the larger tanks. He said that Newton will buy the tanks Gulf is prepared to deliver to, and will ask that the other tanks be taken out, and that the tank areas be restored.

Douglas replied that this offer was unacceptable. He said that for every tank Newton would upgrade, Gulf would give them the smaller tank.

"We bought all these tanks in good faith," Douglas commented. "Policy has changed, the situation has changed; we're trying to resolve a situation which has been hanging."

Douglas suggested to the aldermen that they put their position in writing.

Small called Gulf's policy "a giant rip-off. If you needed our business we wouldn't be having these discussions."

Douglas said that "it would be beneficial for the city of Newton to face the future. He indicated that larger storage areas and ownership of equipment are part of the future.

Bullwinkle asked about the possibility of getting gas from another company. Administrative Officer James Salter said that Newton, Gulf and the other company would have to agree for this to happen.

Douglas asked several times that Newton indicate how it plans to respond to Gulf's requests.

Small said after Douglas left that "if we want to take our time, we ought to submit a resolution to the Board, or we can say no action necessary and go informally to the mayor."

Small suggested that the situation with Gulf be turned over to the Law Department. He said to City Solicitor Howard Levine, "we would like you to find out what our rights are."

One matter which needs clarification is an alleged regulation from the Federal Energy Office which says that Gulf has to bo back to 1972 practices.

The Finance Committee accepted Small's suggestion and voted "no action necessary" on the request for money to buy Gulf's equipment.

Housing Authority, Ciccones go to court

Does the Newton Housing Authority have the right to file subdivision plans on land it does not own?

That question will be answered by Judge Robert Hallisey of Middlesex Superior Court, after the April 22 case of the Ciccone family of Newton, owners of property on Beaconwood Road, Newton Highlands, versus the Housing Authority.

The Newton Housing Authority has filed subdivision plans with the Planning Board as part of the requirements for obtaining approval for funding from the state Department of Community Affairs for 20 units of low-income housing on the site.

(The DCA recently rejected the second set of construction bids obtained by the Authority as too high, about $43,000 per unit, and has suggested the Authority turn its attention to possible rehabilitation of existing housing available in the city.)

The Newton Housing Authority plans to acquire the Beaconwood Road land by eminent domain, after negotiations with the Ciccone family fell through some time ago, but cannot proceed with the landtaking until the DCA has approved the project, including compliance with all city laws.

Assistant City Solicitor Jason A. Rosenberg said Tuesday that the decision may take quite a while, since there is little precedent in law.

Attorneys John Lamont represented the Ciccones, Peter Kilborn the Housing Authority, and Rosenberg the city of Newton and the Planning Board.

Newton North called "death trap"

Calling Newton North High School "a death trap for all of us working there," social studies teacher Justine Uritam again appeared before the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee last week to intensify efforts to have the exposed asbestos throughout the building covered.

Asbestos particles in the air have been found to be cancer-producing.

The asbestos hazard first came to public attention last July, when Ms. Uritam came before the same committee to express her concern about the presence of asbestos in the school.

The school had not yet been occupied.

The asbestos material was sprayed on some of the steel girders in the building as a heat-retardant.

After Ms. Uritam's presentation last summer, at which time she urged that all asbestos be covered or sprayed with a urethane coating to prevent flaking off of the the material, an air-sampling taken by the state Department of Health showed that the number of asbestos particles were within "acceptable" limits.

Ms. Uritam said last week, "Lots of people think current standards are not strict enought."

Her argument was buttressed by a report from Frank Speizer, M.D., obtained by Ald. Edward Richmond, Public Buildings Committee chairman. Speizer, according to Richmond, says that exposure to asbestos at any level is hazardous.

She complained that the asbestos still not treated (some has been painted or boxed in) falls down "in chunks." It is easily accessible to students in several locations, she shaid.

The question of the carcinogenic qualities of asbestos has only recently begun to be understood, and the no-danger standards have been decreased over the past few years, as medical technology has increased.

Last July a preliminary report from John Gilleland, director of Support Services for the School Department, indicated that in the low-ceiling areas, where the asbestos was likely to be dislodged, the treated beams would be boxed in.

Some of the boxing in has been done, according to Public Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson, and has been estimated as costing $150,000 total. Larson said he would immediately request the mayor to appropriate money for the rest of the work, which is planned to be done during the summer.

School Committee member Dorothy Reichard, who happened to be attending a meeting across the hall from the Public Buildings Committee meeting and was called in, said, "It was my understanding that all the asbestos had been sprayed."

When Larson came on the job in August, he said, some boxing in had been done, but the plan "had always been to finish next summer."

Judges

"If you're down, in trouble, and you need a helping hand . . ." Carole King.

"Stay out of court . . ." Anonymous.

The above is graffiti that is written very lightly on a wall in the Newton District Court House, a wry protest of the courts.

Courts and court procedure are almost continuously studied by various groups seeking the best methods of operation, a way to alleviate the backlog of cases, and a system that best serves justice.

Currently, the League of Women Voters is working on the problems of judicial nomination and judicial conduct.

In two pieces of legislation filed by State Rep. David J. Mofenson of Newton, the League proposes establishing commissions to deal with these crucial aspects of judicial quality.

The League proposes a commission consisting of five laypeople and four lawyers to serve as a nominating commission on judicial appointments.

This commission would recommend judicial candidates to the governor when a vacancy occurred and the governor would have 30 days in which to choose a new judge from among the commission's candidates.

The current system of the governor's council approving the governor's judicial appointees would be eliminated.

One aim of this proposed system, the League points out, is to remove political pressure from the governor in making his judicial choices.

The commission on judicial conduct would consist of three judges appointed by the Supreme Judicial Court, three lawyers and three laypeople.

Complaints against judges would be directed to this commission and it would be empowered to investigate them, subpoena witnesses, take testimony and make appropriate recommendations to the Supreme Judicial Court on censure, removal or retirement if warranted.

The League of Women Voters, by continuing to push hard for approval of this legislation, is doing every citizen in Massachusetts a favor.

Nothing contributes more to distrust or lack of faith in the judiciary than highly political judicial appointments in concert with a lack of recourse with complaints. And usually, the people who most often wind up facing courts and judges are those who already feel powerless and bitter toward life in general.

Judges have the power to redirect a life, to make a change for better or worse for one individual. Their decisions depend on their character, sense of humanity, dedication to justice, and knowledge of the laws.

They occupy a position of respect; and, in fact, the whole physical setting of a court contributes to their aura of power and respect.

It goes without saying that among all people, they should be the most carefully, impartially and seriously chosen for their jobs.

A new breed of political animal

BY CYNTHIA BLACK

Newton has a reputation for being one very politically minded community.

This comment, in fact, is one of those most frequently heard in any description of the Garden City.

I would theorize that one reason for the appellation is the change in the city from a strictly one-party to a healthy two-party system. Politics in a city probably really only is interesting when Democrats and Republicans must vie for control of things continuously.

Certainly we can all agree we have Democrats and Republicans, even in our non-partisan elections. We all know, don't we, which of our candidates are Democrats and which are Republicans? They don't always have to tell us straight out.

This, of course, is an election year; and races begin quite early in election years. Sometimes, in fact, they begin so early we hardly have time to attend an inauguration before we're off and running again.

Completely Black

This year too we are either blessed or cursed with a new breed of political animal. This type of candidate really makes the point that we live in a era of ever more bold and imaginative euphemisms.

Surely you've heard of Robert Quinn, Irving Fishman, Jack Backman, Joe DeNucci, Robert F. Drinan.

Have you also noticed that, to date, we've all blithely accepted the fact they are referring to themselves as "unannounced candidates for . . "

Now I want you to stop and ask yourself, what exactly is an "unannounced candidate?"

A candidate, the dictionary says, is "one who seeks office." Surely all of our "unannounced candidates" have an eye on an office. They do everything a candidate normally does, send press releases, visit schools and clubs and hold parties, sure symptoms of candidacy. Everything, that is, except own up to the fact they're running for office.

Then, one day soon, each and every one of them will gather us all together and in a masterstroke of anticlimax ANNOUNCE (surprise, surprise) they are candidates!

The person who invented the "unannounced candidate" was really quite clever. This political animal was, of course, created for the media. As an "unannounced candidate" you can get publicity without really having to cope with weighty judgments about your publicity compared to others seeking the same political office. Tell the public your're a candidate without telling them, the strategy must read.

Well, enough is enough. Don't come in here and tell me you're an unannounced candidate for anything.

Dwight says Sheehan may aid Gov. Sargent

Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight was discussing in detail the coming campaigns, both in the September primary and the final November election.

He said he expects that former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan, who is opposing Francis W. Sargent for the Republican nomination for Governor, will help Sarge rather than hurt him.

"First," Dwight declared in sizing up the GOP picture, "Governor Sargent will win and win big at both the unofficial Republican State Convention on June 1 and in the September primary.

"That should get his campaign into high gear and give it additional impetus for the final November election," asserted Dwight.

The Lieutenant Governor pointed out that Governor Sargent will have an additional opportunity to submit his candidacy to the people and review his record in office as a result of Sheehan's action in opposing him in the primary.

"Public attention will not be focused entirely on the Democratic candidates during the summer, with Mr. Sheehan running against Governor Sargent," added Dwight.

Lieutenant Governor Dwight believes, as does this writer, that the political flak from the Watergate mess will have little or no effect upon Dwight and Governor Sargent. "We have been distant from Washington," Dwight observed. I think the Democrats will try to make it an issue. But I don't think we'll be damaged by it."

At the same time Dwight pointed out that the political party whose president is in the White House historically and traditionally loses some seats in Congress in a mid-term election, especially after a landslide victory such as President Nixon won in 1972.

There would inevitably be Republican losses in Congress this year," Dwight remarked. "The losers will all think they were defeated because of Watergate and not the swing of the pendulum."

In response to questions, Dwight voiced the conviction that the overriding issue in the gubernatorial campaign will be the economy—"the pocketbook issue—things we can't do much about but many people will think we can."

"Food prices, inflation, unemployment," said Dwight. "Those are tough issues. The toughest problems are the ones you can't do anything about but for which many people still might hold you responsible."

Dwight declared that an example of the tough problems Governor Sargent faced was his decision not to build the Southwest Expressway and to put the same money into mass transit. (Governor Sargent has been criticized in some quarters for that decision.)

Lieutenant Governor Dwight recognizes that Massachusetts is a strongly Democratic state and that no Republican can take anything for granted in a state-wide election here.

He believes the Democrats will not be hurt by the lack of a pre-primary State Convention this year, pointing out that the Democrats are accustomed to fighting it out for party nominations.

Dwight nodded as the writer pointed out that many political observers now consider Massachusetts both the most liberal and most Democratic state in the nation—the only one George McGovern carried over Richard Nixon.

He was asked how he explained the fact that Republicans have won the last three gubernatorial elections in Democratic Massachusetts—John A. Volpe in 1964 and 1966 and Francis W. Sargent in 1970.

"The appeal of the individual," Dwight replied. "In each instance, the Republican was the individual the people preferred as Governor."

Ironically, in view of Dwight's belief that Carroll Sheehan will help rather than hurt Governor Sargent, it is not certain now that Sheehan will remain in the contest. He is discovering that the task of opposing a sitting Governor in his own party is a difficult one.

Sargent, Quinn clash on prison furloughs

Attorney General Robert H. Quinn apparently is trying to set up the prisoner furlough program as one of the issues in the battle he expects to wage next autumn with Governor Francis W. Sargent.

That is a rather unusual development because generally the liberals support the prison furlough theory, and the conservatives oppose it. Quinn presently is cast in the role of conservative and Sargent as a liberal.

Quinn formally requested that the Governor declare a moratorium on prisoner furloughs, and Mr. Sargent immediately refused.

The exchange of communications between the two was tart. Sarge took advantage of the opportunity to remind Quinn that when he suspended furloughs for Walpole State Prison inmates after John O. Boone was fired last June "in reliance upon your legal opinion of June 21, 1973, the Supreme Judicial Court unanimously overruled that opinion."

However, the weight of public opinion in this arguement is on Quinn's side. Most people are disposed to agree with his contention that furloughs should not be granted to first-degree murderers with long periods still to serve and that the furloughs were intended to be the first step in the rehabilitation of less hardened criminals prior to their return to society.

Quinn also argued that the furlough was not intended to be a vacation from prison or an escape opportunity for a dangerous criminal. He referred to the furloughs granted to Joseph Subilosky and Henry Segerquist, both first-degree murderers, sentenced to life imprisonment, who failed to return from their vacations outside the prison walls.

The furloughs granted to Subilosky and Segerquist (also known as Nils Nordstrom) are a bit difficult to understand.

Subilosky, originally sentenced for killing a bank clerk in a holdup, was granted a furlough last year, failed to return from it and allegedly robbed a Boston bank while out of prison.

Subilosky was convicted last month of robbing the bank, was sentenced to prison and then apparently was granted a furlough, from which he has not returned.

Segerquist, serving a life sentence for killing an off-duty police officer in a Watertown cafe in 1969, was granted a three-day furlough in March and has been AWOL since March 24.

Still a third prisoner, Paul Bryant surrendered to police after being sought for questioning in connection with a murder in a Beacon Hill apartment.

Bryant, an inmate at the Concord Reformatory according to records, was granted six different furloughs, and returned from them all.

Last Jan. 2, he was granted an eight-hour furlough to attend the funeral of an uncle. He called the Reformatory and asked for an additional two hours. He was granted them but hasn't been heard from since.

Police believe he may have been wounded in an automobile chase.

Bills are now pending on Beacon Hill which would tighten the prisoner furlough system. Quinn wanted Sargent to declare the moratorium on furloughs until those measures are enacted. But Governor Sargent declares that the State Correction Department has instituted stringent safeguards above and beyond those required by law.

Quinn said that statistics showing the furlough program has been 98 per cent successful are misleading. He declared that 150 prisoners escaped while on furlough and that 40 of them are still missing. Some of these men are dangerous, Quinn added.

This arguement almost certainly will carry over into next autumn's gubernatorial campaign if Sargent and Quinn are the opponents in the final election.

Republican Convention is now set for June 1

Democratic candidates, seeking party nominations for Governor, Attorney General and other state-wide offices, will move directly into their important September primary battles without any more preliminary skirmishes.

But the Republicans will hold an unofficial GOP State Convention at Boston University on June 1, at which, incidentally, the delegates will be required to pay a $10 admission fee.

What the Republican conclave will settle—if anything—isn't yet clear. It may only give a psychological lift to the winners, with the losers going on to fight again in the primary.

No convention losers are likely to win in the primary, however, because the Republican voters for 22 years have been disciplined to stand behind the candidates endorsed by their party's State Conventions.

An unofficial Republican State Convention was held back in 1952 when Christian A. Herter was trying to raise the banners of the Bay State GOP from the dust, and Republican leaders invoked a party discipline to make the convention decisions stand.

Even though Massachusetts today is much more Democratic than it was 22 years ago, that was a sort of Republican rescue operation. The GOP's political fortunes had fallen sharply during the four years Paul A. Dever served as Governor of Massachusetts.

Actually, the only real battle at the unofficial GOP convention probably will be for the Republican nomination for Secretary of State between State Senator John M. Quinlan of Norwood and Ronald Burton of Framingham, former professional football player and running back with the New England Patriots, now an insurance executive.

Senator Quinlan, a popular GOP figure, who is serving his fifth term in the upper legislative chamber, is favored over Burton although the latter is well liked and highly respected.

The Democrats, incidentally, almost certainly will capture the Senate seat now held by Quinlan under the new senatorial setup.

Governor Francis W. Sargent will be challenged at the Republican conclave by State Commerce Commissioner Carroll P. Sheehan, but Sheehan will not even be able to give Sarge an energetic workout either at the convention or in the primary.

Commends official action

To the Editor:

Last November I took the liberty of writing personally to our mayor, each alderman, and publicly to the citizens of the Garden City of Newton to ask that a closer look be taken at the plans for the federally sponsored TOPICS improvements scheduled for this city of Newton. I had seen these plans and felt that safe pedestrian flow had been overlooked.

How quick we are to write to complain; I am now writing to commend. Our city officials did listen and respond. The Planning Department, the mayor, and the aldermen have looked, listened and after many long hours of exploring alternatives have responded by resolution to ban a "new" signalization known as the flashing walk light. Few are aware of how important this action is.

Supposedly, safety and successful use of signals depends on the three E's: engineering, education, and enforcement. I ask our city residents to be aware and thank our three D's David Jackson, David Tannozzini, and David B. Cohen, who have spent many long hours rewriting the plans from the pedestrian point of view.

Our schoolchildren, the elderly, the handicapped, the blind, mothers with toddlers or carriages, and others who walk can be thankful to live in a city which does respond to the need of the unprotected citizen, the pedestrian.

Last Tuesday evening I sat alone in the aldermanic chamber at City Hall to hear the full board approve the passage of a resolution written by Dave Jackson and approved by the Traffic Commission to ban flashing walk from use in this city.

The Department of Transportation in Washington has plans to study this type of signalization during the next six and a half years. Had we waited that long we might have wasted life, limb, and lots of money. Thank God for city officials who respond intelligently to its backbone, the people.

Store changed hands

Dear Editor:

To the Residents of Newton Highlands, a message from the Bay State Beauty Mart:

We are now occupying the premises of the former Woolworth Store in Newton Highlands.

We realize that you miss Woolworths and the many items you were able to purchase there. However, they chose to close their store. Their lease of 30 years had terminated and they did not wish to renew it.

Now we come along with a new store. We carry a complete line of every type beauty item and health aids. In trying to satisfy the local residents we added toys, greeting cards and wrappings, quite a few sewing items, dye, shoe laces, nets, curlers and barettes for all ages and perfume.

If we do not have what you want, we will try and order it for you. To close, we are operating a big, beautiful beauty mart. Please feel free to come in and browse without making a purchase. We welcome your investigation. However, please do not condemn us for Woolworth's closing. It was their decision, not ours.

President

SWAP a good choice

To the Editor:

Perhaps in Newton there are others like me who enjoy working with people and would like to do so as a new career possibility.

At nearby Middlesex Community College in Bedford the social work associate program provides just such training for work in the human service field.

Both academic courses and practicum are part of the preparation. Some of my classmates took the entire program in one year; others of us spread it over two years which was a boon when we had on-going family responsibilities.

Having finished SWAP, I'm now working full-time in a state hospital where I serve as counselor and interpreter of policies to individuals and their families. This is usually in preparation for patients leaving the hospital. This involves many services such as referrals to other agencies, application for financial benefits assistance in finding employment and a place to live. I also make follow-up visits into the community to offer further support and help in solving any problems that might arise. My efforts are supervised by a graduate social worker which is also a learning and growing opportunity for me.

I strongly urge anyone who wishes to help others to get the structured training which allows one to do so constructively. SWAP was a good choice for me. Maybe you'll be interested too.

Chapter 766 topic

Implementation of the new legislation called "Chapter 766" will be discussed at the next meeting of the PTA at Weeks Junior High School on April 30, 1974, at 8 p.m.

This act, providing for improved schooling for disabled children, will be discussed by Dr. John Cullinane, director of Pupil Services, Gerald Peterson, director of Special Education and Harold Silverstein, school psychologist.

The intent of this legislation is to upgrade the quality of education of children with disabilities, mental as well as physical. Each town or city is required to support the education of a resident handicapped child at the same per-pupil expenditure as that spent on all other school children. Expenditures for handicapped children over and above this amount will be reimbursed by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Politics and programming

To the editor:

Campaign politics and correctional programming don't mix. And yet this is exactly what Attorney General Quinn is attempting to do when he calls on Governor Sargent to declare a moratorium on the furlough program.

The immediate, emphatic and negative response that Quinn received from Governor Sargent was richly deserved.

The commissioner of correction and his staff have determined, aftercareful consideration that all inmates are eligible for furloughs and that the decision whether or not to grant them should be made on an individual basis. To date, the program has been a highly successful innovation.

Since correctional professionals are held accountable for their actions — and they most certainly are — I agree with Governor Sargent that they should be allowed, without interference from ambitious politicians, to practice their profession.

The issue here is not campaign histrionics, but correctional policies. And those policies, such as how to administer the furlough program, should be made by professionals rather than politicians.

Equality in the law

To the Editor:

While waiting for the bus in front of Gateway Center in Newton Corner, I observed twoincidents I would like to relate to you.

On one occasion, I saw a pick up truck driven by a male driver stop in the left lane of the ongoing traffic to take on a passenger. The officer on duty noticed him and asked him to pull over. The driver yelled out some flip reply, did not pull his truck off to the side; and the officer allowed him to drive away without any further ado.

The next week as the same officer stopped the traffic (there is no light or intersection at this spot) he spotted a woman driver who evidently did not see him and continued to go. The officer had her pull over to the side of the road and spent approximately seven minutes checking her license and writing up a ticket.

Seven minutes of which he should have been crossing pedestrians!

As an observer of these two incidents I ask was the officer afraid to apprehend the male driver? Was he taking advantage of a woman? Did this officer lose both perspective and conviction? Is there equality in the law? Are our Men in Blue so weak that they bend the law to meet their own inadequacies?

Fast declared on May 1

Congregations and individuals of the Newton area will join students in more than 350 colleges throughout the country in fasting Wednesday, May 1.

The day has been declared "A Fast to Save a People Day" by Mayor Theodore D. Mann of Newton "to inform the public of an urgent humanitarian need and an opportunity to publicize the drought in West Africa and the famine in Ethiopia."

The mayor pointed out also that the day was "an opportunity for an act of self-denial and identification with the hungry; an occasion for educating the public about the needs of those afflicted by the drought; a time for prayer and public appeal by churches, temples and individuals; and an opportunity to raise much-needed funds to help with relief and long-range development projects in sub-Saharan Africa."

The fast is being sponsored by Oxfam-America, the American branch of the international Oxfam organization which began in Oxford, England, during World War II, and which is respected throughout the world for its efficient management of funds and careful supervision of development projects in poor countries. Oxfam-America has its national headquarters at 474 Centre St. in Newton.

Money that Newton families save by going without food (or whatever money they can afford to give) will go to expand a water catchement and development project successfully providing rehabilitation for the nomadic Tuareg tribesmen of the Tchirozerine area of Niger.

Food provided by Oxfam enables the previously starving Tuaregs to build terraces to conserve soil and water and to build stone dams in riverbeds. The dams hold flood waters from the desert's infrequent rains, replenishing nearby wells and allowing the Tuaregs to feed themselves from irrigated gardens.

Auction — Beaver Country Day School Headmaster Philip E. McCurdy (right), auctioneer Milton Lubar (center) and Mrs. Paul Ochs, auction chairman, inspect silver items up for sale.

'Spring Thing' will open with special auction

Beaver Country Day School will have its "Spring Thing" Friday, April 26, at 8 p.m.

Milton Lubar of the Louis Josephs Galleries will be the auctioneer and the kickoff event, an auction of "Things Antique and Unique."

Many collectable antiques will be auctioned off, along with unusual services by faculty members, parents and students. The auction is open to the public and proceeds will benefit the school.

Beaver Country Day school successfully made the transition to a coeducational institution and the first class of boys will graduate this spring.

The auction will take place in the school gymnasium at 791 Hammond St., Chestnut Hill.

Car wash

On Saturday, April 27, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., the Newton Jaycees will hold their second annual scholarship car wash at Sam Cooper's Auburndale Service Center at the corner of Lexington St. and Commonwealth Ave. in Auburndale.

All proceeds will be used to raise a scholarship bond for a Newton High School senior. Bicycle reflectors will also be available. The Jaycees will be selling applebutter for mental health. Rain date April 28, same time.

Local Democrats meet to elect delegates to party policy caucus

All Newton registered Democrats will have a chance on May 4 to participate directly or indirectly in the adoption of a permanent charter for the national Democratic Party and other matters concerning party organization and policy.

At 10 a.m. all Newton's Democratic Ward Committees will meet at various places to choose 54 delegates to a June 1 caucus. These delegates in turn will chose four delegates from the Fourth Congressional District caucus who will attend the Kansas City 1974 Democratic Mid-Term Convention.

A total of 62 delegates and 14 alternates have been allocated to Massachusetts, of a nationwide total of 2,035, based on a formula giving equal weight to population and Democratic voting strength.

David J. Mofenson, chairman of the Newton Democratic City Committee, urges all Newton Democrats to participate on May 4. "One of the worst things about politics," he says, "is the failure of decent, honorable to become involved. The meetings provide an opportunity for all Democrats to have a say in the affairs of their party and country."

At the May 4 meetings each ward will elect the following number of delegates to the June 1 caucus: Ward 1, six; Ward 2, six; Ward 3, seven; Ward 4, five; Ward 5, eight; Ward 6, eight; Ward 7, five; and Ward 8, nine.

The Ward 1 meeting will be in the Lincoln-Eliot School, 191 Pearl St.; Ward 2, Claflin School, 465 Lowell Ave.; Ward 3, Community Center, 429 Cherry St.; Ward 4, Lasell Junior College, Maple St.; Ward 5, Beethoven School, Beethoven Ave.; Ward 6, Mason-Rice School, Pleasant St.; Ward 7, Grace Church, 76 Eldredge St.; and Ward 8, Meadowbrook Junior High School, Meadowbrook Rd.

Lawn Doctor®
If you like what we're doing for someone else's lawn... you'll love what we do for yours!
No two lawns are exactly the same. That's why Lawn Doctor gives you customized service!
Year round, your Lawn Doctor specialist gives you customized service, tailored to your own lawn's unique needs. What's right for your neighbor's lawn or the fellow's down the street isn't necessarily right for yours.
Your neighbor may have a chickweed problem. The guy across the road may be fighting off armyworms.
But your lawn's worst enemy may be fungus, grubs or billbugs. That's why Lawn Doctor chemically analyzes your lawn before prescribing the best treatment to keep it healthy and beautiful.
Seeding, fertilization, weed, fungus and insect control—these are just some of the services we customize for your lawn's year-round care. And we always follow through with periodic checkups to ensure that your lawn receives the best possible care!
Special $24.95 introductory offer.
Take advantage of the special one-application introductory offer available now from your local Lawn Doctor lawn service. It begins with a thorough examination of your lawn. This includes soil tests to determine the exact composition of your lawn. Once the results are analyzed, you get seed, two kinds of top-quality fertilizer, power aeration, power rolling and all labor. You get all this—for an area up to 4,000 square feet—for just $24.95. That's practically what you'd pay for the seed and materials alone!

Master Mechanics, Inc. opens in Lynn and Hyannis

Centers diagnose car troubles

A Newton resident who believes there is "no such thing as an automobile that's a real lemon" has embarked on a newly formed diagnostic business that he promises will take the despair out of car repair.

That man is Arnold Gorsky who adds: "The real lemon in this business is often the person who takes care of your car."

There is no room for lemons in Gorsky's new operation that has opened under the name "Master Mechanics, Inc." The first Master Mechanics center opened in Quincy just before Christmas, 1972. Business there has been non stop ever since.

The second center in the expanding chain opened at Dedham Plaza off Route 1 in Jan. 1973, and the Watertown Center opened in 1973. The 4th and 5th Centers are now open in Lynn and Hyannis.

Master Mechanics is a combination of highly sophisticated equipment, professionally trained repair people, wholesale equipment purchasing and bottom line savings and safety for customers, according to the firm.

The enterprise is doing some things many car owners certainly don't encounter every day. Like having new parts on the premises so you don't hear: "We'll have to order it. Your car should be ready in a week or two."

If the center finds trouble in your car they tell customers exactly how much time the repair should take. If they tell a car owner it will take 37 minutes to fix his car that's all the labor time he is billed for. If it turns out the job takes two hours instead of 37 minutes, don't worry. You only have to pay for labor charges that were estimated. Ordinarily customers won't find a labor charge that is three or four times the cost for parts. When the center at Quincy first opened it was planned to offer free diagnosis to anyone who brought his or her car in during the first week.

Gorsky shatters many of the stories motorists have long heard about repairs. Car owners are often told driving over a pot hole can put their front end alignment out of whack. "A grandmother story," says Gorsky. "If the adjustment's made correctly then it should hold."

Gorsky, 48, has a two car family. He drives a Toyota, his wife a Pontiac. She was one of the first to have her car diagnosed.

He got into the automobile supply business in his early 20's and has maintained a hectic pace ever since. He set up automotive centers for large stores and then moved into establishing a large chain of centers that were eventually bought out by a large manufacturer in the car supply field.

Then, a little over a year ago, Gorsky took a trip that brought him to car repair places and suppliers from one end of the country to the other. He moved around, asked countless questions, examined name brand diagnostic equipment, made notes and moved on. The end results of his trips and experiences are the new centers that are opening under the Master Mechanic sign.

He has hired experts in the automotive and related fields. Some of the key supervisory personnel were drawn from the aeronautical and nuclear fields, others had participated in automotive racing.

The new centers are immaculate. "If you bring your car into a grease hole," says Gorsky, "That's the type of sloppy work you can expect."

The centers claim to have the most dependable diagnostic equipment that can be made. Front ends can be checked in seconds. The same with brake systems. Muffler installations take a little longer at MM than at other service centers but the Master Mechanics claim that the thoroughness of their work means a savings in dollars and a plus in more safety.

Guarantees apply to everything.

Machines are also used to road test cars without backing them out of the clean, well lighted bays. Road testing reduced to minutes means according to Gorsky, a reduction in labor charges and a savings to their customers.

Financing of repair bills without interest charges is also offered to customers. They don't blink an eye when the customer asks to spread the payments out over six months. And it doesn't have to be a big bill to do it either.

After each job customers receive a check list telling exactly what we have done, plus a written guarantee for the service performed.

Each center has its own warehouse filled with finest automotive brands for replacements. There is even a machine that tests a car for pollution in 15 seconds. Steering gear can be checked in MM's electronic bays. There is also a louvered brake tester where four miles an hour on MM equipment is equal to 50 miles of highway speed.

Gorsky is a distinguished looking father of three boys who looks more like a university professor than an automotive repair enthusiastic. He usually dresses in high-style black and white.

"I really don't know one end of a car from another," he says. "But I do know that when you combine Master Mechanics' tools with our repair experts your car can't get better service. That's what we offer the public. The age of the screwdriver to fix everything is long gone."

Best place to plant shade trees

Step into a woodland on any hot summer day and you can appreciate, without needing any elaborate instruments to prove it, the air conditioning job performed by trees. They can do the same work at your home, and the right placement of a few large-growing, leafy trees can mean an important reduction in the use of your mechanical air conditioner.

All summer long the shade trees intercept and absorb the sun's heat, at the same time transpiring cooling water. With your house shielded from the impact of the sun's rays, inside temperatures are kept lower - power consumption for the air conditioner is down. Even if you don't have an air conditioner, those beautiful gifts of nature can help you be more comfortable. Differences of eight degrees in temperature have been recorded between shaded and unshaded outdoor surfaces.

As winter approaches, the clever shade trees shed their leaves to let the sun shine through to help warm your home.

The American Association of Nurserymen points out that shade trees will do their work most effectively if they are arranged on the south and west sides of the building. They should be not less than about 20 feet from the house so they won't crowd the walls once they're fully grown.

Alumnae Assn.

The High School of Practical Arts Alumnae Assn. is planning a reunion dinner on Tuesday, May 21, in the Hungtington Suite of the Colonnade Hotel, 120 Huntington avenue, Boston, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

All alumnae from 1911 to 1954, who are interested are asked to contact Mrs. Louis Mendoza, 101 Coolidge street, Brookline, telephone 232-4036; or Mrs. Roy Waldron, 231 Riverside drive, Dedham, telephone 326-9488.

Robbins loses gun

recounted that he went back up into the tree to continue cutting.

Robbins' attorney Morris Goldings cited Machain's statement to police on the day of the incident and pointed out there was no mention in it of Robbins declaring he would "use the gun if he had too."

In the original statement, Goldings noted, Machain had said Robbins said "don't touch that tree, I don't want to have to hurt anyone."

Robbins stood with his hand on the gun, according to testimony, when he spoke.

The crew's foreman, Wilfred Gingras testified that "Robbins was standing there with Machain and I heard Machain yell 'go ahead and shoot me'."

"He had his hand on the gun and said 'don't cut that tree down, I don't want to hurt anyone," Gingras continued.

"I closed the job down then," he said.

Robbins testified that Obermayer had called him that morning and he had gone to the site.

"I remember running up the street," Robbins said. "I wanted to get there before the tree came down."

Robbins testified that he told the crew members they were violating an injunction against cutting down any of the trees on Chestnut Street and were in violation of the Scenic Roads Act.

Actually, the injunction he referred to had been vacated before the crew was sent and the Scenic Roads act does not apply to diseased trees.

Robbins said he told Gingras that he knew the foreman could give an order any time to stop work. He said he asked if the crew would wait long enough for him to call the mayor.

"Then I think I walked up to the tree to stand vigil and then someone noticed I had a gun." Robbins told the court.

Robbins told the court he had brought the gun for his own protection. He said he knew this was a controversial tree and that he knew the crew members were "physical people" used to working hard. He said he felt this was a "confrontation" situation and he wanted protection.

He testified he held on to the butt of the gun so that "no one could take it away from me."

"I said I had no intention of shooting anyone," Robbins testified.

Prior to Robbins court appearance on the threatening charge, a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon had been sought. Court Clerk Henry Schultz decided there was not sufficient evidence to support an assault charge and the threatening charge was made instead.

According to Steinberg, Machain, who made the original assault charge, could have taken the matter up with a judge and who might have overridden the clerk's decision. This was not done, Steinberg said.

Rights Commission seems

pay a greater percentage of their income for housing than we who live in Newton," Morris said. "They can't move here because they don't know where the real estate opportunities are. There are a lot of policies designed to screen people out."

"A black population of 16 per cent in Boston and 1 per cent in Newton establishes a prima facie case that there's something wrong here."

Community Relations Chairman William Ramsey, a black, asked, "How many complaints are received about blacks being refused $70,000, $60,000 or $50,000 houses? And on employment — most minorities who work in Newton live in Newton."

"We have looked at subpoena power, and we don't want it," Ramsey said.

He pointed out that the Committee for Fair Housing and Equal Rights exists to combat discrimination in housing, and that he himself got his house through Fair Housing some time ago.

Morris called the Fair Housing Group now in Newton "virtually powerless," composed of about five active people.

The resistance to subpoena power, the major difference between the Morris proposed Human Rights Commission and the existing Community Relations Commission, was the cause of the rejection by the CRC and by the director of the Department of Human Resources, of which the CRC is a part, on the grounds that the commission would lose the confidence of persons seeking aid.

Such people, the commisssion feels, would be reluctant or afraid to present their problems if the matter were to be made public by legal action.

Sister Margaret Gorman, former CRC chairman, believes that the CRC can get subpoenas issued by the Law Department if the action were ever necessary.

The lack of budget for investigative work also obviates the need for direct subpoena powers, the commission feels.

Ramsey also touched on the equal-employment-opportunity directive of the Executive Department, which, he said, the Community Relations Commission "is in process of rewriting."

The "mayor's directive," as it is called, puts into all major construction contracts a stipulation on the hiring of minority employees.

Ald. Edward Richmond commented toward the end of the meeting that the Community Relations Commission is no longer an advisory commission to the mayor, but is now under the Department of Human Resources and is part of an operating department.

"I would like the Community Relations Commission to come in with an affirmative statement on what it is."

A motion was made by Ald. Louis Egelson to hold the proposed ordinance in the Legislation & Rules Committee while the Community Relations Commission and the committee work together on recommendations and "redefinition" of the commission.

In other business, the Legislation & Rules Committee voted 4-2 to change the name of the Franchises & Licenses Committee to "Consumer Affairs and Licenses Committee," to reflect the greater role that committee is playing, and to establish a special committee on public health and safety.

The Public Health and Safety Committee would be a liaison between the Fire, Police and Health Departments and the Board of Aldermen, which now have no direct line of communication.

The state School Buildings Assistance Bureau on Wednesday gave approval for 65 per cent reimbursement of the cost of the addition and alterations to the Lincoln-Eliot School, according to Public Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson.

The bond issue of $1.2 million still needs approval from the state Emergency Finance Board. No difficulty in that area is anticipated.

Rose Moss

Terrorist," is South Africa, where Ms. Moss lived before coming to the United States 10 years ago."

"Family Reunion" was not written solely to provoke philosophical thoughts about the plight of man. Ms. Moss said, "it was written for people who are going to enjoy the playfulness of the language."

The book contains long half page sentances with parentheses, lists, anologies, and footnotes. A footnote on one page tells the reader to see a footnote on another page.

Some of these sentances required patience or a good memory.

At points, the book's style is reminiscent of Norman Mailer. If you are willing to follow the course of an enormous sentance, you may be rewarded with a great appreciation of the author's ability to use language.

Ms. Moss acknowleged that Mailer has been one of her models.

She said that when she referred to such sources as "The Sensuous Woman," and M. G. Kendall's "Studies in the History of Probability and Statistics" in footnotes she was "playing a game" and "mocking pedantry."

Ms. Moss commented that the book needs an audience which will enjoy foolicg around.

She said her ideal is to write like Tolstoi, and be able to reach everyone. She added that she had no illusions about "Family Reunion" doing that. She said that it was not intended as a "Tolstoian novel."

Ms. Moss noted that a "great joy would be to write books as immediately available as Tolstoi's. Even eight-year olds can read Tolstoi and get something out of it."

"Family Reunion" may not be available to everyone. It seems to require an appreciation of language, and an ability to relax with it. It can, however, affect people in many different ways. It may be perceived as philosophical, funny, insightful, and in parts, puzzling.

It may not be necessary to respond to it at all these different levels to get some enjoyment from it.

Recreation

Ward 6, which is waiting for an appointment by the mayor.

There has been an increasing feeling among many people in the city that the Recreation Department has needed some improvement.

The role of the Recreation Commission has never been clearly defined. Some observers think that the director of the department should lead the commission, asking their advice in establishing policies. Others have been willing to let the commission establish policies which the director is instructed to implement.

Neither Halloran nor Penney was available by telephone Wednesday to comment on what plans are expected for their department.

The first water works system in New Orleans was established in 1810. The pipes used were hollowed cyprus logs and slave labor pumped the water into a reservoir from the Mississippi River.

Law Day

Franklin Flaschner (seated), chief justice of Newton District Court, has announced exercises on Law Day May 1. Under the direction of Special Justice Monte G. Basbas (standing left) and the Newton Jaycees and Boston College Legal Assistance Bureau, programs in the city junior and senior high schools and exercises at the Court House will be held. Gary Fentin (standing right) is also planning the event. Formal ceremonies will begin at 1 p.m.

Registrations being taken for day camp

Registrations are now being taken for summer camp at the Newton Community Service Center main office at 429 Cherry Street, West Newton, and the Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge Street, Newton.

The camp, Sever Hale Reservation in Westwood, serves boys and girls 6½ to 12 years old. It includes 30 acres of wooded land, swimming facilities, cookout accomodations and 300 acres of long, winding nature trails.

Under the direction of G. Michael Gardner, Day Camp offers a wide variety of activity including free swimming and instruction, arts and crafts, sports, cookout, nature study, etc. Day campers will meet each morning at the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart in Newton and will be taken to camp by bus.

Kinder Kamp for 3½ - six year olds will again be operating this year on the grounds of the CountryDay School of the Sacred Heart in Newton. The facilities available make this an all day-all weather camp site.

Miss Bonnie Algeri, Kinder Kamp director, stated that Kinder Kamp is a program "designed to give a rewarding and beneficial group experience to the younger child."

During the camp day, the children will take part in many activities in assigned areas, art, swimming and most importantly, those activities created from imagination by the counselors for the campers. Campers will have cookouts once every two weeks and have trips to farms and other points of interest.

Both camps will operate for four, two-week periods. Camp hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Fridays. Further information is available by phoning the centers at 969-5906.

Robinson to speak to Newton Republicans

Representative William G. Robinson, Republican whip, state House of Representatives, will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Newton Republican City Committee Wednesday evening, May 1.

A number of candidates for state office will make appearances at the event according to the announcement by Julius L. Masow, Newton GOP chairman.

In the business phase of the meeting there is expected to be interest focused on the election of committee officers for the next term of two years. Replacements are to be elected to fill at least two top positions being vacated by incumbents who have served several terms and have indicated they are stepping down.

The Nominating Committee bringing in its recommended slate of officers is made up of representatives elected by the individual ward committees, of which there are eight in Newton. Those elected to the committee are Catherine M. Faucher, Ward One; Barbara Schiller, Ward Two; David James, Ward Three; Mrs. G. M. Swift, Ward Four; Robert Corbett, Ward Five; Katherine F. Bruce, Ward Six; Martin Stocklan, Ward Seven; Marjorie Heiser, Ward Eight.

In addition to this election, the committee will take up the report of the By-laws Committee headed by James S. Morse, Jr., and is expected to act on changes required by recently enacted statutes.

Reporting on other Republican activities in the city, Masow listed the officers elected by Ward Four members at their recent meeting. They are: Mrs. G. M. Swift, chairman; Donald M. Budge, vice-chairman; Mrs. Carol Ann Shea, secretary; Mrs. Clara E. Powers, treasurer. Mrs. Shea succeeds Mrs. Phyllis R. Butler who served the Ward Committee as secretary for several terms.

Open house at Murray Road

Murray Road Annex of Newton North High School will hold an open House Monday, April 29, at 7:30 p.m. for parents and students considering enrollment in the school.

Faculty members will be available to answer questions.

Lever adjutant general for Memorial Day Parade

Henry R. Lever, 9 Wessex Rd., Newton Centre, has been elected adjutant general for the 1974 Memorial Day Parade which will be held in Newton on Sunday afternoon, May 26, starting at 1 p.m.

Lever, an overseas veteran of World War II, is a past commander of Newton Post No. 211, Jewish War Veterans and the first member of the JWV ever elected to this position.

At the same organizational meeting of the Memorial Day Committee Jayne C. Driscoll was re-elected secretary, a post which Mrs. Driscoll has held for several yeaars. She is a past commander of Newton Women's Post 410, American Legion, which maintains its post headquarters in the Memorial Building at Newton City Hall.

Mrs. Driscoll reported on the progress that has been made to date in respect to the advance planning for the 1974 parade and advised that from replies received everything indicates that the 1974 parade will be one of the largest held in Newton in recent years. She has advised that all civic, fraternal, youth or patriotic groups are invited to participate and that such groups should feel free to contact her c-o Veterans' Services Department, Newton City Hall.

Others in attendance and sharing in the planning and work of the committee were: George Anderson, Robert S. Burke and Ernest Pescosolido representing Nonantum Post 440, American Legion; John J. Sturniolo and Joseph Civetti representing the William J. Farrell Chapter No. 23 of the Disabled American Veterans; Thomas A. Medaglia, Daley Post 2384, VFW; George Reynolds, Nicholas Nardone, Francis L. Howley, Malcolm J. McVarish and Francis B. Daly representing Newton Post 48, American Legion.

Also, Fred Sawyer representing the George D. Carson Post 141, American Legion and Edmond J. Lefevre, Herbert Lovely and Charles W. Holland of the Mass. State Guard Veterans, Inc. Carleton P. Merrill, veterans' agent of the city of Newton and past commander of Newton Post 48, presided at the meeting until the election of the adjutant general and secretary were held.

'Ham Auction' Friday night

The Middlesex Amateur Radio Club will sponsor its 13th annual "Ham Auction," to be held in the auditorium of the Mason Rice School, 149 Pleasant St., Newton Centre, Friday, April 26, at 8 p.m.

Everyone is invited to bring any type of radio or electronic gear they would be interested in selling. All gear must be tagged with name and-or radio call. The tags will be furnished at the auction. The club share for all auctioned gear is 15 percent.

On Advisory Committee

John M. Mugar, president of the Star Market chain of 59 supermarkets, was named a member of the Advisory Committee to the newly-created Simmons College Graduate Program in Management for Women, according to Dr. William J. Holmes, president. Widely known in business and civic affairs, Mugar is also a life trustee of Tufts University, his alma mater. (Fabian Bachrach photo)

Canoeing is resumed on the Charles River

Canoeing on the Charles River, a favorite pastime for several generations of Massachusetts residents who remember Norumbega Park in Auburndale, is once again possible, under the auspices of the Charles River Canoe Service and the Metropolitan District Commission.

Many remember Norumbega Park but few realize it was the national canoe center between 1880 and 1900. Until the area was sold several years ago canoeing was still a popular sport on the Charles among those who floried in paddling from Norumbega to the Moody Street bridge in Waltham.

The Charles River Canoe Service, in conjunction with the M.D.C., began its 1974 season on April 1. Canoeing on the Charles from the boat berths at the M.D.C. police station on Route 30, Commonwealth Avenue, in Auburndale continues until October 31, on weekdays between 11 a.m. and dusk, and on weekends from 9 a.m. to dusk.

Services offered at the canoe service headquarters, across the river from the Route 128 Norumbega duck feeding station, include rentals, instructions, and river trips, including guides. Director Tom Downing and his staff will teach groups efficient and safe canoe technique, enabling patrons to use it as a tool to study the ecology, history and folklore of the Charles River. Two and three-day trips will be offered. Of particular interest is a one-day tour set up as a teaching supplement to a school's history, biology, or environmental courses.

Area Rotarians plan conference on May 1

Area Rotarians and Rotary Anns headed by club presidents will be on hand Wednesday, May 1st, at the Marriott Morot Hotel in Newton when District 793, Rotary International, will stage its annual spring conference.

More than 700 Rotarians and Rotary Anns will attend the one-day affair which will be highlighted by the visit of James E. Lambeth, a director of Rotary International and prominent furniture manufacturer.

Lambeth, a member of the Thomasville, North Carolina, Rotary Club since 1938, is a former city council member and served as Mayro Pro-tem of his native city.

A get-acquainted breakfast at 8:30 a.m. will launch the full-day program of plenary sessions dealing with the four avenues of Rotary service and many entertainment features., The goal of the conference according to M. Michael Cantor, district governor, is to further the programs of Rotary and to explore new opportunities for bettering communities, raising standards of business practice, working with youth, and advancing friendly relations between people of different lands.

Many Rotarians will participate in the various plenary sessions in addition to the legislative meeting, which will confirm the nomination of Eugene S. Ashton of Medford to serve as District Governor for the period July 1, 1974, to June 30, 1975. He will be officially elected, along with 344 other nominees of Rotary districts in all parts of the world at Rotary's International 1974 convention in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minnesota, U.S.A.

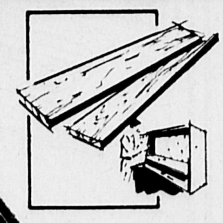

Lamont L. Thompson, president of the Boston Rotary Club, host city of the conference, will preside at the fellowship luncheon at noon on May 1, and Asa E. Phillips, Jr., Conference general chairman. will be taostmaster at the governor's dinner dance in the evening.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The recent rock concert called "California Jam" held in Ontario, Calif., was taped, and the results will make up four of ABC's "In Concert" programs to be aired May 10 and 24 and June 7 and 21. "California Jam" was the first live concert sponsored by ABC Entertainment.

Soft clutch bags for spring-summer

By RUTH LENSON

Can the contents of a woman's handbag reveal her character traits? The answer is "yes" according to a market research study carried on by the buyer of women's purses for a large department store.

If the handbag is oversized, crammed full with items such as needle and thread, paperback books, scissors, wallet, keys, transistor radio (just to name a few) its owner is apt to be outgoing, generous, cheerful and involved in civic activities as well as sports.

Owners of small, compact handbags which contain only the bare essentials carefully organized in a methodical manner, are likely to be efficient, decisive and very definite about their likes and dislikes.

No matter what the style of handbag (or its contents), spring-summer '74 promises to be an outstanding season for fashion-oriented handbags. At a time when the shoulderbag totally eclipsed every other style, the clutch of years ago has become a bestseller in handbag departments.

Clever manufacturers are offering some clutch bags with removable shoulder chains and straps to please women who have enjoyed the "Look, no hands!" freedom shoulderbags offered. These pouches and slim envelope styles swing from the shoulder during busy daytime activities—when darkness falls the straps are detached and bags are carried. Some of these styles also have hidden handles as well as silver or gold ornaments which also serves as handles.

These new styles, according to the National Handbag Association, are available in a wide variety of leathers and simulated leathers. Smooth textures are most popular, with real or simulated snake and reptile grains showing up in high-fashion looks.

In addition, fabric continues to grow in importance as a spring handbag material. This season's crop includes canvas, printed cotton, quilted chinz, denim and one specially treated cotton fibre under a clear, protective film. Monochromatic, tone-on-tone color combinations spark some of the best sporty bags, and the season's newest combo is cool bone with white. There are also bright splashes of color—denim blue, sunny yellow and green as well as vivid fabric prints.

In tune with the "soft look" of today, handbag designers have come up with pliable, unconstructed handbags. Using the softest of fabrics such as cotton, linen, synthetic velvets, these shoulder as well as clutch styles have been the hottest shapes this season. Teenagers, tired of carrying stiff, hard handbags, use a large "softie" as a carry-all sometimes rolling up a smaller clutch and tucking it inside.

This being a "dotty" season, you'll be able to match a polka dotted umbrella, and smart quilted shoulderbag or clutch. Other matching sets feature stripes as well as splashy colorful prints.

Recently, a California handbag firm announced production of a new kind of concealed "weapon" for women in fear of muggers, purse-snatchers and other predators.

The handbag works something like a hand grenade. The woman carrying the bag must keep her thumb hooked through the brass ring inside. When the would-be snatcher grabs the bag, he forces the woman to pull out the ring which is hidden behind a gusset on the outer side of the bag.

A pin is activated setting off an alarm that blares with a high-pitched siren within the bag—the probability being that the snatcher will drop the bag.

The handbag, manufactured by Theodor of California, will sell for around $38. Large enough to carry all the necessities, this well designed vinyl bag is patented and goes under the name of "Protect Her."

The journal of the American Academy of Pediatrics has reported that women's handbags are often a source of drugs that can be poison for children.

"Medication carried in the purse for personal use is a ready source of poisons for the curious child who customarily seeks candy, gum and other treasurers within the purse or handbag."

Take a peek into your own handbag. Aspirin, tranquilizers, diet pills, vitamins, saccharin, pills for heart disease, asthma—are often carried with very little thought given to their potential danger.

A random survey of purse contents of over 250 women was made. Forty per cent of the women questioned "occasionally or always" carried medication in their purse. Eleven per cent carried more than one medication.

The warning issued was: When it is necessary to carry drugs on your person, be very sure to keep your handbag out of reach of small children.

Question: I would like a Chicken Kiev recipe. Also recipes to be used in individual casserole dishes.

Mrs. J.L.S., Needham

Answer: Most any casserole dish can be prepared in individual dishes for easy serving. Last week's casserole column probably gave you many new ideas. Following is your Chicken Kiev recipe which is of Ukranian origin.

CHICKEN KIEV

Allow at least ½ pound (as purchased) of chicken breasts per serving. Large breast will probably make 2 servings. Skin and bone breasts. Pound meat flat to an even ¼-inch or slightly less in thickness. Use a meat mallet or edge of a heavy plate. Care must be taken not to break through meat. Lightly season flattened chicken cutlets with salt, pepper and other seasoning or herbs or spices as desired. Place small "finger" of hard chilled butter in center of each piece of meat. Fold ends over butter and roll up crosswise like a jelly roll, completely enclosing butter in leakproof "pacakge." Size of butter fingers will depend on size of cutlets and may vary from 1½ x ¼-inch to 2¼ x ¼-inch. The professionally prepared cutlets a la Kiev look about the shape and size of pointed dinner rolls; thick in the middle and tapering toward each end. Dip rolls in seasoned flour, then in egg, beaten slightly with a little water, then in very fine bread or cracker crumbs. Deep fat fry in hot fat, 325 degrees, until golden and chicken is done, about 10 to 15 minutes. Rolls may be prepared, ready to fry in advance and refrigerated until time to cook, allow a little longer cooking time.

Question: What would you recommend as a good moist brownie—one that could serve about 15 children. I am also looking for a plain cookie for the same young crowd, and if you have it, a nice milkshake idea so that we would not go the soda route. Many thanks for your assistance.

Mrs. G.T., Newton

Answer: If you want a rich brownie that will bake in a jelly roll pan, 15 x 10-inch, the following recipe will please you. As for the cookie, the children will love the crunchy peanutty oatmeal treats.

RICH FROSTED BROWNIES

1¼ cups all purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1 cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup soft margarine
¼ cup shortening
4 eggs
3 envelopes unsweetened chocolate
½ cup chopped nuts, optional
Frosting below

Combine all ingredients in large mixing bowl and beat at medium speed for 1 minute. Spread in greased, 15x10 inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes. (No longer.) Cool and frost. (If you desire a thicker brownie, bake in a greased 13x9-inch pan for 30-35 minutes).

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

Melt 3 tablespoons margarine with 3 tablespoons milk and 1 envelope unsweetened chocolate*. Stir in 2½ cups powdered sugar; beat until smooth.

* Squares of unsweetened chocolate may be substituted for the envelopes; when using the envelopes, allow them to sit for a moment or two in very hot water before using.

PEANUT OATMEAL COOKIES

2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
1 cup shortening
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1½ cups quick-cooking rolled oats
1½ cups salted Spanish peanuts
1 cup cornflakes

Sift flour with baking powder and baking soda. Gradually add brown sugar to shortening in mixing bowl; cream until light and fluffy. Blend in eggs and vanilla extract; beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients; mix thoroughly. Stir in rolled oats, peanuts and cornflakes. Drop dough by rounded teaspoons onto lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake at 375 degrees for 12-15 minutes until golden brown.

Question: Buying an expensive roast or steaks for a family of 6 has been a thing of the past in our home. I am collecting recipes that will turn inexpensive cuts of meat into tasty and tender "miracles." Anything along this line would be appreciated.

Mrs. K., W. Roxbury

Answer: I don't know about "miracles" but I can promise that when you buy a thick slice of chuck roast with the bone in, and cook it in the following Mexican Chuck Roast recipe, it will be an unusual dish that is colorful, flavorful and hearty.

MEXICAN CHUCK ROAST

1 3-pound chuck roast
1½ teaspoons Ac'cent
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons salad oil
½ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped canned green chilies
1 can (1 lb.) red kidney beans
1 can (1 lb.) tomato sauce
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen whole kernel corn
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Monterey Jack or Cheddar cheese

Sprinkle chuck roast on both sides with Ac'cent, salt and pepper. Heat oil in Dutch oven; add roast and brown on both sides. Add onion, chilies, kidney beans, tomato sauce, tomatoes and vinegar. Cover and simmer for 2½ hours. Add corn, cover and simmer ½ to 1 hour longer, until meat is fork tender. Serve sprinkled with cheese. Yield: 6 servings.

Question: Is there an oriental store in the suburban areas where I could buy ingredients for preparing Chinese foods without going into Boston proper?

Mrs. R.S., Needham

Answer: Indeed there is and it's called Mirim Trading Co., Inc. 152 Harvard Ave., Allston—they also sell health foods. The proprietor is a most accommodating woman who will share her Chinese dishes as she busily sccops rice and sunflower seeds out of large wooden kegs. An interesting shop to visit.

Food and Fashions

By Ruth Lenson

Across the Kitchen Counter

April showers herald more than a spattering of raindrops. Along come the pre-bridal celebrations, graduation parties as well as gatherings that spell the end of a long winter.

Undoubtedly one of the happiest of occasions is the shower for the bride-to-be, and with everyone so budget-conscious today, the menu does not have to be extravagantly expensive. Decorations should be bright, in the mood of spring, with a posy-decorated shower cake as a centerpiece.

No matter what the occasion, serving a "different" luncheon of beautiful scrumptious-tasting food in a pretty table setting is a challenge to every hostess.

Consider the delicacy of a seafood aspic as a main course — this one of rolled fillets of sole in sparkling cranberry aspic with a fluffy dressing to lend a flavor complement. Or you may prefer individual chicken pot pies topped with crunchy almonds. Another good main dish is Crispy Herb Chicken served with a delightful Lemon Fruit Mold.

CRANBERRY SEAFOOD ASPIC

6 sole fillets
¼ cup pickle relish
3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 cup dry white wine
Juice of 1 lemon
3 cups cranberry juice cocktail
One-third cup chopped celery
One-third cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons frozen chopped chives
1 cup chopped cooked shelled and deveined shrimp
Bite-size greens
Horseradish Dressing

Spread sole fillets with pickle relish. Roll up and fasten with a toothpick. Place rolls in medium skillet and add 1 cup water. Cover tightly and simmer gently until fish becomes white and flakes easily. Drain and cool. Stir gelatin into wine and let stand 5 minutes; then stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in lemon and cranberry juices. Spoon cranberry mixture into a 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan, making a layer ½ inch deep. Chill until firm. Place fish rolls on gelatin. Add another layer of gelatin and chill until firm. Chill remaining gelatin until slightly thickened. Fold in celery, green pepper, chives and shrimp. Pour mixture over fish rolls. Chill until firm. To unmold, dip mold into lukewarm water for a few seconds, tap to loosen and invert on a platter. Surround with bite-size greens and serve with Horseradish Dressing.

HORSERADISH DRESSING

Combine ⅓ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup sour cream, 2 tablespoons horseradish and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley. Mix well, chill and serve.

INDIVIDUAL CHICKEN POT PIES

Crust:
2 cups all purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup (2 sticks) margarine
½ pound small curd creamed cottage cheese

Filling:
4 cups cubed cooked chicken
1 can (20 oz.) pineapple chunks
Package (8 oz.) diced or whole dates, cut up
1 cup sliced mushrooms
2 cups canned chicken gravy
8 tablespoons chopped almonds

Mix flour and salt. With a pastry cutter or two knives, cut margarine into a dry mixture until it resembles small peas. Add cottage cheese, and mix with a fork until dough is formed. In a separate mixing bowl, place chicken, pineapple, dates and mushrooms. Mix well. Divide the crust dough into 12 equal portions. Roll out each portion on a generously floured surface. Place one crust each on the bottom of 6 individual pie pans (foil or pyrex). Scoop equal portions of the chicken mixture into the 6 crusts. Pour one-third cup chicken gravy over each pie and then sprinkle the top of each with 1 tablespoon chopped almonds. Place 6 top crusts on each pie, and pinch the upper and lower crusts together. Pierce the top of each pie generously with a knife. Bake pies at 450 degrees for 15 minutes. Then reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees and bake for an additional 30 minutes or until crust is a golden brown. You may use the same recipe to prepare one large chicken pie that will serve 6. You may double or triple this recipe.

CRISPY HERB CHICKEN

1½ cups margarine

3 pkgs. (8 oz. ea.) herb seasoned stuffing, crushed

1 teaspoon salt

6 broiler fryer chickens, cut in serving pieces

4 eggs

¼ cup water

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Divide margarine among three 15 x 10 x 1-inch baking pans and place in oven until melted. Meanwhile combine crushed stuffing and salt in a plastic bag. Dip chicken parts into egg that has been beaten with water. Then shake, a few pieces at a time, in bag until well coated. Place chicken skin side down in melted margarine. Do not layer in pan. Bake, uncovered, at 425 degrees for 30 minutes; turn and continue baking for 15 minutes or until tender. Serves 24.

LEMON FRUIT MOLD

4 envelopes unflavored gelatin
3 cups cold water, divided
3 cans (6 oz. ea.) lemonade concentrate, kept frozen
2 cans (30 oz. ea.) fruit cocktail
2 cups toasted slivered almonds

Sprinkle gelatin over 2 cups cold water in saucepan. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatin dissolves, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; add frozen concentrate and stir until melted. Stir in remaining 1 cup of water and fruit with syrup. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds when dropped from spoon; add almonds. Mix well and turn into 12-cup bundt cake pan or mold. Chill until firm, several hours. Serves 24.

CRANBERRY WINE PUNCH

1 pint fresh strawberries, sliced
½ cup sugar
3 pints cranberry juice cocktail
2 large bottles sauterne
2 quarts sparkling water

Combine berries and sugar; let stand for 30 minutes. Combine with cranberry juice cocktail and sauterne; chill. At serving time, turn into ice bowl or pour over ice in bowl. Add sparkling water by pouring down sides of bowl. Makes about 40 ½-cup servings.

Don Stark addresses woman's association

On Wednesday, May 1, the annual meeting of the Woman's Association of Central Congregational Church will be held in the Merrill Room at 12 noon for the business meeting and election of officers.

Luncheon will be served at 1 p.m. The program will be held in the Merrill Room at 2 p.m.

Heading the kitchen force will be Mrs. Henry Myers and Mrs. Forrest Sloan, assisted by Arthur A. Gath, a member of the church and a favorite caterer

Mrs. Preston Sweetser, chairman of the dining room, and Mrs. George Bagnell will be in charge of the springtime decorations.

Rev. Baldwin Callahan will give the Devotions.

Mrs. Richard A. Keil, program chairman, will introduce Don Stark whose topic will be "From Rags to Pictures."

Mr. and Mrs. Webber celebrate their 50th

Over 200 friends and relatives gathered in the Loring Room at St. John's Episcopal Church, Newtonville, on April 6, to celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Eaton Webber, 20 Holden Road, West Newton.

The reception was hosted by the couple's son-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Lord of Needham, and Mrs. Dennis Riggle of Lodi, California. In charge of the guest book were two of the Webber's five grandchildren, Jennifer Lord and Diana Riggle.

Included among the guests were many Harvard, M.I.T. and Smith College classmates. A special guest was Mrs. George Jochum of Garden City, N.Y., who was maid of honor at the Webber's wedding at Grace Church, Newton, in 1924.

The Webbers have spent most of their married life in Newton, and are long-time members of St. John's.

Plantings

Checking on plantings in the Biblical Garden, planned and planted by members of Temple Israel Garden Club are (from left) Mrs. Howard Rubin, Mrs. Ezra Sherman and Mrs. Norman B. Krim, all of Newton Centre. The women are planning a show entitled, "The Marriage of Mr. and Ms.," to be staged Wednesday, May 22, from 1 to 5 p.m., at the temple.

Substitute teachers hold annual spring banquet

Plans are underway for the annual spring banquet of the Newton Substitute Teacher's Association which will be held Thursday evening, May 2, at the Sidney Hill Country Club under the chairmanship of Judith Schreider, hospitality chairman.

The social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the dinner at 7 p.m.

Special invited guests will be: James Laurits, assistant superintendent of personnel, Hope Danielson, assistant director for personnel, Alice Coughlin and Cecilia Adams, secretaries for elementary and secondary substitutes. Entertainment will follow the meeting.

Mrs. Hyman extends a cordial invitation to all Newton substitutes and reservations may be made by contacting her or Rose Levin, treasurer.

Baby boy

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rothstein (Helen Schenkman) of Randolph announce the birth of their second son, Daniel Evan, on April 8, at the Boston in Hospital. Welcoming the new addition are his brother, Matthew Brett and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Rothstein of West Newton and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Schenkman of Brookline.

Mrs. Alastair Maitland a guest of honor at meeting

The Daughters of the British Empire in Massachusetts recently held their 36th annual meeting and luncheon at the Wellesley Inn.

Guests of honor were Mrs. Alastair Maitland, wife of the British Consul-General in Boston and honorary president; and Mrs. Graham Whitehead, who will be the next national president of the D.B.E. in the United States.

The Daughters of the British Empire in the United States was organized in 1909 and they now support four homes for men and women of British ancestry who are residents or citizens of the United States.

Victoria Home in Ossining, N.Y. with 48 residents is the special project of the members in Massachusetts.

Among the members from Newton are Miss Ruth Burns and Mrs. Harry Cookson.

Family worship service at Temple Beth Avodah

On Friday evening, April 26, a family worship service will be held at Temple Beth Avodah, 45 Puddingstone Lane, Newton Centre. The junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Herbert Bamel and Mrs. Jerold Wise, will sing, and the children whose birthdays fall during the month of April will be blessed by Rabbi Robert Miller.

The congregation is pleased to announce that two young members have attained the rank of Eagle Scout in the Boy Scouts of America. These boys, Scott Wayne and Stephen Rubin, in honor of the occasion, will be called to the Torah.

Following the service, the Oneg Shabbat will be enchanced by the young people in the congregation conducting a "Jewish Youth Music Festival." There will be flutists, recorders, clarinetists, pianists, violinists. . . all playing Hebrew and Israeli songs. There will indeed be a joyous sabbath worship, a Temple salute to the wonderful youngsters of the temple.

Note About This Auction: Iran, the largest producer of handwoven carpets and rugs, has been backward, slow-moving country for centuries. Suddenly with the advent of industry, oil and free education, it zoomed to the 20th Century. As a result children, the majority of the weavers and who earned only 60c a day, are lured away from the ancient art of weaving. And in our opinion, in the next five years this great art will be so scarce and will be hard to find. European collectors and dealers are rushing to America and collect these carpets. We urge the residents of Cambridge to attend this fabulous auction.

Weddings

Berkshires honeymoon for Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Engel

Mrs. Christopher J. Engel

On Saturday, April 20, Patricia Joan Roche, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard J. Roche of West Newton, became the bride of Christopher John Engel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Engel of Auburndale, at St. Philip Neri Church in Waban. Rev. John P. Parsons officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a white peau de soie gown with organza lace and a matching chapel mantilla. She carried a bouquet of phalaenopsis and stephanotis. The reception was held at the Woodland Golf Club in Auburndale.

Miss Nancy J. Roche of Belmont, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She and bridesmaids, Mrs. Joan Sundstrom, the groom's sister; Miss Jacqui Riker; and Miss Cheryl Cant carried bouquets of pink roses and stephanotis.

Walter P. Engel, brother of the groom, was the best man.

The ushers were Richard J. Roche, Jr., Robert M. and Stephen J., brothers of the bride; and Renato Perelli, of Chestnut Hill.

The bride graduated from Chandler School for Women and is presently employed at Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. Her husband, a graduate of Newton Junior College, is a salesman at the Republic Sporting Goods Co.

Following a wedding trip to the Berkshires, the couple will live in Natick.

Mrs. William T. Rehm

Kerns-Rehm nuptial held

St. Ignatius Church, Chestnut Hill, was the scene of the wedding of Mary Louise Kerns and William Thomas Rehm on Saturday, April 20.

Rev. Eugene Alves, chaplain of the Catholic Alumni Club of Bostonp officiated at the 11 a.m. ceremony and the reception was held at Dunfey's Parker House Roof.

The new Mrs. Rehm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley F. Kerns of Chestnut Hill, wore her mother's wedding gown which was of antique ivory satin, trimmed with Alencon lace. She carried her mother's missal with a cascade of gardenia, stephanotis and ivy foliage. Her father gave her in marriage.

Elaine M. Keyes, of Lenox, was her sister's matron of honor and Carol A. Kerns, of Needham, the bride's sister-in-law was her bridesmaid. Both Mrs. Keyes and Mrs. Kerns were attired in halter dresses and jackets of old fashioned rose floral print and antique lace. They carried nosegays of pink puff sweetheart roses and dried gypsophelia.

Serving as best man for the groom was Norman A. Benard of Hingham and sharing in the ushering duties were Robert F. Kerns, Paul A. Whalen and John E. Creighton Sr.

The bride attended Mount Alvernia Academy and Boston State College. She is presently employed as a teacher in Mattapan.

Mr. Kerns, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George F. Rehm of Jamaica Plain, attended Wentworth Institute. Both he and his new bride are members of the Catholic Alumni Club of Boston. At present, he is a technician and a Lt. Colonel in the U.S.A.R.

After a wedding trip to California, Mr. and Mrs. Rehm will reside in Brockton.

Bach cantata presented at Union Church

On Sunday, April 28, at the 11 a.m. worship service, the Union Church of Waban Adult Choir and the Chamber Singers of Bradford College will join in the ministry of music.

As part of the worship service, the choirs will present Bach's Cantata No. 50 based on Psalm 25. Also, a notet by Farrant and an anthem, "Let Nothing Ever Grieve Thee," by Brahms will be sung.

The organist and choirmaster of the Union Church in Waban, Jack Fisher, is in charge of arrangements.

The director of the Bradford College Chamber Singers is Charles W. Ludington.

This cantata, with two other cnatatas, and organ pieces, will be presented at the Methuen Memorial Music Hall May 6 at 8:30 p.m.

Iso, April 28 at 3 p.m. at the Union Church, the Sigma Alpha Iota fraternity will present a program of music for the children and young people of the church.

Temple Reyim to hold congregational meeting

Temple Reyim will hold its congregational meeting at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, April 28.

A full schedule of business is planned, capped by a rousing round of Israeli folk music.

The business meeting will open with a review of the "State of the Temple" by Bertram E. Lipman, chairman of the board. This will include a brief presentation of the budget for the 1974-1975 year. Following this will be election of officers for the coming year.

Sol Kaufman will present a revised set of By-Laws outlining the changes made to more accurately reflect present temple purposes and organization.

Following a brief address by Rabbi Philip Kieval, Jerry Stern will present Israel in song and guitar.

Marking anniversary

Boston's Mayor Kevin H. White presents the city's official proclamation honoring the Animal Rescue League of Boston on its 75th anniversary to Dr. Carlton E. Buttrick of Dedham (center) League president, as James Shevelin, executive director of Boston's Animal Control Commission looks on. Founded in 1899, the Animal Rescue League provides temporary shelter, food and health care for over 100,000 animals in Boston and suburban communities each year and also serves as Boston's official dog officer.

Children's Zoo is getting ready for April 27 opening

The Children's Zoo is getting its annual coat of paint for the coming yseason. The zoo buildings, fences and exhibits will all boast a fresh look by opening day, Starting, April 27th.

Along with many familiar animals from last year are a whole flock of new arrivals. The gibbon apes will be swinging around their island in the lagoon. The baby elephant, Aggie, will roam her enclosure, eager for a friendly pat. "Sandy" the huge clydesdale horse will dwarf even the largest visitor. Baby goats and sheep are being born daily and they're waiting for regular bottle feedings by young visitors.

The lagoon, drained for the winter, is being painted, the flower beds are being spaded and the "eco-niche" exhibits in the main building are being installed. Tiny plants, rocks, sand and animals are being included to give the visitor a glimpse of the forest floor, the edge of a bog and the teeming life of the swamp. The longer you look, the more you'll discover.

The spider monkeys would keep you laughing all day if you'd stand there that long. But, you can't miss all the new spring arrivals this year. . . "John", a baby camel, was born on the range here at Franklin Park in February and he has a llama friend by the name of Crawford, born in March. They'll be there opening day grunting and snorting their greetings along with all the other animals. Be there to answer their calls, April 27, when kids and animals can get together and make new friends.

The Children's Zoo is owned by the Metropolitan District Commission and operated by the Boston Zoological Society.

Walpole Mall conducting survey of local groups

In anticipation of the grand opening of The Walpole Mall, Fall 1974, developer Alvin Allen in conjunction with The Walpole Mall Merchants' Assn., is currently conducting a survey among civic and charity organizations in The Walpole Mall area.

The survey, distributed in the form of a brief questionnaire, seeks to determine the types of activities and events the community would like to participate in throughout the year at The Walpole Mall. Such events include: charity bazaars, art and crafts shows, concerts, flower shows, public service displays, boat and auto shows and fashion events, to name a few.

Gov. Sargent to formally dedicate new UMass campus

Gov. Francis Sargent will formally dedicate the new campus of the University of Massachusetts at Boston on Saturday, April 27th.

Some 500 leaders in education, government, business and community life will join with him at the dual Dedication-Inauguration ceremony when Dr. Carlo L. Golino will be installed formally as the Chancellor.

Dr. Robert C. Wood, president of the University of Massachusetts, will preside at the rites.

The ceremonies will begin at 10:30. In the afternoon a colloquium on "The Urban University in the Seventies" noted [illegible] academic scene.

The panelists are Dr. Sidney Marland, Jr., president of the College Entrance Examination Board; Drr. Davis Riesman, Harvard Sociologist; and Dr. Robert Weaver, director of the Urban Affairs Department at Hunter College.

Dr. Marland was former Assistant Secretary of HEW for Education.

Dr. Riesman is the author of "The Academic Revolution" and other works.

Dr. Weaver served as Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development in President Johnson's cabinet.

On Sunday, April 28, an open house for the public will be held at the Harbor Campus from 1 to 6 p.m.

Chancellor Golino, in extending an invitation to visit the $130-million campus, said, "We want you to see our magnificent facilities for the performance for our mission of learning and teaching. I think you will be impressed, and we will be delighted to see you here on Open Houde Day."

Student guides will be on hand to show visitors the College I and College II buildings, the Library, Science Center and Administration building.

The championship St. William's CYO Band of Dorchester will give a concert at 3 p.m.

An original play being presented in America for the first time, "The Construction Workers" will be presented by the university's Theatre Arts Department at 2 p.m.

Fairview staff

Manager Robert Hanley of Fairview Associates and house sales specialist Beatrice Levine reviewed apartment and house listings which the management firm has expanded.

Fairview Associates manage six apartment complexes

MILTON—Robert Hanley, manager and co-founder of Fairview Associates Inc. of 71 Blue Hills Parkway, Milton, has announced the firm now manages six modern apartment buildings. It is the rental agent for 2,000 apartment units and a wide selection of two and three family homes located in the West Roxbury, Hyde Park, Roslindale, Jamaica Plain, Dedham and Norwood areas.

"Many apartment owners who formerly did all of their own renting," he said, "are now looking to Fairview to do their professional 'screening' process."

Hanley, an apartment management specialist, believes many problems between tenants and landlords would not exist if the right environmental 'choice' were selected from the beginning.

This choice is what the firm professionally, legally and efficiently creates.

"Our heavy concentration on apartment advertising," said Hanley, "with the Transcript and other sources brings hundreds of good clients to us. Fairview's large list of both prospective tenants and apartments available allows the firm to professionally render their clients a selective and knowledgeable choice in housing."

Fairview Associates are active members of the Rental Housing Association and a Realtor member of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

HEARING NOTICE
FROM OFFICE OF CITY CLERK
NEWTON, MASS.

WHEREAS: Petitions have been filed with the Board of Aldermen of the City of Newton as defined in list attached hereto under the Zoning Ordinance, Chapter 25, as amended, it is ORDERED: That a hearing be held on MONDAY, MAY 13, 1974, 7:45 P.M., at CITY HALL in said City of Newton, before the Land Use Committee of the Board of Aldermen, at which time and place all parties interested therein will be heard.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED: That notice of said hearings be given publication in the Newton Graphic on April 25, 1974, and May 2, 1974:

318-73(2) FORMER ALD. HARRINGTON proposing amendment to Section 25-20 of the Revised Zoning Ordinance by inserting a new subsection to be identified as 25-20(h) as follows: (h) 1. In the event that any existing structure be changed, modified or altered so as to convert its use from any one of those described in Section 25-20(g) 1-14 to any other described therein, then, before a permit shall be granted to so change modify or alter said building, the parking requirements of Section 25-20(g) 1-14 shall apply.

2. The exemption of any existing structures from the requirements of providing parking space under Section 25-20 based on its existence prior to the enactment of Section 25-20 shall automatically cease and the provisions of paragraph 1. above shall apply where any permit is granted for each change, modification or alteration.

276-74 CONSERVATION COMMISSION recommending amendment to Section 25-18A, paragraph (b)3, of the Zoning Ordinance 462: Flood Plain-Watershed Protection, by deleting the words "parking lots" so that it will read: "Driveways and walkways ancillary to permitted or permissive uses within overlapped district."

359-74 (253-73) ASSN. FOR CULTURAL INTERCHANGE INC., petition for renewal of permissive use for an association of persons living together in a common dwelling at 481 HAMMOND ST., Ward 6, Section 63, Block 16, Lot 1, containing 145,150 sq. ft. in Single Residence A District.

360-74 ACHESON H. CALLAGHAN, petition for amendment to Zoning Ordinances by adding Section 1A to Section 25-5(b), to read as follows: "1A. Conversion of existing residential buildings for multi-family residential use."

Recycling

The recycling subcommittee has estimated that the cost of glass collection would be less than the cost of incineration and landfill operation for the same tonnage of glass, but that estimate may be changed by the fact that regular packer trucks will have to be used instead of open-body trucks.

Former Public Works Director Richard Dudman, who left the position last week, was a strong supporter of recycling and helped draft the ordinance.

The recycling subcommittee may have a hard job to convince Acting Director U. M. Schiavone and Street acommissioner Edmund Bolduc that the program can and should be put into operation.

Asked this week for an opinion on the proposed ordinance, Schiavone (head of the Engineering Department) said he knows nothing about the proposal or about recycling and referred the question to Bolduc.

Bolduc, too, was unfamiliar with the recycling proposal, but expects to attend the Public Works Committee meeting at which it will be discussed.

operate well without it — but, again — structure with flexibility," Frost read.

"We can't do all the things we would like to do in our school. Whoever can? We feel inhibited, cramped by laws and our own liability. We are hurt, also, by the policy of cutting back on personnel.

"The smaller school cannot offer the alternatives and varied programs that a larger school — with the same teacher-pupil ratio-is able to offer. Yet, even if we had that more favorable teacher-pupil ratio, with our space problems, number of pupils, we would have trouble finding rooms for teachers and classes," Frost concluded.

Lasell

Freeto commented that "serious consideration has been given" to the Woodland Annex as a site for the center, but emphasized that the issue before the Zoning Board was the variance concerning distance between Gardner and Woodland Halls

An opponent of Lasell's petition, Mrs. Marsha Cloutier, 74 Vista Ave., asked that the Zoning Board "refrain from acting" until the whole plan for the Gardner-Woodland area is known.

If Lasell decides on Woodland Hall's annex as a site for the student union, it will go before the aldermanic Land Use Committee for approval.

Sheila Farnese said that the executive board of the Auburndale Community Association has passed a resolution supporting the location of the student union at Woodland Hall, and the modification of the variance requested in Lasell's petition.

It was pointed out frequently that if the modification were not to be granted, Gardner Hall would inevitably be razed.

Maurice Reidy of the Zoning Board asked if Lasell had an estimate of the cost of moving Gardner Hall to another site.

Lasell President Kenneth Greene said that he had no estimate, but that he had been discouraged earlier by the estimate given for moving a smaller building on the Lasell campus.

George Cloutier said that opponents of Lasell's petition "do not want to drive Lasell from the neighborhood."

Marsha Cloutier stated, "I propose by granting the variance, substantial public detriment would be created."

She added that the purpose of the 50 foot distance requirement between dormitories is to cut down on fire hazard.

Brooke joins local GOP for 'Unity Walk'

Senator Edward W. Brooke will join fellow Republicans this Sunday in the Unity Walk sponsored by the various party organizations. Members of Newton's Republican groups will join him in his walking tour.

The unity walk scheduled to start at noon has as its purpose the demonstration of party unity and the raising of funds for the support of Republican candidates for seats in the legislature.

Governor Francis Sargent, Lt. Governor Donald Dwight, Representative Francis W. Hatch, and Senator John R. Parker are taking part in Sunday's Unity Walk in various sections of the state.

Harold Hawkes seeking office

Harold M. Hawkes, a teacher at Newton South High School, is seeking the office of director, Middlesex County District, of the Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA). Its annual meeting will be held May 3 and 4 at the Sheraton Boston Hotel.

Hawkes' local experience includes service as president of the Braintree Teachers Association and president of the Newton Teachers Association.

On the state level, he has been an MTA director and has served on the following MTA committees: TEPS, special study, ethics (as chairman), professional rights and responsibilities and human relations.

Hawkes received his B.S. from the University of New Hampshire, his M.Ed. from Boston University, and has done advanced work at B.U., Northeastern and Harvard.

Conference

Sixty-eight missionaries representing 18 countries will participate in Boston's Park Street Church thirty-fifth annual World Missions Conference, April 26-May 5.

Announcement of the gathering was made by Dr. Peter Yen of Newton, a member of the Board of Missions. Mrs. Martin Howell, also of Newton, is serving on the board.

AFS

AFS scholarships awarded

The Newton High Schools will again have their young "ambassadors to the world" with the recent announcement of two '74-'75 American Field Service AFS) international scholarship winners by the Newton AFS selection committee.

South High's Julie Criscitiello '75 of Newton Highlands is already involved in her oveseas experience, having recently arrived in Te Kuiti, New Zealand. Betsy Gerlach NNHS '74) of West Newton is waiting to be momentarily assigned to some far corner of the world.

Julie's host family for the year is that of the principal of the high school, M. R. Bailey. Bailey is known in this area among educators as he was on an exchange at Waltham High six years ago.) Her host "mother" is also a teacher, and her host siblings are Robyn, 14, Judy 12, and David 10.

Julie writes that her locale is a small town of 5,000 in the North and the county seat for surrounding farming country. It has a 40 percent Maori population (the national is 7 percent). Julie has already swum in the Pacific, camped by trailer through most unusual topography and attends school. She writes, "It is strange to be attending school in uniform!"

Julie's Newton family has always been involved with the outdoors, hiking, cross-country skiing, music and music making, as has her new family in New Zealand. Her experience at a work camp in Vermont last summer, maintaining a farm which supplied the camp needs with fresh vegetables, milk, feeding afarm animals, etc., was an unexpected bonus preparation for her assignment in Te Kuiti country! Her only other formal orientation for New Zealand was by AFS International in South Africa with 21 other Americans and three multinationals (Non-Americans) all headed for New Zealand.

The '73-'74 AFS scholarship recipient, Diana Levy (NNHS '74), has just completed a year's stay in Japan. Her experiences there were highlighted by a year's study at Tokyo University High School and extensive travels to the old city of Kyoto, Mt. Hakone and climbing Mount Fuji at night.

The student body at the Tokyo school is keenly interested in these student exchanges from the United States, and the American visitor to their school is immediately integrated into the academic and social life as a whole. Week-long class trips are focal pint for junkor and seniors at the school, and Diana was an honored guest on these trips from both classes. The Japanese high schooler, Dana says, is a serious student and scholar and must compete for seating in each academic level.

The AFS student from overseas this year is Colleen Butche of Johannesburg, South Africa. Her host family is the Dr. Frank Howards of West Newton, and she is attending Newton North High School.

Colleen has been busy appearing before several community groups and hopes to continue to meet as much of the community as she can, and interchange ideas and attitudes regarding her experience here. Colleen has inspired the reactivation of the NNHS AFS Club and taken with her several Newton students on short-term exchange to Glen, N. Y. Her own school community is very similar to some schools in Newton where over half of the students are of Jewish backgrounds and in a similar suburban setting.

The coming month's activities will center on locating two host homes for next year's foreign student, which will also make it possible for Newton to send four students overseas. The chapter liaison to NNHS Parent-Teacher-Student Association is Mrs. Bobbie Goldberg of West Newton, who may be reached at 969-7849 for further information on qualifieations and deadlines regarding host families or scholarship application.

AFS has been very active in Newton since 1953 when the secondary school appointments first started. The scholarships were originally created by surviving members of the American Field Service Ambulancers of the First World War to develop an international exchange between the then much-misunderstood French and German young adults and American college students.

The program has since brought hundreds of young people to Newton (70,000 countrywide) and has sent from Newton over 100 high schoolers to such places as Thailand, India, Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden, Greece, and ITALY. Teacher exchanges have also taken place between Belgium and the United States.

The Newton AFS chapter has always received the enthusiastic support of the school administration, having had as its co-founder and first host family the family of the then NHS principal, Raymond Green. The PTSAs and PTAs throughout the system have provided the bulk of the financial support in the past, along with help from friends and the over 70 AFS returnees now living in Newton.

AFS international scholarships have a commitment to four programs—the teacher and student exchanges (international), domestic (between students from diverse areas in the U. S.), and short-term student exchanges. This year's exchange is with upstate New York farm community of Glen, whose six students are now being hosted by Newton families for the next two weeks.

The experience is not only an adventure in living, but a commitment for those involved to continue in some way to "walk together—talk together" the international AFS way.

Chain banking legislation killed

The Massachusetts Senate has adopted the motion of Sen. Jack H. Backman (D-Brookline) to recommend for additional study legislation which would have permitted commercial banks and other banking institutions to enlarge their powers and create chain banking facilities across county lines.

This action in effect defeats the bills for this session.

Backman stated, "This was an attempt to foist upon the public legislation that would aggravate monopolistic banking practices and place the small banks in jeopardy of being completely swallowed by the large bank holding companies."

"A study of the Big Six bank holding companies in Massachusetts will shock the public. What the people must know is the extent of the present power of the major Big Six holding companies," Backman said.

"Of a total of $13 billion deposited in national and state chartered commercial banking institutions in Massachusetts, almost $11 billion are in the hands of the Big Six holding companies. Of 818 commercial banking offices in the Commonwealth, 500 are owned by the Big Six," Backman went on.

Backman continued, "This bill which was defeated would have allowed the bank holding companies further to control Massachusetts banking and the whole Massachusetts economy.

"The Big Six constitute a hidden government in Massachusetts. A realistic study must disclose the extent of control over banks and business in Massachusetts by this oligarchy of banks.

"A realistic study will disclose that federal and state banking commissions have already allowed a monopoly to develope.

"A careful study must disclose the extent of control over the New England economy by the banking powers.

"The interlocking power of New York banking institutions over Massachusetts must be disclosed.

"The questions that must be addressed are: How dependent upon the large Bix Six holding companies is every small banking institution in Massachusetts for credit on large loans? What is the interlocking relationship between the Big Six holding companies and every public utility in Massachusetts? What is the effect of the Big Six policies on electric rates in Massachusetts? What is the power of the Big Six over the $2.5 billion capital expansion of Massachusetts public utilities that is being undertaken at the expense of the electric-bill-paying public?"

Workshop

The Multi Service Center has been invited to present a Workshop at the Eastern Regional Conference of the Child Welfare League of America.

The conference will be held April 24-25 in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Participants include Martha Donovan, a Weston high chool senior, Rick Michael, clinical coordinator, and Bill Aliski, community relations coordinator, at the Multi Service Center.

The focus of the workshop will be on alternative adolescent services and the use of peer, adult and professional volunteers to deliver services.

Bellotti announces for attorney general

FRANCIS X. BELLOTTI

Francis X. Bellotti former Lieutenant Governor of the Commonwealth has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General.

He said that the "office of Attorney General, an office which is becoming ever more powerful and complex an office which many of the essential changes can be effected."

Touching on a very few of the solutions to the myriad problems that will face the next Attorney General, Bellotti proposes:

"Mandatory prison sentences for the illegal possession of firearms.

"Registration of all firearms.

"More rigid regulations of utility companies and more meaningful representation of the people at rate setting hearings.

"An unrelenting war against organized crime and violence whenever they appear.

"Establishment of a Department of Women's Rights in the Attorney General's Office.

"Protection of the battered consumer.

"An investigation into the use of Federal and State funds that allow the tragedy of a nine year wait for housing for the elderly.

"The diversion of Federal funds from the voluminous studies of police departments to long overdue new equipment, increased salaries and more foot patrolmen.

"The Attorney General must stand outside the political establishment. He must fight everything that is bad in government. His loyalties must run, not to politicians, but to the people. He must have become a good lawyer who has learned his government well enough to change it. He must stand against the world for what he believes to be right and make the hard decisions whatever the cost may be to him personnally.

"I seek to be the lawyer for the people of my State and it is to the people that I now go for support.

"I dream of a government that once again belongs to the people and I am willing to pay the price to make the dream come true."

Bellotti is a graduate of Boston English High, Tufts College with an A.B. degree and Boston College Law School.

He served in World War II as a Navy lieutenant j.g.

He is married and the father of 12 children.

Bellotti defeated incumbent Endicott Peabody in the 1964 Democratic gubernatorial primary, then was defeated for governor by Republican John A. Volpe.

In 1966 he unsuccessfully ran for attorney general against Elliot Richardson and in 1970 was defeated in the Democratic primary for governor.

Special phone number for zoo information

Now you can get information of the zoos without searching for several different phone numbers. Just dial 442-0991, and you will get a recorded message on what's happening at the Children's Zoo, the Blue Hills Trailside Museum, the Franklin Park Zoo, and the Walter D. Stone Memorial Zoo in Stoneham.

Each day the events at each zoo will be included in the message, along with hours, admission, locations, and the best way to get to the zoo of your choice. Write that number down in your "Frequently Called Numbers" section of your phone book. Just dial 442-0991, and you will know what special event is happening at the zoo.

Advice for students from office of VA

Here's some timely advice from the Veterans Administration at Boston for the thousands of veterans studying at colleges and universities under the GI Bill:

Return those "cert" cards promptly to insure payment of education allowances for the final month of training!

The certification of attendance card the veterans receives with his next to final check should be filled out, signed and returned to the VA office where he filed for training. Otherwise, the agency can't prepare his final check for the current school year, according to William F. Connors acting director of the Boston VA office.

For most veterans, final months of training are May or June, and most "cert" cards will be mailed in April. Forms already have been mailed to veterans whose enrollment periods and earlier,however.

Connors cited another reason veterans should return their "cert" cards promptly: "If the card is not reutrned at the end of the current semester," he stressed, "the veterans cannot automatically be enrolled for upcoming summer or fall sessions, "the veterans cannot automatically be enrolled for upcoming summer or fall sessionsl if he plans to continue."

It also was pointed out that veterans attending college under the GI Bill must keep VA informed on changes in the number of dependents or education programs.

"At the szme time," Connors continued, "college registrars should insure that the veteran's enrollment for the school term is certified promptly to the Veterans Administration, to keep his allowance checks coming on time."

Details on education benefits are available at the nearest VA office or from local veterans service organizations.

Actor James Whitmore has been doing a one-man show in concert in which he impersonates the late Will Rogers and uses as text selections from Rogers' writings. CBS will present a special television version of "Will Rogers' U. S. A." in a one-hour program June 9. Whitmore begins a fourweek engagement in his "show" at Broadway's Helen Hayes Theater on May 6.

STRETCH

GASOLINE THIS SUMMER.

Smart motorists are getting the most from every gallon of gasoline. By reducing their usual speed. Avoiding jackrabbit starts and prolonged idling. Checking for proper tire pressure. Keeping their cars in tune. If every driver played it smart and saved just one gallon of gasoline each week, it would save millions of gallons of gasoline. And that's what much of this section is all about.

Tune-up:—A Car Care Service That Brings Prompt Pay-Off

QUESTION: What automotive service begins paying for itself once it is performed?

ANSWER: An engine tune-up.

In these days of skyrocketing gasoline prices, the money saved on gas after a tune-up is performed actually can recoup the cost of the tune-up itself. In addition, bonus benefits from a freshly tuned engine include lower emissions, better passing performance and surer starting.

According to figures issued by Champion Spark Plug Company which contain research findings on the effects of tune-up on car operation:

• Tests show that an 8.2 per cent improvement in gasoline economy can be achieved with a tune-up, when compared to driving a car that's traveled more than 10,000 miles since the last tune-up. Thus, nearly two gallons of gas per tankful can be saved by a newly tuned engine.

* * *

• Champion idle emission tests revealed a tuned engine produced 57 per cent less carbon monoxide and 48 per cent less hydrocarbons than engines in need of tune-up. Corresponding reductions also were realized at driving speeds.

* * *

• Champion tests showed the following increase in passing performance following an overdue tune-up. There was an average 8.6 per cent increase in engine power which would allow the car to pass another vehicle in 8.0 per cent less distance.

* * *

• Tuned engines showed improved starting efficiency according to Champion tests. Untuned engines experience twice as many "won't starts" as tuned engines and required an average 15.4 per cent more time to start.

So, in the words of many automotive experts, "Tune-ups don't cost. They pay"

Spark plugs should be serviced every 5,000 miles and changed every 10,000.

TUNE-UP: If it has been more than 10,000 miles since your last tune-up, have one performed. As part of the tune-up check compression, coil output, charging rate of generator or alternator, install new spark plugs, inspect plug wires and boots, service and replace distributor components, service carburetor, check emission system and replace air cleaner. Also check battery and cables, cranking, starting and operating voltages and electrical wiring.

Compulsory Vehicle Inspections Producing Good Results

Little children leap up and down in glee and their parents smile when they see it This source of pleasure for Chicago residents is a multi-colored "scoreboard" that flashes results of the recently-introduced compulsory emissions tests in the second largest U.S. city.

The scoreboard with its green and red lights that tells motorists they "Pass" or "Fail" their emissions probes may be a showman's touch to the serious program.

But when it flashes green for a car that has just completed the test, the car owner seems to feel genuine joy and a sense of satisfaction that his or her car is not part of Chicago's air pollution problem.

One Third Fail

The emissions inspection program was begun in Chicago in June of 1973. Since then tens of thousands of cars have been probed to see if they meet hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide limits established by the city.

To date, about two out of every three cars have been able to meet the standards. The one-third who have failed have been told the probable causes of their problems and asked to return for a retest after the necessary engine adjustments have been made.

The test itself is short and simple for the motorist. He drives to one of 18 check lanes situated in various parts of Chicago. The car is hooked up to a test equipment van, with an infra-red emissions probe inserted in the tail pipe and a lead attached to the ignition system. Information about the car is fed into a computer and emission readings are taken at two speeds —one at normal idle and a second at fast idle.

It is the computer and test machines, rather than the operator, that determines pass or fail. Since allowable limits differ for age of car and for private or commercial vehicles, the computer instantly compares the emissions of the car being tested and what permissible levels are. Results are simultaneously printed out for the car owner and flashed on the "scoreboard" for him to see.

Cars that pass are adorned with a blue and white sticker which is valid for 12 months.

One Major Problem

Despite the fact that the emissions checks are mandatory, helpful to the environment, fairly fast and painless, the Chicago inspection program has one major problem. Not enough cars are being brought in to utilize the capacity of the check lanes.

According to program director Joe Seliber, "We try to remind motorists time is of the essence. While the law states a deadline for compliance, we urge motorists to have inspections done well before that deadline when facilities aren't crowded."

Pollution Wastes Gas

Seliber believes one approach to getting more cars in for testing lies in the current fuel crisis He said that the same engine malfunctions that cause high emissions are the ones that waste gasoline. Once the high emissions are brought under control, gasoline consumption will go down.

Emissions inspections are conducted without extra cost to motorists as part of their annual Chicago car license fees. There are approximately one million vehicles in the city.

All eyes are on the "scoreboard" that flashes results of the mandatory emissions test all Chicago cars must undergo. Since introduced in June 1973, tests have been held for tens of thousands of Chicago car-owners. About two of every three owners get the green "pass" light and one-third the red "fail" light. The "abort" light is for a small percentage of vehicles that cannot be tested due to major engine malfunctions or unadaptability to the testing equipment.

Inefficient Cooling Systems Can Cut Gasoline Mileage

No one pours gasoline in his radiator, but a car's cooling system can be responsible for reducing gasoline mileage. So can other car parts that seemingly have no connection with fuel consumption.

Since the condition of the cooling system affects engine performance, abnormalities in cooling temperatures curtail gasoline mileage. A faulty thermostat, causing an engine to run too cool, creates a condition where more gas is needed to maintain power. An overheating engine also hampers efficient combustion of fuel.

Inside the engine, a stuck heat riser valve also wastes gas. When this valve is not operating as it should, fuel is not vaporized efficiently and excess raw gas escapes into the exhaust.

As for the exhaust system itself, if there is any obstruction in it, fuel economy suffers. The reason is the obstruction will make the engine work harder and thus use more gas.

Here are a few tips from professional drivers that can greatly increase your gasoline mileage:

- Avoid prolonged idling such as at a railroad crossing. It's far more economical to shut off the engine.
- Slow down from your usual speed, keeping a light, steady foot on the gas pedal.
- Check tire pressure regularly. Underinflation especially hurts fuel economy.
- Avoid jackrabbit starts Do the same for sudden acceleration while driving
- Keep your car in tune. Tests show a tune-up can save over a gallon of gasoline in every tankful.

Proper Car Care Crucial to Cleaner Air

Federal Environmental Chief Calls Untuned Motor 'Trouble'

By RUSSELL E. TRAIN
Administrator, Environmental Protection Agency

Automobiles are an important part of the American way of life. Since the 1920's, while the population of the United States doubled, the number of automobiles has increased 800 percent.

Today we have nearly 100 million registered automobiles in this country, virtually one for every two persons. And three out of every four Americans are licensed to drive those automobiles.

Our entire way of life has been restructured, especially since the end of World War II, to accomodate the tremendous increase in the number of automobiles and the mobility which they afford. We have built our lives around the automobile and are now almost totally dependent upon some form of personal transportation.

Russell E. Train, Administrator, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Relying on the automobile's capabilities most of us have situated ourselves beyond practical walking or cycling distances of relatives, friends, jobs, stores, churches, medical and recreational facilities, libraries and theaters. And on top of this, in most areas public transit today is either inadequate or nonexistent.

Major Pollutants

As a result the automobile has become the single most important source of three major air pollutants.

It is estimated that in 1971, on a nationwide basis, gasoline powered motor vehicles contributed 43 percent of the hydrocarbons, 62 percent of the carbon monoxide, and 31 percent of the nitrogen oxide emitted into the air.

In many cities, however, these motor vehicles contributed far more than the national averages — reaching the 90 percent range in some cities.

The Clean Air Act of 1970 requires the automobile industry to reduce these emissions by at least 90 percent by 1976, as compared with 1970 or 1971 emission levels.

Even with these major reductions, the Environmental Protection Agency has determined that more than 35 metropolitan areas in the United States, having a combined population of 88 million, would not be able to meet the health-related air quality standards of the Clean Air Act by the law's 1975 deadline unless stricter controls were imposed on pollution sources.

Half Reach Goal

About one-half of these cities can reach their goals by being tougher on stationary sources, primarily industrial and commercial facilities, and through transit improvements, parking restrictions and automotive inspection and maintenance programs.

Proper engine maintenance, enforced by sound inspection programs, is an important part of every community's effort to reduce and control air pollution. The amount of pollution reduction through inspection and maintenance programs varies among cities because nearly every city has to cope with circumstances somewhat different from the others.

Portland Acts

Portland, Oregon anticipates a 12 percent reduction in pollutants through its inspection and maintenance program; Denver and Sacramento look for about a 7 percent reduction and Boston about 3 percent.

Annual emissions inspection in State-operated facilities will cost an estimated $2 per vehicle. Annual maintenance costs are expected to be in the $20 to $30 range for vehicles which fail the inspection test. Most of this maintenance is routine work which would normally have been performed voluntarily by prudent motorists.

In addition to the pollution-control benefits, the Department of Interior estimates that an auto tuneup every six months will cut American oil consumption by 140,000 barrels a day.

A properly tuned car may seem like a small way to cope with today's pollution and energy problems. And yet such an ordinary procedure may well be crucial in many situations. Of all the transportation control strategies devised to reduce air pollution, the one which causes the most public concern — because it entails the greatest personal inconvenience — is the "Reduction of Vehicle Miles Traveled."

Means "Drive Less"

In plain language, that means taking steps to insure that people drive less. New York, Los Angeles, Baltimore and Washington, D.C. have included such measures in their plans. Obviously, the more pollution can be controlled through other measures, the less need there will be for more stringent controls.

An untuned car can, indeed, be a lot of trouble.

CHECK TIRES IN A.M.

For accurate tire pressure readings, be sure to check yours before you've driven too many miles. Constant, high speed travel will generally increase air pressure.

Faulty Components Can Cause Drag, Waste Fuel

Care for Your Car

If you think the gasoline shortage is a drag, then there is something you can do to make it less of one. Make sure critical components of your car are in good condition to eliminate conditions that waste fuel.

For instance, lack of maintenance in areas such as tires, brakes, shocks, wheel alignment and transmission can affect gasoline mileage as well as safety. In some cases, these faulty components help create a "drag" on the engine, thus requiring more gasoline to keep the car running.

Underinflated tires create such a drag. So can poorly adjusted brakes, especially when the driver has a habit of "riding" the brake pedal. Gas-wasting engine drag also can result from improperly aligned wheels.

Worn shocks also can cause road wandering with resultant fuel waste.

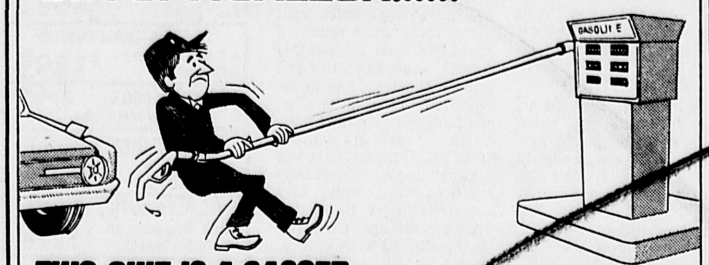

Slipping transmission bands or low transmission fluid levels can hinder proper changing of automatic transmission gears, thereby causing fuel wastage.

Neglected, these components can cost you money in premature tire and brake wear as well as possibility of expensive transmission repairs. With the extra bonus of better fuel economy and safety, routine maintenance of these items is more important than ever.

Just about everything you'd want to know about caring for a car is contained in the Automotive Information Council's "Handbook for Automobile Maintenance." The booklet explains how various systems work, how to spot potential trouble and how to maintain various components. Copies may be ordered for 25 cents from AIC Handbook, P.O. Box 7593, Chicago, Ill. 60677.

KNOW HOW TO GET MORE MILES OUT OF A GALLON.....

THIS QUIZ IS A GASSER:

What does the expression 'Mind Your P's and Q's' mean? According to some theories it was an English bartender's admonition to mind the Pints and Quarts he was dispensing. Today, the watchword is more appropriately, 'Mind your G's' or gallons.

This quiz is intended to help motorists prove how much they know about operating and maintaining a car to get the best possible gasoline mileage.

Knowing the right answers will do more than gratify your ego. It can also save you money in this time of rising prices and dwindling gasoline supply:

1. A freshly tuned engine can save you this much gas compared to one in need of tune-up.
   A. There's no measurable difference.
   B. About a gallon per tankful.
   C. Nearly two gallons per tankful.
2. Replacing worn spark plugs alone can save this much gasoline.
   A. About a half gallon per tankful.
   B. Better than a gallon per tankful.
   C. Almost three gallons per tankful.
3. Switching to a higher octane gasoline than your car requires has the following effect on fuel economy.
   A. None.
   B. It actually increases fuel consumption.
   C. It can save about 25 per cent fuel.
4. By running on underinflated tires you
   A. Burn less gasoline.
   B. Burn more gasoline.
   C. Do nothing more than provide a more comfortable ride.
5. When defective, the following adversely affects gasoline mileage.
   A. Wheel alignment.
   B. Windshield wipers.
   C. Alternator.
6. Brake problems affect gas mileage except
   A. When brakes are improperly adjusted.
   B. When you habitually ride the brake pedal.
   C. When brake lights aren't working.
7. A dirty air filter means wasted gas because:
   A. It produces an improper air-fuel mixture in the carburetor.
   B. Should dirt get into spark plugs, they can't function properly.
   C. The added weight creates "hyperstatic flux."
8. According to some sources running your car's air conditioning can cost you as much as
   A. A mile per gallon.
   B. Two miles per gallon.
   C. Three miles per gallon.
9. Only the following has no effect on gasoline mileage.
   A. Jack rabbit starts.
   B. Unnecessary use of turn signals.
   C. Prolonged periods of idling.
10. Reducing speeds from 70 to 50 miles per hour can
    A. Save over 20 per cent gas mileage.
    B. Cost you 5 per cent more gasoline.
    C. Has no effect.

ANSWERS: 1. C, according to tests conducted by Champion Spark Plug Company; 2. B, according to the same tests; 3. A. Consult your owner's manual for recommended gas; 4. B, not to mention tire wear. (Check for correct tire pressure when you get gas.); 5. A; 6. C; 7. A; 8. C; 9. B; 10. A Gasoline prices haven't soared to the point where the fuel will be a substitute for cash at the bank. And a savings account for gas is not one of the services offered by even the most innovative financial institution. But this young motorist and her banker friend demonstrate the fact that up to two gallons of gasoline per tankful can be saved when a car's engine is tuned. Driving sensibly is another sure-fire way of helping to solve the energy shortage.

Tips on Safe Trailering

If you are an experienced trailer hand, you might want to turn the page. But if you're one of the growing army of motorists who's going to haul a trailer for the first time this summer, these tips from the Ontario Ministry of Transport can help make the experience a more pleasant one.

Whether you'll be pulling a sleek, 35-footer from coast to coast or hauling some furniture to the cottage in a rented two-wheeled trailer, certain driving techniques are recommended.

STARTING: Accelerate carefully. Take it slowly and easily.

TAKING CURVES: Stay close to the middle of your lane.

TURNING —

Right Turn: Look in your right mirror. Signal, slow down. If turn is sharp, move ahead until car's front wheels are well ahead of curb . . . then turn to the right.

Left Turn: Check traffic. Signal. Proceed slowly. When you make your turn, drive well into intersection in order to swing wide, to allow for the trailer.

SLOWING, STOPPING: A sudden stop can jacknfe your trailer or shift your load, so keep a greater distance than normally between you and the car ahead. Keep out of the fast lanes and maintain a speed that makes sudden stops and slow-ups unnecessary

* * *

PASSING: When towing a trailer you can't accelerate as fast as without it. Then too your car plus trailer is much longer. Before you pass, make sure there's enough time and room. When you have passed, allow more room before you move back to your lane. Don't cut in and swerve . . . this can make your trailer swing and sway.

* * *

BEING PASSED: Help other drivers pass you where necessary. If you're holding up a line of traffic, the right thing to do is signal, pull off, and let them pass.

If a large bus or transport passes you, air pressure may push the rear of your trailer to the right. Almost instantly, this pressure will push the front of your trailer. Be prepared to steer out of this situation. Accelerating a bit may help. Braking will not.

BACKING: Back very slowly. Turn wheel slightly, then straighten. Steer by a series of slight turns.

Task Force Proposes Uniformity In Safety, Emissions, Noise Tests

It's a 95 mile drive from Benton Harbor, Mich. to Chicago, Ill. Yet in that short distance a motorist will pass through jurisdictions with three different types of vehicle inspection laws.

In Michigan, the only inspection law is a random spot test of a few safety-related items. Indiana has compulsory vehicle inspection on an annual basis. Chicago has no safety inspection law but has compulsory emissions tests.

To elminate such confusion and help alleviate three major problems involving motor vehicles, a new group has proposed a solution. The Motor and Equipment Manufacturers Association has formed a periodic motor vehicle inspection Task Force.

According to Task Force Chairman Wayne E. Rapp of Walker Manufacturing Co.; "The Task Force's objective is to help formulate and establish at the state level, with federal approval, a uniform national periodic motor vehicle inspection program which includes safety, emissions and noise inspection standards and procedures."

Only 31 states have compulsory inspection of safety items like tires, brakes and lights. Along with Chicago, New Jersey has emissions inspection laws.

According to car experts, inspection laws now in effect have value beyond contributing to vehicle safety Inspections also make motorists more conscious of the over-all condition of their cars, including engine components affecting lower emissions and better fuel economy.

ADVICE TO WOMEN DRIVE . and MEN, Too...

from DeDe Benson... a woman who does

Dear Dede:

I am a minister in a small town which I do not wish to identify. Along with a small salary, I am provided with a car. I receive no allowance for gasoline, oil, or regular maintenance of the car. Frankly on what I earn, I cannot afford the new tires, brake job and new shocks that the car desperately needs. I really fear for my safety every time I go out in the car which is extensively used in my calling. I do not want to appear to be ungrateful or to make it seem I am asking our congregation for more money. Do you have any suggestions?

THE PARSON
(Town Withheld)

Dear Parson:

From the work your car requires now and will need soon, it appears that a dent of several hundred dollars would be put in your budget. Admittedly that's a large sum of money for a minister to spare. But, don't be afraid of discussing the matter with your Church Board. I am certain they don't want their minister involved in a tragic accident. Perhaps they can make some arrangement with congregants who are in the auto repair business to maintain the car. No matter who must pay for the repairs, future high repair costs can be anticipated by using a monthly savings plan, that is putting aside a certain amount of money each month exclusively for car expenses. Some months, there will be a big surplus in the fund. Other months you'll need to tap the till. Respectfully suggest that church set aside a monthly stipend of so each month to maintain their car which on loan to you.

Dear Dede:

Can you help me win an argument with my dad? I've taken and passed driver training and am ready to get my license. But my father thinks I am not ready for a license. Not because I can't drive well (he admits that I do). But he insists I show him I know how to change a tire and "jump" start a car before he'll let me get a license. He says a young lady has no business taking a chance of being stranded with a flat tire or a car that won't start. I think he's just using this as an excuse for me not to drive his car. Can't you tell my dad he's wrong since he does read your column.

CHERYL V.
Columbia, Mo.

Dear Cheryl:

Your dad's attitude may be unique but I can't say I completely disagree with him. It's too bad that more driver training classes don't spend more time teaching about car care, and simple repairs. Changing a tire and using a booster cable properly should be easy for anyone in decent physical condition male or female. Since you don't indicate you are anything but a normally healthy young lady, why not give it a try. Show dad you can change that tire and start a car with a cable. Good luck driving.

TUNE-UPS SAVE GAS.

A lot of it. In nationwide fuel economy tests, motorists' cars were tested before and after a tune-up. Results showed that a tune-up with new Champion spark plugs saved, on the average, a gallon of gasoline in every tankful. Considering that 3 of every 5 cars on the road need a tune-up right now, tune-ups alone could save us millions of gallons of gasoline each week.

Tune-ups benefit us in other ways, too. Quicker acceleration for safer passing. Dependable starts. Plus a substantial reduction in emissions.

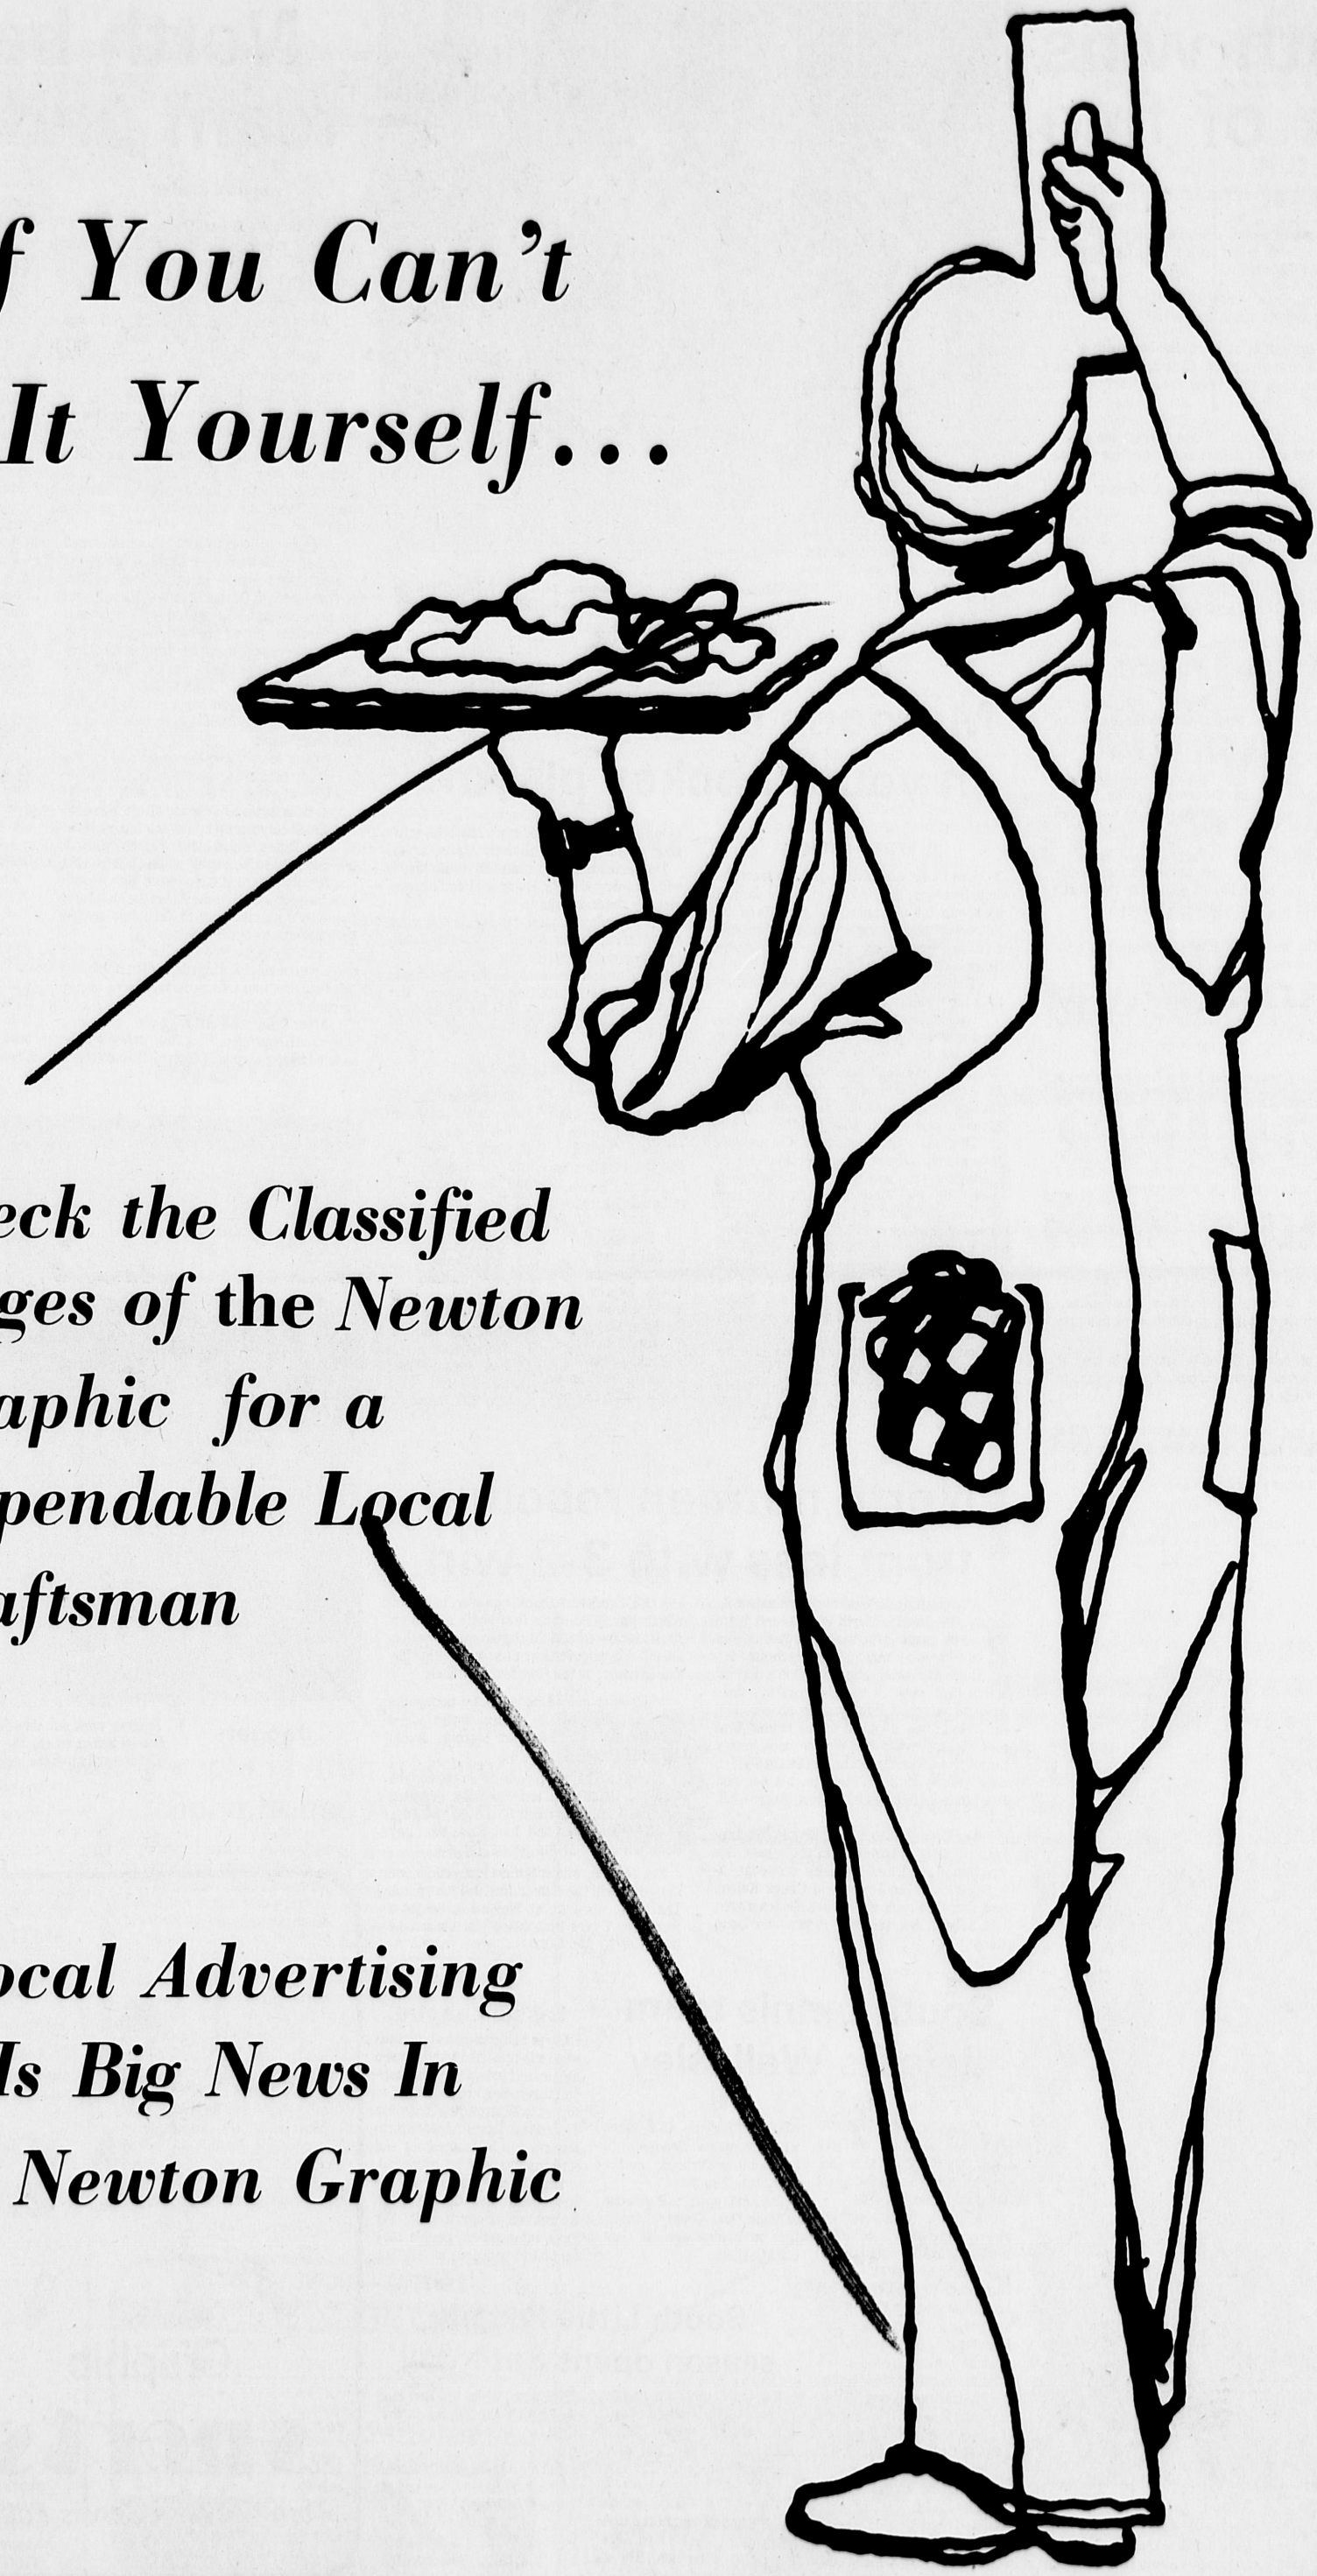

See your mechanic regularly for a Champion tune-up. Once a year or every 10,000 miles.

South wins four of five

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

Due to poor weather and cancellations the Newton South baseball team was called upon to play five straight games during vacation week.

The defending Dual County League champions responded with four wins and a single loss.

South opened its season at Acton-Boxboro with a 6-5 victory behind the strong pitching of senior Ken Bianco. The Lions, however, committed seven errors, compared to three for Acton.

South almost lost the game in the seventh inning as Acton came back from a 6-1 deficit and scored four runs.

The Lions' offense produced six hits. Outfielder Steve Rittenberg had two hits.

Bianco had excellent control as he struck out seven batters and walked one in seven innings.

In their second game, the Lions made good use of the squeeze play as they downed Lincoln-Sudbury, 9-7.

Winning pitcher Mike Stockman and Rittenberg both squeezed home a pair of runs. Each player batted in three runs overall

South again had six hits; centerfielder Mike Malkasian banged out two safeties. The Lions' ability to steal bases was a major factor in the victory.

South carried a 9-4 lead into the seventh inning. Bianco was called upon to replace Stockman, and he preserved South's win

Last Thursday the Lions' bats came alive as South defeated Wayland, 16-5. South led 6-3 going into the fourth inning and erupted for eight runs to take a 14-3 lead.

A big blow in the fourth frame was a two-run triple by sophomore Bruce Jennings.

Another sophomore, Phil Small, had two hits and three runs batted in in the game. Tony Lombardo and Rittenberg each had a pair of hits.

Junior Chandler Bosworth pitched a fine game to get the win. Junior Dave Kase relieved and also pitched well.

Bedford handed South its first defeat, 2-1. Bedford's starting pitcher allowed only one hit in five innings, a solid shot through the middle by Bruce Jennings. A Bedford reliever blanked South in the final two innings.

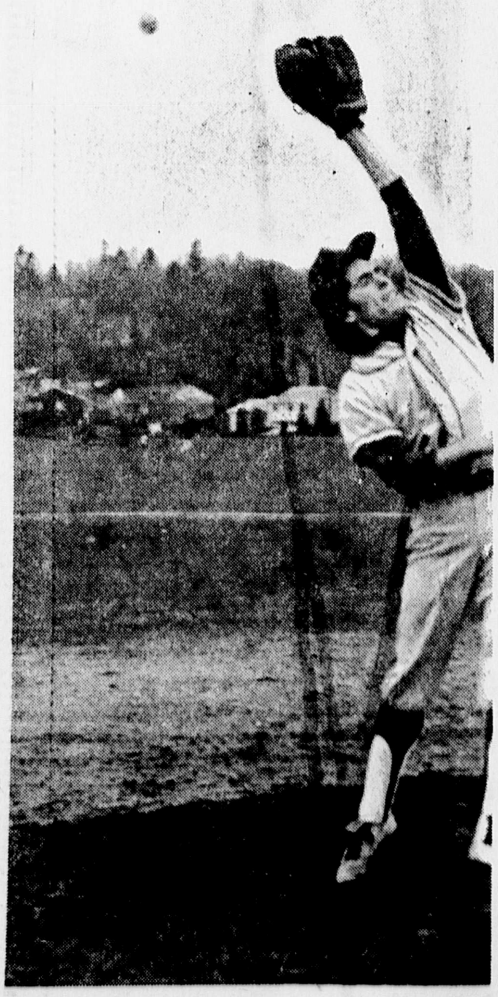

Lion pitchers Steve LeBlanc and Kase pitched well, allowing three hits between them.

Last Saturday South picked up its fourth win, defeating Concord-Carlisle, 7-1. Bianco pitched another strong game, striking out six batters and walking no one in seven innings.

Small was the offensive star as he knocked in four of South's seven runs. Small, a catcher, batted in eight runs in three games last week.

Rittenberg has had seven hits in 14 times at bat. All of South's regulars have had at least three hits. Coach Neil McPhee has used junior John Bamel and seniors Hal Bennett and Bill Tartar at first base.

(Note: South defeated Weston, 9-3, on Monday. Bosworth was the winning pitcher and Steve Tresca had four BRI's.)

Maroons battle Cougars in youth hockey playoff

By RED BULLWINKLE

Led by an unassisted goal by speedster John Sweeney, the Newton Maroons climbed back into the championship playoffs of the Newton Youth Hockey Association's senior division Tuesday night with a 2-0 win over the Newton Cougars.

The series now stands at 2 wins, 1 loss and 1 tie for Cougars.

Late in the final period, wing Steve Sera, fed a rink-wide pass by classy center-iceman Chris Harney, fired a rising shot to beat Cougars goalie John Kankese.

At the other end of the rink, Maroon goalies Scott Chisholm and Bob Rooney turned in a sparkling shutout effort.

This was a turnabout from the previous three games, which Cougars dominated. Last Sunday's 3-1 win was typical, with two goals scored by the Dave D'Amico to Larry Magnosa and fired in by Mike Mosca. The second goal was scored by D'Amico on a fine feed through the mid-ice zone by Mosca.

The final Cougars goal was the result of a rink-length dash by Mike DiSabato on a corner feed by Chip Doherty, and Norm Cadman converted DiSabato's goal-mouth pass for the final score.

Joe Farina laced in a deflected save for an unassisted tally to prevent a shutout.

Cougars, coached by Andy Levin, will have to return to form to fain the championship. Coach Bill Harney's Maroons must keep winning to stay alive in this matchup.

The series has been generally well-played, with two-way skating, sharp goaltending, and steeady defensive play.

Next Sunday it's all up for grabs once again, with the prospect of sudden-death overtime not so farfetched.

But no matter who wins, all the participants in the Newton Youth Hocky program—the players, coaches, league officials, spectators, and parents—are the real winners.

North netmen rebound from loss with 3-2 win

After waiting nine extra days to start its season, the Newton North boys' tennis team opened by splitting two matches, getting shut out by Weston 5-0 and beating Winchester 3-2.

Rain and snow wiped out the Tigers' entire first week of matches making their April 18 match at Weston their opener. The final result was a repeat of the teams' first meeting last year as Weston took every match. Neal Kravitz lost to Ken Swain 6-4, 6-3, Baird Haney to Scott Stettner, 6-0, 6-0, and Bob Low was defeated by Clayton Rogers, 6-2, 6-3.

Newton's doubles fared only slightly better, as both teams lost in three sets. Stu Brightman and David Bikofsky were edged 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, by Jim Breck and Chuck Keller, and Lincoln Frank and Frank Bodengraven lost 2-6, 6-1, 6-4, to Peter Savitz and Doug Reny.

The Tigers came back, however, to defeat Winchester 3-2 in their first home match on April 22. Low earned the decisive point with a 7-6, 5-7, 6-3, win over Ray Champoux after the teams had split the first four matches.

Winchester gained its points by taking the other singles matches as Jim Wynn edged Kravitz 6-4, 4-6, 7-6, and Marcus Julian defeated Haney 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.

Newton got two points by sweeping the doubles. Brightman and Bikofsky defeated Drennal Lowell and Bill Shean 6-7, 6-2, 6-2, while Bodengraven and John Kosa beat Jay Houlihan and Jeff Forget 4-6, 6-1, 6-4.

The netmen, who still must reschedule two matches, will have their first league match Thursday, April 25, at Weymouth South, a team the Tigers beat twice last season by scores of 3-2 and 5-0.

South tennis team defeats Wellesley

BY MARK SHUSTER

Newton South's varsity tennis team got off to a successful start recently as it defeated Wellesley, 5-0.

Bill Karol, playing number one singles, defeated Wellesley's Jeff Eagleson in two consecutive sets, 6-1, 9-7. Humberto Fagundes won his second singles match, 6-0, 6-0. In third singles, Dan Braverman, playing his first varisty match, won 6-3, 6-2.

South's first doubles team of Jeff Levin and Doug Fisher won 6-1, 6-4. The second doubles team of Tom Karol and Mike Sklar had some trouble, but emerged with a 6-4, 6-4 victory.

South Coach Val Cyr was pleased with the team's performance, but he refuses to be too optimistic about this season. He feels a real test for South will come this week when it meets Needham, a perennial powerhouse in the Bay State League.

The Lions open their defense of their Dual County League title on Friday against Concord-Carlisle.

Lassie League

Girls in sixth grade or between the ages of 12 and 15 who are interested in playing softball this spring are requested to report to Albemarle Fieldhouse Thursday, April 25 at 6 p.m. Rosters will be handed out and scrimmages will be arranged.

The Lassie League will be sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department. For more information, people may contact Fran Towle at 969-3171.

South Little League season opens Saturday

Newton SouthLittle League opens its 1974 baseball season this Saturday (April 27) at Richardson Field on Allen Avenue, Waban.

The Giants will go against the Yankees in the first game, starting at 10:30 a.m. The defending champion Braves will then play the Colts at 12:30 p.m., while the Red Sox will battle the Tigers in the final contest, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

During the regular season, which ends June 17, weeknight games will be played at 6 p.m., while Saturday games will begin at 1 p.m. All games are played at Richardson Field in Waban.

North baseball team undefeated

By RICK GORDON

Ed Aucoin's three-hit shutout of Waltham last week was a highlight of brilliant Newton North pitching which produced three victories and extended the Tigers' season opening win streak to five games.

Aucoin and Steve DiBenedetto combined on a six-hitter, and the Tigers' offense had a late rally for a 5-4 comeback win over Weymouth North.

Two days later, John Carey, fresh off his no-hit performance, scattered four singles as the Tigers exploded to a 12-1 rout of Arlington.

Aucoin's stellar performance capped the string as Tiger hurlers have yielded only thirteen hits in their last four outings erasing doubts about the quality of their pitching staff.

Weymouth North scored three unearned runs before Newton even came to bat in the Tigers' third home game of the season. Errors by Keith Glasser and Bob Kinsella put runners on first and second with none out. DiBenedetto retired the next two hitters but couldn't escape trouble as doubles by Steve Buckley and Roy Weeks put the Tigers in a three run hole.

Newton loaded the bases in their first but Weymouth hurler John Horgan held them off the scoreboard.

In the fourth, Weymouth pushed across their only earned run as Weeks singled home Buckley who had led the inning with a triple.

Aucoin relieved DiBenedetto in the fifth and faced only six men in a two inning stint.

The Tigers rallied in the fifth inning. With one out, a Kinsella double and a DiBenedetto single put runners at the corners. Bob Vona's two-bagger drove home Kinsella and John Connolly's sacrifice fly to deep left scored DiBenedetto to cut the gap to 4-2.

Jack Ryan started another rally in the sixth with a single. Kinsella tripled down the left field line and DiBenedetto laced a single to center to tie the score.

After DiBenedetto stole second, Weymouth shortstop, Rick Ries, threw wildly to third trying to retire DiBenedetto on Vona's grounder and DiBenedetto came across to score the winning run.

DiBenedetto returned to the mound in the seventh and saved the game for Aucoin while picking up his sixth and seventh strikeouts. The Arlington contest was quite different. Newton scored eight times in the opening inning.

John Connolly sparked the early burst with a three run homer to left. Arlington was no match for the Tigers as Newton added single markers in the second, third, fifth and sixth innings. Arlington's Don Murphy ruined Carey's shutout bid with a run scoring single in the fifth.

Ryan, DiBenedetto and Dan Turner had two hits apiece among Newton's eleven safties. Ryan also scored three times and drove home two runs. Other RBIs came from Joe Astone, Carey, and two from Kinsella.

Waltham High came to Lincoln Park suffering the after-effects of a 16-0 shelling by Brockton. Ed Aucoin refused to let the Hawks recover at the Tigers' expense, blanking Waltham on three hits.

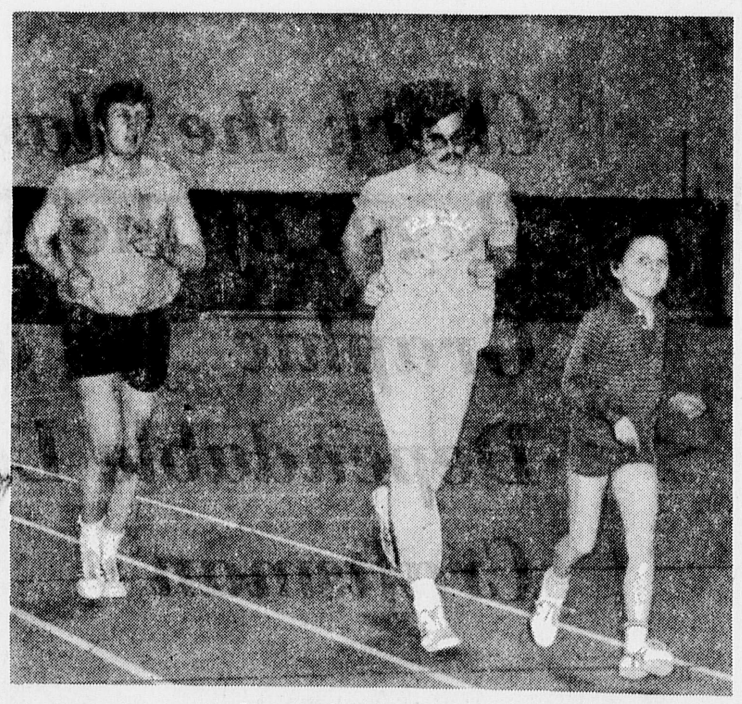

Singles by Ryan and Connolly sandwiched around a costly double error gave Newton a pair of unearned runs in the first inning.

In the second, four consecutive walks produced Newton's third run with DiBenedetto's pass sending home Aucoin.

The final run came in the third. Turner singled and with two out Glasser did the same. Waltham apparently had Glasser picked off but a wild throw trying to cut off the run at the plate raised the score to 4-0.

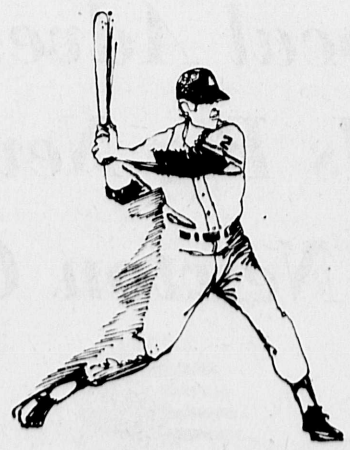

Aucoin retired the first ten batters he faced and finished with six strikeouts and no walks. The sophomore's only problems were in the fifth when Guzzi tripled with two out and in the seventh when Waltham pushed another runner to third on a hit, an error and a fielder's choice. Aucoin got out of both jams.

The Tigers stand now at 5-0 overall and 4-0 in Suburban League play. They play their first road game tomorrow in Cambridge followed by a Saturday trip to Andover. Their next home game will be Monday versus Brookline.

Joggers

Joggers work out seven days a week at the Newton North High School indoor track. The jogging program will continue until the end of April when the joggers will move outside.

Softball

Teams are being formed and practices have started for women softball players 18 years of age and older.

All games will be played on Sunday and Wednesday evenings beginning in mid-May or around June 1.

There is still room for teams and-or individuals. For information, women may contact Fran Towle at the Newton Recreation Department, 969-3171.

Divers talk to cub scouts

Rusty Carter and Douglas Kelly of Newton Divers recently gave a demonstration of skin and scuba equipment to the Cub Scouts of Pack 243 at St. Paul's Church, Newton Highlands.

Emphasis was placed on skin diving and the type of equipment required; mask, snorkel and fins. They also explained how to purchase proper fitting equipment for this sport.

Paul De Lesdernier, club dive master, and Bill Carter were in attendance to give assistance. Underwater slides taken in Florida were also shown. Other groups who would be interested in this presentation may call De Lesdernier at 244-1650.

Champions

Outbound

One of the most quickly growing activities in the outdoors is hiking. Hiking is a vigorous walk through the woods or countryside usually with some destination in mind. As a rule, if you can walk you can hike!

However, if you are at all unsure concerning your physical fitness build up your distances slowly. If you have any physical problems (e.g. a heart condition), or even if you suspect one, PLEASE consult your physician before involving yourself in this pursuit.

One of the best conditioners as a prelude to hiking is walking. I strongly recommend it. Walking certain pre-set distances on level ground will help you determine your capabilities These distances can then be attempted upon wooded terrain with a light pack and an easy mind.

If you are a beginner take it easy. Don't set lofty goals for yourself. This sometimes quickly discourages your future as a hiker; and may possibly be injurious.

As you become more experienced as a hiker, you will sense a natural rhythm to your step. Keep attuned to this rhythm. It is the secret to lengthening your range; and lessening your fatigue. Set a pace and don't try to hurry it. Relish it!

The essence of any outdoor activity is enjoyment. Let yourself become spellbound by the sublime enigma of your surroundings. Let your intellect explore, your senses roam. The search is endless, the enjoyment, boundless.

Wallace Stevens, a poet, tells us of the continuing process of nature and its beauty:

"Deer walk upon our mountains, and the quail
Whistle about us their spontaneous cries.

Paintings at Library

Echo Bridge, the Mills Falls and other scenes familiar to Newton residents are on view at the Newtonville Branch of the Newton Free Library, now until the end of the month, in the watercolors of Landis A. Nazzaro, Newton Highlands painter.

Nazzaro, the retired art director of the Boston Record American newspaper, delights in doing watercolors, explaining that oils are too slow for him.

A member of the one hundredth anniversary class of Boston English High School and vice president of that class, Nazzaro has worked in the art world all his life starting with package designing back in the twenties.

Matthysse to speak

Steven W. Matthysse, assistant professor of psychobiology in the psychiatry department of Harvard Medical School, will deliver the Fried Lecture April 29 at 8:30 p.m. in the Usen Auditorium of Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Matthysse, who is also research director of the Schizophrenia Research Program of the Supreme Council 33rd Degree Scottish Rite, will speak on biochemical, neurophysiological and behavioral models of schizophrenia.

Matthysse, who holds a Ph.D. in clinical psychology from Harvard University, is visiting scientist at the New England Regional Primate Research Center.

Golf course offered

With summer rapidly approaching, thoughts are turning to the outdoors and the local golf courses.

To insure that area golfers turn in good scores this year, the Newton Community Service Centers is offering its spring course in golf.

Under the direction of Dan Meany, classes will meet Wednesday or Friday evenings during the hours of 7, 8, or 9 p.m. Scheduled to begin on Wednesday, May 1, or Friday, May 3, the lessons will continue for seven weeks.

The one hour class provides instruction in many areas aimed at improving one's golf game including such areas as stance, swing, selection of clubs, chipping, putting, long, short and middle irons, and woods. Classes are limited to six to insure individual attention; therefore, early registration is recommended.

Further information is available by phoning the center at 969-5906 or visiting its main office and site of the classes at the Newton Community Center, 429 Cherry St. in West Newton.

Long Shots

People invited to camp open house April 28

Newton residents interested in registering their children at the Jacob and Rose Grossman Camp this summer are invited to attend the camp's open house on Sunday, April 28, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Parents will have an opportunity to see the camp facilities and speak with members of the camp staff.

The Jacob and Rose Grossman Camp is located on 75 acres in the Hale Reservation in Westwood. The camp is operated by the Associated Jewish Community Centers, a constituent agency of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

Geared for children aged 5-15, the Grossman Camp provides a program of sports and cultural activities. The camp also aims to create an atmosphere where children can build up a strong feeling of Jewish identity and pride, according to Herbert Schneider, Camp Director.

In addition to the regular four- and eight-week general camping sessions which start on July 1, several two-week special interest programs are being offered this year, including "First Time Camp," "Kibbutz Camp," and "Sports and Craft Camp."

For more information about the Grossman Camp, people may call 542-1870; after May 1, 329-9300.

Auction at temple May 11

Temple Beth Avodah will hold its 5th annual auction Saturday, May 11 at 8 p.m. in the Temple Social Hall, 45 Puddingstone Ln.

Arnold Levberg, chairman and Barbara Fisher, co-chairman have planned an evening including a free late night snack at the conclusion of the auction. Joel Miller, professional auctioneer, will keep the bidding fast and interesting.

The admission charge includes free refreshments, door prizes and parking.

Merchandise will be placed on display at 7 p.m. to allow for ample browsing time before the auction. A special drawing will be held at 8 p.m. at which time an extra-special "early bird" prize will be awarded.

Newton church begins fund raising campaign

Myrtle Baptist Church of West Newton, under the leadership of Rev. Harold A. Pulley, has started a capital funds campaign for its renovation program.

The Rev. D. Ralph Nichols will direct the campaign from April 19 through May 2.

Rev. Nichols is a member of a team of campaign directors in the American Baptist Extension Corporation of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, Valley Forge, Pennsylvania. Its president is Rev. Wesley Dixon.

Nichols holds degrees from Southwest Baptist College and William Jewell College and has attended Andover Newton Theological Seminary, Newton, Mass. and has pastored in Missouri, Rhode Island and Massachusetts. He now lives in Natick, Mass.

Myrtle Baptist Church will be 100 years old in October of 1974 and plans by that date to have renovated the basement to provide classrooms, nursery, kitchen, men's and ladies' lounges and rest rooms, and the sanctuary will be rearranged with new pews, etc. An overflow area will be immediately adjoining the narthex. There will be a library and additional overflow space in the balcony.

The outside of the church will be covered, the grounds landscaped and parking provided.

Pulley is the renovation chairman and Thomas A. Turner is the capital funds campaign chairman. The other members of the Renovation Committee are: Howard Haywood; Walter Haywood, advanced gifts chairman; Mrs. Leahnora Hill; Mrs. Alice Hunter, hospitality chairman; Matthew Jefferson, centennial chairman; Mrs. Lillie B. Jefferson, centennial vice chairman; Ronald Mitchell, publicity chairman; and Ms. Mary Winston.

The Men of Myrtle, Howard Haywood, president, have already begun some of the work necessary to the renovation and the women of the church have provided meals.

For further information people may call the church office (332-5870).

String music at First Baptist

A program of string music will be given Saturday evening, April 27, at 8 p.m. in the chapel of the First Baptist Church of Newton, Beacon and Centre Streets, Newton Centre.

The program will consist of solos, a quartet, duets and a trio, including the Concerto grosso op. 3, No. 11, of Vivaldi for string quartet and piano, concertos and sonatas by Vivaldi and Handel, a number of Rubenstein, dances by Corelli-Boetje, the Concerto in E minor of Nardini, the Second Polonaise Brillante op. 21 of Wieniawski, the Max Bruch concerto in G minor op. 26, and the Mendelssohn-Bartholdy Trio in C minor op. 66 for piano, violin and cello.

Those taking part include David Boruchoff, Douglas Christian, Alison May, Jennifer Peck, Lynette Peck, Elizabeth Sooho, Barbara Williams, Marjorie Williams, Barbara Wright and Peter Zonis of Newton, all pupils of Marguerite Estaver. Admission is free.

St. Jean's announces registration

St. Jean's School has announced its registration for Kindergarten through eighth grade will take place Monday, April 29, and Tuesday, April 30, from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the school 229 Watertown St., Newton.

There are openings in all classes. Please bring the Baptismal Certificate and all the child's medical records. If you are unable to register at this time and you are interested in enrolling your children please feel free to call Sr. Noella at 244-6908.

There is a registration fee of $10 which will be applied towards the tuition.

Methodists host Mideast program

The Women's Society of the Newtonville United Methodist Church will sponsor an all-church dinner Wednesday, May 1, at 6:30 p.m. at the church.

The dinner committee consists of Mrs. Charles E. Smith and Mrs. Fred Hawkins as co-chairmen and Mrs. Leroy Coleman, Mrs. Jeff Piercy, Miss Lucy Skinner and other members of the society.

The program "The Mideast Today," will be presented with some slides of the area by Professor Norman Totten of Bentley College.

Totten is teaching two courses on the Mideast at the college and is known as a lecturer in this subject at various other schools and organizations. Since 1961, Totten has traveled widely in the Mideast and has assisted in archeological expeditions in those areas.

Obituaries

Annie E. Berner

Services for Mrs. Annie (Eser) Berner were held Friday (April 19) in Corkin Chapel of Temple Israel in Boston. Rabbi Roland B. Gittelsohn and Cantor Murray Simon officiated.

Interment is in Sharon Memorial Park.

Mrs. Berner, 78, of 1285 Beacon St., Waban, died Thursday (April 18) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

A native of Russia, Mrs. Berner graduated from the gymnasia at the age of 16. She came to the United States in 1910 and was married three years later to Max Berner. The couple celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary in July, 1973.

Mrs. Berner was active in charitable and philanthropic organizations, particularly those dealing with arranging transportation from Russia and providing those people with care and assistance after they arrived here.

Mrs. Berner suffered from diabetes and was one of the first patients of Dr. Joslin. She was chosen by Joslin as a "model" in showing other patients how to live a life of normalcy and there is a fund in her name at the Joslin Foundation for research in diabetes.

Mrs. Berner is survived by her husband, Max Berner of Waban; two sons, Robert C. of Brookline and Alvin S. of Waban; two daughters, Mrs. Selma Shafiroff of Flusing, N. Y., and Mrs. Lorraine Sher of DeWitt, N. Y.; and eight grandchildren, Dr. Bruce Shafiroff, Scott Shafiroff, Nina Shafiroff, Robin Sher, Michael Sher and Roger Sher, all of New York; Richard Berner of Washington, D. C., and Diana Shapero of Bethesda, Md.

Simmons to speak to local medical society

A report relating to the government's views concerning peer review standards for the medical profession will be presented by Dr. Henry Simmons when he addresses members of the Charles River District Medical Society at their annual spring meeting, Wednesday evening, May 1 at the Sidney Hill Country Club, Chestnut Hill.

Simmons, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Health at the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will bring the 800-member medical group an updated report on response to the recently introduced legislation regarding peer review within medical societies.

Members of the Charles River District Medical Society serve the communities of Newton, Waltham, Weston, Needham and Wellesley.

Through the Charles River Health Care Foundation preliminary peer review procedures have been initiated in several local hospitals and, according to the Society's President, Dr. Morris Ringer of Newton, will encompass all hospitals in the area.

"Because of the importance of peer review procedures in properly administering Medicare and Medicaid assistance to patients, we are indeed fortunate to have Dr. Simmons address our Medical group," said Dr. Ringer.

"In addition to his post as Deputy Assistant Secretary, Dr. Simmons is also Director of the Office of Professional Standards Review, HEW, and directly involved in peer review procedures," he said.

Medical Society members from the Middlesex West District are expected to take part in the annual meeting. Medical students in the area are welcome as guests of the Charles River District Medical Society.

Prior to going into government service, Simmons lived and practiced in this area. He attended Harvard and Tufts Medical Schools and was a resident doctor at Tufts-New England Medical Center prior to entering private practice. He later was named a director, FDA Bureau of Drugs and, in 1973 joined the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

A social hour starting at 6:30 p.m. will preceed dinner and Simmons' presentation.

Employee benefits chamber topic

The matter of financing expanded employee benefit programs and how they will grow in the near future will be the topic discussed at the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce's Personnel Council Thursday morning, April 25, at the Newton Holiday Inn in Newton Lower Falls.

William Adams of the Marsh & McLennan, Inc., insurance brokerage firm will be the principal speaker.

He will be introduced by George Janis, personnel manager of the Marriott Motor Hotel, the council's 1974 co-chairman.

Previous topics in the last three months have dealt with assisting minorities in job placement and housing; day care programs and alcoholism. The council is composed of 30 company personnel executives among the chamber's membership and meets eight times during the year. In May the third annual joint luncheon meeting will be held with the Waltham-West Suburban Chamber of Commerce.

Other Personnel Council officers include Loren Eaton, GTE Sylvania, chairman; Lin Muir, Suburban Girl, secretary and the following as members of the Council's Executive Committee: David Buckley, Holiday Inn; Mark Cross, The Carr Co.; Nathaniel Fowler, Fowler Printing Co.; Margaret Hunt, Newton Savings Bank and Richard F. Kaerwer, the 3 M Co., who is also senior vice president of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce.

Industry acquires health spas

Health Industries, Inc., an 80 percent owned subsidiary of U.S. Industries, Inc., acquired two health clubs in the greater Boston area, 1361 Washington St., Newton and 400 Commonwealth Ave. in the Somerset Hotel.

Health Industries operates more than 137 European health spas nationwide. Major renovation will take place in both the Newton and Somerset facilities to improve the quality of the Boston spas so that they compare with our other fine national locations. Grand opening is scheduled for late May.

All current members of the Boston European Health Spas will automatically become members of the new European Health Spas giving them full membership privileges at every European Health Spa throughout the nation.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of a Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by ALLEN I. SINGER and HELEN D. SINGER to THE HUDSON NATIONAL BANK, dated July 20, 1972 and recorded with the South Registry District of Middlesex County as Document No. 501014, Certificate No. 78886, Book 524, Page 136, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage, and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on the premises on Tuesday, May 7, 1974 at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely:

That certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in Newton in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth, bounded and described as follows:

Easterly by the Westerly line of Leewood Road, one hundred feet;

Southerly by Lot 133 as shown on plan hereinafter mentioned, ninety-seven and 40-100 feet;

Southwesterly by land now or formerly of Victor H. Vaughan Tr., ninety-five and 19-100 feet; and

Northerly by lot 135 on said plan, one hundred thirty-seven and 43-100 feet.

Said parcel is shown as lot 134 on said plan.

All of said boundaries are determined by the Court to be located as shown on a subdivision plan, as approved by the Court, filed in the Land Registration Office, a copy of which is filed in the Registry of Deeds for the South Registry District of Middlesex County in Registration Book 245, Page 529, with Certificate No. 36662.

There is appurtenant to the above described land the right to use in common with others entitled thereto, all abutting private ways shown on plan filed in Registration Book 220, Page 169, namely Upland Avenue, Andrew Street, Columbia Avenue and Old Winchester Street in common with all others entitled thereto.

The above described land is subject to the right to slope under a Taking by the City of Newton for laying out Leewood Road, Document 133019.

The above described land is subject to zoning laws of the City of Newton.

The above premises are subject to a first mortgage to Newton Savings Bank dated July 14, 1972 and recorded in Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds (Land Court) as Document no. 499866 with Certificate no. 78886 in Book 524, Page 136, in the original sum of $25,000.

Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, municipal liens, and assessments existing thereon.

TERMS OF SALE: One thousand five hundred ($1,500.00) Dollars must be paid by the Purchaser at the time and place of sale, and the balance of the purchase money upon delivery of the deed within fourteen (14) days thereafter, at the office of said The Hudson National Bank, 17 Pope Street, Hudson, Massachusetts.

Other terms will be announced at the sale.

By: Alexander Harasko, Cashier, THE HUDSON NATIONAL BANK, Mortgagee and present holder of said Mortgage.

Uganda's beautiful foreign minister

By RAYMOND WILKINSON

NAIROBI (UPI) — One thing is for sure—Uganda's new foreign minister has it all over Henry Kissinger for looks.

Holding that distinguished Ugandan portfolio is Princess Elizabeth of Toro, a willowy, six foot tall beauty who has been a lawyer, movie starlet and as a model has graced the covers of such magazines as Harper's Bazaar and Vogue.

Her diplomatic career began when Uganda's mercurial president, Gen. Idi Amin, first named her a roving ambassador. But quickly he decided she was capable of higher things and in February he appointed her foreign minister.

Princess Elizabeth is the first woman to hold a ministerial position in Uganda's modern history.

Not bad going for a princess who in 1966 was stripped of all her royal lands by the ancient Ugandan kingdom of Toro, as was her brother, the young King Patrick Olimi. He is now an advertising executive in Nairobi.

Under former President Milton Obote "Uganda was a lost country," Princess Elizabeth said as she stepped aboard a London-bound plane to begin a new career with the jet set in the late '60s.

Elizabeth—Liz to her friends—became a prominent member of London's jet set. She appeared in several films and was establishing herself as a top flight model when she stunned her liberal companions by chucking the good life and flying back to Uganda to serve Amin.

In her new job she puts in a nine-hour day and earns a pittance compared to the $50 an hour she picked up as a fashion model.

Friends officially deny any romantic attachment between the Princess and Amin, but she obviously does rate with the general.

Elizabeth was born the eldest daughter of King George Rukiidi III of Toro—one of Uganda's four ancient kingdoms—30 years ago. Under Obote the throne lands and family fortune were confiscated.

Storybook Princess

When Amin overthrew Obote in 1971, he returned the family treasures and Elizabeth went home.

From birth she enjoyed the rights and privileges of a storybook princess. At home in the palace, subjects approached her on hands and knees.

She attended the exclusive Sherborne School for Girls in Dorset, England, studied law at Cambridge University and at Gray's Inn, London, and qualified as a lawyer in 1965. During a brief career at the bar in East Africa she defended petty thieves and murderers.

After Obote came to power, she returned to London.

Royal Friends

Asked about the influence of her royal friends on her career, during her modeling and movie days, she once said: "I do have royal friends all over the world, but I contact them only when the appropriate occasion arises."

In the movies she appeared in an African drama called "Bullfrog in the Sun" and other films.

Then came Amin and a new role for the princess.

GAUGES

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Fuel economy gauges now being offered by U.S. automakers won't improve the efficiency of a car's engine, but they will show how efficiently you're operating the car.

The meters that monitor engine vacuum pressure visually translate your driving techniques directly into relative fuel economy. They range in price from $12 to $25 and are a sound investment if you want to add a few miles to a gallon of gasoline.

The gauges now being put on the market by the U.S. manufacturers are simply their own adaptations of devices that have been available in auto parts stores for years. They measure the engine vacuum through a connection to the intake manifold.

But, unlike the old meters which measured the vacuum in inches, Ford and General Motors offer gauges that simply say you're operating in the "good" or "poor" fuel economy range. If it's poor, decreasing the pressure on the gas pedal will increase the vacuum and boost the mileage.

Chrysler Corp., has come up with an even simpler system by eliminating the instrument panel gauge. It has hooked up the system to the left-turn signal indicator which will flash on when the vacuum gauge indicates high fuel usage.

Keeping the light off will deliver better economy, but still won't really tell the driver what kind of fuel economy he's getting.

GM has a solution to that problem it hopes to market as an option on its 1975-model cars.

Dubbed the "Sigma I," the electronic fuel economy system displays the exact miles per gallon as a digital number in an instrument panel gauge. The system measures the precise speed of the car and the amount of gxr8no0t$ng consumed.

When these figures are put through an "electronic chip" similar to those in the new pocket computers, the exact mileage is given to the driver. As the motorist accelerates the number slides quickly down and then up again as he lifts his foot from the accelerator or eases back while driving.

"Besides having the precise figures on your mileage, there is the advantage of being able to tell how the engine is performing," explains John T. Auman, executive engineer for GM advance products engineering.

"If I have this gadget on my car and I see numbers of 14 and 15 regularly at highway speeds and then I see it drop to nine or 10, it sure tells me something is wrong with the engine," he said.

The catalytic converter will turn hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide in the exhaust gas stream into harmless water and carbon dioxide, using platinum and palladium to trigger the chemical reaction. GM says the system should last 5 years or 50,000 miles and shouldn't become another item that needs constant attention.

EMISSIONS

DETROIT (UPI) — American motorists have been paying part of the price of cleaner air in higher fuel consumption—as much as a 15 per cent penalty.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) advises against tampering with the emission-control equipment in hopes of wringing a few more miles out of a gallon of gasoline. Unless the mechanic has a complete knowledge of the system, you may find yourself getting worse fuel economy, says the EPA.

Getting back the mileage lost to the emission-control devices is a little more complicated than just disconnecting a couple of hoses and retuning the engine. Many of the controls have been built in, not just added on to the engine.

Several drivers who had mechanics remove some of the emission-control devices from the almost-new cars in the Detroit area have complained of no better mileage. In fact, some think the mileage has worsened and the warranty on their cars are no longer in effect.

The emission-control devices are one prime reason that new cars should be maintained with tune-ups at regular intervals.

Some emission control systems use a pump to force air into the flaming exhaust gases. The additional air helps consume carbon monoxide and unburned hydrocarbons, but the pump adds to the energy requirement.

Another thing the automotive experts did to meet present auto exhaust standards was changing the moment when the gasoline was ignited.

An engine runs best with "advanced" timing. The spark ignites the fuel and air just before the piston reaches the top of the cylinder.

To reduce emissions when the car is slowing down or idling, emission control systems automatically "retard" zkihn 8'z, it occurs after the piston reaches the top of the cylinder and starts down again. Because combustion gets a late start, more fuel is used to do the same amount of work.

The chemical muffler—the catalytic converter—the automakers will install on most 1975-model cars will allow the engineers to remove some of the hardware they've put on in the past couple of years. General Motors estimates an over-all average improvement of 13 per cent in fuel economy on the 1975 models.

"Ban-the-Booze"

By RAMESH C. PANDE

NEW DELHI (UPI) — A "ban-the-booze" campaign has virtually collapsed in India almost before it got started.

None of the 13 states which sent representatives to a federal Prohibition Committee meeting would agree to enforce a total ban on alcohol. Most maintained they could not afford to lose the substantial revenue from excise duties on liquor.

Under Article 47 of the Indian Constitution, enforcement of prohibition rests with the states. And some which have been dry for years now have decided to go wet to curb bootlegging and boost their incomes.

Today only one of India's 21 states—Gujarat—is totally dry.

In the capital of New Delhi, where diplomatic cocktail parties flourish, public drinking is still forbidden by law. However, there is no ban on those who drink in private clubs or are guests of foreign tourists staying in local hotels.

Calcutta the Wettest

Of the major cities, Calcutta remains the bastion of the lawful drinker. Although Wednesdays are dry, the rest of the week Calcutta bars do a brisk trade.

Another area where prohibitionists have made few inroads is the Indian military, still steeped in British tradition. Indian military clubs steadfastly continue to cater to the thirsty soldier.

It was Mahatma Gandhi who championed the temperance movement in India. He detested liquor as "the root cause of poverty."

Prohibitionists here argue that Indians by nature are not drinkers.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sophia Loren will make her television drama debut next season in "Brief Encounter," a Noel Coward play that tells a poignant love story and was notably done by the movies years ago. It will be a Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation on NBC. The film version has been seen a number of times on television over the years.

Some anniversaries: The CBS daytime serial, "As the World Turns," began its 19th year on April 2. NBC's "The Doctors" serial celebrated its 11th anniversary April 1. Original cast members still playing the roles they created for "AS the Wrold Turns" are Don MacLaughlin, Helen Wagner, Santos Ortega and William Johnson.

——Star Raymond Burr and "Ironside" will be back with NBC for their eighth season beginning in the fall. Burr is creeping up steadily on his run in the original "Perry Mason" series, in which he appeared for something like 12 years and which is still aired on many stations as a syndicated rerun. A dozen writers are turning out next season's "Ironside" scripts.

Walter Slezak, who has been living in Switzerland for several years, came back recently to appear in four episodes of ABC's daytime serial.

Summer arts program planned

The Newton Recreation Department, encouraged by the acceptance of its spring cultural arts program series, is planning to offer a summer arts program designed to bring art and entertainment to the people of Newton.

Activities will be held during regular playground hours, and in the evenings as well, so that both children and adults may take advantage of the programs. A pool of local artists interested in sharing their skills and entusiasm is being set up.

The activities will include an art workshop in the form of eight weekly art classes and aperformance and demonstration to be held in one of the playground districts. The performances are being scheduled by districts so that the entertainment will be equally distributed.

According to Gail Forman, many artists and groups have already expressed interest in working with the Recreation Department on this summer program. Several of these people have worked with the Cultural Arts Committee in the schools and come highly recommended.

Among the programs already scheduled, is a series of appearances by puppeteer Eleanor Boylan.

Four, hour and a half demonstrations and performances will be offered at the Stearns Playground on July 2, the Burr Playground on July 9, the Emerson School on July 30 and the Memorial School on August 5. All performances will begin at 2 p.m.

A program of participating square dancing will be presented by Irving Park and the Garden City Squares on four evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. These programs will be at the Newton Centre Playground on July 2, the Boyd Playground on July 10, the Auburndale Playground on July 23 and the Hyde School on August 14.

Two performances of "Mirror Man" will be presented by the National Theatre for Children in Boston during the summer months. The first will be presented at Burr Park on July 24 and the second at Newton Centre on August 7. Both performances will begin at 1 p.m. In addition, "Fiddler on the Roof" will be presented at Newton South High School the latter part of August.

The Recreation Department's cultural arts program is also initiating an outdoor film program this summer. Each playground will have two feature film programs, augmented by films of general interest during the course of the season.

The feature films scheduled, include "Born Free," "Cat Ballou", "The Music Man", "Marooned," "Farenheit 451," "Shenandoah," and "A Raisin in the Sun."

The spring cultural arts series has been well received and several of the classes are over subscribed. Members of the three art classes, drawing, quilting and creative dramatics classes will take part in the Cultural Art Commission's Spring Thing to be held on the City Hall Mall May 19.

In addition to exhibits of the works created in the classes, the creative dramatics class will present a short skit for the children attending the Spring Thing.

Concert on May 5

A concert of contemporary choral music will be presented by the Newton College Chorus and the Holy Cross College Glee Club on May 5 at 8 p.m.

The concert, open to the public at no charge, will be performed in the Newton College Chapel on the Newton College campus at 885 Centre St., Newton.

The Newton College Chorus is directed by Emmett Windham, chairman of the music department. The Holy Cross Glee Club performs under the direction of Phillip Moorehead.

The program will include Benjamin Britten's "Hymn to St. Cecilia," Igor Stravinsky's "Mass" and selected works by Arthur Berger, Charles Ives, Bela Bartok, Vincent Persichetti and Daniel Pinkham.

Hobby show April 27

A hobby show and contest will be held under the sponsorship of the Greater Boston Liquid Embroidery Crafts Clubs and the senior citizens' group (Cheerful Club) of Rebecca Pomroy House, Newton, on Saturday, April 27.

The show will take place at the Pomroy House, near Newton Corner, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Besides the many entries received from the Newton-Waltham area, items have a- ay as Lowell, South Boston, d Foxboro. The ju take place before the show and prizes will be awarded for the various levels of competition.

Three people have been chosen to judge the exhibit: Mrs. Elsie Freeman, chairman of the Wakefield Council on Agino9 Ev b nt t WHDH talkmaster; and Edward Harrington.

Four crafts will be displayed. They are liquid embroidery, the use of ball-point tubes of paint on fabrics and hard surfaces; creative bowcraft, making bows on a simple bowmaker for unusual gift wrappings and decorative centerpieces; paper pottery, prepared rolls of paper which are telescoped into shape and glued for making canisters, lamps, and many other articles; and chemage, a decoupage type of glaze used to transform plain candles, glasses, and styrofoam into beautiful articles, using scraps of paper napkins, gift wrapping paper, or leftover greeting cards.

Elizabeth Mann

Elizabeth Mann journeys to South America 'with flute'

Elizabeth Mann, a 14-year old, Bigelow Junior High School student, who first learned to play the flute in a Newton music class, has won the "Outstanding Young Musician Scholarship" from the National Music School in Interlochen, Mich

Liz, who is a member of Boston University's Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras and the New England Conservatory's Massachusetts Youth Wind Ensemble, began studying flute in the fourth grade at Ward School. She is now studying flute with William Grass at the All Newton Music School.

Two years ago, Elizabeth was chosen to play a solo with the Boston Pops on the Esplanade and this year she was the only Newton flutest to play in both the district and the all state orchestra.

Liz, who gave up gymnastics and competitive skiing for music, planned to spend her summer studying at Interlochen even before she learned of the scholarship. "I went there last year, and I love it", said the petite, blue-eyed youngster. "Everyone has to practise so you don't have to give up any other activity for music," she said.

When asked how much time she spends practicing the flute, Liz explained, "I practice one hour in school because I'm excused from music class; then I practice a half hour when I come home."

Liz, who will be going to Colombia, South America, with the Greater Boston Youth Symphony for 10 days in June, thinks Rampal is the best flutest, Tschaikovsky, the best composer; and Robert Redford, "the best looking of anyone."

Art exhibit at City Hall

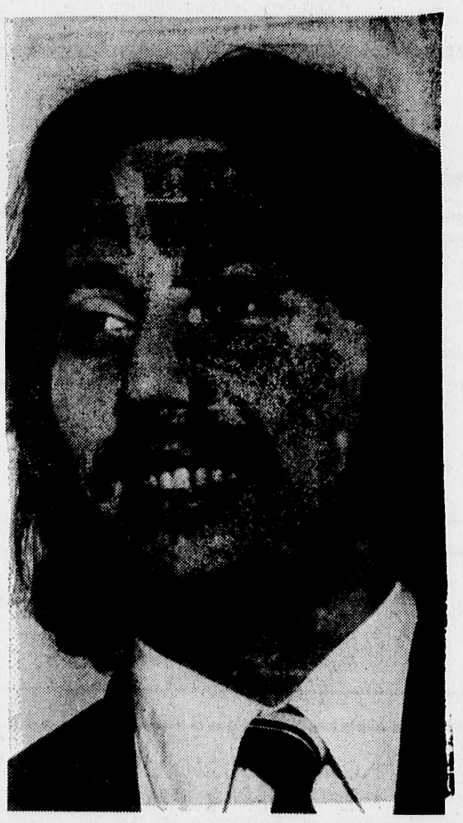

An art exhibit featuring the works of students in the Newton College division of fine arts is on display in the lobby of Newton City Hall.

The exhibit, which began on April 16, will run until May 7.

Included in the presentation are paintings, drawings, silk screen prints, weavings, three dimensional designs, etc.

In addition to Newton College students, some of the exhibiting artists are Boston College students who take courses in Newton College's division of fine arts through a cross-registration program.

The display was organized by Donna D'Agostino, a Boston College student who worked on the project with Vincent Solomita, associate professor of art at Newton College.

RONALD FELDMAN, a cellist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be one of five featured players Sunday, May 5, in the final concert of the All Newton Music School Scholarship Fund Series. Ronald Knudsen, BSO violinist; pianist Phyllis Moss, violinist Robert Barnes and bass clarinetist Felix Viscuglia will perform. Tickets are available at 527-4553.

National Library Week underway in Newton

"Grow With Books" and "Get It All Together—At Your Library" are the dual themes of the 17th annual National Library Week program, deisigned to highlight Library activities and invite more library use.

The two basic themes call attention to the fact that today's libraries serve by more than books alone, and further, that every reader can grow intellectually, emotionally, and personally throughout his existence by the purposeful use of books and other library materials.

National Library Week, sponsored by the National Book Committee and the American Library Association, is showtime for the thousands of information pros who work all year for the community.

If people study the "Get It All Together" poster, designed by award-winning artist Tim Lewis, the longer they look, the more they see. Books? Of course. But also the whole spectrum of modern communications and educational media, films, disc and tape recordings, video tape, microfilm, paintings and reproductions, and even games.

The "Grow With Books" poster depicts the exuberance of youth; the promises of spring, and the relevance of reading. It was designed by Heff Heisler, a South American photographer.

South has music week

A music week was held April 8-11 at Newton South High School. This program was organized by the students under the leadership of Barbara Wright and Lynn Feldman and in cooperation with David Levinson and David Arner of the music department. Both students and adults performed in a variety of musical presentations.

A student group, Steve Cramer's Trio, consisting of Steve Cramer at the piano, Sato Knudsen, cello and Adam Grossman violinist, began the week's program. This group was recently entered in Brookline Chamber Music Society competition. This was followed by a Pro Art Trio with Janet Chisholm, Barbara Blegen and Mrs. Zoe Levenson.

Jon Backer's Jazz Group from Newton North played to a large audience on Tuesday, April 9.

Stefan Popov, a Bulgarian born cellist, now at the New England Conservatory gave a performance, accompanied by Barbara Blegen, pianist.

The student recital included Barbara Wright, violin, Judy Sidman, violin, Jill Wollins, piano, Sato Knudsen, cello, Frank Walker, baritone and Bill Wright on the piano.

The String Quartet from the Wellesley Conservatory performed with Ralph Morrison, violinist, Josie Stein, violinist from Belmont High School, Jan Lerbinger from Newton South played the viola, and Roberta Benotti from Wellesley High School was the cellist.

Orchestra to perform

The Newton Symphony Orchestra has announced its program for Sunday, May 5 at 8 p.m. at the Newton North High School.

Under the baton of Music Director Michel Sasson the Symphony musicians, assisted by the Masterworks Chorale, will perform the New England premiere of Gustav Mahler's Das Klagende Lied.

Soloists featured are baritone David Arnold, alto Phyllis Elhady, tenor Carl Olsen and soprano Deborah Ann O'Brien.

This concert will be the third in the 1973-74 NSO Concert Series. Also on the program is a performance of Verdi's Te Deum to be conducted by Allen Lannom, music director of the Masterworks Chorale.

This same program will be given the following week, on May 12 at the National Theatre (Boston Center for the Arts). Tickets for both performances are $3.50. People may telephone 244-8506 or 244-7560 for information and reservations.

Exhibit at Lasell

An exhibit of student photography will be on display in the Brennan Library on the Lasell Junior College campus for two weeks beginning Monday, April 22. This exhibit is under the direction of Paul Petricone, instructor of photography at Lasell.

Other highlights of the exhibit will be a display of historical and early photography - including daguerreotypes, an original photograph of Abraham Lincoln and the works of nineteenth and twentieth century women photographers.

The hours the Brennan Library are open are: Monday through Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-11 p.m.; Fridays 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m.; Saturdays, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sundays, Noon-11 p.m. The public is welcome.

Art show

R. H. Stearns has announced that the Newton Art Show will be held at its Chestnut Hill store, starting Monday, April 29 and continuing through Saturday, May 11.

This will be the twenty-fourth annual exhibition of paintings by members of the Newton Art Association. The paintings will be displayed throughout the store.

Craft show April 28

A professional craft show will be held at Newton North High School, Newtonville, on Sunday, April 28.

"Arts & Crafts" will consist of over 60 craftspeople who will be displaying and selling their wares. Enameling, weaving, Rya rugs, stained glass, candles, ceramics, silver, metal sculpture, plexiglass, leather, and decoupage are just a few of the types of crafts that will be represented. Demonstrators and a sketch artist will be on hand throughout the day.

Doors will be open from 1-7 p.m. Admission to the show is $1 for adults and $.50 for children. Proceeds from the show will benefit the world-wide network of ORT vocational educational schools.
